Prices Boosted

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. has announced increases of four cents a gallon for gasoline, diesel oil and heating fuel east of the Ottawa Valley, effective with the opening of business today.

The company has also announced an increase of 4.5 cents a gallon in aviation gasoline and turbo fuels in the same area, covering eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

The increases follow a statement by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald Monday that average price rises of four to five cents a gallon had been approved for oil companies operating east of the Ottawa Valley, which is almost totally served by imported crude.

Oil companies had sought increases to offset higher crude costs from Iran, Venezuela and West Africa that became effective in October and November.

Pipeline Opening Delayed

TORONTO (CP) — The opening of a pipeline between here and Ottawa to carry heating oil, scheduled for today, will be delayed "probably to the latter part of December," because of corrosion in part of the pipe, a pipeline company spokesman said Friday.

The National Energy Board granted an application Thursday to Trans-Northern Pipeline Co. for pumping facilities on the 34-mile segment between Kingston and Farren Point, south of Ottawa, that has been closed since the 1962 government decision to divide Canada into two oil markets.

An energy board spokesman said the pipeline might open today but Mr. G. Bonham, engineer manager for Trans-Northern, said tests have shown corrosion in the pipeline in the Brockville-Maitland area and repairs must be made.

The reopening of the pipeline will permit about 39,000 barrels daily of heating fuel to be pumped from here to Ottawa, leaving about one-third of the load off Montreal refineries that in the past have supplied all of Ottawa's winter requirements of 62,000 barrels daily.

Snowmobile Team Won't Compete

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Bombardier Ltd., a manufacturer of snowmobiles, announced Friday it will not enter its Ski-Doo team in factory snowmobile racing this winter because of the energy shortage.

Laurent Beaudoin, Bombardier president, said the amount of fuel used by racing machines is relatively small, but the amount of fuel used to get the race teams and spectators to the event is significant.

The International Snowmobile Industry Association reported last year that snowmobiles used one-tenth of one per cent of the gasoline consumed in North America.

Supply Priority

OTTAWA (CP) — Adequate oil supplies are more important than preventing pollution, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Friday.

In time of crisis, he told a city service club, lower pollution standards for automobiles must be accepted.

Life Plus 15 Years For 'Sexual Problem'

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Randall Haig, 19, of Oakville, has been sentenced to life imprisonment plus 15 years on two counts of rape, but will also have to serve three years remaining on a five-year term for another rape.

Haig pleaded guilty Oct. 25 to raping two 16-year-old girls at knifepoint last summer while on parole for raping a third girl.

At a hearing in provincial court Thursday, Judge Douglas Latimer said he would recommend Haig be sent to the Ontario Hospital at Penetanguishene for psychiatric treatment.

Judge Latimer noted a psychiatric report indicating that Haig had a sexual problem and a personality disorder—which leads to anti-social behaviour.

A spokesman for the National Parole Board said in Ottawa Friday that Haig will be eligible to be considered for parole again in seven years. However, he said: Haig's parole violation, the nature of the crimes and the consecutive 15-year term would be considered.

After Haig's sentence was handed down, four policemen were needed to restrain the prisoner who began to struggle as he left the courtroom.

Santa's Helpers

As every child knows Santa Claus is a busy man and as the time draws closer to Christmas he gets busier every day. That's why it's good to get a little help, especially from such people as Wayne and Shuster and Ronald McDonald. The parade got under way at 10 this morning in warm but unseasonable weather. Floats, bands, funny cars and clowns all contributed to make the Santa Claus parade a success.

7,000 Teachers Resigned

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mass resignations by about 7,000 teachers in various areas of the province were submitted Friday to back demands for higher pay and better working conditions.

Representatives of three teachers' federations said the teachers will not return to their jobs in January unless favorable contracts are negotiated with school boards.

The Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation (OSSTF) conveyed the resignations of 2,141 teachers, the Ontario English Catholic Teachers Association (OECTA) 4,000 resignations and the Association des Enseignants Franco-Ontariens (AEFO) delivered 1,100 resignations.

Resignations—all effective Dec. 31—were conveyed on behalf of more than 90 per cent of secondary school teachers employed by public boards in Hastings, York, Essex, Frontenac, Perth and Prescott-Russell.

Morris Richardson, OSSTF general secretary, said about 40 high schools are operated by the five boards and the schools will be without teachers unless local boards agree to teachers' demands.

The OSSTF maintains that working conditions, including the size of classes and the right of teachers to negotiate directly with school boards, are the main unresolved issues. Mr. Richardson said. But salary requirements are also being contested in each instance, he added.

Roman Catholic elementary school teachers resigned from jobs with 11 school boards—Hastings-Prince, Renfrew, Essex, Kent, Wellington, Ontario, Ottawa, Carleton, Nipissing, Sudbury, Schreiber-Terrace Bay and Chapleau.

Doug Hunt, provincial chief negotiator for OECTA, said the resignations submitted by Roman Catholic Teachers might mean the closing of 281 elementary separate schools across the province in January.

Teachers will remain out until a "fair settlement is reached," he said. One board in the Ottawa area made a last-minute offer of 8.5 per cent as a salary increase Friday but teachers rejected it, he added.

All three teacher federations said they have "contingency" funds to provide teachers with if not settlement is reached.

Mr. Richardson said OSSTF members will receive "about half their regular income" from funds of the provincial organization—collected by special levy from all high school teachers in the province.

A spokesman for OECTA said

Shell Boosts Fuel Prices

MONTREAL (CP) — Shell Canada will increase its wholesale fuel prices east of the Ottawa Valley today, it was announced Friday.

The price of motor gasolines diesel and aviation fuels will increase by 3.6 cents a gallon while furnace and stove oils will go up by five cents a gallon.

The company said the increases were necessary since Shell's last prices changes on Nov. 3 were below other increases in the industry.

Wallets Feeling Fuel Shortage

OTTAWA (CP) — Gasoline and heating oil prices jump four to five cents a gallon in east and east of the Ottawa Valley today—spelling out in pocketbook terms what it means to have an energy shortage.

Approved Monday by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, the increases will push premium gasoline prices to 75 cents a gallon and heating oil to 40 cents a gallon in some areas.

Random checks this week registered Halifax residents will be paying 68 to 69 cents for regular gasoline, 73 to 75 cents for premium, and 34 to 35 cents for heating oil.

Montreal service station operators indicated prices there will be 66 to 68 cents for regular gasoline and 69 to 73 cents for premium and heating oil will cost 37 to 40 cents a gallon.

In Ottawa, regular gasoline is expected to cost about 65 cents, premium 69 to 71 cents, and heating oil 35 to 36 cents.

Mr. Macdonald—under pressure all week in the Commons, where the increases were justified because of an unprecedented rise in Canada's Venezuelan and Middle East crude oil. Arab oil prices jumped almost 70 per cent in mid-October and a 56-per-cent boost in Venezuelan crude followed shortly after.

Progressive Conservative Party leader, reacted skeptically in the Commons Friday, suggesting that oil companies could spend some of their fast-rising profits to also help part of the increase.

Mr. Macdonald said his officials examined applications for the increase closely before approval was granted. They concluded that the increases are reasonable under the circumstances.

All areas in and east of the Ottawa Valley rely on imported oil. The rest of the country is supplied by crude from Western Canada.

Meanwhile, Finance Minister John Turner introduced a formal ways and means motion paving the way for legislation to raise the federal export tax on crude oil to $1.90 a barrel from 40 cents.

The increase, also effective today, will raise revenue in almost $2 million a day, based on 1973 December export quotas of 978,000 barrels. The quota is adjusted monthly by the National Energy Board.

Mr. Macdonald announced the tax increase Nov. 1.

Mr. Macdonald's performance in office was questioned Friday by two senior Conservatives, one suggesting that Prime Minister Trudeau should file a report from the vital energy portfolio.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) made the request in the Commons and told reporters later he thought Mr. Turner would do a better job.

Mr. Macdonald's credibility also was questioned by Alvin Hamilton, Conservative energy critic, who said there has been conflicting government and industry statements on the potential shortage facing eastern Canada this winter.

Prime Minister Trudeau went to Mr. Macdonald's defence, accusing Mr. Baldwin of being erroneous and prejudiced and telling Mr. Hamilton he would take Mr. Macdonald's word ahead of oil industry representatives.

Ben Gurion Dead at 87

TEL AVIV (CP) — David Ben-Gurion, author of Israel's independence and the Jewish state's first premier, died today, the state radio announced. He was 87.

He was pronounced dead about at 11 a.m. local time (4 a.m. EST) at Tel Hashomer hospital. His family and close friends were at his side.

Ben-Gurion, who retired from the premiership 10 years ago when push-ed in 1970, suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Nov. 18.

He rallied at first, under around-the-clock medical attention, but his condition began to deteriorate Nov. 23 with a drop in pulse and blood pressure.

Since then doctors had remained close by.

It is expected that he will be given a state funeral and be buried next to his wife, Paula, at Kibbutz Sdeh Boker, the Negev communal settlement in the southern part of the desert to which he retired to write his memoirs.

It was David Ben-Gurion who, on the night of May 14, 1948, declared the establishment of the state of Israel, the first independent Jewish state for 2,000 years.

Canadian General Answers Charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Shaken and a bit angry at the first breath of controversy that has shown over it for some time, the armed forces moved quickly Friday to answer criticism about living conditions of Canadian soldiers in Egypt.

Gen. J. A. Dextraze, chief of defence staff, called a hurried news conference to deny charges from one of his own doctors that Canadians in the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF) live like pigs.

Defence Minister James Richardson told Commons questioners later that the forces have "completely taken every possible care" of Canadians now stationed in Egypt.

Meanwhile, the man at the root of the controversy, Maj. Jean-Paul Vezina of Quebec City, appeared before the general later in the day to explain his statements to a Canadian Press correspondent in Cairo.

He then returned to his home in Quebec City where he will take leave before reporting to his regular job at doctor at Canadian Forces Base Valcartier, Que.

Maj. Vezina, a senior medical officer, said in the interview that he asked to be sent home. He was leaving in disgust over conditions in the Canadian camp.

"I've got 10 years or so to live and I'm not going to live like a pig."

He complained particularly about the treatment of two Canadian car accident victims who waited six hours in pain for treatment.

Gen. Dextraze, who announced Thursday that a Canadian field hospital had been sent to Cairo before Maj. Vezina made the latest of several outspoken remarks about conditions, obviously was irked at both the doctor's reported statement and the fuss made of them.

Volunteers Lacking

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton brigade of the St. John Ambulance is turning down some last-minute requests for services because of a shortage of volunteers. Brigade secretary George Cowan said in an interview Friday the organization, which has not been able to replace all of its retiring members, has room for 100 more members. It currently has 120.

Kissinger Fund

OSLO (Reuter) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger of the United States said Friday in a letter to the Norwegian Nobel Prize committee that he has established a $37,000 fund for children of U.S. servicemen killed or missing in action in Indochina. The sum is his share of the $115,000 Nobel Peace Prize awarded jointly this year to Kissinger and to Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

Bicycles Scarce

PARIS (CP) — The energy crisis in Europe has resulted in a very different type of "problem in France" — a dwindling number of bicycles for sale. For several days now, it has become increasingly difficult to purchase a bicycle despite the fact France is one of the world's major bicycle producers.

Sick to Death

TORONTO (CP) — Daniel Martin Price, 19, of Mississauga, Ont., was killed early Friday when he fell out of an 11th storey window at Rochdale College. Police said Price began drinking beer and tequila and smoking marijuana the previous night. He had been sleeping, but went to the window about 4 a.m., leaned out to vomit and fell.

Astronauts Spot Beam

HOUSTON (AP) — The Skylab 3 astronauts today easily spotted a laser beam flashed at them from earth in a test to determine whether ground-based lasers might one day be used by a spaceship for guidance and navigation. "Got it loud and clear," Commander Gerald Carr reported as the laser was flashed by scientists at the Goddard Space Flight Centre, Greenbelt, Md. "It appears like a little green spot, flashing about three cycles a second."

Firefighters' Raffle Raises Cash for Toys

Santa Claus will be wearing fire engine red this Christmas for Al Blaind of Belleville and the more than 1,200 underprivileged children.

Last night Mr. Blaind, 112 Progress Street won the $500 bond raffled by the city firefighters at their annual Christmas ball.

For the past two months firefighters have been Christmas shopping for the city's underprivileged children. Last night's raffle draw was just one of the many projects they have planned to raise funds for Christmas toys.

Firefighters in the past spent much spare time repairing toys for children in more than 400 families. It placed such a demand on the firefighters, last year they had to get a $400 bank loan.

Bill Williams, president of the Belleville Professional Firefighters' Association said this year's raffle was an integral part of the gift program.

"We no longer have facilities to repair toys," he said. "Most of the children's toys on the market now are made of plastic and we just can't repair them. If we want to continue giving gifts then we have to purchase new toys or receive donations of new toys."

Last night's draw saw more than 4,000 ticket holders get into the Christmas spirit by helping the firefighters out.

Accountant Gets RIA

Earlier this month, Donald L. Pearson, a Northern Electric employee, was awarded the RIA designation (Registered Industrial Accountant) from the Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants upon completion of an accountant's course of study.

During this month's regular meeting, Robert Matiina, RIA and provincial director of planning and development stressed the need for qualifying as a professional accountant and the importance of a continuing education program.

Used Many Time

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A single birthday card has put to 35 years' service for R. C. Etheridge, 84, of Richmond and his brother, Benjamin, 56, of Atlanta, Ga. The card, which bears a drawing of a Scotsman, notes that the sender has signed his name in pencil. The brothers have been signing, dating and swapping the card every year since 1946.

Kettleful of Help

Education Beat

The Ministry Just Ran Scared

The ministry of education in a widely applauded move, recently made English and Canadian studies courses compulsory in high schools.

On the surface, the move appeared wise. No one should escape from high school without a working knowledge of his language and some acquaintanceship with his country.

But consider the evidence.

No schools here, or in any other part of the province to our knowledge, are reconsidering their staffing requirements for next year. If ydents, under the free option system, had been deserting English and history in droves, schools should be seriously undermanned in those departments. But they aren't. Just as many students are taking those courses now as were before the credit system was introduced two to five years ago. Just as many will be taking them next year when they become compulsory.

Why did the ministry re-instate compulsory subjects?

It wasn't because students were dropping English, said the director of the ministry's branch, Kel Crossley. It was because of "widespread public concern" that they might.

The ministry didnt consider the facts—it ran scared before and ill-informed public and emerged on the lame.

Now will the public get the good, solid, old-fashioned history courses it expected. The two compulsory courses now are called "Canadian studies". Courses, that in the hands of the wrong people, could descend to the level of hollow jingoism. They probably won't — teachers are responsible people — but the door has been opened to the possibility.

The ministry introduced the credit system in selected schools five years ago and it became province-wide two years ago. It back-tracked before it had given the new system time for a fair trial.

The credit system became the target for all the brickbats the public was waiting to hurl at education. The upwardly mobile, competitive Canadian wants the best for his kids, or at the very least, something better than he had. Because as a graduate of the good old system, he had never been given any responsibility in high school, he doubted his child's maturity and insisted that schools get an academic education on his kid.

Without taking the time to investigate the credit system, he took up the cry that high school graduates of today can't read, write, spell or do simple arithmetic.

Working in a newspaper office, we have ample opportunity every day to observe what adults products of the old system, can't either. Including many university graduates.

The public hasn't absorbed a pedegogical axiom — you can teach until doomsday, but learning is accomplished by the individual alone. It is a solitary business, and the standard of learning, in the long run, is entirely dependent on the standard the individual sets for himself.

So the public panicked and the ministry of education allowed itself to be stampeded into a political play of the basest kind.

A psychologist recently gave her explanation for the ills society likes to ascribe to youth today.

"It's the result," she said, "of parents raised in an autocratic, authoritarian way failing to understand their children who have been exposed to a more democratic system."

United Fund Drive Slows

Elinor Sisson, this year's United Way campaign chairman, says she is anticipating receipt of donations from several large Belleville industries.

She expects this will put the fund drive closer to its target of $140,000.

In the past two weeks, contributions that will support 12 community agencies have been received slowly.

By Friday, $103,200 has been contributed, 73.6 per cent of the goal.

Two weeks ago, the 1973 campaign had reached 62 per cent of its goal and was $5,000 over the mark set at the same date in 1972. However, lately, Mrs. Sisson said, contributions have "really slowed down a lot."

"I'm expecting money from several large industries," she said yesterday. "The total should jump considerably as a result."

At present, she is pursuing some commercial businesses for donations. In the industrial sector, which she feels is the key division to realizing the fund goal, donations are coming in slowly. The campaign officially ended Oct. 31.

However, she noted the state of Belleville's campaign is not dissimilar from those cities in the Community Funds and Councils of Canada.

According to the organization's figures, only 15 cities have either reached or passed goals set for this year. There are 54 communities in the group.

Drama

PICTON — The drama club of Prince Edward County Institute Friday night presented its premier performance of The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds at the school.

The play, an in-depth study into the lives of an unstable widow and her two daughters, featured Karen Bright in the role of Tillie. Tillie's mother, was portrayed by Brenda Burd, and the second daughter Ruth was played by Cindy Taylor.

Other characters in the play were Scot Powers who portrayed Nanny, an 85-year-old semi-invalid, and Lyn Schutta as Janice, a classmate of Tillie's.

The play is basically a serious one, but with several humorous scenes involving Nanny.

Several areas of the school assisted in the building of the set and the props, which included a live rabbit, several potted plants and a cats skeleton.

Preceding the play a short film, The Red Balloon, was shown, because it contained a theme parralled to that of the play.

Canadian University In Europe Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — University students may soon be able to study in Europe without the usual red tape of having to transfer course credits obtained at foreign schools to Canadian universities.

Dr. Bernd Maurach, a professor at University of Ottawa, wants to set up a Canadian University in Europe (CUE). As part of his campaign he has been canvassing presidents and deans of universities across the country with information about it.

Reaction to his mail campaign will determine whether his brainchild gets beyond the embryo stage.

Dr. Maurach has already done some solid groundwork. Through his office s a university in Kassel, West Germany, has agreed to turn over one of its buildings to accommodate a Canadian university in Europe.

Kassel is an ideal location for a Canadian university, said Dr. Maurach. It is centrally located, offers reasonably priced accommodation, good trans portation and abundant cultural diversions.

A summer school program involving 16 Canadian universities, held in Kassel this year, has convinced Dr. Maurach that an extension university there has a good chance of success.

The CUE would not be a degree-granting institution, but would simply provide space in Canadian universities interested in offering some of their courses in Europe.

It would also serve children of military and diplomatic families stationed in Europe who wish to continue their studies abroad with a Canadian university curriculum.

The university would be staffed with Canadian and local instructors, with Canadians making up the largest part of the faculty.

If reaction to the idea is good, he said the university could be open as early as next September.

About 300 students probably could be accommodated the first year, he said.

Spain Trades With Red Lands

VIENNA (Reuter) — While Western countries edge towards Trade detente with the East, trade relations between Spain and the Communist bloc have been quietly blossoming.

Madrid has developed a strong trade partnership with the countries of Comecon, the East European trading group, despite the ideological gulf between them.

By 1972 their trade turnover was worth some $366 million, a staggering 70-per-cent increase over the previous year.

This rapid growth is largely the result of former Spanish minister Gregorio Lopez Bravo's energetic efforts to establish ties — Spanish "Ostpolitik," or Eastern policy.

Madrid has pursued this external policy despite a clamp-down on left-wing opposition within Spain, which still includes a total ban on the Socialist and Communist parties.

The expanding links with the East are all the more remarkable since General Francisco Franco came to power in 1939 as victor in a civil war which was characterized as a crusade against international communism.

But the general has softened his approach to the East over the past few years and in high traditional year-end speech in 1972 he omitted his usual attack on communism and indicated that closer ties with the Soviet bloc were inevitable.

The first Eastern countries to penetrate the Spanish market in the late 1950s were Poland, Czechslovakia, Hungary and Bulgaria. These countries all began with inter-bank agreements with Franco's regime.

Though of little importance in themselves, these tentative moves signalled a willingness by both sides to forget political differences in favor of commercial interests.

Trade links grew rapidly in the early 1960s, and by 1968, joint agreements were worth about $142 million.

The other Communist countries had also entered the market, but for two years trade stagnated until a series of long-term trade agreements were signed in 1970 and 1971.

By this time most Comecon countries had established relations at consular level with Madrid.

A glaring exception is the Soviet Union, which is likely to become Madrid's most valuable East Bloc partner following a $40 million five-year agreement which the two countries signed in 1972.

Prospects for establishing diplomatic relations between Moscow and Madrid are clouded by Spain's demand for some 500 tons of gold it claims Spanish left-wing republicans took from the treasury during the Spanish civil war and deposited in Moscow.

The Soviet Union argues that this was payment for arms supplied to the republican forces, who were fighting against France.

But this dispute has not blunted Communist interest in Spain's citrus fruits, leather, cork, wine and chemical products. Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union are also buying Spanish built ships.

Rawdon: The Community Still Boasts Top Farms

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

HARO— Century-old township halls may be long on history.

But with original heating equipment they can be short on personal comfort - - at least during the winter months.

Rawdon Reeve Ray Short notes that, with the building still heated by its original box stove, the old hall is difficult to heat. As result council meeting during winter are now held in the more comfortable office of the new township garage at Springbrook.

But the old municipal hall, opened back in 1863, is still used for occasional community gatherings and sometimes for summer council meetings.

And there is no thought of allowing the old stone structure to fall into disrepair. Last year, it received a new roof. Some years ago the century-old stonework was repointed.

Rawdon township is not the oldest municipality in Hastings county - - the so-called "front" townships saw previous settlement . . but nevertheless, it can lay claim to several firsts in county history.

Then, back in 1850 Edward Fidlar was the township's first reeve. He went on that same year to become the first Hastings county warden.

And 15 years later - - in 1865. - - one of the earliest cheese factories in Ontario, and the first in Hastings, was established at Wellman's Corners.

Although initial settlement was underway shortly after 1800, the township was slow to develop. By 1821 it still had a population of only about 200 people.

But by 1848 the population was close to 2,200. That year, township farmers met to elect their first local officials with a William Graham as chairman.

Some 55 pathfinders and 11 township wardens were appointed. One of the duties of wardens was to keep an eye on goings on and see that the Sabbath was not profaned.

But, it remained for the advent of the railway to give the township its first real boom.

Peak population was reached in the 1880s when it reached about 4,000.

From that peak it gradually tapered. By 1940 there were less than 2,000 in the municipality. Today there is a population of about 2,200, with a number of its residents working at Marmoraton Mines at Marmora or at Elaine Footwear at Stirling.

But the township still remains essentially a farming community with its many prosperous farming operations rated among the best in the county.

The township is now debenture free and council members view with something less than approval the present-day urging for amalgamation and larger areas of municipal administration.

But, if amalgamation does come, the township would favor joining up with Stirling.

So any future amalgamation involving Rawdon could see the township again joined with Stirling - - a municipality which more than a century ago decided to go its own way.

Century-old Heat

Rawdon township hall still has its original heating equipment — wood-burning stove here being loaded by Reeve Ray Short (right) and Deputy Reeve James Pollock. However, it's still a cozy cold ice township council in winter.

VD Kit: Is It Forward Step?

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON— The Prince Edward board of education has reserved approval of use of a venereal disease prevention kit in county schools, pending recommendations by the principals' association.

The kit, endorsed by the ministry of education, for use in grades nine through 13, contains a cassette tape, playing a dialogue between a student who fears he has VD and a VD clinic doctor. Also included are transparencies for over-head projection booklets and a film complete with narration record.

The film shows photographs of syphilis and gonorrhea victims in advanced stages of the diseases and symptoms of VD are detailed.

The film stresses that VD is easily cured if sufferers see a doctor promptly for diagnosis and treatment.

Several trustees agreed that the VD kit was valuable because many families have abdicated the responsibity of home education in such matters.

Bloomfield-Hallowell trustee, Edward Rutter, said that he would not object to having his children see the film, but would want to be present when it was shown.

Take 2

Picton Bureau

Other board members concurred that the kit had merit but felt that great care should be taken in introducing it at the proper scholastic level.

Mr. Rutter noted, "I think we must be careful who presents this, because we have some people in our employ who I would not want presenting it. It would take a level-headed person to know when and where to present parts of this kit.

Mr. Rutter's observation aptly points out the importance of proper application of the VD kit and leaves the nagging question of what might happen if its information were inadvertently imparted to the wrong grade level or at the wrong time.

Others might be overassured by the "quick-cure-no-sweat" overtones of the presentation. The film is not discussing a disease as simple as the common cold.

The need for a VD kit in the school system is substantiated in part by statistics, but contradicted by the statement that the highest incidence of VD occurs among men and women in the ages 25 to 29 years. Unless they are hopelessly slow learners these victims are not attending high school and therefore could not benefit from a VD kit.

The material in the kit apparently is not geared to caution students to avoid illicit sex. It just explains what to do if Sex leads to social disease.

If students are to have further education in sex through a VD prevention kit, perhaps the school system also should consider equal time for a preventive kit shocked with old-fashioned morality and self-control.

Is the kit really a forward step or is it society's sheepish admission that morality is on vacation?

Ernest Short, Business administrator for the Prince Edward County board of education, reports that there are no formal sex education courses in county schools. A limited amount of the facts of life is supplied in health and physical education classes.

Perhaps this type of instruction should be considered in advance of the VD kit to avoid a cart before the horse approach to sex.

Money Doesn't Make a Mayor

By COLIN BRUCE

The ink was still fresh from Duncan McDonald's announcement of his resignation as Trenton's mayor when the word came out one councillor wants to pay twice the money and entice the mayor to stay.

It sounds like a senseless scheme and raises some questions. Anyone who enters the hallow field of municipal politics with a fat pay cheque in mind is too foolhardy to be taken seriously at the polls. To offer the mayor this kind of "out" from a decision he has spent months pondering is not only ludicrous but insulting.

Members of council have been approached and asked to encourage the mayor to stay. The mayor made his decision. He doesn't need this kind of belated encouragement.

Maybe it will all come out in the wash. But it's interesting to question council's privileges regarding upping the mayor's salary at whim, and whether they can buy themselves a mayor at all.

Councillor Price figures no one on council has the time so the only alternative is a by-election that is going to cost money, some $3,000 if his figures are correct.

He says it makes sense to give this money to the mayor.

The mayor of Trenton is a part-time, underpaid and over - criticised position, and everyone knows it before they put themselves on the line as a candidate.

If there's no one on council who feels he has the time or the knowhow, let's get on with the machinery of democracy and get the voting lists out.

You've got to be a mayor for the integrity and responsibility of the position, not for the money.

Promoting The Arts

The Arts in Canada enjoy a growing audience. From local theatre, traditionally a basic element of community cultural activity and often its driving force, to the sponsorship of visiting artistes and groups, Belleville has been found wanting.

That we need to keep our interests in the Arts keen though is paramount, for it is basic to our way of life that the main thrust of society here is toward the material, advancement of the economy, trade and so on.

The Arts then remain to a large extent, incidental, something to be tolerated if not relegated to a completely inferior status. That we have been gradually shedding the philistine attitudes of the past however is seen in the growing impetus of a variety of cultural activities, and this including interest in our roots, in Canadiana, with the acquisition in Belleville for instance of a larger home for the Hastings County Museum.

On Monday the Kingston Symphony Orchestra will be in Belleville and here we see the part that sponsors can play. Performance being under the auspices of the Quinte Arts Council and Elliott Motors. This is an example of what local industry can do in the promotion of the Arts. It is a happy combination and one which we anticipate will see further initiatives in this sphere in the days ahead.

The Energy Crisis

Will voluntary controls on energy consumption work where, for example, they failed when people were asked to reduce spending to curb inflation?

Only a few years ago, when Mitchell Sharp was finance minister, both he and Prime Minister Trudeau spoke of inflationary pressures and warned if they were not curbed then budgetary controls might be necessary.

Well we all know that inflation long since has spiralled almost out of sight, Mr. Sharp long since has vacated finance for external affairs, and the Trudeau government is in no position to complain about public extravagance.

For all that the economy seems to have survived not only Mr. Sharp but Edgar Benson. Now we have John Turner in finance and nobody is better at staying out of trouble than he.

Anyway here we are with the energy crisis, so-called, and for the moment at least drivers do seem to be proceeding at a more sedate pace. In the United States a federal highway safety expert estimates that traffic fatalities may be reduced by 10 per cent, representing no fewer than 5,000 lives next year if the controls remain in force. The Thanksgiving weekend in the U.S. was a case in point when under 500 people died compared with the usual 600 plus.

It is an astonishing commentary on our society that it has taken an Arab oil boycott of western nations to bring people closer to reality, to a realization that the material things in life ease fossil fuels (a term that is on every tongue these days) are not limitless.

As for heating oil one supplier in an Ontario city has doubts about voluntary curbs, as indeed he might, given the public's potential for ignoring them. "If in three months we are going to be short," he said, 'what the minister is doing setting up voluntary controls — they should be mandatory."

However I think the public is getting the message. People are going to have to adapt and make a virtue out of necessity. If in the end we shall be independent of foreign supplies — and Canada has the potential for that — so much the better.

Energy Sidelights

We note from a recent report on energy consumption in Hastings county schools that air conditioning at Centennial and loose insulation, now said to be corrected, are factors in high energy expenditure at the school.

This is an interesting revelation, for one of the rigors of attending the otherwise enjoyable Kiwanis travel and adventure films is enduring the draft from the air-conditioning system — at the rear of the auditorium at least.

At the last performance however there was a noticeable improvement after the intermission. Someone must have pulled a switch to shut off the near icy blasts from the vents.

LIP Grants for Shaky Western Seats

NDP's Mark Rose Hits Government's Use of Tax Dollar

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA— While the New Democrats continue their year-long prodding up of the minority Liberal government Mark Rose, NDP member for Fraser Valley West, has to be the socialists' odd man out, seemingly busy trying to kick out the props.

First, he was shafting Prime Minister Trudeau for "leaning" on State Secretary Faulkner to fork over $2 million of the taxpayers' best to the Prime Minister's good friend Jacques Hebert of Montreal, head of Canada-Monde World, to send 200 specially selected student abroad for six or so months.

The Commons is still waiting for the State Secretary or the Prime Minister to come through with some of the fine print details and that extraordinary transcription.

By all accounts of western parliamentarians both Conservative and New Democratic, Mr. Basford and Mr. Richardson are for the jumps in the next election, with Justice Minister Otto Lang and Environment Minister Jack Davis, the two other cabinet representatives from the West, in only slightly lesser danger.

An examination of the Government's Local Initiatives shell-out shows that of 23 British Columbia constituencies, Mr. Basford's Vancouver Centre made by far the richest haul, some $1,471 people, according to the latest census, in the riding, and the LIP take ran $1,628,000, working out to a tidy $11.60 per head.

The average of the other Vancouver ridings levelled out at around $4 with Mark Rose's Fraser Valley West, poulation 117,467, getting $356,000 or an even $3 per capita.

When scrutinizing the LIP figures in James Richardson's Winnipeg South riding, Mark Rose did not put it on the basis of population, but simply of "rich and poor."

He produced the department's own statistics on it, and his colleague, David Orlikow, NDP member for Winnipeg North, put them to work in the Commons, after Bob Andras a going-over.

James Richardson's rich riding of Elmbel for $450,000, while David Orlikow's poor constituency had missed out with only $169,000.

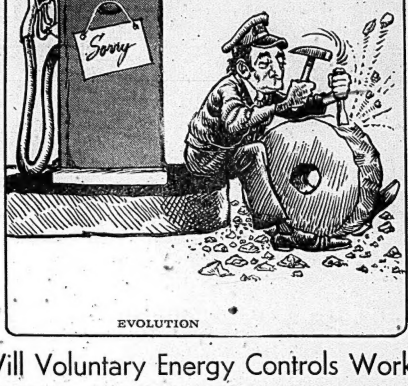
"How come," David Orlikow asked, "that Winnipeg South, which has the highest per capita income of any riding in Manitoba, is getting three to four times as much as the constituency of Elmbel, or my own, or the others which have much poorer people?"

There followed a splendidly uproarious tumult in the House with "how comes" sounding from all sides.

"Better ask the Prime Minister," sang out one MP identified by Hansard only as "an Honorable Member," going straight to the heart of the problem.

The way the figures read from coast to coast, says Mark Rose, the Government is "fiddling" LIP grants for profit, favoring MPs and debit Conservatives, New Democrats and Social Credit in that order, with Liberals last in election.

For instance, in New Brunswick where the Liberals and Conservatives split the 10 constituencies five and five, the Grits average $11.59 per capita, in their ridings, and the Tories only $4.60 in theirs.



But aren't they supposedly to prevent just such a political jigging of the $100 million in LIP grants?

"Non-partisan," laughs Mark Rose, "Those constituency advisory committees are about as non-political as pork barrel pre-election cocktails."

So how is the dough divided?

The Tories have been hugging Bob Andras for days to explain "the approach it with considerable degree of political neutrality ... using information on registration and traffic through our manpower offices ... employing the best figures we can get on unemployment ... but, very sadly, there is no precise formula based on statistical evidence."

Will Voluntary Energy Controls Work?

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

How will Canadians respond to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's call for self-denial in the use of petroleum products?

There's little or nothing in our recent history to show whether 22 million Canadian individuals will voluntarily cut down their consumption of products that have been considered abundant until now.

Some will—but in view of the prevalent belief such products as fattening, one wonders how many will put the public interest ahead of individual convenience.

One federal government's "current assessment" is that retail rationing of petroleum products will be unnecessary this winter. The United States government has said much the same to its citizens.

Cynics take this as a sure sign that rationing will be imposed by the two governments, once shortages materialize, and so upside down parliamentary self-restraint have not achieved sufficient reductions in consumption.

The nature of North American life today is such that a great many people, no matter how public-spirited they may be, would find it next to impossible to practice self-denial to the extent that their governments ask them to do.

Expansion of public transit during the past quarter-century has been curtailed because of public reluctance to pay for it.

At the same time, our cities and towns have sprawled over more and more suburbia. Substantial numbers of Canadians live and work in areas devoid of public transportation.

Railway men, for reasons that seem valid to them, have devoted much more thought and energy to withdrawing passenger services than expanding them. City-to-city rail service today is far below the standards of 35 years ago.

The car, then, has become indispensable in our society—which is not to deny that the one-man, one-car concept is all too often wasteful and inefficient.

But a virtual ban on private driving—which seems to be supported primarily by those who don't drive or bicycle to their offices or campuses—is not an equitable solution.

It is very helpful to rail against big, gas guzzling cars. But to tell car-buyers on the light and switch to four-cylinder cars—which large numbers of them have been doing recently—the existing big cars will constitute the largest portion of our gasoline ration for years to come.

Even if it wanted to, the automotive industry could not switch its assembly line from big cars to compacts on short notice. The machine-tool industry could not handle such a massive change-over.

Until sweeping changes take place in the field of mass public transportation, don't look for miracles from a voluntary system of fuel conservation.

Thanks to Energy Crisis Bureau Staff's Plumbing Will Receive Attention

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
TORONTO — It's one hell of a way to get a pipe fixed.

But thanks to the Arab states, the Israeli war, Venezuela, Nixon energy restrictions, the lack of a pipeline from the West to Montreal, warnings by federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald and directives by the government here to conserve energy the quarters of your reverent writer in the press gallery here at Queen's Park should be much more habitable this winter.

It has plumbing of the period. Great steam radiators, with valves which might have graced the Titanic. And large pipes running up walls and along ceilings.

In a system which doesn't lend itself to the finer shades of manipulation. The only significant controls are to close it on and the other is off. The system is either going or it isn't going.

Which makes for some rather extreme extremes.

In winter it could be an air-cold growers' dream house. Shrinking violets can revel in it and sufferers from chilblains would never want to leave it.

But the virtue of all Canadian men and women also for the most part are those serving their time in its precincts find it stultifying.

Now, of course, in line with the energy conservation policy, efforts are being made to contain this monster of a system.

Chances of any material success would appear to be as substantial as getting a replay of Last Rock's Grey Cup game.

For we people of your bureau here for some time have been suffering a trial which has been endurable only through our devotion to duty, dedication to getting the news to you and the loudness of a regular pay cheque.

The trial has been one of those many pipes running up a wall. It throws such heat that even with all windows open it would only need a few stones and a little water to make a Sauna.

Requests in the past that this pipe be wrapped and insulated have been filled with the assurance breathe (a very big breath in government).

But now there is to be action. Thank you, you Arab statesmen.

Belleville Represented In Parade

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Would just like all the Bellevillians to know what a great show your city crew put on in the Grey Cup Parade.

I believe Mr. Don Foster was very active in this. The City got priceless advertising as many were heard to ask questions about it — its size and population and many other questions.

We found it was the home of Block Diamond Cheese, School for the Deaf, good fishing and Northern Electric among other industries and had a lady Mayor.

We hope, although the West lost, that your plans will include this entry again in next year's Grey Cup in Vancouver.

Some thing like this is worth 10,000 words in advertising.

Oil Crisis Forces Japan Into About-Face on Israel

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Where the Arab world won no victories with their embargo against Israel—nor indeed any diplomatic ones against powerful pro-Israel Western countries, they are winning victories with their oil boycotts.

We all know about the growing energy crisis, the personal appeal of governments for voluntary restraints, a result largely of the major Arab boycott of crude oil exports.

But perhaps the most impressive victory, again not with weapons but in the trickier world of diplomacy, is the Japanese about-face on Israel. A few days ago Mr. Yasuhiro Nakasone, the powerful minister of international trade and industry, known around the industrial world as MITI, urged Israel to pull back to the boundaries which existed before the 1967 Six-Day War.

Japan, almost totally reliant on Middle East oil for an economy predicted to become the world's largest in the 1980s, had been pro-Israel. The Arab boycott, bolstered by recent statements from Saudi Arabian King Faisal that no less than a public statement for an Israeli pullback would get the oil flowing again, was too much for the Japanese.

Moreover Mr. Nakasone whose MITI negotiates some of the world's largest foreign trade deals advised "the pressing need to secure enough oil" forced Japan's hand.

In Japan this kind of action by government is called "losing face," and in the days of the empire "inevitably, meant the suicide of the senior official responsible."

One hopes Minister Nakasone will not follow traditional custom but see out the crisis which has hit Japan more quickly and more heavily than any other country.

To enforce the point of must-Japanese reliance on large volumes of imported raw materials, coal, limestone, copper in addition to crude oil, one recalls that the supertanker era began in Japan because of her industrialists' need for more and more ocean-borne basic materials imports which she neither grows nor possesses.

Hence the Japanese plans in the late 1960s to build ships as large as 100,000 deadweight tons to carry the growing import volume, then to 250,000-tonners by the late 1980s and the half-million-tonner due to go to sea sometime in 1976.

From Japan, the need for these massive bulk carriers (still largely built in Japanese shipyards), spread to the other industrialized countries. The small bulk cargo carrier is becoming more and more a ship of the past.

At the consumer level, with the highest population density to buy in Canada and are sold all over the world from California to China, represents the net export of total Japanese auto transport demand.

Place these already well-known Japanese industrial and consumer growth patterns in the new context of an almost total boycott of oil supplies which Japan is now experiencing, and you have incipient disaster facing the world's fastest-growing economy.

Not since the Ottoman Turks controlled the Middle East and North Africa, thereby cutting off Europe in the days of Rome's empire "inevitably, meant the suicide of the senior official responsible."

Venture in Mass Evangelism Will Self-destruct on Dec. 1

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Some Japanese expected God to work a miracle in 12 months. They found He is chary of miracles and operates on a day-to-day basis.

A bold venture into mass evangelism, unique in its broad approach, designed to win a continent for Christ, the Key '73 organization self-destructs Dec. 31, as scheduled. It may never be revived.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that its impact on the public consciousness was less than overwhelming. Its results, if not entirely negative, were not dramatic.

But some church leaders aver it was not a failure.

They say it brought together church people who never before had rubbed shoulders or shared faith. They say it enlarged the areas of understanding and appreciation of the varieties of Christian emphasis.

That, said Rev. Keith Woollard of the United Church of Canada, is God's everyday approach—"bringing into being changes of attitude, motivation and life-style."

About 140 Christian church groups in Canada and the United States participated in Key 73. It was conceived as a cooperative, but not a crusade in the Billy Graham style.

The program, five years in the planning, was devised, in both Canada and the United States, at the national level. It was left to individual congregations whether they would participate. Some did not get the message.

Said Rev. James W. Moulton of Northminster United Church, a congregation in the Toronto suburb of North York:

"It was planned on the upper levels and it didn't really get down to the lower levels.

"It hadn't any real impact on the congregation. It was a fringe thing. But there may be a few indirect results."

Key 73 was an "umbrella" church groups, including all the major denominations, took part in the program of spreading the word of God throughout a continent through the news-papers, television specials and word of mouth from pulpits and direct visits to homes. Bibles, booklets and pamphlets were distributed widely—but many were left in distributing centres.

The goal was to confront every person in Canada and the United States with the gospel of Jesus Christ. As the year ends, every Key 73's most enthusiastic participants conceded that they would come nowhere near the goal.

Financial problems plagued the program's drive in January-November, little more than $250,000 of an expected $2 million being raised to pay for national television coverage.

The only major program televised by the campaign's organizers in St. Louis was a half-hour special that opened the drive in January.

There were local successes. "Denver was completely overwhelmed with Bibles," said Rev. Theodore Raedeke, U.S. executive director of Key 73. Eighty-five per cent of homes in Nebraska were visited by volunteer Key 73 representatives. And there was "interaction between groups with no track record of working together."

Public relations of campaign headquarters left much to be desired.

Jews were singled out in an easy resources handbook as a target for conversion. It said: "This is a program which prepares Christians to witness effectively to Jewish people."

Some Jews shrugged off what they referred to as another Christian "conversion binge." But Most Rev. E. W. Scott, primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, felt compelled to issue a statement disavowing "any approach which is geared to promote a proselytizing Jews."

In Canada, local television programs were carried on a local basis in January. Key 73 sponsors said only three Canadian communities with TV outlets carried programs on the campaign.

The CBC in September put on two one-hour shows, Come Together, an experience in Christian love starring Pat Boone, and VD Blues, aimed at young people.

Of Canadian churches, the United Church appeared to be the most enthusiastic, the Roman Catholic the least.

Most Rev. W. L. Wright Anglican Archbishop of Saskatoona, said in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Key 73 was "commendable as an objective but response by both laity and clergy was lukewarm."

In Toronto, a leading member of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, who asked not to be identified, termed the campaign "a disheartening ecumenical effort."

Rev. George Ross, president of the Edmonton Evangelical Ministers' Association, said: "The Key 73 organization made it somewhat difficult for some evangelical churches to become involved. But it did get some churches together."

Rev. Herb Bell, chairman of the British Columbia Key 73 central committee and Lutheran minister from White Rock, said: "We had to go through all kinds of ecclesiastical machinery to get anything done. I started to appreciate people like the Pentecostals more; their co-operation was tremendous."

"In some quarters it's (Key 73) a dirty phrase. Some of the 'in' or conservative churches don't like the idea of being lumped in with the liberal churches who deny the Scriptures and the miracles in it."

Rev. Jim Marnoch of St. John's Presbyterian Church in Winnipeg said direct evangelism did not work well. "The program struck evangelical awareness in people of what it means to be a Christian in the world but.

Canada also had its local successes, such as the "hundred days of renewal" in Bolwood, Nfld., and well-attended rallies and church gatherings in Nova Scotia.

That supported the contention of Rev. Leslie Hunt, principal of Wycliffe College, University of Toronto, and chairman of the central committee, He said the response was "greater in the smaller centres."

Another member of the central committee, Rev. Kenneth McMillan, general secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, said 300,000 booklets for Key 73 were distributed throughout Canada but "we still have 200,000 in stock."

Rev. John Pearce of St. Peter's Anglican Church in Oshawa said he thought the program was successful and should be tried again, but not immediately.

"We have to have specials but not so again," he said. "You couldn't have a special all the time because it would no longer be a special."

Advent Prepares Us For Birth of Christ

By REV. DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

Once knew a young couple who were forced by circumstances to postpone having children the first several years of their marriage. When the time arrived that they could have children, great preparations were made for the event.

Many books on the subject were avidly read together. A nursery was fixed up with tender care and joy. Various pieces of infant wearing apparel were knitted, stitched, and purchased during the weeks and months of waiting. You cannot imagine a more careful preparation for an event than the one that this couple made in the birth of their first child.

In a similar fashion, but on a higher plane, this is what most branches of the Christian Church seek to help their people do during the Advent season—make ready to prepare for the birth of Christ. The next four weeks, beginning Sunday, call us to remember that, as he came to earth in the flesh centuries ago, he comes daily to each of us spiritually. The cradle that Christ wants is the human heart. There needs to be special preparation for that birth.

The most obvious startling point is a renewed effort to give priority in our lives to spiritual things, activities and values. A church tries to help us in this in visually and symbolically each time we enter a church building. It is constructed in a particular style of architecture and furnished with particular symbols. The purpose is the remind us of spiritual things that are as essential to our religious development as an adequate diet is to the normal formation of the human fetus.

The ancient inn that first Christmas long ago was so crowded with lesser people that the King of Life could not get in. It was so concerned with the compulsory tax rate that it was unaware of the world's spiritual pulse rate and so did not count the tiny life that was to cut a new channel for history's flow.

If, therefore, Advent is to be something more than a date on the calendar this year, let us use it by giving conscious devotion to Christ top priority. Grant ed that a church is more than a building just as a home is more than a house, do you really think that sharing love under the same roof makes the difference to how we feel or what we believe?

When Charles H. Spurgeon was speaking with a certain individual about church attendance, he was unable to get a response. Then he took a pail of tongs and lifted a live coal out of the fireplace. Both men watched as the flame died and the coal became a dead, black

"You don't have to say anything more," the man said. "I'll be back in my place next

Olympic Coins May Be Facing Brisk Demand

OTTAWA (CP) — The demand for Canada's 1976 Olympic coins in Japan and throughout the Far East may exceed expectations, said Yukiyasu Highashiza, president of the Tokyo firm of Shin Nihon Sangyo. His company has been named the first Asian distributor of the coins.

His comment, offered in a news release from Olympic Coins headquarters here, did not include a reason for his optimism.

However, Austin P. Page, managing director of the coin program, was quoted as saying that "interest is already running high in major countries across the world in anticipation of the first issue of Olympic coins early in December."

The program long a subject of controversy, has been conceived to finance part of the cost of the Olympic Games to be held in Montreal.

Revenue of $500 million is hoped for through issue and sale of 69 million sterling in silver coins, which will be legal tender in Canada. Detractors say the revenue estimate is far too high.

The coins will appear in seven series, each with four designs depicting Olympic athletic themes. The program comes under the responsibility of Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet.

Tiny Profit Made On Short Railroad

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — Emile A. Legros and George A. Boone made a tidy profit from their little long railroad last summer.

The Cedar Point and Lake Erie, a narrow-gauge line, hauled three million amusement park visitors during the resort's four-month operation, the partners said, earning four times its $500,000 cost.

Its six antique locomotives came from a quarry, a coal mine, a sugar-cane plantation, a brick works, a canning factory and a historical display. Four others are being restored, repaired or kept in readiness. Only 25 coaches complete the rolling stock.

Every locomotive has a solid mahogany cab. Bought for $5,000, it cost $35,000 to put on the line.

The owners say some riders suspect the chugging smoke is fake and that diesel engines are hidden inside the locomotive shells. So now they have operators show the blaze in the firebox.

Catholic Women Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Catholic Conference, the national association of Roman Catholic bishops, has organized a committee to study the role of women in the church and society.

The Consumer

D.T. Crosbie

Protect Yourself, Protect Your Home

This week we're pleased to announce that The Consumer is in the hands of Belleville Police Chief D. T. Crosbie, who's written a column on ways to protect yourself and your property. Here's Chief Crosbie's good advice.

Firstly I would like to state that it is a privilege for me to be able to bring to your attention ways in which you may take steps to protect your property and your person.

No home, whether an apartment or house can be burglar-proof. However, every residence can be improved to a point that would render it in such a condition that a burglar would not risk the chance of detection.

The following are some of the steps that you might take:

1: Have your doors mounted so that the hinge bolts are not exposed on the outside.

2: Have your locks properly mounted, of good quality, and able to be dead-locked.

3: Have your doors equipped with a chain type door-stop, to prevent the door from being pushed open suddenly when unlocked.

4: You should know where all the keys for your locks are distributed.

5: If you have lost or mislaid your keys, you should have your locks changed.

6: Have your window locks and catches in good working order and be sure to use them.

7: Windows that provide easy access to your home should be protected with extra locks.

8: When inspecting your home for weak points, keep in mind that burglars will use ladders, garbage pails, trellises and low roofs to reach windows and doors that are, abnormally accessible.

9: Consider also these often openings into your home: —

The milk chute, which may allow someone to enter by crawling through, or which may provide access to the door-lock. — The coal or wood chute, again a way of entering.—Openings which contain air conditioning units or exhaust fans which can be pushed in, to gain entry.

10: Your garage should be kept locked to prevent burglars from using your tools and equipment to break into your home, and to prevent theft.

11: When going out for the evening, leave lights on in one or two areas in your home and radio playing.

12: When going away for extended periods of time, you should: — arrange with your neighbors to watch your home and notify the Police Department: if they see anything suspicious. — arrange to have all deliveries stopped — including bread, milk, newspapers and in addition, have a neighbor pick up handbills and circulars. — have some type of equipment such as an automatic timing device to turn lights on and off at designated times.

In other words, when you are going away or going out, to make your home so it has that 'lived in appearance' which helps to frighten off the burglar.

13: If you are an apartment dweller: — You should refer unknown persons seeking entrance to your building to the superintendent. — Your superintendent should know at all times when your apartment is usually vacant. You should report the presence of suspicious persons to the superintendent or the police department.

14: If you live in a house: — Have a close neighbor, who knows when your home is usually vacant, report to the Police Department the presence of any suspicious persons or autos in the neighborhood.

15: If your doors are solidly constructed, have a 'peephole' device which would enable you to identify a caller without opening a door.

17: Your very valuable possessions such as furs, precious jewellery, stocks, bonds, etc., should be kept in a safety deposit box at your bank or trust company.

18: You should keep a record of serial numbers and identifying marks on your valuables in the event they are stolen. The Belleville Police Force, through the kind sponsorship of the Belleville Insurance Agents Association has available electric pencils, which are loaned out free to citizens of the area, in order that they might place identifying numbers on their movable property. Many Insurance Agents also have these electric pencils.

This is called Operation Identification, and we urge you to avail yourself of this method of rendering your property identifiable.

Protection of the Person:

1: Before going out at night you should avoid taking short-cuts through deserted or park areas.

2: Walk on well illuminated streets.

3: If driving your car, always keep your gas tank above the half full level, and if it appears you are being followed, blow the horn of your car continuously.

4: If you are attacked, scream as loud as you can. Strike back fast, aim for criminal's vital spots, and make it hurt by doing such things as the following: — Gouge eyes with thumbs; scratch with fingernails; — Bash temple, nose, or Adam's apple with purse or book; — Poke umbrella into midriff. — Jab knee into groin.

If attacked from behind: — Dig heel into his instep ... kick shins. — Batter face with back of your head. — Grab lit'le finger and bend back sharply.

We are living in days when there is an increase in the violence use in committing criminal acts.

We urge you to be ever vigilant, and above all never hesitate to call the police, when you see or hear something of a suspicious nature.

We would far rather answer thousands of false alarms, than not be called to an actual offence. There may be a police car just around the corner.

Successful Living

Share Your Happiness

By DORIS CLARK

R.W. w. te me a few days ago — a letter which would make a girl's head too big for her hat — if I wore one. Said our ideas and your wisdom had helped his family over many troubled waters. Then he enclosed a letter which I am calling "The Positive Approach."

Dear Doris: Take a let'er and address it to my wife, daughter, son and son-in-law, and to all those who helped make my life up till now a joyful and wholesome experience.

To this wife should go the prize of the universe. One who loved enough to keep a family sound in unity. Who shared every penny, and more than she had, with a husband who never really gave it a thought until now. A proud woman who even when she was dragged down to a lower living than she deserved, still smiled and said, "I love you Joe, and I forgive you."

Oh, don't worry, she had her down days, but all the days which she has shared with me (when I could listen) a real word of wisdom came out of her heart.

This is addressed to my daughter and son and to them I can only say thanks! You are great, terrific young adults!

This is a pretty young lady, who is blessed with a lot of wisdom, and a gift she shared with others — both kind and lovely. A talent to put both thoughts and words into poems or songs. A love as great as a parent could desire.

To my son, I want him to know that when he had his bad experiences, he did not shame his mother and father. A likeable, handsome young man who says, "That's my dad; he's great, there is my mom, she's terrific too! I love them both. Hey, wait till you meet my sister, she is neat."

This family sprouted another branch. Our daughter married a wonderful young man whom I am proud to call son. A man who, like myself, feels better when he can say, "Hi mom and dad" and mean it.

To the others, both young and old that touched on my life, thanks for all the great wealth I acquired in love, loyalty and respect.

Now let's go on from here and make this cruel world of today a better place to live in. Take all the good things in life and package them up inside you, go out and meet people, share your happiness and sorrows with those that are willing.

Above all, be yourself, and if you haven't found God then it's not His fault or anyone else's. He is out there waiting to shake your hand, talk, laugh, cry, and share His love with you.

To those that are stuggling, bewildered, downtrodden; lift up your head, smile, and say, "Today is going to be a good day, I am going out there and share my love with the first person I meet. It may be my wife, my husband, my in-law, or yourself, and we'll share our love with you."

Proud Father, Husband and Leader.

P.S. To those young who have loneliness, think, can you go home and say those things to your mom and dad? Dad and mom, can you accept them back loving and forgiving? Let's give it a try and watch the miracles it can do to change the life we all want to share with one another.

Ann Landers

Ignoramuses Don't Know States

Dear Ann Landers: Please make room for one more comment to the Canadian who was upset because so many ignoramuses in the United States knew nothing about Canada. (He said people in Alabama thought Canadians were almost the same as Eskimos)

We live in Des Moines. When we travelled East a few years ago we were appalled at the number of people who had never heard of Iowa. They didn't know that Iowa is a great agricultural state, that Herbert Hoover was born there and George Washington Carver, the great Negro scientist, was educated there.

A New England woman asked my wife where we were from. When my wife said Iowa, the Connecticut Yankee replied crisply: "We pronounce it OHIO in this part of the country."

How do you like that, Ann?— Cornfed Readers

Dear Corn: I love it! And by the way, when you compile your list of lowans, don't forget Dear Abby and me. We were born in Sioux City.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 17 and need an answer. I got a bad case of V and thanks to my friends at work, they made me go to a doctor right away.

I told my girl-friend immediately thinking she would surely go to the free clinic and get herself checked. (I think I got it from her but I'm not sure.) To my surprise she said she didn't see any reason to go, that she'd know it if she had something.

My friends have tried to talk some sense into her head but she hates doctors and examinations and won't go. I've been advised by several people to drop her before I get the VD back. — Disgusted P.S. I like her a lot.—Eastcoaster

Dear E.: It is indeed possible to get re-infected and I hope you will take your friends' advice and stop seeing the girl. Her ignorance is frightening.

You say you aren't sure where you got the disease, which suggests that you are promiscuous. Please talk to the doctors at the clinic and learn how to protect yourself. A boy of 17 has many years of sexual activity ahead of him. Don't take any chances.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for Feeling Accient, the woman over 40 who wants to wear a bikini. She said she never had any children and has none of those ugly stretch marks that come with pregnancy. Her husband nixed the bikini but she wants one anyway.

Well, I'm 42, I've had five children and I don't have any ugly stretch marks either. Furthermore, I'll bet my figure is as good as hers. Until a few years ago I was on the thin side. When I started to "blossom out" as my husband calls it (I call it middle-aged spread), I began to notice me. I behaved myself but I enjoyed the whistles and attention and went in for plunging necklines, hip-huggers and, yes—bikinis. My husband became jealous and distrustful. It nearly broke up our marriage.

The lady's husband has already told her he doesn't want her to wear bikinis. That should settle it.—Oklahoma

Dear Ok.: Your advice was the same as mine and I appreciate the back-up. I received a load of letters from women who accused me of being "anti-female." One write from Cleveland wrote: "You're up to your old tricks of driving us the male readers. No husband is going to tell me what to wear. I even have my casket outfit selected and arranged for!" (How's that for forward planning?)

ENERGY

IF WE EACH SAVE A LITTLE, WE'LL ALL SAVE A LOT.

Recent events in the Middle East have underlined just how important a dependable supply of energy is to the way we live.
With supplies of crude oil in Eastern Canada barely sufficient to meet demand, real shortages of gasoline and heating oil could occur in Ontario if we can't maintain our imports.
Alternate, more dependable forms of energy are being developed, but that will take time. What is important today is that each one of us makes the best possible use of existing energy supplies.
That means finding ways we can save energy. Using it, but not wasting it.
Little ways in which you can save energy may seem insignificant, but in fact they are not. If the 7 million people of Ontario get together, work together to save in small ways, the net result will be a huge saving.
For instance, it has been estimated that if every person in Ontario saved just a penny's worth of energy every day, we'd save enough energy in a week to heat up to 2,500 homes for an entire year.
Nobody has the right to waste fuel, or any other form of power. The time has come when every one of us must take a good, hard look at the way we use energy, and do everything possible to ensure its wisest use.
Good energy habits learned now, especially by our young people, will help bring us through this winter, and pay off even more in years to come.

47 things you can do to conserve energy. A program for voluntary action!

The biggest user of energy in your home this winter will be the heating system.

1. If you have a forced-air furnace, oil the motor and bearings, and check the tension on the fan-belt. Clean the filter every month, at least.
2. On a hot-water system, bleed air from all radiators, and check the expansion tank (your fuel supplier will help if you don't know the routine). Any leaks in the system should be repaired immediately.
3. Empty the clean-out on the flue.
4. If your system hasn't been checked by an expert this year, have it done now.

...make sure the heat is going where you want it...

5. Insulate ducts or pipes which run through places where you don't need heat.
6. In a previous ad, we said radiators heat best when painted glossy white. Sorry, our mistake. The best thing you can do is keep radiators dust-free; and if you do paint a radiator, don't use metallic paint. Vents and registers should not be covered by carpets, drapes or furniture.
7. If you have a gravity air system with just one cold air return, keep inside doors open for most efficient operation.

...and make sure it doesn't get away!

8. Good insulation may cost you a fair amount of money, but it's a good long-term investment in these days of rising fuel costs. Look at attics, crawl spaces and basement walls first; they're easy to do yourself. A contractor can insulate hollow walls.
9. Storm windows make a big difference too. Make sure they fit well; caulk them, to make sure. Storm doors and outside doors should be checked for fit, and weatherstripped if necessary. Check putty in windows and doors—loose glass lets in the cold. And when you close a window, lock it for a tighter seal. If you don't have storms on basement windows, a sheet of clear plastic will do a good job, cheaply.
10. An open fire is the least efficient way of heating a home, because it loses so much heat up the chimney. Always close the damper when the fireplace is not in use.
11. Range hood ventilators expel warm air and should not be operated longer than necessary.
12. If a room is unused, shut off its heat and close the door. If you like to sleep with your bedroom window open, keep the door closed.
13. Blinds and drapes keep the heat in on dull days and in the evening...but open them when the sun shines.
14. It takes more heat to stay comfortable when the air is dry. Use a humidifier, and you should be able to turn the thermostat down.

Some thoughts on the thermostat.

15. Can you lower your thermostat setting? Each degree cuts fuel consumption about 3%.
16. If your heating system is in good operating condition and the house reasonably well insulated, it's possible to reduce fuel consumption by setting back the thermostat each night, or when the house is empty.

17. If there's only one person in the family who feels the cold, don't turn up the heat just for him—ask him to wear a sweater.

Hot water is another big user of energy. Let's not waste it.

18. Exposed hot water pipes should be insulated.
19. If the heater is oil or gas-fired empty the flue clean-out. Drain a gallon of water from the bottom of the tank from time to time, to get rid of sediment.
20. If the heater has a dial on it, see if you can live with a lower temperature setting.
21. A dripping tap can waste as much as 175 gallons of hot water a month—and it's easy to fix.
22. Clothes washers, dish washers, shouldn't be turned on until they're fully loaded.
23. Generally, a shower uses less water than a bath.

A few other things you can do to conserve energy, in the kitchen and around the house.

24. Close your oven, refrigerator or freezer door on a piece of paper. If you can pull it out easily, the seal isn't good enough.
25. If a small appliance like a toaster or frypan can do the job, use it rather than the oven.
26. Don't use the dryer till it's full.
27. If you buy an electric space-heater, make sure it has a thermostat.

28. You can save on lighting by cleaning bulbs and fixtures, by using lower wattage bulbs, and by always switching lights off when they're not needed.
29. And those Christmas lights. We can spread good cheer and still conserve energy by switching them on no earlier than 6, and off again at bedtime; and by using them only during the Christmas season.
30. In the kitchen, choose saucepans that completely cover the element. Adjust gas burner so flames don't lick up the side of the pan.
31. Take time to thaw frozen food before you cook it.
32. Your refrigerator and freezer will work better if you keep the condenser coil at the back free of dust, and defrost when the frost coating is ¼" thick.
33. Use as little water as you can when boiling vegetables, and turn the heat down as soon as it boils. A pressure cooker is a great economy item.

34. A well-maintained car is an economical car to run. Check tuning, carburetion, lubrication—clean plugs. Are you using the right grade of fuel?
35. Check tire pressures and front wheel alignment, to ease the load on the motor.
36. 50 mph is an economical highway speed. As miles per hour go up, miles per gallon go down.
37. Jack rabbit starts waste gas.
38. So does prolonged idling; when you stop, turn the engine off. Using an overnight engine heater is a more economical way of warming up a car in the morning.
39. Still got that outboard motor in the trunk? Unnecessary extra weight means extra fuel consumption.

40. A basic question, whenever you reach for the car key...must you drive? Could you take a bus, or walk? Or ride with someone else?
41. And do you really need such a large, powerful car?

Look around when you're at work...and ask a few questions.

42. Could the thermostat come down a few degrees?
43. Can you use the drapes or blinds to lower heat loss?
44. Is all your floodlighting really necessary?
45. Do the building's lights stay on at night, even though they're not needed?
46. Is the new building you're planning designed to make good use of energy resources?
47. Have you got an Energy Conservation Suggestion Scheme? It's when we all get together that we save the most.

The Ontario Government...a time for action.

Premier William Davis has instructed all Ministries of the Provincial Government, and its agencies, to create and put into action programs designed to conserve energy. Some programs are aimed at reducing the government's own energy consumption; others reach out to assist consumers, industry and business throughout the Province to do the same. Here are some examples of current activity.

- The Ministry of Government Services has embarked on a program to reduce heating and lighting levels, wherever possible, in all buildings owned or operated by the government.
- A long-term review of new building standards by the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations is nearing completion. The most efficient use of materials to conserve energy is a major consideration.
- The Ministry of Transportation and Communications is responsible for purchase of all government vehicles. As replacement becomes necessary, the Ministry will recommend purchase of smaller-engined compacts instead of large cars, wherever possible.
- Ontario Hydro will continue distribution of its conservation material to retail customers, and to Municipal Electric Utilities.
- Public Servants have been asked to reduce highway driving speeds, whenever practical, to improve mileage.
- The Ministry of Education has recommended a plan of action for the conservation of energy in all schools; and is putting new emphasis on curriculum guidelines for teachers wishing to develop classes in energy conservation.

Save this check list...and save energy!

Ontario will play its part in resolving the Canadian energy situation. Carrying out these suggestions will help achieve the national energy conservation goals.

A Sunny Santa Comes to Town

By AL LABAS
Staff Reporter

It was sunny.

Belleville youngsters are likely to remember today's edition of the Santa Claus parade for years to come.

Not only was red-suited Santa a part of the color and excitement. But television personalities Ronald McDonald, and Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster were to travel the mile-long route downtown, in company with 13 bands.

Following honorary parade marshall, Harold Abbott, who made his 20th journey downtown today, came a stream of music, color, and costumed walkers. At the end of a line of 42 floats, and seven colorful fully garbed majorette groupes came the jolly old gentleman himself, riding a refurbished float for this year's parade.

Toys For Movie

Belleville area's less - fortunate youngsters may have a Christmas brighter by 600 toys thanks to a movie-matinee.

The novel idea was conceived at the Quinte Mall cinemas, which is running a cartoon matinee for young stars next Saturday.

For admission, each child is asked to bring a toy which will be donated to the local firefighter's Christmas Giving program.

Staff will union projectionist of the 600-seat Cinema Two volunteered their services for the matinee. Theatre manager Stella Culhane, Help is given by Mall merchants and adults accompanying children may also donate to the fund.

A Belleville couple, Mary and Herman Lucas, suddenly $3,500 richer Friday night.

Harnie MacDonald, of Radio Station CJBQ drew their names on the fourth ticket at the Novelliner Belleville Mall Christmas draw.

Mrs. Lucas won $1,000 for selling her husband the ticket and Mr. Lucas $2,500 for buying hers included: Tom Hennings, Toronto, top runner-up winner of $10,000; Ken Robertson, Peterborough, $5,000; L. G. Brooks, Trenton, $2,500; Cpl. $3,500; L. R. Venner, Mississauga, $2000.

All sales people earned $1,000 each with the exception of the $2,500 ticket which received $200. This will be increased to $500 when the draw to $500 with the ticket holder to win $1,000.

In the Belleville Branch 99 Legion draw held Friday evening also, Alex Greer won $1,000 with seller Leo Vick ers receiving $100.

Budget Rise Is Cut Back

Opening up Belleville General Hospital as community teaching facility for Queen's University medical school, will demand no major development for some time.

That's the indication in a report on a hospital-university committee which has been reviewing a teaching relationship in recent months.

In an attempt to increase output of graduates interested in family practice, medical authorities have been considering placing students in local hospitals. Such a move is aimed at increasingly selecting future physicians to community needs.

Dr. Reginald Anderson, BGH medical director, said Queen's students already have been studying on-the-spot with BGH specialists, this practice will continue.

At some future date a more ambitious project aimed at family practice studies may be a feasible development at BGH, the hospital board was told Friday in report from review committee chairman, Dr. Stuart Vanderwater, Queen's associate dean of postgraduate affairs.

At present, the only specific requirement for BGH is "moral support" for such a project and recognition that occasional students will be working under supervision of BGH physicians.

For youngsters shut-in at Belleville General Hospital, Santa had a special treat in store. A videotape of the parade was to be rushed to the paediatric ward dayroom, put through a monitor supplied by Ontario Science Centre. Pat Daly teacher Elgin Vader and his staff, and shown 30 young viewers.

Santa also made a special trip to see a 6-year-old boy isolated from the rest of the youngsters. The same tape the youngster saw at the hospital will be aired, slightly edited, on Caledwne Channel 3 at 8 p.m. tonight. Lee Jourard, company program director, will provide commentary along with two grade two students from Sir Winston Churchill school.

In parade tradition this year it started when grand marshall Angus Duffy rolled out the first float at 10 a.m.

This morning all parade participants, including police, travelled to Belleville Mall to stand where Ron Caswell, lodge supervisor, oversaw the event. Parade participants vied for a trophy prize in 11 categories, including school floats, of which 13 entered.

Floats were also up for consideration for the Fire Dept. O'Brien Trophy for the most spectacular float and the Parade Marshall's Trophy for the most deserving float.

Energy Savers

Lighted Christmas trees which traditionally outside Belleville General Hospital roof early this year, won't be installed this season.

It's among measures aimed at conserving energy, BGH board of governors were told Friday.

Other power cuts include instructions to security and housekeeping staff to switch out lights not needed when hospital is full, and have reduced noise factors less illuminated than is possible a human bush.

Phillip Rickard, executive director, said "it was a point well taken, although patient care and security must be maintained adequate lighting in some areas."

And, wrapping up the debate, board member Enos David brought the matter to crunch into the board room. He switched off most of its overhead lighting.

Produce New Plan For Hospital Parking

A two - level parking platform for more than 200 cars will be considered for parking Belleville General Hospital's traffic problems.

The proposal has been outlined to BGH governors Friday, as the alternative to a new multi-billion scheme turned down two months ago. The original design, costing $750,000 was designed for 440 cars.

Thomas Hagerman consultants Greer, Galloway, and Associates have been retained as a unit housing 221 cars. Estimated cost is $400,000— based on $2,000 a vehicle — for a structure permitting future ramp expansion.

It's the cheapest design possible that will permit for future construction, said Hagerman, board property chairman.

If approved, work on the installation — at the easiest of hospital property — might start in March, taking about six months, said Phillip Rickard, executive director.

Ben Corke city alderman and board member, said he was not persuaded the board should spend so much money on a new parking facility.

Number Please

Making bank deposits in Belleville soon should elicit requests for social security numbers.

It's all to do with income tax.

The national revenue department this year is requesting banks and trust companies to ascertain the numbers from clients with bonds and other forms of investment registered with financial institutions. Social security numbers, already are required on applications for personal income returns. The requirement is now being extended to include some information slips to round out the department's identification procedure system.

Social security numbers must now be included on income statements from the Canada Pension Plan with both clients and the department. Such statements are usually sent out during the first two months of each year.

Correspondence Leak to NDP Claime I

Hospital Being Exploited For Politics Says Chairman

Opposition party politicians are improperly trying to involve Belleville General Hospital in provincial politics, Magr. J. P. Sullivan charged Friday.

The problem has included leaking of internal board information to politicians, he claimed.

The situation is linked to the fact the hospital serves the same community represented in the legislature by Health Minister Richard Potter, said Magr. Sullivan.

In the give-and-take of politics it may be acceptable to attempt to embarrass an opponent, said the chairman.

But it takes on an added dimension when effort to rake up political dirt in the minister's riding gets the hospital involved for political party reasons.

Magr. Sullivan made the comments after he broached the matter with BGH's board of governors at its monthly meeting Friday.

The chairman said he had no discussions with Dr. Potter before making his statements which were prompted by the action to an "irritating situation."

He said the board was aware that, on one occasion, some letters involving hospital matters had "got into the hands of the New Democratic Party caucus."

The chairman would not comment on the source of the leak.

There were no major administrative problems involved, said the chairman, but this seeming attempt at political exploitation was unfair.

Politicians recently had to listen in meeting a fundamental democratic demand of expediting such a proposal — getting it down to the grassroots.

County council approved the plan in principle only last week. Already its proposed implications have been aired at meetings with local governments throughout the county.

Next is a series of seven sessions with local taxpayers, starting next week and reaching to early January.

Niall Carney, county planning director, says meetings at Bancroft, Madoc and Ivanhoe this week, about 30 per cent of local municipal officials. Questions elicited showed "obvious concern" to get on with the job of giving the plan final shape.

Following the public meetings, the plan goes back to the county's planning committee for review, it then returns before council early in 1974 hopefully for final reading.

It will formally be presented for provincial approval although it now is "informally" with government authorities who thus will be already acquainted with its thrust.

"We certainly intend to press our case to get it speedily approved," said Mr. Carney.

Some of the highlights he expects to prompt public discussion on the plan include:

Protection of resources, direction of development."

Land use designations include lands where development may be restricted by hazards, and prime arable land. Part of the plan's intent is a warning of potential that certain stipulations must be satisfied before development.

Will Plan Nursing Beds

A delegation of Belleville General Hospital governors which met with Health Minister Richard Potter to discuss nursing - home bed needs, has been made a commitee to produce specific suggestions.

BGH board set up the group Friday.

Concrete proposals on solving the problem were requested by Dr. Potter at the initial meeting Nov. 8. Hospital officials estimate the need at 100 beds.

The ministry was "very receptive" to arguments presented by BGH delegation, said Phillip Rickard, executive director.

Car Rolls

MADOC — Two people escaped injury when a car went out of control on a bad curve in the Eldorado Road five miles north of here late last night.

Provincial police said the car driven by Robert Keith Curtis, with a passenger, hit a curve — warning sign and rolled. Damage was estimated at $500.

The Candy Man

The Candy Man was among colorful mobile displays rolling through downtown Belleville today as city turned out for Santa Claus parade. On the bright-hued float is Don Turner.

County Official Plan Goes to the People

Planning officials and experts are pressing ahead with the detailed process involving the final shape of Hastings County's official plan.

Hopes are the document — chart of future- development is much of the county—could receive the ultimate seal of provincial government approval by mid-1974.

Its designers appear losing no time in meeting a fundamental democratic demand of expediting such a proposal — getting it down to the grassroots.

County council approved the plan in principle only last week. Already its proposed implications have been aired at meetings with local governments throughout the county.

Next is a series of seven sessions with local taxpayers, starting next week and reaching to early January.

Niall Carney, county planning director, says meetings at Bancroft, Madoc and Ivanhoe this week, about 30 per cent of local municipal officials. Questions elicited showed "obvious concern" to get on with the job of giving the plan final shape.

Resort developments — A popular idea that 15,000-square-foot lots may be out. The plan suggests doubling the area, to avoid waste-water problems, plus 120-foot front-ages.

Lots should be 100 feet back from high watermarks.

Housing near farm facilities — A provincial practice code has been drawn in to keep new residences in rural areas 2,000 feet from farm animal facilities. In the past, courts have upheld the new homeowner in complaints against the farmer.

Hamlets — One-acre lots with 150-foot frontages. This will permit better future development if piped-water is available and subdivision is possible.

Fill — Some 18 inches of natural soil required at septic tile field to act as "blotter" before fill permitted.

Development on Roads — On highways and county roads future land severances for construction should include 66-feet width set aside for service road. This will reduce future hazards for traffic, such as school buses. Other developments should have direct access to public roads. Building on private fields-of-way can be inexplicable for owners — they pay taxes but it may not be possible to deliver services.

Meeting Dates

Following is the schedule for seven public meetings called to discuss Hastings County's official plan:

Harold — Dec. 4, 7:30 p.m. for Rawdon, Huntingdon, Stirling.

Madoc — Dec. 6, 7:30 p.m. senior citizens' council.

Pay Hikes

An arbitration award has granted wage increases of 8.75 per cent 10% per year and 8.5 per cent in 1974 to service employees at Belleville General Hospital.

Fringe benefits also were included in the settlement.

The Service Employees International Union at BGH has about 250 members in the unit, tenance, housekeeping and ward clerical and orderly duties.

Stripes Stolen

Somewhere in Belleville, two impropperly decorated sergeants are patrolling as a result of a break-in reported in to city police Thursday.

Police said thieves smashed a window of a car parked at the Four Seasons Hotel late Wednesday and stole two sets of sergeant's stripes. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $75.

Former Teller Convicted Is Placed on Probation

By PETE GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

After nearly four and one-half hours of deliberation, a 12-man jury Friday found Barbara Hinne guilty of theft over $200.

The 38-year-old Plainfield woman, formerly employed as a supervisor in the Guaranteed Investment Certificate department of Victoria and Grey Trust Company in Belleville, was convicted on a charge of stealing $400 from customer Margaret Jessie Wright, of Madoc.

Mrs. Hinne received a suspended sentence and was placed on one year's probation by County Court Judge R. D. Honey.

The Hinne trial, which lasted three-days and saw 18 witnesses testify, made public the fact that the Victoria and Grey Trust Company has lost nearly $36,000 in customers' Guaranteed Investment Certificates.

At the end of the trial yesterday, Crown Attorney Doreen Delime agreed to make public the fact that Mrs. Hinne was the only employee who had been reported abducted as the left her office at 4:30 p.m. Friday a week ago Thursday.

The reported abduction occurred just one day before Mrs. Hinne's trial was to begin.

Mrs. Hinne's name was not connected with the abduction at that time for fear that it might prejudice the jury which had already been selected to hear the case, said Mr. Delime.

Police reported the abduction on the morning Mrs. Hinne's trial was scheduled to begin. They told the press Mrs. Hinne left the office of her lawyer, Dave Ross, on Front Street around 4.30 p.m. last Thursday. When she entered her car, she said she found a man crouching on the floor in the back seat. The man forced Mrs. Hinne to drive out of Belleville along the Slash Road where her car was joined by another vehicle, police said.

The two cars then parked at the end of a side road. There, Mrs. Hinne was reportedly tied and blind-folded and, according to one of her lawyers, Mr. Ross, told her life threatened if she did not refuse to testify at her trial.

After having been left on the side road, Mrs. Hinne was reported to have made her way back to the highway, where she flagged down a passing motorist who drove her to the Toronto Police Station.

Deseronto Police reported the incident to Belleville police at 7.25 p.m. that night.

After giving the police a statement, Mrs. Hinne went into shock and admitted to Belleville General Hospital, where she was kept under police guard overnight.

Throughout the trial, police provided Mrs. Hinne with 24-hour protection. Mrs. Hinne failed to appear at her trial the morning after the abduction and the jury was told to come back the following Monday to begin hearing evidence.

The Crown's case charged Mrs. Hinne had stolen $400 from Miss Wright when she unlawfully redeemed a portion of one of the Madoc woman's Guaranteed Investment Certificates last December.

Miss Wright had a Guaranteed Investment Certificate valued at $1,036.92 that came due on Dec. 1, 1972. After receiving notification of this from the data processing department of Victoria and Grey, she told the company's Belleville office that she wished them to renew her certificate for its full value.

Mr. Delime said Mrs. Hinne failed to do this. Instead, he said, Mrs. Hinne filled out two redemption slips for the same certificate and sent them off to the data processing department and Miss Wright.

Miss Wright received a redemption slip for the full value of her certificate — $1,036.92. Unlike the slip processed by the department received a slip, telling it to take out a certificate valued at $636.92 for Miss Wright. Mrs. Hinne pocketed the $400 difference, Mr. Delime said.

To support his case Mr. Delime referred to the two redemption slips received by data processing and Miss Wright. The slips were signed with the name Barbara Ann Hinne, and a handwriting expert from the Forensic Sciences Laboratories in Toronto identified Mrs. Hinne as the person being that of Mrs. Hinne.

Several Crown witnesses testified at various audit of Victoria and Grey books last December that could not find the money. It must have been withdrawn from the safe drawer of the GIC department, they said.

Mr. Delime also noted company records revealed Miss Wright's certificate had been processed through the GIC department on either Dec. 8 or Dec. 11. Company records showed Mrs. Hinne had deposited $400 in cash in her bank account on Dec. 11.

Mr. Delime maintained that Mrs. Hinne had the opportunity, the experience and authority in the GIC department to commit the crime.

The case for the defence was built up around the evidence tendered before the court by Mrs. Hinne herself and the company's Belleville branch manager, and Mrs. Hinne.

Mrs. Hinne took the stand in her own defence, Friday and said she had filled out the two requisition slips which had been received by data processing and Miss Wright.

She said she had received Miss Wright's original instructions to renew a certificate for $1,036.92 on Dec. 5. Sometime between Dec. 5 and Dec. 8, however, she said she received a memo from a senior company employee telling her to prepare a new certificate for Miss Wright valued at $636.92.

The memo had said Miss Wright would be at the office Dec. 8 to pick up the new certificate and conduct a transaction of some kind involving the remaining $400, Mrs. Hinne said.

Mrs. Hinne maintained that she did not see either of the requisition slips again. She said she left them lied on her desk spike and could only guess that someone who had cashed a portion o fthe $1,036 certificate and pocketed the difference.

Mrs. Hinne also admitted depositing $400 to her bank account Dec. 8. But she said the money had come from a cash livestock transaction her husband had made.

Arguing from the basis of Mrs. Hinne's testimony and disclosure by Mr. Brown that there were $36,000 in certificates missing from the company files, Dave Ross, Mrs. Hinne's lawyer claimed that his client was being framed by someone else in Victoria Grey who had been stealing money from the GIC department.

Mr. Ross also argued that the Crown had not proven the $400 had been stolen. There was no way anyone could actually trace where the money had gone, since several documents dealing with the case were either missing or destroyed.

During her testimony Mrs. Hinne confessed to stealing $500 from the GIC department during the month of December. But she said she had also had taken the money around Christmas time and had returned it in early January before the theft was discovered. It was the missing certificates had begun.

"I had what you call an unauthorized loan," she said. "I'm not sure of the procedure I used but I held up the processing of a GIC in some way, but I returned it when done it."

The case went at the jury at 4.55 p.m. Friday and at 11 p.m. the jurors returned to tell Judge Honey they could not reach a unanimous verdict.

Judge Honey sent them back to deliberate further. They returned a half-hour later with the verdict of guilty.

In speaking to sentence Mr. Delime told the court he was not asking for a jail term for Mrs. Hinne, since the amount of money stolen was small and she had no criminal record.

Mrs. Hinne's defence counsel, Mr. Ross and Mr. Tuckin, asked Judge Honey to consider giving their client a conditional discharge in light of the fact that she had suffered considerable public publicity surrounding the trial.

Judge Honey, however, said that the case was a conviction against. Mrs. Hinne did not warrant a jail term or a fine. He suspended passing sentence and placed Mrs. Hinne on probation.

The Crown Attorney would not comment when asked whether any charges were pending in connection with the money stolen from the $36,000 of missing certificates.

Swords Bombed Again

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New Haven Nighthawks added to Cincinnati's woes Friday night, lalking a 9-0 victory over the Swords in one of five American Hockey League games.

It was the second straight setback for the Swords—who lost 9-1 Thursday night to Nova Scotia Voyageurs—although they remained first in the South Division with 38 points, five more than Hershey Bears.

The absence of Pete McNab, the AHL's leading scorer before he was called up recently by Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League, and injuries are the main reasons for Cincinnati's problems. They dressed only 14 men Friday, four fewer than the Nighthawks.

In other games, Rochester Americans beat Providence Reds 7-4, Baltimore Clippers downed Hershey Bears 5-1, Richmond Robins topped Springfield Kings 6-3 and Boston Braves defeated Virginia Red Wings 6-3.

Jerry Byers scored three goals for the Nighthawks with Steve West and Alain Lanlais getting two each. Don Thompson and Blake Dunlop got the other New Haven goals and Fern Rivard picked up the shutout.

Before a crowd of 5,321 in Rochester, Billy Kaiba got two goals for the Americans with Art Skrabin, Rick Pagnutti, Dick Mattiussi, Murray Kuntz and Barry Merrell adding the others.

METZLER DIES

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Alex Metzler, who batted .335 during six major league baseball seasons, died Friday at age 70. He broke into the major leagues with Chicago Cubs of the National League in 1925, then spent a year with Philadelphia of the American League. He went to Chicago White Sox in 1927 for his best season and a .319 batting average.

Rangers and Kings In 5-player Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers announced the acquisition of veteran National Hockey League defenceman Gilles Marotte in a five-player trade with Los Angeles Kings Friday.

Accompanying Marotte to New York is penalty-killer Real Lemieux. In exchange, the Rangers sent forwards Mike Murphy and Tom Williams and defenceman Sheldon Kannegiesser to the Kings.

Marotte, 28, a West Division all-star selection last season, had one goal and 11 assists in 22 games for Los Angeles this season. He broke into the NHL with Boston Bruins in 1965 and also spent three seasons with the Chicago Black Hawks before moving on to Los Angeles in a 1970 trade.

Lemieux, also 28, returns for a second turn with the Rangers. He was acquired from Los Angeles in a 1969 trade and then was swapped back to the Kings the following season.

Murphy and Williams have both seen limited duty because of injuries this season.

Murphy, a right wing acquired by New York from St. Louis Blues last March, has been sidelined for the last two weeks because of injuries suffered in an automobile accident. He is 23.

Williams, 22, who played on the same line with Murphy, has missed several games because of the flu.

Kannegiesser, 26, saw limited service for the Rangers after being acquired from Pittsburgh Penguins last March. he scored one goal in 12 games this season.

North Stars Can Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota North Stars finally found the winning formula, but in the view of coach Parker Mcdonald, it was some uncharacteristic non-belligerence by rugged defenceman Dennis O'Brien that provided the spark.

The North Stars defeated Vancouver Canucks 5-4 in the only National Hockey League game Friday night, but in analyzing the game, it was O'Brien's cool head that won McDonald's plaudits.

The incident occurred in the third period with the North Stars leading 5-4. But they had a man in the penalty box and the Canucks were flying in front of 15,370 hometown fans.

O'Brien accidentally clipped Bobby Schmautz of the Canucks with his stick, but referee Lloyd Gilmour didn't spot the infraction. He did, however, spot Schmautz' retaliatory spearing of O'Brien and raised his arm to call a penalty.

When the play was whistled down, Schmautz hustled over to O'Brien and began pummelling the Minnesota player. But the defenceman just covered up.

The Vancouver forward got a double minor, and although the Canucks kept up the pressure, the penalties took the edge off their efforts.

"That was the big play of the game," said McDonald. "If O'Brien even so much as raises his arm, he gets a penalty and we've only got a two-minute advantage. Dennis was really thinking."

Fred Stanfield, Danny Grant, Tony Featherstone, Buster Harvey and Bill Goldsworthy scored a goal apiece to give the North Stars only their fifth win in 22 games.

Dennis Hevergaert, Richard Lemieux, Andre Boudrias and John Wright replied for the Canucks, who remained second in last place in the NHL's east division, one point behind New York Islanders.

Hull Cracks Whip

Mild-mannered Bobby Hull is about to become an ogre. He's trading his toothpaste smile and velvet glove for a whip.

"The time has come to get tough with this team," the playing-coach said as he ordered a morning workout for his Jets after they lost an embarrassing 5-2 decision Friday to Los Angeles Sharks before 4,635 Winnipeg fans.

The Sharks played 11 games last year and early this season before beating the Jets last week in Los Angeles and Friday night's back-to-back victory ruined the opening of an eight-game home stand for Winnipeg.

Previously, the Jets had been terrors at home, winning eight games. Then came a disastrous road trip in which they claimed only one victory—and now they've lost two in a row in Winnipeg.

"It seems the nicer you are, the more people take advantage of you. On the other clubs if you're late for practice, it's a fine; late for a bus, a fine; late for a flight, another fine, no matter how good the excuse is," Hull said.

"If something isn't done soon with this team, it will be too late.

"There are two things wrong with this club—no guts and no togetherness. Nobody wants to push themselves to work for somebody else."

Foster Defends Title

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Win or lose, Pfarr Foster will see an SA Win or lose, Julia Fourie won't.

What will and won't be seen is the $100,000 world lightheavyweight title fight tonight (2:30 p.m. EST) between champion Bob Foster, the black American, and Fourie, the white South African challenger.

Bookmakers have bet 3-1 on Foster, black baby-whitekickers have bet on Fourie, both wives have bet on their husbands but only one, Mrs. Foster, will be at the Rand Stadium today to watch the bouts.

Julia Fourie took her four children to a tourist resort on the Vaal River south of Johannesburg Thursday and won't see their mother there until after the fight.

"I'm always nervous about fights," said Mrs. Fourie. "But I'm not nervous Pfarre will lose—I'm very confident he'll win."

Said Pearl Foster: "I get so nervous that I just throw up my hands up over my eyes. But I know in my heart Bob is going to win."

Fourie called in a black lady witchdoctor and a Sangoma as she is called—for treatment in his last fist for the fight.

Afterward, the Sangoma, Mrs. Vivian Ehlke, pronounced he would win in the 9th or 11th round.

His fight here has coincided with the visit for the South African open tennis championship of black American tennis star Arthur Ashe and white South showed strong support for South African politics, especially those touching apartheid. Fourie has remained in his suite at the Five Star Landrost Hotel and never has ventured—as Ashe did—into the black suburb of Soweto that houses 600,000 non-whites.

Stands for the fight will be segregated—except for a few rows in the $235 area at the ringside.

Marcotte Ready for Gray

Now six months later, Marcotte is facing the most crucial fights of his career.

Marcotte will meet Clyde Gray of Canada at the Colisseum Monday for the Canadian welterweight championship and when he steps into the ring, Marcotte will be working with two good arms.

Last May, Marcotte was bothered by bone chips in his elbow and finally had surgery to remove them.

"It was either that or quit," said Fernand Marcotte Sr., his father and manager. "He was in so much pain. It hurt him every time he got hit on it.

"Now the arm is improved 98 per cent so he's got two good arms now. Now he can hit with both hands. He can knock a guy out in the eighth, ninth and 10th rounds. He doesn't have to try and do it early now.

Young Marcotte, 24, decided on surgery after losing to Guerry Charbonneau last February in Quebec. Since the operation, he has had three fights and won them all.

All three wins came via the knockout route and the last against Fireman Grusman in Montreal. Marcotte got his man away.

CLYDE GRAY

Marcotte has won 33 fights and lost only two and drawn five. His only loss was a decision against Donato Padauno of Montreal.

Gray, who also holds the Commonwealth title, last fought against Jose Napoles in a world championship bout in Toronto Sept. 22. Gray lost the 15-round match by a decision, leaving his record at 42-3-1.

"He's a more classical fighter but he can't hit as hard as Joe," said the 5-foot-6 Marcotte. "Junior can hit about twice as hard."

The bout against Marcotte will be Gray's second defence of the Canadian title. He scored a second-round knockout over Victor Doucet 16 Toronto Aug. 19, 1971, in his previous defence.

Gray and Marcotte were officially scheduled to meet in Vancouver last winter but the bout was called off because Marcotte's cornerman's didn't think he was ready for the bout.

Marcotte will receive a guaranteed $3,000 for the bout while Gray has been assured of a $15,000 purse.

Rod Laver — Win Doesn't Come Easy

Aussies Start Well

CLEVELAND (AP) — Stan Smith and Erik van Dillen hold the key that will keep the door open for the United States in the 73rd Davis Cup tennis world finals.

Smith and van Dillen face an Australian doubles team today in the third rub of tennis' supreme test. The Australian team has not been named yet, but the winner will be decided in the best-of-five match series.

Aussies Allan Stone and Rod Laver defeated Americans Stan Smith and Tom Gorman in the first two single matches in marathon tennis bouts Friday.

Newcombe heavy-served and backhanded his way to a 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 win over Smith in the first match.

Laver, faltering in his first sets, settled down and overcame the touch younger Gorman, 8-10, 8-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-1.

Newcombe was asked after his three-hour hargainer if victory if he would be rested enough to have a go at the doubles today.

"I'm worn out now," the 28-year-old Australian said. "I'm sure don't feel like I just got out of bed, but I feel like I'll be back Saturday."

About today's doubles match, Newcombe said: "we have a possibility of three different pairs. Wave not pussy footing around. We're really not sure."

Laver, 35, played more than three and one-half hours Friday night and his victory didn't come until 10:10 p.m.

"I've trained myself for the matches and done my having trouble with my back I have an excellent trainer in Stan Malless and he knows how to take care of me," Laver said. "If he wasn't around I wouldn't be ready Saturday, but he is so I'm sure I'll feel fine."

Gorman, 27, jumped out to a one-set lead over Laver, but he tired and couldn't keep pace with the only man in tennis his story to win two grand slams.

Even if the Aussies make it 2 to 0 today, the final two singles matches will be played Sunday.

The U.S. has Gorman and Smith ala'ed to face Newcombe and Laver on the closing day.

Nicklaus Presents Challenge

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — John Mahaffey faced an interesting problem in mental gymnastics today—how to ignore the menacing presence of Jack Nicklaus.

"I know he's there, but I'm gonna try not to think about it," Mahaffey said Friday after Nicklaus had surged to within two strokes of his lead in the third round of the $150,000 Walt Disney World Open golf tournament.

Mahaffey, a 26-year-old tour sophomore who scored his first pro victory only a month ago, had a three under par 69 and a 209 total.

That's 10 under par on the 7,182 yard Magnolia Course at Walt Disney World, but just 1 shot in front of Nicklaus and four others tied at 208.

Nicklaus who has never been beaten in this tournament, shouldered his way into contention with a solid, five under par 67. He didn't miss a green as he moved into a tie for second place tie at 208 with Mason Rudolph, Bobby Nichols, Nate Starks and Dr. Gil Morgan.

Scher and Rudolph had 67s, Starks and Morgan 69.

"I didn't putt all that great, but I didn't make many mistakes," Nicklaus said. "I'm in pretty good position."

The Golden Bear wants a victory in this, the 5th tournament of the year, for three reasons:

—The $36,000 first prize would push his money winnings over $300,000 for the second year in a row.

—A win would make him the first player in history to go over $2 million in career earnings and —A triumph would break a tie with absent Tom Weiskopf for the most titles this season. Each has won six times.

Hockey and Horses

NEW YORK (CP) — With the hockey season in full swing, there isn't much time for Gilles Villemure and Rod Gilbert to enjoy their second love, harness racing.

Owning pacers and trotters is more than just a hobby with them. They can handle a whip as well as a puck.

Gilles hasn't cleared many bucks playing goal for New York Rangers this season but Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros scored one goal and assisted on another Friday night to move into a four-way tie for the lead in the tight World Hockey Association scoring race. He has 13 goals and 19 assists.

team-mate Rod is the club's top man at right wing.

Villemure has a two-horse stable performing regularly at Yonkers Raceway under the guidance of trainer Jack Richardson. Gilles used to drive regularly until he scaled down a regular berth with the Rangers three years ago.

Gilbert owns and trains with Lucien Fontaine, a long-time friend who is among North America's leading drivers.

Fontaine says Rod drives a mean sulky. The two came from Montreal a dozen or so years ago.

"We've owned horses together for years, and Rod's got the bug, too," Fontaine says. "I know when he finishes playing hockey Rod is going to spend a lot of his spare time fiddling around with his horses."

Fontaine, 34, was born in Point Aux Trembles, Que. He started out in 1959 at Rockingham Park in New Hampshire.

Since then, Fontaine has won nearly $7 million in purses.

Rod, now in his 12th season with the Rangers, hasn't done badly either. He started out earning $7,000 a year. He's the club's all-time goal-scoring leader and commands a salary now in the six figures.

After his playing career is ri-

Hawks and Wings Stretch Streaks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks and Hamilton Red Wings kept two streaks alive Friday night in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action, but the Black Hawks are probably happier.

The Black Hawks, in a come-from-behind victory, ran their unbeaten streak to 19 games, edging Hamilton 3-1.

The loss was Hamilton's seventh without a win.

Hamilton took a 1-0 first-period lead, with Dave Gorman of St. Catharines knotting the score at 2.18 of the third period.

Greg Hickey scored the only goal for Hamilton, outshot 30-22.

In other league games Friday, Sudbury Wolves and Kingston Canadians played to a 3-3 tie, Kitchener Rangers beat London Knights 4-2, Toronto Marlboros topped Oshawa Generals 4-1 and Peterborough Petes shutout Ottawa 67s 1-0.

Sudbury scored the only goal of the third period on a power play to tie the Canadians.

The three scored twice in the first five minutes, but Kingston came back to tie the score before the period ended.

Referee Blair Graham had to enter the penalty box in the first period to break up a fight between two players.

Toronto outshot Oshawa 40-28 in the game, including a 20-7 margin in the second period.

The 9's nailed Ashby with 56 shots left in the game but failed to score.

The victory was the second for Peterborough over the 67s in two days, including a 3-0 victory Thursday in Peterborough.

Today, Hamilton plays in Sault Ste. Marie.

Sunday, Hamilton travels to Kingston at home, Ottawa plays in St. Catharines, Toronto plays host to Kitchener, and London plays in Oshawa.

TWO SUSPENDED

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Left winger Gord Gallant of Minnesota Fighting Saints and Steve Sutherland of Los Angeles Sharks have been suspended from Tuesday night's World Hockey Association game between the teams because of a fight that included Nov. 30 in Los Angeles. Finley to File Suit

CHICAGO (AP) — Owner Charles O. Finley of Oakland Athletics said Friday he will file suit against baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn seeking to overturn a fine and probation order actions during the World Series.

Finley's announcement came after Mr. Kuhn told by the commissioner's office by telephone Friday that Kuhn was sustaining the disciplinary action in the wake of a hearing held in New York two weeks ago.

Finley, who has paid $7,000 in fines—$5,000 of which applied to Manager Alvin Dark case—said the suit will be filed "within the next few days" in federal court either in Chicago or New York.

At the hearing, Finley sought to have the $5,000 fine lifted for placing Jackson on the disabled list after the second baseman made two successive errors in the World Series game against New York Mets, Finley said the suit would seek reversal of the probation and the fine.

Bobcats Bounce Warriors 9-1

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

Belleville Bobcats remained in second place in the Metro Jr. B Hockey League following their convincing 9-1 win over Wexford Warriors at Memorial Arena last night. But now, Bobcats are only in the runnerup spot.

Going into last night's action, Bobcats and Warriors were tied in second with 22 points, one back of Markham and Bramalea who were the co-leaders with 23 points each. Markham upset 8-3 by Oshawa Friday night, has slipped to third-place and Wexford is now fourth.

Bramalea moved to the top of the heap with a 6-3 Friday night win over King City. The league leaders have 21 points, one more than the Bobcats.

Five fights interrupted last night's game here but they failed to take the lustre off a great individual performance by diminutive winger Mark Coates who scored four of the Bobcats' goals, and added three assists.

Coates opened the scoring with just 49 seconds played. Defenceman Jim Quinn made it 2-0 a little 20 minutes and separated Belleville's four-goal third with a pair just 9 seconds apart.

Coates' production brought his season total to 18 goals and 34 assists for 52 points, fifth best in the league's leading point man, ahead of Jim Watson, 18-33-51, Oshawa Generals; Bill Derlago, 21-29-50, Toronto Marlboros; Ron Ellis, 22-27-49, Toronto Marlboros; and Bill Lochead, 20-29-49, Peterborough Petes.

In the night's other bout, Richardson and Wexford's Ken Taylor drew five minutes each, early in the first period.

The score barely indicates the play in this one. It wasn't until the second half of the game that Cats got it rolling. Until the second period's late going, the visitors were very much in contention.

Defenceman Dave Flesch, back in the lineup after a night off for studies, celebrated his return with a pair of goals. Tim Yohn made it two goals in as many games since rejoining the Cats and Eric Powell rounded out the Cats' scoring.

Cats' Bob Moore put the icing on all but one of 32 Wexford shots. Warriors' Bryan Rose was the only shooter to beat Moore. The goal came early in the first period and created a 1-1 tie.

Cats tested Wexford's Paul Miron 55 times with 27 of those shots coming in the first period.

Cats are the visitors at King City, Tuesday, December 4 and play host to St. Michael's, Friday, December 7 and Bramalea, Sunday, December 9.

5-4 Loss in Overtime

That's More Like It, Eagles

ORILLIA (Special) — Belleville Eagles (they're no longer the Screaming Eagles, according to a member of the club's executive) gave it the big try here last night but came away empty handed.

Down 4-0 heading for the final period of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league game, Eagles rebounded to rattle for four goals and send the game into overtime.

In other games last night, Barrie bombed Welland 11-3 with Bob Baird and Paul Regan each hitting for three goals; and Cambridge thrashed Brantford 4-0.

Brantford is in Belleville Sunday night and Eagles could make things very interesting for the Don Gallagher coached Foresters.

The Belleville team is attempting to land two experienced centres and both could be in uniform Sunday.

Peterborough's George Godon and Kingston's Dick Cherry may flee up with the Eagles according to a spokesman for the Belleville club.

Godson has played senior hockey in Belleville previously while Cherry is a former member of the Kingston Area.

PERSEVERANCE SKATES

BUFFALO (AP) — OH Perseverant, Buffalo Sabres' centre, skated Friday for the first time since he fractured his lower right leg Oct. 31. Perseverant, one-third of the National Hockey League team's high-scoring French Connection line, worked out for 30 minutes.

One of Mark's Four

Puck is on its way into the net on one of four goals fired by Bobcat winger Mark Coates (right) during last night's 9-1 Metro Junior B Hockey League win over Wexford Warriors at Memorial Arena. Cats' captain Robbie Foster (6) doesn't have to help the puck along. Belleville's win was good for sole possession of second place in the league standings.

Algonquin Tops Loyalist Teams

Loyalist College hockey and basketball teams dropped Ontario Colleges Athletic Association eastern division games to squads from Algonquin College, Ottawa, in Belleville Friday night.

Loyalist's hockey Lancers fell 9-4 while the home skater's basketball team was on the short end of a 86-62 score.

"Now we know what we have to do to beat them" was hockey coach Bruce Cameron's post game comment.

Coach Cameron observed "we have to hit that club to stop them and we'll be doing it next time we meet."

Scoring for Lancers were Dave Ferguson, Reid Mallory, Gord Johnston and Barry Rosatrez. Defenceman Floyd Crawford earned three assists.

Rob Stinson, coach of the basketball Lancers, was satisfied when his club held Algonquin to the four-point margin of victory.

"They're supposed to be the top team in the eastern division, so we did alright," said the coach.

"Algonquin players went to the foul line 34 times as opposed to our 13," he lamented.

"It's tough to win ball games when you give up so many free throws."

Harvey Sharpe's 19 points for Lancers made him the top scorer in the game. Bill Kyle hooped 15 for the losers, Jim Sutton had 12 and Dave Culmer 10.

An off-white phosphor-powder, foreground, which glows green under ultra-violet light was prepared by Drs. Joseph Wirth, left, and Charles Orlando of the General Electric Research and Development Centre in Schenectady, N.Y. This dye will be placed on the vertical edges of Canadian stamps so that machines, now being installed in 14 major post offices across Canada, can automatically face and cancel 25,000 letters per hour. Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
STARS—SUN. Dec. 2

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your imagination today is at the reliable sky. It usually is never ignore hunches; they could lead you down a rocky road.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Someone who has previously told others things you told him in confidence should not know too much about your personal affairs at this time.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Don't do anything today that would give your mate cause to be jealous. If you're around that handsome friend, converse more with his wife or girl.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You will be easily influenced by others. Their advice will not be as sound as your own ideas.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be tempted to over-indulge today. You'll have a big appetite for all the wrong things. Don't be a goodie, but be sensible.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your mate, with kid gloves. Don't press issues that could lead to a disagreement. Let him be boss on family matters.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't ask another today to do something for you that you should be doing. You won't like the answer you'll get.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You tend to be wasteful. This is something you must curb in order to keep what you gain...Buy only if it's a must.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Family duties will be long this time you have set aside for other interests. Be prepared to make some concessions.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) Choose your words carefully today. Something could slip out and hint another far more deeply than you realize.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't feel too generous toward one who wants to borrow something. Gently remind him of what he still owes you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid individuals who like to throw their weight around. One thing you don't need today is a self-appointed boss.

STARS—MON. Dec. 3

Aries (March 21-April 19) Today, be a good listener. Wise advice from another will help you understand the root of a problem and how you can solve it.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You'll feel more comfortable associating with persons who think of others before themselves. A good day for charitable endeavors.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You can advance your interests handsomely today by showing others you are more than willing to pay your share.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Think and plan carefully at this time. Your present decisions have a greater effect on your future than you realize.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be concerned over the way your mate or associate is handling a situation you're involved in. Discuss doubts openly.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sure decisions made today are based upon practical aspects of the problem as well as the emotional. Logic should have the leading role.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There are additional tools or aids you can get that will help make tasks easier. Buy now, but don't spend too much.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day for you to relax. Don't take yourself or others too seriously. Do something that is entertaining and carefree.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Direct family matters with suggestions, not commands. Your ideas will come across loud and clear without being dictatorial.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Clear up correspondence today. Get in touch with a friend you've been thinking of. She has something important to tell you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may have to spend a little in order to keep up appearances or else you will be imposing. It's an investment, but don't go overboard.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone from a distance that you're anxious to hear from will be getting in touch. What she has to say may alter your plans.

THAT FOUR LETTER WORD

HOME — means everything to the happy family. To have the fullest meaning it must be your own. There is no serenity in rented accommodation. Let us show you one of our models now nearing completion on Dunnet Boulevard. This home with attached carport has L-shaped living dining room, large kitchen with ample eating area for average family and 3 bedrooms. Recreation divided for future rec room.

A BAD FOUR LETTER WORD

MOVE — can you tell when circumstances on the part of your landlord will force him to utter this ominous word? When it happens it's not pretty. Free Guide this happening with a home of your own. Why should your children have their schooling disrupted because your landlord can no longer look after your accommodation. For one sale have the foresight to own your own. For as little as $1,500.00 we can offer 3 bedroom townhouse accommodation that is your very own. We have a model suite to show you.

THE BEST FOUR LETTER WORD

OURS — not only is it pleasing to the ear but also appealing to the pocket book. Once your payments are met they fluctuate very very little for the term of the mortgage, not so with rent! It continues to climb and what is worse it goes on to rob you of your family to look to in the years ahead. Invest your money where it accumulates money quicker than in owning a house. We have a model in West Belleville the plan of which we built last year. We sold one and has recently resold with a $13,000.00 profit. Why let it to it won't happen again. Ask to see our luxury houses in all parts of the city.

Poet-priest Is Editor Of Antigonish Review

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — A poet-priest and his followers have engraved the name of this small college town on a quarterly review which may become known as one of the finer literary magazines in North America.

The editor, chief driving force and most regular contributer to the Antigonish Review is Rev. R. J. MacSween of the English department at St. Francis Xavier University.

From a faculty office piled high with a professor's clutter of books and papers, Father MacSween culls the contributions from aspiring poets across the continent.

He adds several short stories, a small number of literary reviews and essays, and a generous number of locally-drawn sketches and illustrations.

The finished product, printed at a local printing shop, is a fat little magazine of more than 100 pages with bright layout and profuse illustrations.

Father MacSween is a walking paradox. His easy manner and round, ruddy features indicate a cheerful nature, but his poetry dwells almost solely on gloom and death.

He attributes the melancholy to his younger years as a parish priest in three small northern Nova Scotia communities, when it was a daily duty to watch people die.

Unpriestlike, his poems rarely speak of heaven. Typical is this: "All are asked to tread the road towards a fear that only gods should know."

Father MacSween began writing poetry when he was a high school student in Glace Bay, N.S., in the 1930s. Inspired by "a very good English teacher" he began taking an interest in literature.

Then a friend died, and he jotted down his emotions. It turned out to be a poem, and Father MacSween hasn't stopped writing since.

Besides his regular contributions to the Antigonish Review, he has published his first book of poetry, The Forgotten World, and is working on his second.

After high school, he attended St. Francis Xavier University, where he graduated in arts in 1936 and was ordained in 1946.

He served as a parish priest from 1941 to 1948, but never lost his interest in literature and spent every cent he could afford to buy books. The collection has passed the 6,000 mark.

He returned to St. FX in 1948 to teach English literature and has been there ever since.

The first Antigonish Review was brought out in 1970 by Father MacSween and a group of poetry lovers at the university. He was not the first editor, but took over after the first year.

For Father MacSween it was the realization of an old ambition.

"I always had a yen to put out a magazine. I had always been in on the 'little magazine' thing, and I started reading them when I was very young."

Most of the founders still are with the magazine — George and Gertrude Sanderson, Charles Plummer, Pat Walsh and Bill Tierney. They and a few others who have since joined the group do all the accounting, editing, and proofreading. There is no paid staff.

Contributers are not paid, but enough poets are seeking a publishing outlet that Father MacSween can afford to be fussy about what he selects.

The magazine survives on its $5 annual subscription fee, a Canada Council grant and aid from the St. FX co-ed university.

The religious background can be felt in the magazine's general lack of obscenity or anti-religious material.

Still, it is a secular magazine.

"We wouldn't print anything against any religion, and we wouldn't want to print anything favoring it," Father MacSween said. "I'll admit there are things I'm afraid to publish, but I've never received anything obscene that was first-rate."

And the Review does not dodge issues. It has down-to-earth descriptions of childbirth, abortion and death, and even talks of the "objectifying of tavern urinals."

The review strives above all to be a magazine for the layman rather than the scholar.

"The only policy is to choose good writing," said editorial board member Georges Sanderson. "The publishes it to be read."

Father MacSween sees the scarcity of great poets as a reflection of the era in which we live.

"We are in a lull between two periods," he said. Almost all of the great masters of the early 20th century are dead, and no new stars have risen to replace them. When they do, Father MacSween predicted, there will be a return to the romantic poets of the late 19th century.

Father MacSween added that translations of French-Canadian poetry have become one of its hallmarks. The works of the best French-Canadian poets are printed first in their original form and then a translation by Mrs. Gertrude Sanderson.

Horn's Lead Singer Feels Like Jukebox

TORONTO (CP) — "There were times I felt like a jukebox on legs," recalled Horn's lead singer Les Clackett. "Someone would come up to me, put a coin on my tongue, press a button on my stomach and the music would come out."

Many bands starting out on the coffee house-nightclub-bar circuit are forced to play to the audience's demands. Theodore's Smokeshop, as Horn was then known, played orthodox music steadily in Montreal for a couple of years, even branching out to the Quebec City club circuit.

Theodore's Smokeshop felt it was getting nowhere musically. Then five of the band's present lineup of eight moved to Toronto, the hub of Canadian rock music, stepping out of the security of the one-night stand and into a field of music which had remained relatively unexplored.

After two years of hard work exploring free-form jazz-rock music, Horn is beginning to emerge as an intelligent and original exponent in this field. The change has meant virtual seclusion from the public eye, but the band feels the musical rewards have been well worth while.

As a step to launch Horn from obscurity, the band's first album, On The People's Side, was released last March. Sales were moderate but reviews were encouraging.

Horn, the reviewers felt, was something special which would appeal only to the well-above-average listener. But, says Horn, rock music listeners are becoming more particular about the quality of music.

Since the release of the album, Horn has made select appearances in "watching and listening" rooms in and around Toronto. The band's most concrete revenue is the university or college campus, where their music is accepted and appreciated.

But there's still a long road ahead not only to financial security but also before the band feels in command of the intricate field of music it is exploring.

All eight members work at odd jobs. Most of their spare time is spent in rehearsal, arrangement and writing to deepen their understanding of free-form jazz-rock. Much of the material on the album, although complex and musically provoking, was the result of early dabblings in this field.

Now the band is working on material for a second album which will, says lead guitarist Bruce Barron, show how Horn has grasped "a better understanding of the science of this type of music."

However, with dozens of good, commercially viable rock 'n' roll bands operating in Toronto, Horn still is pondering the means of reaching wider audiences.

Horn agrees that its music is difficult to pigeon-hole. Unlike extreme avant-garde, where free-form is literally interpreted as music without recurring theme or rhythm, Horn outlines its pieces with a strong theme line, interspersed with spaces of improvisation.

Much of the music has striking rock or jazz rhythm lines driven by bass guitar and percussion. Around this, two electric guitars, a woodwind and brass section and an electric piano add variations and color while Clackett's remarkable voice, sometimes deep and melodic, sometimes a shrill falsetto, leads the music.

Marketing this extraordinary sound is difficult, from easy, admits Horn's manager David Bleakney. The band's fate lies in the hands of the public trend in music but he sees indications that an opening will appear for Horn and its special brand of music in the future.

Imperial Optical Claimed Octopus Of Eyeglasses

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Optical Co. Ltd. operates under 300 different corporate names and most Canadian eyeglass buyers are customers of Imperial- but don't know it, The Globe and Mail says in a copyright story.

"If we put the Imperial Optical name on every building, two-thirds of them would go out of business," Imperial President Sydney Hermant said in an interview with the newspaper. "People like to have a choice."

William Davies, Imperial's operator at Hamilton, in an interview with University of Saskatchewan economists this year estimated that 85 per cent of Canada's retail opticians are controlled by one or another of Imperial, Bausch and Lomb, and American Optical Co. Ltd. And Imperial is far the biggest, the newspaper says.

At present, Ontario is reviewing the powers assigned to ophthalmologist, optometrists and opticians, and is considering adding lay representation to professional disciplinary bodies, the newspaper says. Quebec is trying through legislation to limit optical manufacturers' ownership of retail opticians.

And Saskatchewan is considering setting up publicly-owned wholesale lens grinding laboratories and retail opticians to dispense glasses under its medical insurance program, The Globe and Mail says.

One Saskatchewan health department exploratory study found 70 to 80 per cent of Saskatchewan residents were Imperial-owned. And across Canada, about 90 per cent are Imperial-owned, says a University of Saskatchewan study.

The newspaper says one effect of manufacturer control of retail opticians is reduced competition for sales—Imperial has a policy that tells its outlets to buy 85 per cent or more of their goods from the firm.

"We manufacture in Canada and we have to have a big domestic market," Mr. Hermant says. "We need areas where we have the right to get favorable treatment. If we didn't have that, we couldn't manufacture in Canada."

Wiretap Bill Closer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons, highballing on a downhill stretch en route to a parliamentary cleanup by Christmas, carried a load of legislation nearer to completion this week.

Part of the package was Justice Minister Otto Lang's controversial wiretap bill, which reaches its destination Tuesday when the House votes on a series of amendments.

The bill basically would outlaw all private electronic eavesdropping while controlling police use of bugs.

Earlier this week, the government's foreign investment bill received third reading, the last step before Senate approval and royal assent make the bill law. This would set up an emergency to screen foreign investment and also would control expansion of foreign interests already here.

Nixon Calls for Optical Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon Friday accused the Ontario government of "sweeping under the rug" what appeared to be price-fixing in the optical industry.

Mr. Nixon called in the legislature for an investigation under the Consumers Protection Act into the industry.

He charged John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, with waffling, saying the minister knew about the problem "six months ago when it was raised in the legislature by Albert Roy (Lib.-Ottawa East).

Mr. Roy had called for an investigation at the time, and the minister had promised to consider it, Mr. Nixon said.

"What is consideration? Sweeping it under the rug? It's that the way you deal with matters like this?"

New Democratic Leader Stephen Lewis urged the minister to make a report to the house Monday "so that this health-related product is not used as a resource for profit making . . ."

Mr. Clement replied that he couldn't commit himself to reporting Monday "because I usually spend Saturday looking at the funnies, and Sunday I'm in church."

The question arose because of a report in the Toronto Globe and Mail that indicated consumers pay two to three times the price they should for eyeglasses because of lack of competition.

Mr. Clement said he had not had time to read the newspaper report, and he was not certain if there was provincial legislation to enable him to deal with the industry. If it proved necessary . . .

"If I have no legislation to deal with it, what do you want me to do, pick it out of the air?" the minister asked.

Mr. Nixon urged the minister to make a statement early next week. Monday delays.

"We do not want to have this issue lost by buck-passing," he said.

More Layoffs

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — General Motors of Canada has announced 1,000 hourly rated workers at its trim plant in Windsor, Ont., will be laid off for one week beginning Dec. 17.

About 140 other workers at the plant will remain on the job to make trim for trucks, a GM spokesman said here Friday.

The company previously announced one-week layoffs beginning Dec. 17 for 6,500 workers at its plant here and 2,500 at a plant in St. Catharines, Ont.

The shutdowns at the Ontario plants and at 15 GM plants in the United States result, the company said, because it has a sufficient inventory of intermediate and full-size cars.

Woman Wins Suit Against Husband

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A 34-year-old London woman has been awarded $7,500 damages against her husband for injuries she received in a car — truck crash in February, 1971.

Carol Edwards was awarded the settlement against her husband, Thomas, also 34, in a judgment released Friday by Middlesex County Judge R. S. Macnab.

Donald Crawford, Mrs. Edwards's lawyer, said normally a person cannot sue a spouse for civil wrong.

But because the couple was not married at the time of the accident, the action was allowed.

They were married in May, 1972, three months after Mrs. Edwards launched the suit under her maiden name Warner.

It is understood the judgment will be recovered from an insurance company and not from Mr. Edwards himself.

Two other passengers in the accident were also awarded damages by Judge Macnab.

Lila Salmon, 24, of London was awarded $3,374, and Gerald Reid, 30, of Stratford, Ont., and formerly of London, was awarded $800.

Mrs. Edwards, who had been active in sports, received injuries to both knees that required operations.

All four were injured when a car driven by Mr. Edwards crashed into a Canadian National Railway passenger train at a level crossing.

C. L. Bladon, counsel for Mr. Edwards, said he did not know if there would be an appeal.

Agreement Signed

BERNE (Reuter) — Switzerland and China have signed a civil aviation agreement establishing commercial air links between the two countries, the Swiss transport ministry announced.

Automotive Layoffs Spreading

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — About 140 employees of the frame division at Hayes-Dana Ltd. were laid off Friday for an indefinite period, company president Borg Reimer said.

He said no further cuts among the 1,200 hourly-rated employees are expected.

"However, the situation is a rather complex one—the economy, materials shortages and the extent of the energy crisis," he said. "It will have to be reviewed frequently"

General Motors of Canada announced earlier in the week that it is laying off for five days in December 2,500 employees in a components plant in St. Catharines and 7,000 workers at its Oshawa production line.

Farm Land Transfers Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer John White introduced legislation Friday allowing a farmer to turn over to his children, free of gift tax, an interest in the family farm worth up to $50,000.

The tax-free gift is a once-in-a-lifetime proposition and may be made only by a farmer or his spouse to a person or persons connected by blood relationship, adoption or marriage.

The measure was one of two announced Friday by Mr. White to relieve the burdens on family farms.

The other measure would lift the burden of succession duties by permitting farmproperty sold or on farm assets over a 25-year period.

Sunday Gas Out in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Most service station owners across the United States plan to close their gas pumps Sunday either because they don't have the fuel to sell or because they're trying to conserve it.

President Nixon requested the voluntary Sunday gas sales in his energy speech last Sunday. A bill pending in Congress would give him the power to make the closing mandatory.

An Associated Press survey showed the great majority of stations expect to close this Sunday. Industry spokesmen and trade association representatives in 31 states said at least 75 per cent of the stations will sell no gas from 9 a.m. Saturday to midnight Sunday night.

Stations in some areas already have been closing on Sundays because of lack of fuel.

California Produce Ban Considered

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Friday he would "consider over the weekend" a suggestion by Stephen Lewis that California grapes and lettuce be banned from parliamentary cafeterias.

Mr. Lewis said the move should be made in support of striking farm workers in California, who are being supported with similar actions from Toronto and York borough.

Spending

DURBAN (AP) — Government officials estimate 600,000 tourists will spend at least $372 million in South Africa this year.

Stanley Knowles Stays On Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Stanley Knowles, the quiet New Democrat rarely seen away from Parliament Hill, reacted characteristically Friday in opposing a motion to bonor him with a one-hour holiday from the Commons.

The motion, moved by Alexandre (L.—Gaspe), was made to mark Mr. Knowles's 31st anniversary as an MP and enable him to leave Parliament Hill.

Mr. Knowles jumped to his feet after Mr. Cyr put the motion.

"Mr. Speaker, I believe this motion requires unanimous consent of the House. You do not have it."

The 65-year-old NDP House leader was first elected to the Commons Nov. 30, 1942.

The Centennial Tar Ingot Collection

IN SOLID STERLING SILVER

The Franklin Mint Canada Ltd. presents the largest and most impressive ingot collection it has ever issued.

Subscription Rolls Close December 15, 1973.

Limit: One Set per Collector.

In the Spring of 1875, an Austrian inventor named Siegfried Marcus drove the first successful motor car through the streets of Vienna. Onlookers were amazed, and even frightened. But they would have been even more astonished had they been able to look into the future and see how the automobile has changed the world.

Now we are approaching the centennial of the automobile. To commemorate this significant milestone, The Franklin Mint Canada Ltd. will produce and issue a limited-edition collection of 100 solid sterling silver ingots faithfully portraying the 100 greatest cars of the first hundred years.

GREAT CARS — CHOSEN BY THE EXPERTS

The cars to be honored have been chosen especially for this collection by a distinguished International Board of Advisers, all of whom are recognized authorities on the world's great cars. Their selections make The Centennial Car Ingot Collection a definitive heirloom collection of great authenticity and value. For they have considered all the criteria of greatness, and their choices include cars of every type and era.

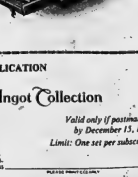
The collection will feature the most important and impressive cars of the century—from the pioneering Daimler and Renault, through Henry Ford's "model T" and the classic Rolls-Royce "Silver Ghost," to the great Jaguar "XK120" and the Mercedes-Benz "C111" with its Wankel engine.

100,000 GRAINS OF STERLING SILVER

The Centennial Car Ingot Collection will consist of 100 ingots, each weighing at least 1000 grains. The complete collection will thus contain one hundred thousand grains of sterling silver.

The face of every ingot will bear a faithful portrait of one of the great cars; on the reverse will be an explanation of its importance. Moreover, each ingot will have an unusually large surface area, 2¼" x 1¼", to accommodate the beautiful sculptured image. The result: technical authenticity, plus a depth of dimension that spotlights each car design in bold relief against the shining silver background of the ingot. The tiny details that distinguish one historic car from all others are depicted with precision and accuracy. You can actually count the spokes on the wheels.

A CUSTOM-BUILT COLLECTOR'S CHEST



To house this magnificent ingot collection, a custom-built Collector's Chest will be sent to each subscriber at no charge. The strapping across the top of this chest recalls the hood straps of vintage cars. Its interior finish is reminiscent of leather upholstered seats. The top and front panels can be opened —revealing four ingot trays which can be removed from the chest to make individual wall mountings. And the subscriber's name will be engraved on a solid brass nameplate to certify that he is the owner of this historic collection.

Two ingots will be issued by The Franklin Mint Canada Ltd. each month for 50 months, beginning in January 1974. The issue price will be $14.50 per ingot—$29.00 per month. And, though the complete collection will contain 100,000 grains of solid sterling silver, this issue price will be guaranteed for the length of the series—no matter how high the market price of silver may rise.

The Centennial Car Ingot Collection is a unique and authoritative commemoration of one hundred years of fascinating history. The collector who loves beauty in silver . . . the individual intrigued by the great achievements of mankind . . . the devoted and knowledgeable car buff . . . will take great pride in owning and displaying this magnificent collection.

Those who wish to acquire these superb ingots must enter their subscriptions by December 15, 1973. The Franklin Mint Canada Ltd. must decline and return all applications postmarked after that date.

Tories Will Introduce Non-confidence Motion

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — Federal Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said today the Conservative party will introduce a motion of non-confidence in the minority Liberal government, probably based on energy policy.

He said in an interview he couldn't be specific on the subject of the non-confidence motion, to be introduced in the House of Commons Dec. 10.

Asked if the non-confidence motion would be based on energy, he replied:

"Well, probably. We haven't taken any decisions yet."

Mr. Stanfield also said he couldn't say at this time whether the non-confidence motion would deal with the price freeze on Canadian crude oil.

"I can't answer that question without further discussions with the caucus. We don't discuss those things 10 days in advance because we don't really know what might develop in the meantime."

He said he didn't know whether the New Democratic Party would support the Conservative non-confidence motion. If the NDP supported the motion the government could fall.

The Liberals hold 109 of the 264 commons seats. The Conservatives hold 106 and the NDP has 31.

Mr. Stanfield noted that "the NDP hasn't moved any non-confidence motions since the election."

At a news conference Friday morning, asked if he expected the NDP would soon withdraw its support from the Liberals, he said:

"I keep hearing talk about it (the support) failing by the wayside. I'll believe it when I see it."

However, he said Opposition Day would mark the last chance for the Conservatives to introduce a non-confidence motion this session "and we'll definitely use it."

Mr. Stanfield, in a speech to the British Columbia Conservative Party Friday night said he was opposed to a continuation of the price freeze on Canadian crude oil after Feb. 1.

"It's one thing to advocate a continuation of prices, profits and income controls such as we have advocated; it's quite different to apply this control to just one commodity."

He said the federal government should consult with representatives of oil-producing provinces "with a view to staging price increases and working out an arrangement with the provinces leading to a ceiling somewhat below the International price, below the Internationals."

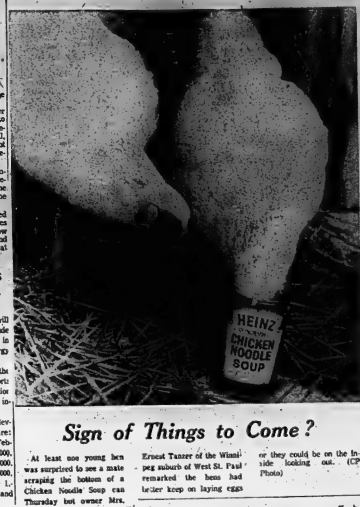
"I think the western producer provinces should be very open to a suggestion that the price of Canadian crude should be somewhat below the international price in return for federal policies designed to help diversify the economy of these provinces . . . to reduce U.S. tariffs on petro-chemicals to be exported from the West and in return for transportation policies favorable to the development of secondary industry in western Canada."

Mr. Stanfield said self-sufficiency must be the chief objective of any national energy policy.

"The barrier between us and the attainment of that objective is not engineering, it is not the cost, it is not the materials. The only obvious barrier is long standing and continued deviation of duty on the part of the Trudeau government."

He said while Prime Minister Trudeau favored a proposal to extend the interprovincial pipeline from Ontario to Montreal, the federal government had not taken decisive action to implement such an extension.

Mr. Stanfield called for immediate extension of the pipeline and further study on the feasibility of extending the line to the Maritimes.



He said Canada was a divided country "with energy supplies assured and at a cost far below world prices in the West and with an uncertain supply at greater cost in the East."

Crude Exports Declining

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will export 877,743 barrels of crude oil daily to the United States in December, the National Energy Board said Friday.

It is the first time since the start of the year that exports have fallen below one million barrels a day, and reflects increased domestic demand.

Average monthly export levels since the start of 1973 were: January 1,173,000 barrels, February 1,215,000, March 1,243,000, April 1,228,000, May 1,143,000, June 1,121,000, July 1,063,000, August 1,104,000, September 1,136,000, October 1,119,000, and November 1,005,000

Farming Future Concerns Minister

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Friday he is worried that farming since may no longer be able to supply the manpower needed for Canada's growing food industry.

He told the Guelph branch of the Ontario Institute of Agrologists that while 40 per cent of Canada's labor force is engaged in jobs related to the food industry, less than five per cent of the national work force is composed of farmers.

Mr. Whelan's address at the University of Guelph was timed to coincide with preparations to mark the Ontario Agricultural College's (OAC) centennial in 1974.

"Where are our farmers, our scientists, our agribusiness employees and our civil servants going to come from in the future?" he asked.

The minister acknowledged that a large percentage of OAC students have farming backgrounds but not all will return to farming after graduating.

However, he said it was heartening to learn there is an increasing trend for agricultural graduates and young people in general to take up farming as a career.

"They can see a future in farming," said Mr. Whelan, himself a farmer from Amherstburg, Ont.

Mr. Whelan revealed that a new farm credit bill he will introduce in Parliament in January will provide more aid in the form of loans to young people under 35 in farming or who are considering farming as a career.

The amount of loans provided by the Farm Credit Corporation has been increased. About one-half of the loans now granted under the plan are given to farmers under 25, the minister said.

Beef Tax Will Stay

OTTAWA (CP) — The temporary surtax on imported live cattle and dressed beef, announced earlier this month, will be allowed to remain, Finance Minister John Turner announced Friday.

The measure was announced Nov. 2 and Mr. Turner promised it would be reviewed within 30 days.

The surtax is three cents a pound on live animals and six cents a pound on fresh dressed beef.

The surtax was intended to stabilize the Canadian market for beef and live cattle, disrupted by an unusually high volume of United States imports.

U.S. cattlemen, encouraged to keep their cattle off the market by President Nixon's price controls, flooded the stockyards and the Canadian market when the American controls were lifted in September.

The government will continue to review the need for the surtax, Mr. Turner said.

"We still anticipate that North American trade in beef and cattle will return to traditional levels in the near future."

Canada Will Help Refugees

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is preparing to help several hundred people displaced by the recent military coup to come to Canada, Immigration Minister Robert Andras told the Commons Friday.

The refugees, Chileans and citizens of other Latin American countries, will be processed by teams of external affairs and immigration department officials now abroad, he said. The officials had been ordered to process the refugees under the relaxed provisions of Canada's refugee program.

Mr. Andras said later he expects this movement of Chilean and other refugees will be completed "within the next few weeks."

Toronto Mail Cleared

U.S. Fearful Bombs Sent to Oil Firms

TORONTO (CP) — Post office officials said today mail destined for Houston and Washington has been cleared for dispatch after a close inspection following a tip that letter bombs directed at United States government agencies and oil companies were posted from here.

Ed Roworth, post office public relations officer, said today "any suspect mail has been scanned with a fluorescope and now has been cleared for dispatch."

"No bombs were found," he said.

The mail was locked in an out-of-the-way room Sunday following a tip from the U.S. postal service. Mr. Roworth said the tip said the bombs "were mailed in Toronto during the weekend."

He said the post office would continue surveillance on mail destined to the two U.S. cities "for the next couple of days."

A spokesman for the U.S. postal service said that despite the information, the inspection service has "no indication any letter bombs are in the mail."

He would not comment on the likely destination of the letters, but said the inspection service offered to screen the mail of possible targets.

"The agencies and oil companies were contacted purely as a precautionary measure," he said, adding he was not aware of any agency or company asking for the screening.

In Cleveland, Ohio, police and postal officials looking for letter bombs seized mail on an Air Canada flight Sunday night.

Officials declined to say whether any explosive devices were uncovered in the mail or in a search of the plane, which included passengers' luggage.

The weather service in Washington placed a message about the letter bomb report on its teletype wire, saying it came from the U.S. General Services Administration.

That report, said a civil defence official, described the explosives as "white and puffy, four by six inches and 1¼ inches deep."

He added, that according to the weather wire report, the return address on the envelopes was Switzerland and carried the names Yasrat Guy Yahr or Yosef A. Rang du Prahansan.

However, Mr. Roworth denied this report.

"That's not so. We haven't been told of any color, size or return address."

He said Canadian authorities had not come across any of the letter bombs yet but would continue their search.

A letter bomb sent to the British Embassy in Washington last August injured a secretary when it exploded. That bomb was believed to have been delivered through diplomatic channels, not the postal system.

B. C. Dockers Asked to Shun Chilean Goods

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hortensia Allende, widow of the late socialist president of Chile, has called for Vancouver longshoremen to refuse to handle Chilean goods.

Mrs. Allende, speaking to more than 1,000 persons through an interpreter Sunday, drew sustained applause when she requested longshoremen to refuse to handle any goods coming from or destined for Chile.

Rosemary Brown, member of the British Columbia legislature for Burrard, spoke for the provincial New Democratic Party government. She apologized to Mrs. Allende for the federal Liberal government's attitude towards Chilean refugees.

She said the NDP rejoiced when the socialist government of Salvador Allende was elected.

"When it was brutally overthrown all of us died a little with it."

She pledged provincial government support to open Canadian boundaries to Chileans so they could "gather strength to return" to their country.

Energy Debate Coming

PCs Expect NDP To Vote with Them

OTTAWA (CP) — The next few weeks could be anything but festive for MPs, especially those on the government side of the House, if Conservative plans bear fruit.

Donald Macdonald, federal energy minister, today was to start moving legislation supporting measures already taken to alleviate the energy crisis through the Commons.

The Conservatives plan, next Monday, to introduce a motion of non-confidence in government energy measures into the debate and are confident they have worded it in such a way the New Democrats, who hold the balance of power, cannot ignore it. The Conservatives, with 108 members compared with 109 Liberals, gleefully expect the 31 New Democrats at last to support them in toppling the government.

Also in the 264-seat House are 15 Social Credit members, one vacancy and two Independents.

For their part, the NDP are ready. Party Leader David Lewis has "serious misgivings" about the unhappiness with "government energy measures and the eager willingness of his party to fight an election on the issue.

Schreyer Worries

Canada's Oil Reserves Good Only for 40 Years

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer said Sunday if Canadians care about what happens to future generations they must become more conscious of the need to conserve energy resources that can't be renewed.

Reflecting a concern that dominated the three-day convention of the Manitoba New Democratic Party, Mr. Schreyer said an awareness of energy conservation should be stressed in schools and applied to many aspects of life.

The 37-year-old premier, elected by acclamation to a fifth one-year term as provincial leader, said huge oil reserves that remain to be tapped probably will provide fuel for no more than 30 or 40 years.

In long-range terms it was important to focus on proper use of non-renewable resources while developing renewable power sources, such as the Nelson River hydroelectric project, to the best advantage.

Mr. Schreyer defended the export of hydroelectric power from Manitoba to the United States, provided neighboring provinces are not left behind. Revenues from the U.S. sales could be used to build more power sites on the Nelson River.

The convention urged a speedup of the Nelson River project, with the minority arguing the scheme will damage the delicate ecology of the North and should be scrapped or at least postponed for further studies.

ED SCHREYER

Manitoba PCs Assail Liberal Energy Policy

BRANDON (CP) — Manitoba Progressive Conservatives ended their annual convention Sunday with renewed hopes for success in forming both the next federal and provincial governments.

The nearly 250 delegates were concerned most with the energy crisis and the prospect of a non-confidence motion in Parliament aimed at toppling the minority Liberal government before the end of the month.

And, although the next provincial election may be as much as 4½ years away, several speakers urged the rank-and-file to begin working to oust Premier Ed Schreyer's New Democrats from office.

The energy situation dominated discussion and the centre of attention was Quebec MP Claude Wagner, whose declaration of Liberal energy policy won him the loudest standing ovation of the weekend meeting.

Mr. Wagner, the party's chief spokesman in Quebec, said the Conservatives would introduce a non-confidence motion in the Commons Dec. 10, condemning the government for its failure to regulate energy.

Mr. Wagner said petroleum shortages predicted for Quebec and the Maritimes could have been avoided if the government had proceeded with a pipeline extension to Montreal.

Other MPs pointed to their repeated prodding of the government in the Commons and what they said was the Liberals' failure to respond to their pleas.

The commander of United Nations peacekeeping force has conferred with Egypt's war minister in an effort to get his representative back to the negotiating table beside the Suez canal.

Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, the Finnish UN commander, met Sunday night with Lt. Gen. Ahmed Ismail after meeting in Jerusalem with Defence Minister Moshey Dayan of Israel.

No information on the Cairo meeting was available but Dayan said he would be prepared to resume the talks at Kilometre 101 on the Suez-Cairo road and Hasen to new Egyptian proposals for mutual troop withdrawals on the Suez front.

Dayan said his country would be "happy to follow" if Egypt wishes to renew the negotiations.

B.C. Tory Chief Hopes for Gains

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — The new leader of British Columbia's Conservatives believes his party, with only two legislature seats, has a fighting chance to gain political ground.

After 21-month Trip Pioneer Nears Jupiter

The unmanned 570-pound spacecraft will hurtle within 81,000 miles of Jupiter at 9:25 p.m. EST, travelling at a speed of about 67,660 miles an hour. It was launched from earth 21 months ago.

The spacecraft will transmit color pictures of the planet and take scientific measurements before the immense orbiting gravity hurls it toward the outer reaches of the solar system.

Early today, still 620,000 miles from Jupiter, Pioneer 10 continued to send pictures of the planet that showed in increasing detail the vast disturbances in Jupiter's atmosphere which is rich in hydrogen, helium, methane and ammonia.

Late Sunday, scientists still could not predict the severity of the radiation belts through which Pioneer must pass in the final hours before reaching Jupiter. Experts fear radiation might interfere with data transmission or even silence the space craft.

Eastern Canada Faces New, Higher Oil Prices

By ALEX BINKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Eastern Canadians spent the weekend "gasoline shopping" looking at what the latest federal government — allowed fuel price increases would do to their pocket books.

This came hard on the heels of some more bad news: Crude oil from Venezuela, major part of Eastern Canadian oil fuels, is going to cost more.

Newfoundlanders, who generally pay the most for oil products, have yet to find out what they going to have to pay to heat their homes. But they know regular gasoline is up five cents a gallon to 73.5 cents and premium to 79.1 cents except at some stations in St. John's.

Meanwhile, Ottawa felt a sharp price increase of up to 5.9 cents a gallon, making regular 68.9 cents and premium 71.8.

In Montreal, prices increased five cents a gallon to 72 premium and 67 for regular. There were traffic disruptions Friday as motorists lined up at filling stations to beat the increase.

In Prince Edward Island, gasoline rose four cents a gallon, retail now costing between 68.4 and 70 cents and premium ranges between 73 and 75.

In Nova Scotia, the increase is about 4.5 cents a gallon, bringing regular to 69.3 cents and premium 74.2 cents. In New Brunswick regular sells between 64.7 and 66.8 cents and premium 69.7 and 71.

Meanwhile home heating oil rose about four cents a gallon east of the Ottawa Valley. It now costs 36 cents a gallon in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, 32 cents in New Brunswick, 32.5 cents in Quebec and 34.5 cents in Ottawa.

The increases were approved last week by Donald Macdonald, federal energy minister, as a result of higher prices for Venezuelan and Middle-East crude. Retail oil prices leaped almost 70 per cent in October while Venezuelan prices vaulted 56 per cent.

Venezuela announced Saturday it is increasing the price of crude oil by 50 cents a barrel to $7.74.

But the oil companies are going to have show "overpowering evidence" if they want to get further rises approved by Ottawa, Mr. Macdonald said.

Risky Rescue Was Successful

A RR 4 Belleville man, who was trapped 30 feet below ground for nearly an hour Saturday, is today resting satisfactorily in Belleville General Hospital, after the Belleville Fire Department and two rescuers saved his life.

Ronald Lentz, 35, was inspecting the bottom of a 20 foot well which was being dug on his property one mile east of Belleville on Highway 2 around 3 p.m. Saturday, when one wall of the excavation caved in pinning him beneath the surface.

Belleville firefighters from Number 1 Fire Hall, on Dundas Street East, were rushed to the accident scene at 3.03 p.m. On their arrival they found two men; Egop Lentz, and Glen Sherwin, of Roslin, trying to dig Mr. Lentz out.

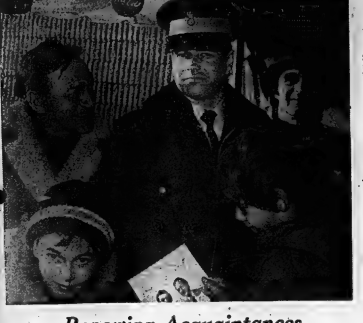
Firefighter Bob Davenport was sent down the well to help the other two men, while Captain George Woodhouse, and four of his men proceded in try to shore up the crumbling walls and kept crowds of curious onlookers from coming too close to the well edge.

Using the bucket of a backhoe, as a parade, to shore up the weak wall, the firefighters placed a three-fly ladder across the top of the well and strung out a large section of rope to make a basket-type stretcher for the injured man.

Throughout the rescue operation, large sections of the clay walls kept sliding into the well, endangering the lives of the rescuers and the trapped man.

Dr. David Listern, of Belleville, was lowered to the well bottom partway, through the rescue operation to give Mr. Lentz an injection to ease his pain.

It was really a harum-scarum operation," said Captain Woodhouse. "The man in that hole deserve a lot of credit. It took a lot of guts to go down there with the sides of the well wave still sliding into the hole. They risked their lives to save that man."



Mr. Lentz was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital by LaSalle Ambulance. He is reported to be in satisfactory condition with a badly broken right leg.

Liberals Hold Meetings

Renewing Acquaintances

Eight years ago, Gary Roberts, now a constable with the OPP, used to caddy for Frank Shuster of Wayne and Shuster at a golf course in Toronto. At Saturday's opening of the Gulf Self-Serve Station on North Front and College, the two had a chance to renew acquaintances while young admirers look on. Quipped Shuster about the meeting, "He's gotten better and I've gotten worse. Constable Roberts says he still gets a bit while Shuster still is a member of the same course, Northwood.

Santa Gets a Sunny Welcome

Nine-year-old Norman Casey had one of the best seats in the house for Saturday's Santa Claus parade in the city.

With his mother and brother, he watched the 90-minute parade from the second floor of a Front Street building - where it was a bit warmer there than for the throngs who crowded downtown streets to watch.

But for those down below the cold didn't really matter. The sun was shining and although the weather didn't exactly seem Christmas-like, the spirit was there.

From Norman's vantage point he could see quite well the over 60 floats, bands, antique cars, marchers, funny cars and bicycles. And of course there were the clowns.

He could hear the sound of school bands, marching bands, a bugle band and even the stirring sounds of bagpipes.

And if he liked animals, there were plenty of them. There were horses with riders, a four-horse hitch. And there were dogs, all breeds walking along with their owners, members of the Belleville and District Kennel Club.

There were also four Golden Retrievers pulling a small cart with owner, Lew Barks, nearby.

Some were animals you may have read about in books, such as Winnie the Pooh and Minnie Mouse, brought to life especially for the parade.

There were even animals that acted like humans. Those who saw the movie Plant of the Apes will recall the story of two astronauts imprisoned by apes in a civilization ruled by apes. This was represented by a float.

And of course the clowns. Where he was, Norman was safe from their pranks such as having a clown throw at you a bucket of what seems at first to be water, but is really a shower of confetti.

The parade started at 10 Saturday morning but some of the participants began arriving as early as 6 a.m.

The floats were brought to Foley's Supply and Machine Company on Wallbridge Crescent, the starting off point, from the Ben Bleecker Auditorium.

But by 10 a.m. everything was ready. The floats, bands, walkers and animals were all set to move on the one-mile route.

It was the last float that caused the most excitement for the children who lined the streets.

This was the float carrying that jolly old man in the red suit and white beard. After all it was his parade.

Santa was accompanied by his elves and helpers and of course his prancing eight reindeer to officially open the Christmas season in Belleville.

Described by Lee Jouard and two young commentators, the show provided much delight and amusement to those children who ordinarily would not have been able to see it in person.

And when the tape was finished being shown, who should come to visit the children but Santa Claus himself, Accompanied by an elf and Rinnmen clowns who distributed candy to the young patients as they did during the parade. Santa presented each of the children with a gift.

Earlier in the day, Ronald McDonald popped in to talk to the children and present them with a stuffed doll.

All in all it was a busy day for Santa but more than that, it was an unforgetable day for the hundreds of children who watched this year's Santa Claus parade.

Winning Parade Floats Announced

The floats taking part in Saturday's Santa Claus parade were not only judged by those watching. they also had a more critical eye looking at them.

The eyes were those of judges looking for trophy-winners in various categories. The winners were finally picked as:

Parade marshall's trophy,

Self-serve Gas Station Opened by Comedians

While the Santa Claus parade provided one kind of traffic jam, another minor unrelated one followed after the parade.

This was the opening of Belleville's first self-serve service station on North Front and College streets.

The opening of this Gulf station may have more successful than manager, Terry Fitzpatrick, anticipated.

For a brief while, the pumps had to operate on half-power and the car wash was not at all. Reason for this lay with a power function from a hydro pole, cutting off power to the electrical computers which operate the pumps.

Belleville Utilities Commission crews came to remedy the problem.

Manager Fitzpatrick said he was pleased with the opening day turnout. Looking at the front of cars attempting to enter the station, he said, "the response has been fantastic, just super."

The station has 10 pumps, including two double ones for a total of 12 gasoline dispensers. It is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in accordance with the city's bylaw.

Full and part-time employees at the station number about 10. They serve as cashiers or car wash attendants. The customers pump their own gas.

Helping out in the opening day celebrations were comedians Wayne and Shuster who signed autographed pictures of themselves and chatted and shook hands with those eager to meet them.

"I've always wanted to shake his hand," said Margot beaming with accomplishment.

Citizen's Bureau

With the 'Citizens' Bureau back in action, and with the financial help forthcoming from a Quinte Help Fund also being reactivated, opportunities are being provided for positive community action.

The Citizens' Bureau had its problems along with those of people it was trying to help solve, and it had its quota of criticism, but in the nature of its work this was inevitable.

There will be difficulties again, no doubt, but this is no reason for not recognizing the basic worth of the Citizens' Bureau operation and for expressing the hope that the community will benefit from its renewed operation.

Much will depend on the staff and the degree of co-operation it receives from the public. Each may have to bend a little, compromise here and lend a hand there. Let's hope there will be more credits than debits in this new initiative. Certainly past experience has revealed its value to citizens in varying degrees of need.

Man of Our Time

The odyssey of immigration has all the elements of tragedy, comedy and every other conceivable emotion. The movement of people in every land on earth, given momentum by wars, famine and pestilence, and involving separations and reunions, is part of the continuing and never-ending fabric of history.

In Toronto there are many people from the Baltic states, notably Estonia. At least one hears more about Estonians — and remembering the big world festival of people from that country in Toronto a year or so ago — than about Latvians and Lithuanians.

However, there was one Lithuanian many of us knew through his screen roles, a young man who was born there but was educated in South Africa and became the very essence of the suave Briton, capable even of the Lancashire — or was it Yorkshire — dialect, in Room at the Top.

He is dead now, an event of recent days, at the age of only 45. His name: Laurence Harvey, who was born Larushka Mischa Skikne. The shot died of cancer whose evidently swift passage nevertheless did not prevent him from filming Night Watch with Elizabeth Taylor and travelling to New York this past summer for its premiere.

In a full-page interview with Christian Science Monitor film critic Louise Sweeney, published only last month, Harvey even then talked of three films he was working on as the end approached. No mention at all of his illness, although the cancer had begun 18 months previous.

He shed some light too on his childhood. Too young to remember it all, on the full implications of the family's departure from his Baltic homeland, he said he thought his father left before he was born and the first real hint when he went to South Africa with his mother at the age of six.

"We were like many people from Eastern Europe in the 30s, facing the rise of Hitler and the various pogroms going on. I think there was an enormous exodus, and they went too, you know, whichever country was available to them."

Subsequently, at the tender age of 14, and after excelling in some early stage work, he ran away from home and joined the army, serving throughout the North African campaign, fighting as well as helping entertain the troops and then, after the war, going into films.

An interesting man, in the prime of life, from a European background of which little is known these days, Harvey made his mark on our time.

An Award

Chief Douglas Crosbie's decision to recommend Constable Bob McAlpine for a special award for his rescue of a young woman and her two children in last week's fire will be applauded.

This might also be a good time to institute some kind of municipal award for bravery by any citizen or public servant. It is not often that circumstances allow for such acts of heroism, but when they do the question of recognition arises.

Con McAlpine's rescue of the family is all the more remarkable considering the narrow margin of space between the back of the building and the street.

There are lessons to be learned from such a blaze and it may be that a re-evaluation of fire exits in such dwellings will be required.

PM's 1969 Edict Has Failed to Prevent News Leaks

By JOHN D. HARERON
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service 4

Remember Prime Minister Trudeau's firm edict against leaks from government departments or by federal officials and cabinet ministers?

Since it was publicized in 1969, the Trudeau government has experienced as many if not more leaks and revelation of government documents and working papers than took place under the very "leaky" Pearson government.

Undoubtedly the prime minister had this experience in mind, as well as his finely-tuned plans for streamlining cabinet procedures then under way, when he issued his strong directive.

The Pearson modus operandi led to leaks, directly or indirectly. Cabinet committees were pruned and the Pearson style in cabinet meetings was casual. Most of the major eastern Canadian newspapers, English and French, had "sources" in his ministerial offices who frequently phoned in stories to political reporters on the papers.

During this columnist's years on the Ottawa Toronto Telegram, two major sources in ministerial offices gave that newspaper first class scoops, bearing in mind it was not recognized as a Liberal supporter and the late Mr. Pearson was known to dislike its editorial views intensely.

Well that was and undoubtedly will be a classic method of revealing government secrets. But beyond a doubt, not so crude, much more cautious and which the parsnip-spoons Ottawa bureaucracy may not put down.

These are the leaks; the blatant delivery of government documents not only to the press but to articulate politicians by public servants, not for personal gain but because serious differences of opinion with senior government officials who either refuse to listen to opinion from the junior members or ignore it.

The most flagrant example of this was the delivery by persons unknown of confidential cables from Canada's right-wing ambassador in Chile to the front doorstep of the Ottawa home of NDP member John Harney.

Harney claims he doesn't know who did it, merely that the documents were left on his doorstep. Interestingly, they were not sent to one of the Ottawa papers nor to the big city papers of Toronto or Montreal, but left with an MP known for his urbane yet biting criticism of various aspects of Canada's foreign policies in the developing world.

Another less-publicized but presumably record-breaking event was the long letter published recently in Le Devoir by the French-Canadian third secretary of our embassy in Cairo criticizing Canada's aid and its ca-ca official policy, for its friendship to Israel at the expense of the Arab countries.

The press report tells us the official letter was sent home immediately for "further training." What in God's name does that mean? That development is more ominous, with all the overtones of Soviet and "correctional" method, than all the breast-beating about the leaking of the Ross cables to external affairs in Ottawa.

"Further training" for what? To change an obviously competent young diplomat into some kind of bureaucratic parrot-like? This kind of reaction will only lead to more leaks, more revisionism of the kind which had plagued the Royal Commission studying drugs, the department of energy and the security service.

The Ottawa public service can no longer be dominated by the senior and too often complacent mandarins. A new and creative form of protocol appears to be emerging against them.

Natural Gas From Siberia Deal May Not Come Off

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — A daring proposal to use Siberian natural gas to help fuel the United States' economy—one of the most dramatic developments to emerge from President Nixon's détente with Moscow—may be a casualty of the recent Middle East war and the Arab oil boycott of the U.S.

Although a preliminary agreement of intent was signed last June in Moscow, the proposal faced heavy weather for a variety of reasons even before the current U.S. fuel crisis.

Now its chances seem dimmer than ever.

Industry sources say technical discussions are continuing between the Soviet government and American gas companies interested in transporting liquified Siberian gas by tanker to the east or west coasts of the United States.

But hard progress appears unlikely without a decided reversal of last summer's spirit of détente which suffered a setback with the emergence of Soviet and American differences over the Arab-Israeli war.

Progress would also seem to depend on whether Nixon would reverse his goal to make the U.S. self-sufficient in energy by the end of the decade.

By coincidence, 1980 is also the date when Soviet natural gas would begin reaching the U.S. under the most optimistic projections.

It's not difficult to imagine what congressional leaders—already heading to spend unified treatment for the Soviet Union without increased freedom for Soviet citizens—will make of the coincidence when they are asked to approve massive credits to help pay for Siberian development.

Under the first vague descriptions of the proposal, the U.S. would supply $3 billion or more in credits and American firms would provide much of the technology and equipment to exploit gas fields in the far north of Western Siberia. The Soviet, in return, would sign long-term guarantees to deliver gas at competitive prices.

When it first came to light, the proposal was hailed in a few quarters as vivid proof that cold-war animosities were dying.

Doubts came quickly to the surface. Critics, including specialists in the West seemed particularly suspicious, quoting Moscow's own statistics to assert that the project involved excessively high costs; unverified gas reserves and daunting technology.

One American expert called it a "desperate gamble" on the part of Communist party planners in the Soviet Union, against the advice of many Soviet technicians, to develop energy supplies for Soviet industry at no matter-what cost.

The doubts only increased when Soviet planners acknowledged that current production of oil and gas had fallen below target levels, despite the high priority assigned to production under the latest five-year plan.

Nor has the project been advanced by reports from Western Europe that Soviet deliveries of oil have recently been lower than anticipated.

Oil and gas are understood to account for approximately one-third of all Soviet exports to the West. They are regarded as crucial to Moscow's foreign currencies, earning hard currency which helps to buy the advanced technology and other goods the Soviets need for development.

With American policy aiming at self-reliance in energy supplies, however, the possibility of Soviet-American co-operation in the frozen wastes of Siberia has come to seem doubtful at best.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1953.

Robert Burkitt, Frankford, is the representative from Hastings County at the National 4-H conference being held in Chicago November 30 to December 4.

Dr. Grant Fraser, Madoc, Potentate of Ramesez Shrine, in Toronto, has been honored in receiving membership in International Past Potentates Association of North America. Dr. Fraser has received his membership card and the Cabiri medallion of the Order from Oakland, Calif.

30 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1943.

Progress toward the reorganization of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion was seen Wednesday night at the Conservative club rooms when a considerable number of veterans of the First Great War met to discuss plans for reforming the branch. Major C.M. MacDowell, district commander of Brockville, addressed the meeting.

40 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1933.

From our file copy at this time in 1863: Instructions have been received by the local customs officials to the effect that they are to transfer the customs department for the Port of Belleville from present location to the offices now ready in the new government building. The post office which is now located on the north side of Bridge St., between Front and Pinnacle Sts., will not be transferred until next week.

The Hon. Nelson Parliament of Toronto and Prince Edward County spent the weekend here with friends.

50 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1923.

A further item from our files of 1873: During a discussion in the county council, Mr. Bill Flint, the warden, gave a laughable account of his experience as a school trustee. A number of years ago he was elected to that honorable position and was appointed secretary-treasurer, but he furnished the school house with a stove and pipes and engaged a school teacher. This individual taught for one week and then disappeared taking with him the stove and pipes. This disgusted Mr. Flint so much that he never sat on a school board afterwards. (Note— Mr. Flint was a prominent citizen of Belleville for many years and later became a member of the Senate).

Nuclear Power's Potential

Denison Uranium Sale to Japan Just A Start

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Look for the silver lining in the energy crisis, and you'll see the impeccable Stephen B. Roman.

Roman's name is almost synonymous with uranium. He is the developer, chairman and largest single shareholder of Denison Mines Ltd., owner of the world's largest body of uranium ore.

Uranium concentrate—U308—is the fuel that nuclear reactors run on. And nuclear energy is at last being recognized as the most promising alternative at a time of shortages of hydro-electricity and fossil fuels.

Just the other day, Roman announced that his company had contracted to sell 46 million pounds of uranium oxide to Japanese electric utilities for 10 years beginning in 1984. The price: A staggering $200 million, or an average of $20 a pound.

"This sale marks for Denison, and for Canada as a whole, the coming of the age of uranium," Roman said. "For Canada, this period of transition, away from conventional fuels towards nuclear power, is one of unprecedented opportunity."

And for Steve Roman, this latest contract—in effect, the extension of an existing contract to supply Japanese utilities, but with substantial price escalations—is the culmination of 20 years of work and dedication.

It was in 1953 that he acquired his interest in Denison, whose mining properties were then so lightly regarded that its shares traded for as little as seven cents that year on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The chairman of Denison—so impeccably tailored, we suave that you can't help feeling uneasy—is in his element. He gone far since he arrived in Canada in 1937 as a 16-year-old farm boy from Britain.

Since he put them into production in 1956, his companies' mining properties at Elliot Lake in northern Ontario have produced 170 million pounds of uranium oxide.

Denison has always been reluctant to reveal its cost or its selling price per pound of uranium oxide. However, when the company contracted in the 1960s to supply 100 million pounds over five years to the Canadian government's stockpile of uranium oxide, the price of $8 per pound was denounced as scandalously high by opposition poll local parties.

"Canada would have no trouble in disposing of that uranium (oxide) at double that price," Roman says today.

Nor does Roman anticipate any trouble in disposing of the estimated 600 million pounds of uranium oxide still to be extracted from the mines at Elliot Lake. He says that Canada has four times as much uranium as it requires until the end of this century, and that the Elliot Lake mines will remain in production for another 30 years.

The current crisis in international oil markets was undoubtedly a factor in Japan's new long-term commitment to nuclear energy. It will certainly have a bearing on the planning of other industrialized countries who must meet their needs with fuels other than oil.

For Steve Roman, for Elliot Lake, and for Canada's other uranium producers, the silver lining is a golden opportunity.

Alberta MLA And Oil Issue

Editor
The Intelligence
Sir:

I have read with real concern the features and editorials of many newspapers across Canada as they consider the current "Energy Crisis" -- the "Ottawa-Edmonton" confrontation.

As a Canadian, as an Albertan, and as the elected representative of the provincial aspirations of Albertans who live in Edmonton-Highlands constituency, I would like to set out my own position.

Historically, the West (e.g. Alberta) has been a captive market for central Canada. Federal policy has been designed to provide our primary products at less than world prices to the manufacturing industry of Ontario and Quebec. On the other hand, tariff policies have been designed to isolate us as a captive market for the manufactured goods of central Canada, at prices higher than we would have paid on the world market.

The facts of transportation in Canada provide many current examples.

The rationale for this state of affairs has been, at least since 1878, that this was a price we Westerners should be willing (or even happy) to pay for the survival of Canada.

In 1961 when oil was more easily accessible, and the price of Venezuelan or Middle East crude was much less than the price of Alberta crude, National Oil Policy was adopted. The effect of the policy was to protect Canadian jobs in Quebec and the Maritimes.

The Globe and Mail argued in support of this policy was that "Eastern Canada could not be expected to begin to gather more for oil just because of the accidents of western Canadians."

[The people of Ontario have paid a premium since March 1961-1972. But this isn't altogether accurate charity. The premium has almost always been less than the differential between the Ontario and the Alberta gasoline tax. In other words, it lay with the province of Ontario to premium. Secondly, while Ontario had a premium of 1c-3c gallon for gasoline, it also enjoyed the use of Alberta oil at the rate of $1.00 per barrel under fair market value. Thirdly, with the benefit of hindsight, we see that the premium has paid for obsolete refining capacity.

(It appears that if there is a price to be paid for nationhood the West should pay, but not the East.)

It was only after Alberta was excluded from the eastern market that considerable pressure was made to alternative customers (e.g. the Chicago market). The consumers in eastern Canada had the right of first refusal, and they built it.

Yet I think the facts demonstrate that if Alberta oil were sold to our customers, the people of Alberta would have more intelligent concern for Canada than has the federal government.

The Government of Alberta has never threatened to "turn off the oil". Its policy has been in meetings with representatives on Ontario and Quebec, a number of options have been explored for increasing supply in response to current problems of shortfall. These meetings are only the most recent examples of a consistent Alberta concern.

Church Full for Carol Festival

PICTON — The spirit of Christmas was evident last night as the people of Picton and the surrounding area filled Picton United Church to overflowing.

The occasion was a community carol festival, sponsored by the Rhenish choir of Picton, that involved a total of five choirs of different faiths, as well as the Consort Brass band from Belleville.

The choirs that took part in the festival were the Bethany Christian Reformed Church choir, led by C. J. Lint; The Friendship United Church choir, led by Jack Nagle; the Apostolic Missionary Institute Choir, led by Mrs. Robert Fuller; St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church junior choir, led by Sister Aileen; and the Picton United Church choir, under the direction of D. Romkey.

Each choir performed two Christmas-orientated hymns, and the Consort Brass Band, which was formed two years ago under the leadership of Jack Greene, played in between the choirs, and occasionally accompanied the congregation in the singing of familiar Christmas carols.

Invocation before the festival started was said by Rev. Frank Beatrice of the United Pentacostal Church, while the benediction was spoken by Father Hamilton of St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church.

In his remarks at the end of the carol-singing, Rev. R. Sherwin of Picton United Church said that in the five years he has been with the Church in Picton he has never seen it as full as it was last night.

In addition to their individual performances, all five choirs combined at the end in a selection entitled Our Canada From Sea to Sea, written by Gesu Brancombe, a resident of Prince Edward County.

Picton Kiwanis President Paul Brown was assisted in planning and organizing the carol festival by Dr. LeRoy Hall, Dr. George McDermott, Cleland Blakely, Chris Lockyer, Vic Lord, George Morden and Jesse Mason. A silver collection was taken midway in the evening, to be used to brighten Christmas for the less fortunate in the area.

The evening of Christmas music was recorded by CJBQ radio, in Belleville, and will be used in the form of a half-hour show, to be broadcast on Sunday, December 22.

Cambridge Seeks Provincial Help

HAMILTON (CP) — The City of Cambridge gained a sympathetic reception from Premier William Davis Saturday, when its mayor confronted him with demanded immediate provincial assistance to help cover the cost of amalgamation.

Claudette Miller told about 700 delegates to a regional policy conference at McMaster University that the city, formed in 1973 by the amalgamation of Galt, Preston, Hespeler and part of two townships, is suffering from "many costs directly attributable to the enactment of Bill 167."

She produced statistics to show nearly $1 million in additional expenses incurred by the new city as a direct result of the regional government/amalgamation.

Mrs. Miller told the conference, sponsored by the Ontario Progressive Conservative party, that during discussions with the province at the time of amalgamation, "there was no indication that funds would be available to Cambridge for one-time costs incurred due to the unique circumstances brought about through amalgamation."

The hopes of many soon turned to disillusionment," she said, as unforeseen costs started multiplying and assessment policies of the province created huge discrepancies between tax levies in various sections of the city.

Mrs. Miller said the first two years are the city's immediate concern.

"This is the period in which the amalgamation is hitting the pocketbooks of the Cambridge taxpayers because of the factor conditions which have had to be made due to the amalgamation."

Mr. Davis and Thomas Wells, minister of education, were also confronted by a 17-year-old Pelham, Ont., secondary school student who delivered a sealed letter to the premier and appealed to the minister, to save the school, scheduled to close in April.

Christina Wilson called on the government to give the school at least one more year of life and have an independent evaluation conducted.

The Niagara South board of education decided to close the school, just north of Welland, four years ago for basically economic reasons and move the 300 students to a newer school in a neighboring village.

Since then, students and parents have won one reprieve but lost an attempted appeal to the courts. They want the government to overrule the school board.

Vezina Did Not Want To Create Controversy

QUEBEC (CP) — Maj. Jean-Paul Vezina, who returned to Canada from Cairo in disgust last week, says he did what he had to do to show the inadequacy of medical standards for Canadians serving on the United Nations Emergency Force in Egypt.

However, he said in an interview Sunday he never intended his case to become a cause-celebre in the newspapers and was unaware of public controversy he had stirred up until he returned to Ottawa Friday to explain his complaints to Gen. J. A. Dextrase, chief of defence staff.

"I guess I lost my cool and said things," he said of an interview he gave in Cairo complaining about living "like a pig" and about delays in medical treatment for two Canadian soldiers seriously injured in a car accident.

Thank God Gen. Dextrase is a fair man.

Maj. Vezina said he was told, following the meeting with Gen. Dextrase, that no disciplinary action is to be taken against him and that he is to return to his duties as doctor at Canadian Forces Base Valcartier here.

Heath Shuffles Cabinet

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath reshuffled his cabinet Sunday, bringing William Whitelaw back from Northern Ireland for a key job in running the troubled British economy.

Northern Ireland politicians protested the Whitelaw transfer, expressing fears that violence in strife-torn Ulster would increase and much of the political progress he worked to achieve would disappear.

Israelis Pay Homage To Founder of Country

JERUSALEM (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Israelis filed past the flag-draped coffin of David Ben-Gurion Sunday in tribute to the founder of modern Israel.

Today the body is to be taken to the desert kibbutz where he lived for the last 20 years. He died Saturday at 87.

Ben-Gurion was to be buried privately and without eulogy beside his wife, Paula, at Sde Boqer, a farm settlement in the Negev Desert. He chose it for his home in 1953, hoping this would lead other Israelis to settle in the southern wilderness.

Premier Golda Meir and her cabinet were the first mourners to pay their respects Sunday morning at the closed wooden coffin in the plaza of the Knesset, Israel's parliament. Ben-Gurion's son, Amos, grandchildren and great-grandchildren followed.

The sun came out as the public was admitted to the plaza. The line stretched down the half-mile road to the parliament building on a rocky Jerusalem hill all day.

Hundreds of armed troops ringed the building, keeping a wary eye for any Arab attempt to cause trouble, but there was no incident. A guard of honor of Knesset police, in blue uniforms with gold-corded caps, stood at attention beside the coffin as the cortege filed past.

Two torches burned beside the bier, and a military chaplain softly intoned the prayer for the dead.

Injured Canadians Are Flown to Lahr

CAIRO (CP) — Two Canadian servicemen who were seriously injured in a car crash recently, have been flown to Lahr, West Germany, for further treatment and recuperation before being returned to Canada.

Doctors here say Cpl. Lee Berry of Calgary and Cpl. Ed Welz of Charlottetown are in satisfactory condition and have been well looked after by Egyptian medical authorities at a Cairo hospital.

But both men have extensive leg injuries and may be in casts for up to six months. It was still uncertain how long they would remain at the hospital in Lahr, which is maintained as part of the Canadian NATO contingent there.

Meanwhile, Canadian officers here have begun preparations for moving part of their contingent—which will reach at total size of about 1,200 men within a few days—to Israel to begin operations from there.

Some of the officers believe the force eventually may be almost equally divided between Israel and Egypt but negotiations concerning the actual full deployment have been inconclusive so far.

Pipeline Seen Urgent

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The federal government had better agree to New Democratic Party proposals to get an early start on a Montreal pipeline from the West, continue the price freeze on petroleum east of the Ottawa Valley and create a national petroleum board, Ed Broadbent, chairman of the NDP's national caucus, said Sunday.

"If the Liberals don't do that, then Canadians can start putting on snowshoes in readiness for a winter election," Mr. Broadbent, member of Parliament for Oshawa-Whitby, told a party meeting.

Consumer Protection Act Provides "Cooling-Off" Period

Question: I just bought a vacuum cleaner from a door-to-door salesman who came to my home unexpectedly to demonstrate his product. I signed a contract that provided for payment by monthly installments, subject to the approval of his boss. The next day I decided to check the prices local stores were asking for similar vacuum cleaners and was disappointed to learn that they were available at some stores for less money. Is there anything I can do to cancel the sale?

Answer: Under the Consumer Protection Act, you can rescind a signed sales contract if you write to the company concerned by registered mail or by personal delivery within two days of receiving your copy of the contract. This "cooling off" period applies only to door-to-door purchases, where the contract is signed in the home, and only when the purchase price is more than $50. Cancellation must be in writing. Verbal or telephone notification is not acceptable.

Door-to-Door Sellers Must be Registered

The Consumer Protection Act requires that all itinerant sellers be registered and bonded for $5,000. Anyone who tries to sell you goods or services in your home is an itinerant seller or an employee of an itinerant seller, whether his product is aluminium siding, home improvement, paving, appliances, encyclopedias, etc.

Before signing any contract, take the precaution of asking to see the salesman's identification and that of his company. Check that all company literature includes a street address, not merely P.O. Box. If you have any doubts at all about either the salesman's credentials or the company, don't sign a sales contract or put down a deposit until you have checked.

Don't allow yourself to be pressured into purchasing by a salesman who tells you today is your last chance to buy. Don't sign any contracts late at night or when you're tired. Don't sign a contract in order to be rid of high-pressure salesmen. Be wary of salesmen who ask for large deposits in advance of delivery.

Under the Consumer Protection Act, the seller or lender, in the case of a loan, is obligated to present you with a written statement, disclosing fully the cost or instalment rate. It tells you the true annual rate of interest as well as the cost of the credit in dollars and cents. Review the contract carefully. Be sure before you sign.

The Consumer Protection Act also requires that other specific information be written in the sales contract: Look for the name and address of the seller and your own name and address; the itemized price and an accurate description of the goods and services; details of the terms and conditions of payment; details of any warranty or guarantee and details of trade-in allowance, if applicable.

The statement must also show the additional charges that will be made if you default on payment.

Oldest Immigrant Arrives

VANCOUVER (CP) — Florence Ellis, a sprightly Londoner of 94, flew into Vancouver International Airport Friday night full of enthusiasm about the prospect of starting a new life in Canada.

On hand to greet her were her grandson, Don Nash of Vancouver, and members of the Nash family with whom she'll make her home. But while a twinkle in her eye and 11 pronounced cockney accent left Ellis indicated she might have a few ideas of her own.

"I'm going to start a new life and marry a rich old man," she said.

Immigration officials said they believe Mrs. Ellis is the oldest person ever accepted for immigration into Canada.

Mrs. Ellis said the decision to emigrate to Canada was "one of those spur of the moment decisions" spontaneous like pulse."

My grandson's wife, Margaret, came on a surprise visit to London. She asked me if I wanted to come back to Vancouver with her. I thought for two minutes and accepted her.

Mrs. Ellis said she enjoyed the flight to Vancouver—"plenty of whisky and plenty of sleep and a little flirting."

Quinte Cuisine

Mary Park won first prize in the Class A jams featuring fall fruits in the Quinte Blossom Cooking Contest. Her recipe is an unusual one, but she says it is easy and tasty. Mrs. Park found the recipe when she was given a pumpkin by a neighbor, and wanted to use it for something other than pie, which her children don't like. They love this jam, which turns out rather like marmalade.

Pumpkin Jam

2 quarts pumpkin
7 cups sugar
1 lemon
1 orange

Pare the pumpkin, remove seeds and grind through food chopper.

Add sugar, mix together and let stand overnight. Remove seeds from orange and lemon and grind pulp and rind.

Ann Landers

'I Ate The Whole Thing'

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an average housewife, 30 years old with two darling little girls and a nice hard-working husband. We are expecting another child in eight weeks.

This morning my father came to me with a beautiful present for us, a lovely 3½-pound roast. I decided to prepare it in advance and serve it for dinner tonight. I was really excited because we haven't had any beef for quite a while.

At 4 p.m. the roast was finished so I took it out of the oven and put it on the sideboard. It looked so tempting I decided to take a little taste to see if the seasoning was right. Well, Ann, I can't explain what happened to me but it's like I went berserk. I couldn't stop eating. I ate the whole roast. Afterwards I felt so guilty I nearly cried, but like a rat when I was preparing the substitute dinner, a tuna casserole with noodles, I was so ashamed of myself I just couldn't tell my husband what happened.

Will you please tell me why I did such a rotten thing? It might help if I understood.—A Texas Glutton

Dear Tex: Sometimes pregnant women develop a sudden passion for a food they haven't had in a long time. Then they become compulsive eaters and scouring large quantities of it. They just can't stop eating. This is probably what happened to you. Don't prepare any more roasts "in advance" until your baby is born.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a tardy but relevant response to that Canadian reader who was fed up with Americans who don't know one thing about Canada. (He said "the further south I went the more ignorant U.S. citizens are."). Please tell your neighbor to the north to think nothing of it. I live in the Pacific Northwest and you wouldn't believe the things New Yorkers, Texans and Iowans have said to me. Here are some examples:

"You have electricity and plumbing! Isn't that wonderful! How long have you had it?"

"We brought our fur coats and parkas (It was June) because we didn't think you had any summer this far north! The weather is beautiful! How come?"

"Do the Indians give you much trouble?"

So please be aware, Miss Landers, that ignorance is not a matter of geography. There are plenty of Americans who don't know anything about their own country, much less Canada. What's more, all the ignoramuses aren't in the South.—Pacific Northwest Resident

Dear P.N.: Well said. I agree.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a security guard in the Kansas City airport and I have a message for everyone who travels by plane. Please don't bring gift-wrapped packages aboard, or ones that are taped shut or tied with knotted strings or ribbon. We have to tear off the gift-wrappings and cut the ribbons and strings.

A lot of folks get mad at us. They act as if we do it to be cranky, but we must inspect every package because those are the rules. Furthermore, we do it for their protection. We want to provide them with as much safety as possible. After all, they are going to board the plane, we aren't going any place.—Trying To Perform A Service.

Dear Trying: As one who travels extensively I thank you for your dedication and for your letter. I appreciate both.

Dear Ann Landers: Our youngest child, a boy, was premature. He had to stay in the hospital incubator for three weeks.

That child did not speak one word until he was three years of age. I was deeply concerned that he might be retarded, although he understood everything. We had him tested and the results showed he was unusually bright.

Today the boy is 14 years old and he doesn't shut his mouth from the minute he gets up in the morning until he goes to sleep at night. It's almost as if he is making up for the time he lost. I am not writing for advice, Ann. I'm just writing to tell those mothers out there that if their kids are slow to talk, don't worry. Enjoy the silence.—Momma

Dear Momma: Thanks for those words of advice. Some mothers do worry about the problem and your letter will help quiet their fears.

She Became Producer by Accident

NEW YORK (AP) — Anne Douglas became a movie producer by accident but thinks it is an excellent job for a woman.

She had been involved in television production and in public relations for films in France and is familiar with the great French and English women directors—she was through her husband, actor Kirk Douglas, that she became involved in her first production, Scalawag.

"Kirk was doing another picture at the time he was making arrangements for his own production company," she said. "I found myself doing the work he would normally have done and reporting to him in the evening. One day he said: 'You're doing the work. How would you like to be the producer?'"

Mrs. Douglas said yes but admits she would not have applied for the job. It just seemed a natural thing to do and the movie became a family affair. Her husband was director and star. One son was still photographer and the other worked in the production office.

Even the family dog, Shaft, was pressed into service when an animal actor proved more ferocious than necessary for his role.

"Shaft is not very ferocious but he is well-trained," Mrs. Douglas said. "He was a perfect actor but his voice wasn't terrible enough for his part. We had to dub in a more ferocious tone."

She said there was little glamor in the job, especially on location in Yugoslavia.

Every morning she got up at 6:30, woke her husband and one son and cooked breakfast on a two-burner hotplate. When the first two family members were on their way she had a cup of coffee, got the younger son up and off to the set and washed dishes in the bathroom sink. Then she did the laundry, because it took too long when sent to the nearest city. Then the telephone would start ringing for producer-type decisions. She said she was called the "bathrobe producer" because it was usually 11 a.m. before she was ready to dress and get to the set.

"There weren't enough horses and more had to be obtained. Then we needed vultures. Wild ones wouldn't do what we wanted. We finally found trained ones in Germany and they were shipped but when they arrived their trainer was lost. No one could find him.

"Who knows about feeding vultures? We had to get the specialist from the zoo in Belgrade."

Each day's film was sent to Italy for processing. Communication between the two countries was irregular so Mrs. Douglas set up a film runner system to take the ferry each day and let them know how the film looked.

She is proud of her achievement in completing the film under her projected budget.

Mrs. Douglas is planning another production venture. The Douglas family will produce Posse in New Mexico and Arizona next year with Kirk as the star.

"That'll be child's play after shooting abroad," she said.

She believes more wives should be involved in their husband's work.

"We have always been able to discuss everything. We don't cut off discussions of work at the end of the day. When that happens, it is not very good for a marriage."

Mrs. Douglas said the star is often held responsible for the fate of a play or a film.

"If you fail, the blame is laid to the star. If you succeed, the star shares success with the director and the producer. On the whole, I think I'd rather be the producer."

Successful Living

Mental Illness Can Be Cured

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I listened to a television broadcast about handicaps and it was so interesting because it went through mental illness.

But would you believe it, I still suffer inside. If I get about anything people say, upset about anything people say, "Oh, don't mind her, she's off her rocker. She had mental illness".

But—a girl on our street can jump into bed with anyone she feels like and all people say is: "That poor woman! She went through hell." Well, if she never went through hell before she might afterward, if there is a hell or heaven.

So Doris, I guess the handicapped person or the one who has had a mental illness just doesn't have the same chance. In this sexy old world of ours, be sexy and wild and you are mentally well. (But very physically disturbed. I'd say!).

Abnormal Girl.

Dear Abnormal: There is a stigma still attached to anyone who has ever been in a mental hospital, and that's for sure! But we are wearing it down a little. People are coming to realize that mental illness is a disease, and can be cured, just as much as any physical illness can.

It will probably take more than a mental institution to restore your over-taxed neighbor to anything like a normal moral balance. I am sorry for her and any person like her.

Dear Doris: I am 25 years old, married with three children. I am 30 pounds under weight.

Two different doctors tell me it is better to be underweight than overweight, but I am self-conscious about it. I have tried a number of products designed to gain weight but to no avail.

Any Help?

Dear Any: I'm sending you my 25-cent "Chart For Curves". Products which claim to help you gain weight are not my dish of tea. They will not help you to develop the habits which make for better weight and better health all round.

It is better to be underweight than over, but 30 pounds is too much. The Chart will give you some ideas for gradually increasing to weight, without getting too fat. Nutrition ought to be protected — and that means getting uncooked foods, minerals, vitamins, and learning to enjoy foods that are good for you, so that you establish permanent patterns.

(Doris keeps in contact with knowledgeable consultants in many fields — medicine, law, religion, home economics, to name a few. Write to her, care of this newspaper, for the kind of help you need, enclosing an addressed envelope for private reply.)

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. John Ruston of Farley Ave., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on November 20 at a dinner held in their honor.

Their only child, Mrs. Jeff Rowland of Tucson, Arizona, flew home for the occasion as did their grand-daughter Patricia, her husband Dennis and Mr. and Mrs. Ruston's great-grandchild from North Bay.

The Rustons moved to the Quinte area from Toronto in 1961 when Mr. Ruston retired from the contracting business.

Congratulatory messages were received from Governor General Roland Michener, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, Jack Ellis MP and Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

The celebrating couple received a chiide clock from their daughter and family, and flowers and cards from relatives and friends.

Most U.S. Dealers Curb Gas Sales

NEW YORK (CP) — "Sorry, No Gas," read the sign at Sylvester Williams's service station in Los Angeles.

"I'm going along with the program," said Williams, who kept his station open on Easter Sunday to do repair work and rent trailers. "They still come in and say, 'I need some,' but I won't pump any gas."

Williams was among the majority of the estimated 220,000 gasoline dealers in the United States who closed their pumps or cobire stations Sunday, a week after President Nixon called for a voluntary step to help ease the fuel shortage.

In response, thousands of American motorists apparently gave up plans for Sunday drives, leaving those who didn't to seek out fuel at the relatively few service stations still selling it. Only a few went across the border to Canada.

In Europe, five countries now have banned Sunday driving while many service stations in Britain were closed.

"I've never seen it so light," At Sanders, a Wisconsin State Patrol dispatcher, said of the traffic situation. He said a counting device on Interstate 90 near Madison counted about 200 cars an hour during the afternoon—compared with the 1,000 to 1,200 averaged on previous Sundays.

Sanders's report was echoed by police and American Automobile Association officials in states across the U.S. In Georgia, the manager of a gas station-restaurant said "Interstate 75—the main route to Florida—looked like a desert road."

The search for gas took most motorists long distances. At the H. G. Willis station in Memphis, Tenn.,—where a sign proclaimed "Be Thrifty, Drive 30 So Nixon Can Fly"—one driver reported he had travelled 120 miles before finding an open station.

As in other cities, police in St. Paul, Minn., reported numerous telephone calls from panicky motorists with near-empty gas tanks.

"I wish I knew what to tell them," said a dispatcher. "I need gas in my own car."

In the minority were those Americans determined to have their Sunday drive, no matter what.

"Cruising around is our only pleasure," said machinist Joseph Strickland as his car was gassed up in Concord, N.H., a few of three stations open in the city.

"We don't go nightclubbing or drinking or things of that nature. My wife and I like to get out and ride around."

Ambulance Services Are Called Disgrace

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of Canadians die unnecessarily each year because ambulance and emergency services in the country are a "national disgrace," says Conservative MP Heward Grafftey.

The member of Parliament for the Quebec riding of Brome-Missisquoi told the health communications conference here Friday that inadequate vehicles, poorly-trained personnel and insufficient emergency facilities in hospitals result in poor emergency services, especially in rural areas.

He called for a "comprehensive, integrated, essential ambulance service available to all Canadian citizens under an insured program."

The integrated system should be part of the delivery of health care services and should provide 24-hour service with national standards for equipment, personnel, vehicles, communications and licensing, he said.

Public telephones for emergency services should be placed "no more than five miles apart, particularly on limited access throughways," he said.

A "national emergency ambulance telephone number, with no coin required for use," and specific radio frequencies reserved for the service "with at least one frequency common to the provinces," were other recommendations.

Solar House

This house on the Oregon coast is heated primarily by the sun. Water piped through 81 four-foot-long panel on roof is heated by sun's rays, collected in basement storage tank and warms air which is piped to the house's rooms. The house requires about $48 worth of electricity for auxiliary heating in the winter months. (AP Photo)

B.C. to Cancel All Tax Deals

MACKENZIE, B.C. (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett says all current tax concessions for corporations and industry in British Columbia will be cancelled by the end of this year.

The premier made the announcement at a public meeting Sunday in this community about 120 miles north of Prince George, telling a crowd of 500 that the first steps in redistribution of the tax load will be presented in next year's budget.

He said the main goal of this plan is to take tax load off private homeowners and have private and Crown corporations pay their fair share.

Seventy Municipal Votes Set for Today

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seventy Ontario municipalities move into line with the province's new voting plans today, electing municipal councils for one-year terms. Beginning next December, all municipalities will elect councils for two-year terms.

The weather office says milder weather will return to southern and central parts of the province today with rain in central Ontario and snow in areas south of Lake Superior. Voters are scheduled to cast their ballots from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.

All Ontario's more than 600 municipalities are to hold elections on the same date every two years—a system that will also encompass regional governments by the end of 1976. The changes were brought about through the Ontario Electoral Act of 1972.

At stake today are councils for London and North Bay,the only cities involved. Votes were also scheduled in 23 towns, 15 villages and 32 townships, but there were acclamations in many of them.

At least 26 municipalities—eight towns, 13 townships and six villages—will not have to vote for a head of council because of acclamations. Nineteen of them have returned incumbents.

The posts of mayor at North Bay and London have slinged up as the major contests in the also elections.

No Rush for Gas At Border Cities

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gasoline station operators in Canadian border towns said business during the weekend was near normal despite the request by President Nixon to close United States stations Saturdays and Sundays, which they feared to send an influx of Americans across the border in search of fuel.

While traffic over the border was reported normal, a survey by The Canadian Press of border-point stations showed that with few exceptions, there was little more than a trickle of U.S. customers at Canadian pumps.

In the Maritimes, gas station operators near border points reported an increase in customers but Canadians headed for U.S. points provided most of the extra business.

Gasoline prices in most of Maine now are between 44 and 46 cents a gallon for regular and between 45 and 48 cents a gallon for premium.

Prices in the St. Stephen, N.B., area near Calais, Me., retails between 68 and 70 cents for regular and between 73 and 75 for premium.

One operator in St. Stephen said he had noticed an increase in U.S. cars for about three weeks while four stations surveyed in Woodstock, N.B., said there has been no increase.

In Ontario, there was a noticeable increase in the number of border calls at Cornwall where drivers willingly said their sole intent in crossing was to buy gas.

Kevin Edwardson, working a station about a quarter mile from the Seaway Valley Bridge here, said he had had more than the normal quota of U.S. customers.

However, customs officers at the Prescott, Ont.-Ogdensburg, N.Y., crossing said they had experienced no increase in traffic from the U.S.

"If anything, it's less," one said.

Customs officers at both Niagara Falls crossings said there was no major increase in U.S. traffic.

George Frank, whose station is about one-half mile from the border, said he believes many Americans are worried Canadian operators won't serve them.

"Friends have told me that when they go over to the American side and try and get gas, service station operators tell them to go back to Canada for fuel," he added.

A customs official at the tunnel linking Windsor with Detroit, said there had been no increase in U.S. traffic Sunday.

"We've had the odd one come across for gas but traffic, in general, is no heavier than usual for a Sunday," said a traffic supervisor.

Customs officers at North Portal, Sask., said crossings from North Dakota were about normal for a Sunday and they knew of no Americans coming across just to fill their tanks.

The consensus appears to be that it is too early to tell just how significant the weekend closures in the U.S. will be to Canadian retailers.

Apartment of MP Searched for Drugs

OTTAWA (CP) — A member of the House of Commons security staff says he plans to sue the RCMP after his apartment was raided by narcotics officers.

Paul Desbiens, 38, a 12-year veteran of the Commons security staff, said Sunday four plainclothes detectives who identified themselves as RCMP officers forced their way into his downtown apartment the evening of Nov. 24.

Mr. Desbiens, who was at work at the time, said his wife was ordered out of the bathtub.

He said the four officers ransacked the apartment and then told his wife they had made a mistake and left.

"They didn't clean up the mess or offer to pay for damages," he said.

Mr. Desbiens said his wife told him two of the officers "behaved like gentlemen" but "the other two tried to rough up my son who came when he heard his mother scream." His son is partially crippled.

"I'll use every legal recourse available to get satisfaction after this outrage," Mr. Desbiens said.

RCMP Superintendent Marcel Sauve said it would not be right for the force to comment.

Teenage Suicides Rise

EDMONTON (CP) — Suicides among Canadian teen-agers are increasing at a shocking rate, says Dick Ramsay, treatment services director at the Maple-ridge Centre for Girls in Edmonton.

Suicides among 15-to-19 year-olds in Canada have increased 250 per cent in the last five years. He told 35 counsellors from northern Alberta Friday.

There were 182 teen-age suicides and at least another 2,000 attempted suicides among young people in Alberta in 1971.

Suicides among young people usually are related to depression, he said.

Surgeon Finds Lump Was Fetus

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Frederick William Hess says he was "surprised" when he cut into a 43-year-old woman's stomach looking for what he thought was a tumor and found she was three months pregnant.

Dr. Hess, a baby specialist, and Dr. John Herbert Death, a family doctor, are being sued in the Ontario Supreme Court by Beverly Finlay of Toronto for malpractice and $20,000 in damages resulting from the operation.

Mrs. Finlay said she grew weak after a miscarriage in August, 1969, and was examined by Dr. Hess in December who found what he described as a "hard tender mass the size of an orange on the uterus wall."

Dr. Hess told the court Friday he booked Mrs. Finlay into hospital for the exploratory operation after pregnancy tests proved negative.

Mrs. Finlay said she spent most of the next spring in hospital suffering pain resulting from the operation before she gave birth by Cesarean section to a 7½-pound boy in June, 1971.

Export Pigeon Meat

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine government has decided to export pigeon meat to encourage a new industry and bring in more foreign exchange. The move also is seen as a way to check the country's exploding pigeon population.

Lawn Bowler Makes Team

By Doug Walsh
Sports Editor

While the rest of us are seeking ways to ward off the chilly blast of old man winter next month, Bruce Miller will be headed for warm temperatures in British Honduras, Hawaii and finally, Christ Church, New Zealand.

A statistician clerk with the Commission in Belleville, Miller has been named to Canada's lawn bowling team for the Commonwealth Games in New Zealand.

The committee in charge of selecting outstanding lawn bowlers for the team made no mistake when they chose Miller.

He and the late Gord Watkin teamed up to win the Canadian doubles crown at the Boulevard Club in Toronto in 1969.

The Ontario title has come his way three times. In 1955 and again in 1969, he and Watkin earned the honors. Bruce and partner Gerry Hoole took the provincial title in 1968.

A member of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, Bruce will serve as vice skip on the Canadian rink. Skip is Ian Jones of the Elmwood Club at London; second is Pat Jarvis and lead, Lloyd Robbins. Jarvis and Robbins are from British Columbia.

Canadian lawn bowling officials expect their rink will be doing very well to finish in the top five or six.

Bruce Miller says he and the other members of the rink will serve as vice skip on the Canadian rink. Skip is Ian Jones of the Elmwood Club at London; second is Pat Jarvis and lead, Lloyd Robbins. Jarvis and Robbins are from British Columbia.

Canadian lawn bowling officials expect their rink will be doing very well to finish in the top five or six.

Bruce Miller says he and the other members of the rink are looking forward to getting their sights higher than that.

"The competition will be very keen," observes Bruce. "But we'll get the chance to practise on the greens at Christ Church."

The Belleville lawn bowler expects rinks representing Peru, New Zealand, England and Scotland to provide stiff competition.

"Bowlers in those three countries are a the game all year round and they certainly won't have to get used to the fast greens as we will," advises Bruce.

Belleville will be well represented at the Games. Apollo Bardi Club wealthier Gary Walk and coach Ken Carr-Briant will also be bending their talents to Canada's cause in New Zealand.

The Canadian team will assemble in Toronto, January 11 and after stopovers in BC and Hawaii, will arrive in New Zealand, January 15 or 16.

Before getting down to the serious business of lawn bowling, Miller has another task to perform. On behalf of Mayor Robin Jeffrey, aldermen and the City of Belleville, he will present a gift to the Lord Mayor of Christ Church.

Then, it's off to the greens and a chance at a medal.

ELICO Belleville Minor Hockey Association teams will be guests of Belleville Bobcats at Bobcats' home games.

Officials of the Metro Junior B League entry plan to have members of three BMHA teams in attendance at each home game before playoff time.

Three bantam minor teams were represented at Friday's game. The players received a liberal education to say the least.

Cats showed their guests how to score goals (nine) and how to engage in extra curricular activity. Wrestling and boxing were also on the card Friday.

It is to be hoped the impressionable young players learn how to be selective in their visits to Memorial Arena for junior games.

Remember, men, it's like watching the National Leaguers on television, you shouldn't copy everything you see.

Are we putting the knock on hockey fights? Not too likely. Sometimes, they are, like a song from Merv Griffin, inevitable although not all that welcome.

Ted Soule, manager of the Belleville Eagles of the Senior A League, is more than a little upset these days. And it has nothing to do with the performance of the Eagles.

"We may have lost the Russians," is Soule's lament.

Seems someone told the Ontario Hockey Association the Belleville seniors were folding. That was a couple of weeks ago when Eagles were up against it in more ways than one.

Says Soule, "We never at any time told the OHA we were packing it in but they turn around and give our game with the touring team from Russia to London Knights of the Major Junior A League."

"We won't give up without a fight. We're still hoping to have the Russians here," ensphasizes Eagles' manager.

According to a story out of Rome, officials of the government in Italy are encountering problems in their attempts to ban Sunday driving.

How to get around the energy crisis?

The report says soccer fans are painting their cars yellow, hoping that police will mistake the autos for taxi cabs.

Ever feel frustrated?

Sure you do.

Then you can sympathize with us.

Efforts to update our sports photo section have been only partially successful.

Only six of the 16 National Hockey League teams have forwarded photos as requested.

They are Boston Bruins, Buffalo Sabres, Chicago Black Hawks, Minnesota North Stars, New York Rangers and Philadelphia Flyers.

As far as the World Hockey Association is concerned, that organization does not even have the common courtesy to reply to correspondence.

Makes one wonder.

Give us a hand, if you can, and let us know where to write for information.

Co-operation counts.

Yankees And Falcons NE Winners

The Yankees continued their winning ways in the Northern Hockey League Yesterday, doubling the score on the Bobcats 6-3. In the other contest played, the Falcons defeated the Canucks 4-1.

Rick Rosebush and Kevin Carr led the way for the Yankees bagging five goals between them. Allen fired the hat trick, while Rosebush added two, as well as three assists.

The other Yankee goals went to Tom MacDonald, Gord Sine and Bill Carrie. Ed Elley, Bob Bailey, Bob Duggan, and Phil Haywood replied for the losers.

Two players were all the Falcons needed as they rolled to their victory.

COSSA Honors for BCI

PICKERING (Special) — Belleville Collegiate Institute's girls' basketball team made a determined bid to make a sweep of the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association titles for the second year in a row here Saturday but Uxbridge and District High School had other ideas.

Carol Fisher's BCI seniors got by McGlaughlin of Oshawa and Dunbarton to take top honors in their section, but in the junior division, Sue Davie's Belleville girls bowed to Uxbridge in the final.

In her third year as senior coach at BCI, Mrs. Finner listed desire and the fact that most of her girls have played together for some time as the main ingredients of success.

"There is no doubt the girls wanted to win and they accomplished their aim with spirit and plenty of hard work," observed Mrs. Finner.

Fran White and Barb Graham supplied the scoring punch for the champions in both games Saturday.

Fran hooped 17 points and Barb had 14 in a 50-28 win over McGlaughlin in the semi-final.

In the final, each hit for 14 points as Uxbridge outscored Dunbarton 46-36.

But the scoring of White and Graham might have been in vain had it not been for a strong defence headed up by Maida Leblanc.

McNevin's Rink Scores 8-ender

A rare eight-ender featured play in the first annual ladies' inter-club bonspiel at Quinte Curling Club Saturday.

Hazel McNevin's rink scored the curling rarity. Other members of the rink are Reta McCoy, vice; Daina Honeyman, second and Marie Boutet, lead.

Top rink in the day long event for the cup donated by Bev Quincey of Quinte Roofing, was Gloria Goodwin's entry. Curling with Gloria were vice, Jane Dickenson, second, Marja Anderson and lead, Loyola Barabeck.

Minor Midgets Move to First

In the Ontario Minor Hockey Association during the weekend, the Belleville Yardmen Minor Midgets moved into first place in their division as they counted a pair of wins.

On Saturday, the Yardmen blanked Kingston 5-0 as Rob McBrien tallied twice. Sandy Waterson, Rob Chase and Tony Bennett counted the other Belleville scores.

Sunday, it was Bob Thompson's turn to shine as the Belleville team downed Peterborough 5-1. Kelvin Pope, David Giddings and Raymond Skelly got the other Yardmen markers.

Tom Geroiamy scored the only Kingston goal.

In a tournament in Peterborough on Saturday, McInroe Maines Minor Bantams got all the way to the "B" Champion ship before being defeated by Kitcheener.

The locals' second game of the tourney was more successful as they defeated the Barrie entry 4-2.

In the Championship game however, Belleville went home empty handed as a result of their 9-2 loss to Kitchener. Mike Bryan and Nelson Frederick scored the only goals for McInroy Maines.

On Sunday the Minor Bantams salvaged a 5-5 tie with the Stirling Bantams in an exhibition game.

Andy Plane fired two goals for the McInroy Maines team with Steve Pearce, Pat Williams and Gary McInroy scoring one each.

In a Minor Peewee contest Sunday, Belleville Dixie Ice dropped a 14-3 decision to Peterborough.

Coach Hunter Charged With Assault

Belleville city police have laid a charge of assault causing bodily harm against Belleville Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter.

The charge arose out of an incident during Friday night's Metro Junior B Hockey League game at Memorial Arena. Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning.

Eagles Shaded In Overtime

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

Belleville Eagles are coming close these days. But close doesn't count. And back to back loses in overtime are not calculated to relieve the frustration suffered by players and club officials alike.

Again last night, Eagles found themselves on the short end of a 5-4 score in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League action.

This time, Brantford Foresters were the culprits, coming from behind a two-goal deficit in the third period to force the extra time and pulling it out on Dave Johnson's goal.

Friday night in Orillia, Eagles had fought back to overcome a 4-0 lead only to see Terriers pot the deciding goal in overtime. It's getting to be a habit. And it's one the club would love to break.

Eagles did have some satisfaction for their efforts last night at Memorial Arena. What few fans there were, enthused by the active unbridled play by the Belleville players, actually broke into a "go Eagles go" chant several times. On other occasions, the spectators showed their appreciation of Eagles' ability to bottle up Foresters in their own end, with bunds of applause.

Off Eagles last two efforts, it could be the turning point to their disappointing start is just around the corner. Better days may be in the offing.

Down 2-0 with a little more than half the first period played, Eagles bat'led back to square it before the first intermission. The home team scored the only goal of the second period and early in the third, made it 4-2.

Then, Foresters turned it around, potting a pair to force the overtime.

Worsnop was the busier of the two, coming up with 41 saves as Eagles continually hemmed the visitors in.

Bill Graham shot a pair of goals for the winners. Johnson had his game winner and Mc-Knight his important equalizer while Bob Cunningham rounded out the visitors' scoring.

Colligan connected for the team's third and fourth goals while Convery clicked for a goal and an assist and Weller, two assists.

Eagles had George Godson and Tom Goodfellow in the lineup. Godson, a centre, is no stranger here, having played senior hockey in Belleville in previous seasons. Goldfellow, a defenceman, looks like he'll help the cause.

Muzzatti's Effort Sinks Bobcats

TORONTO (Special) — It was a case of too much Muzzatti last night as the St. Michael's Buzzers handed the Belleville Bobcats their fourth loss of the season, against 14 wins, 6-3 in Metro Junior B Hockey League action here.

Muzzatti fired four goals to lead the Buzzers to victory, with two of them coming 17 seconds apart in the second period.

Mark Gastes of Bobcats had opened the scoring in the game at 16:38 of the first period on an unassisted effort.

The Buzzers came back with four goals in the second period to the Cats' two.

Paul Gardner added a goal to Muzzatti's three in the period to give the Buzzers a 4-1 lead going into the third period.

Scoring for the Cats in the second were Jim Richardson and Mike Watt.

St. Mike's added two more in the third period, including the final one into the open Belleville net. Gardner added his fourth, and Joe Haffey had the open net goal.

St. Mike's took 13 minor penalties to Belleville's 11. Each team received two major penalties.

Hockey Lancers Bounce Back

The Loyalist Lancers hockey team bounced back from a heavy loss on Friday night in Eastern Ontario College Athletic Association play to defeat the Blues of St. Lawrence College, Kingston, 5-1.

The Lancers basketball squad was not as fortunate Saturday night as they were upset 94-39 at the hands of the Blues.

Fred Mallory led the way for the Lancers hockey team as he fired three goals and added an assist to the Loyalist victory.

Coach Bruce Cameron, of the Lancers, said, "The major reason for the win was the good solid game our defence turned in. Wally Brown, Floyd Crawford, John Fenwick and John Follett were all blue line stalwarts. They got a lot of help from their wingers who consistently came back to do an outstanding job of backchecking."

The backchecking effort was evident, as twice the Lancers were two men short and the penalty killing unit came through to stop the Kingston attack.

"Our defender, Terry Tarle, came up with a good game," said Cameron, "and made several key saves."

"All in all it was a good team effort, and teams win hockey games, not individuals."

Dave Moore netted the lone Blues tally.

In the basketball encounter, Loyalist coach, Rob Stinson, summed up the game by saying. "We turned the ball over too many times and never did play with any composure. It seems every time we play Kingston they force us into making a lot of mistakes."

In a pre-season interview, Stinson commented that his greatest concern would probably be rebounding. On two occasions the "Big Blues", as Stinson called them, pulled down five consecutive rebounds under the Loyalist basket before they finally made one of their shots count.

The Blues were able to push the Lancers into forcing their plays. With a little more composure and patience, the Loyalist team could quite easily have controlled the play throughout the game if they hadn't been made to throw the ball away through forced and telegraphed passes.

Harvey Sharpe, once again led the Loyalist attack, through strong outside shooting with 18 points. Bill Kyle turned in a strong performance hooping 16, while Dave Culmer had 12 and Jim Sutton got 18.

The Lancers Hockey team plays its next game in Brockville on Sunday December 9 at 2 p.m. The basketball squad travels to Peterborough Saturday for a game there for a 7 p.m. contest against Sir Sandford Fleming.

Eight on Ninth

Hazel McNevin (left) and her rink scored a rare eight-ender in Quinte Cup bonspiel at Quinte Curling Club Saturday. The eight counters came in the ninth end. Other members of the rink are Reta McCoy, vice; Daina Honeyman, second and Marie Boutet, lead.

It's the Sudden Stop That Hurts

Basketball is one sport in which the players do not indulge in body contact. There is one contact that is made in basketball however, as Tino Mussio (20) of St. Lawrence College Blues demonstrates. In the game Saturday night against Loyalist Lancers Tino went flying through the air to save the ball from going out of bounds. Tino managed to get the ball to his teammate Gary Dunlop (14) before his flight ended with a rather abrupt contact with the floor of the Loyalist College gym. Lancers' Brad Mitchell hovers over Tino while referee Dan Letter, Lancer Jim Sutton (3) and Blues' Rene Doorankamp watch. St. Lawrence defeated Loyalist 94-58.

Blood Bath at Philly As 6 Players Ejected

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Some people go goofy when you hit them," said Philadelphia Flyers' coach Fred Shero. "I didn't think it was intentional. It was just an immediate reaction."

The Flyers went on to a 5-1 win over the Seals in a National Hockey League game at the Spectrum Sunday night but not before a bloody melee occurred in the second period.

It began when Cummins brought his hockey stick across the head of Clarke at the 11:32 mark. Seconds later the raucous activity began.

Led by Bill Flett and Bob Kelly, the Flyers steamed off the bench, sticks in hand. Cummins went down under the pile. After order was restored, he was ushered to the Seals' dressing room with his face wrapped in a towel. He received three stitches and was ejected from the game.

"Somebody said I hit him in the face with my stick first," said Clarke, who later returned to the game.

But Flett disagreed. "I don't care what happened, you don't hit a guy over the head with a two-bander," the bearded winger said. "It's too easy to kill somebody."

Flett also received a three-stitch gash across the nose.

"Its an unwritten rule you don't hit anybody over the head," said Kelly, who was ejected by referee Art Skov. "If they use the against us again, you can bet there will be a repeat."

Less than four minutes later another brawl erupted. And before it was settled the Flyers had wingers Don Saleski and Dave Schultz and defenceman Ed Van Impe thrown out, while California had forward Williams Graves.

Referee Skov, fearing further violence, suspended the final 4:04 of the second period and tacked it onto the third.

Clarke, known for unobtrusive play on a boisterous, physical team was badly shaken up by the incident.

"I won't forget this," he said. "If have two little kids at home, and if I couldn't play hockey, what else could I do?"

Six players were ejected for the incident, four of them Flyers.

Bad Time to Be Idle

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a bad weekend for Gloucester Rangers to be idle in the Central Junior Hockey League.

The Rangers were second to Smiths Falls Bears when it all started. But after Nepean Raiders defeated Rockland Nationals 7-3 Saturday and Pembroke Lumber Kings nipped Smiths Falls Bears 4-3 Sunday all that was changed.

The third weekend game had Brockville Braves clip Rockland 6-5 Sunday to move out of the Falcon cellar for the first time this season.

Gloucester now finds itself third behind Nepean with Pembroke closing fast and only two points back in fourth place. The Warriors come next, ahead of Rockland.

Sid Tanchak started it all for Nepean, scoring the first four goals Saturday for the Raiders before Randy Derken, Bruce Raymond and Larry Skinner added one each. Rockland got goals from Luc Charbonneau, Jean Pierre Bercier and Jean Picard.

Peter Culp, with two goals, Doug MacLean, Jim Johnston, Bob Summers and Dave Rowse scored for Brockville as the Nationals took it on the chin again.

In Pembroke, the Kings got two goals from Paul Sawyer, and one each from Terry Woermke and Randy Burman. Brian Johnston, Jim Hargreaves and Dan McKay scored for Smiths Falls.

Togetherness Pays For Surging Toros

By LLOYD JOHNSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A month ago, Toronto Toros were tumbling around the basement of the East Division of the World Hockey Association, but today they're in fourth place and challenging the leaders.

After disposing of second-place Houston 5-2 before a sell-out crowd of 12,000 Sunday night and stalling the Aeros' drive to catch Edmonton Oilers, Toros coach Bill Harris glowed with satisfaction.

"Our main objective is to make the playoffs, but finishing second or third would take the pressure off," Harris admitted.

The Toros have won four consecutive games and Harris credited the teams' recent success to high morale among the players.

"A month ago team morale just didn't exist," he said. "But the going has been a lot better lately. The players are working more together and there's more togetherness on road trips, too."

Technically, the use of six defencemen has also been a factor, Harris observed. "It has helped us to play with more freedom."

Pat Hickey, 30-year-old rookie, who was assigned the task of checking Gordie Howe, retired Howe, was eminently successful.

"I liked the challenge—the only thing I had to watch out for was the elbows," he said.

As for Howe, he was disappointed with his performance, but admitted he was tired after playing 20 to 25 minutes on a divided shift in Quebec Saturday night.

"We were all tired after getting up at 5:45 a.m. to come to Toronto," the former National Hockey League star said. "Tonight I felt as if the arthritis in my knees went down to my ankles."

Howe said he would like to get 79 points this season, including 20-plus goals. He's not far off the pace, with six goals and 37 assists for 23 points in 22 games.

In other games Sunday, New England Whalers nipped Chicago Cougars 5-4, Jersey Frank Hucks edged Minnesota Fighting Saints 3-2, Cleveland Crusaders blanked the Oilers 3-0 and Winnipeg Jets dumped Quebec Nordiques 5-3.

On Saturday's action, the Aeros and Nordiques tied 3-3, the Crusaders defeated the Oilers 4-2 and Los Angeles Sharks upset the Cougars 5-4.

Frank Hucks scored three goals Sunday to pace Winnipeg Jets to a 5-3 victory that halted a six-game slump. Huckspot on a one-man show for his sixth, seventh and eighth goals of the season. Winnipeg remained in a tie for fourth place in the West with the Saints.

Dryden Hopes to Play

FREDERICTON (CP) — Ken Dryden, Montreal Canadiens' goaltender last season, said Saturday that "I hope to play professionally again next year," but added it is "very unlikely" he'll return to the Canadiens' lineup unless things didn't work out this year."

Dryden, 26, made the remarks at a news conference prior to addressing the annual Moncton Boy Family Centre sportsmen's dinner.

Dryden left the Canadiens earlier this year because of a salary dispute. At the time, Dryden said the amount of the salary wasn't as important as the principle of the matter, citing that many goalies of lesser talents were receiving more money.

Dryden won the Vezina Trophy last season, turning in a 2.26 goals-against average and a league-leading 46 games played.

Dryden said he has not made up his mind about his future in professional hockey, but said he has every intention of making a considered decision.

He didn't rule out jumping to the World Hockey Association, which has not itself set up a National Hockey League rival. But he said Ira Rae Gordon wouldn't come until after he found out whether or not Montreal Canadiens will revive an NHL rights.

Dryden reported to have earned $70,000 with Canadiens last season, announced when he left the hockey club that he would article with a Toronto law firm.

Hawley Needs 8

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto jockey Sandy Hawley moved to Laurel in Maryland today to continue his drive toward Bill Shoemaker's North American season record of 485 winners, set in 1953.

Newcombe defeated Stan Smith in the first singles match 6-7, 8-6, 6-3 and 6-4. Newcombe was paired with Laver in doubles play Saturday and the Aussies set Smith and Erik van Dillen down 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Sunday Newcombe won his third match of the finals by just taking away Tom Gorman 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Newcombe retired from the game a year ago and just this year decided to pick up his racket again.

In the second singles match Laver beat Tom Gorman 8-10, 6-2, 6-3 and 8-1. In the final singles match on Sunday Laver finished off Smith 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Newcombe gloated statements that the aging Aussies are on the way out. "I don't think this is so," Newcombe said. "Next year is next year and you always get more enthusiasm. That's one thing about sports. Every year something new comes along to build you up."

His victory Sunday boosted his yearly tennis earnings by $110,000. The win moved him into second place in the Grand Prix standings ousting the Netherlands Tom Okker. Second place in the standings earns him $37,500.

Welland Can't Stop Windsor

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor continued its three-year dominance over Welland at the Windsor Arena Sunday night, turning back the league leaders 5-2 in Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League action.

Welland has been unable to beat Windsor at home for three years, and this year finds itself in a worse situation—it has lost three times in three games to Windsor, with two of the losses in Welland.

Windsor now is only three points behind Welland with three games in hand.

Hugh Mitchell scored two goals for Windsor, both in the second period, enabling Windsor to stretch a 3-1 lead to a 5-1 margin.

Windsor outshot Welland 33-27 in the game before 3,904 fans.

In other league games, Michigan surprised Chatham 6-2, and Guelph topped Buffalo 6-3.

Michigan 6 Chatham 2

Last-place Michigan outhustled Chatham in its 6-2 win, its second in 23 games.

Mike Nichols scored two goals for the winners, while Mike Lachic, Skip Hervey, Paul Reed and Rick Swearingen adding singles.

Guelph 8 Buffalo 3

Guelph scored four goals in two minutes and 12 seconds in the third period for its come-from-behind victory over Buffalo.

Nicklaus Looking Ahead

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — "One of these years," Jack Nicklaus said with a positive fire in every inch of his eyes, "I'm gonna have a really great season."

There was a moment of stunned silence. And then laughter.

"You didn't let me finish my thought," Nicklaus continued. "What I mean by that is that sometime I'm going to be able to do what I want to do like no other champion.

"Yeah," he responded to a question, "I've been all in a year."

"My goals always have been the major championships (the Masters, U.S., British Opens and the PGA), they are always on my mind.

"Right now," he said Saturday after closing another brilliant season with victory in the Walt Disney World open golf tournament, "I'm looking forward to Augusta."

The Masters, the first of four annual major tests of golfing greatness, will be held in Augusta, Ga., in April.

To prepare for the Masters, Nicklaus said he would play only five of the 11 tournaments preceding the Augusta event next year.

"I'll play the Crosby, because I'm defending", he said Nicklaus then plans a five-week break until the Los Angeles Open.

He'll also play the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic...the Doral-Eastern Open and the New Orleans Open where he's also the defending champion.

The Disney Open was his seventh victory of the season and his third in a row in the Disney.

Nicklaus came from behind with a final-round 67. His 275 total, 13 under par, was one in front of veteran Mason Rudolph and two ahead of John Mahaffey.

The $30,000 he collected gave him his third consecutive leading money-winner title and made him the first player in the game's history to go over $2 million in career earnings.

Ben Kern of London, Ont., only Canadian remaining, finished well back with a 75 for a 298 total.

Clyde Gray Faces Heavy Hitter

QUEBEC (CP) — An Ontario referee will be the third man in the ring here tonight when Clyde Gray of Toronto defends his Canadian welterweight boxing championship against Fernand Marcotte of Quebec City.

But the three judges will be appointed by the Quebec Athletic Commission.

Irv Ungerman of Toronto, Gray's manager, said Sunday that Harry Davis of the Ontario Athletic Association's refereeing staff will handle the 12-round, 147-pound championship.

Ungerman said scoring for the fight will be on a five-point "must" system and that in addition to getting the concession from Marcotte's camp for the use of Davis, the Quebec fighter's handlers had agreed to allow the scoring of the bout to be shown to the crowd after every four rounds.

Gray, 27, who holds the 147-pound Commonwealth title as well as the Canadian championship, will be, in Ungerman's words, up against a fighter "recognized as a pretty fair puncher."

"He (Marcotte) has something to fight for and he certainly has the capabilities."

Blues Down Laurentian

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A three-goal performance by Kent Lachapelle paced University of Toronto Blues to a 7-3 victory over Laurentian University Voyageurs in Ontario Universities Athletic Association hockey action Sunday.

Toronto took a 4-1 lead after the first period and increased it to 6-1 going into the second period.

In another game Sunday, Carleton University Ravens and Royal Military College Redmen played to a 2-2 tie.

Don Pagnutti, Doug Herridge, Bill Fifield and John Richmond scored single goals in the Toronto victory. Mike Pye, Jim Hanson and Rick Rebellato scored for Laurentian.

Ungerman said, "When Clyde fought (Gonzalo) Fullana for the title he was a 3-1 underdog and I imagine Marcotte feels the same way."

Gray wrested the Canadian championship from Fullana in Montreal, Feb. 13, 1971, on a 12-round decision.

Gray said Sunday he is sure the challenger cannot punch as well as world welterweight champ Jose Napoles.

Gray dropped a unanimous 15-round decision to Napoles in Toronto last September.

"I've never seen him (Marcotte) fight, but from what I've heard, he's supposed to be quite a hitter with both hands," Gray said Sunday.

"But no matter how hard he hits, it couldn't be any harder than Napoles."

Gray has never been knocked out during a 46-fight career over seven years. At 27, he has won 41 bouts, lost three and fought one draw. He has 26 knockouts to his credit, but has never suffered the same fate.

Marcotte has 19 knockouts to his credit and a 33-3-2 record. At 34, he appears to have a new lease on a promising career that appeared in jeopardy earlier this year.

Gray will get $35,000, while Marcotte will collect $5,000.

Michel Deziel scored four goals, three of them in the eight-goal third period, to lead Sorel to its win over Montreal.

The new 1974 Alouette Super Brute.
Never before has so much worked so well.
In designing the Super Brute, our idea was simply to make a machine that would perform better; and that would go on performing better, longer.
So we put in power. A front-mounted Sachs engine. A new transmission, with heavy-duty chain and a double-sprocket free-wheeling track drive, for minimum power loss.
We built in lightness, with an all-aluminum chassis with race-proven front-end structure. Balance, with new wide-stance Ski-Sorber™ suspension.
Comfort, with a slide suspension adjustable for your weight and snow conditions, and a posture-contoured foam seat.
We devised a wind tunnel that's self-clearing, not clogging.
We added a completely new concept in its control module. It includes a headlight that swivels to show you where you're going, on a curve. And is integral with a high-rise, wrap-around windshield that doesn't leave your head or hands out in the cold.
And looked so good.
Ask engineers for performance, reliability, accessibility, long life, etcetera, and you don't necessarily expect the greatest looking machine you ever saw. But that's just what we got in the Super Brute.
Get around to your Alouette dealer soon, and see if you don't agree. But be sure to take a good look inside, as well as outside. Then you'll see why we're able to say "Alouette delivers".

Grant Says Vikings Were Not Prepared

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"This team is a disgrace," said Minnesota defensive tackle Carl Eller after Sunday's loss by the Vikings to Cincinnati. "I think the National Football League should fine this club."

Eller and the Vikings aren't accustomed to losing, much less losing big, but they ran into an aroused Bengal team and came away with a 27-6 defeat—the Vikings' worst loss since 1968. It was also the first time Minnesota has been shut out since 1962.

"I feel we failed to prepare the team properly for this game," admitted Viking Coach Bud Grant. "We were in a wrong frame of mind."

If the Vikings weren't ready, the Bengals were ready enough for both teams.

"We were seething," said veteran Coach Paul Brown. "It's more of a challenge to play the good clubs."

The victory kept the Bengals in the thick of the AFC Central Division chase. Cincinnati and Cleveland are a half-game behind Pittsburgh right now but the Steelers have to play Miami tonight. Should the Steelers lose, all three clubs would be tied with just two games left in the regular campaign.

In other games, Los Angeles Rams clinched the NFC West with a 26-0 romp over Chicago Bears, Buffalo Bills stunned Atlanta Falcons 17-6, Washington Redskins rallied past New York Giants 27-24, Dallas Cowboys dumped Denver Broncos 22-10, Oakland Raiders defeated Houston Oilers 17-6, New England Patriots downed San Diego Chargers 3-14, New York Jets held off Baltimore Colts 20-17, Detroit Lions tripped St. Louis Cardinals 20-16, Green Bay Packers stopped New Orleans Saints 30-10 and San Francisco 49ers topped Philadelphia Eagles 20-20.

Browns 20 Chiefs 20

Rams 26 Bears 0

Larry McCutcheon rushed for 132 yards on 26 carries and Davis Ray Booted field goals of 30, 16, 29 and 26 yards as Los Angeles ran its record to 10-3. The Ram-defense mashandled Chicago's modest offense, allowing the Bears past midfield just once.

Bills 17 Falcons 6

O. J. Simpson made it into the record books with his ninth 100-yard rushing game of the season as Buffalo stopped Atlanta's winning streak at seven games. Simpson gained 137 yards to up his total for the season to 1,581. He needs just 226 yards to up h's total for the season bread Jim Brown's record of 1,863 for a single season.

Redskins 27 Giants 24

Cowboys 22 Broncos 10

Roger Staubach was dumped five times by the Denver defence but got up often to throw touchdown passes of six and 27 yards to tight end Jean Fugett. The loss dropped the Broncos out of first place in the AFC West.

Hawks Unbeaten in 11

The streak includes nine wins and two ties, and the Black Hawks are in second place, two points behind Peterborough.

Greg Craig, Gary McAdam, Bill Hamilton, Rick Addison and Don Labreche scored for Oshawa.

Derek Smith got the lone goal, the first Ottawa has scored in three games after being shut out 3-0 and 1-0 by Peterborough last Thursday and Saturday.

In other league games Sunday, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds dumped Kingston Canadians 7-4, Sudbury Wolves topped Hamilton Red Wings 7-3, London Knights defeated Oshawa Generals 6-2 and Toronto Marlboros beat Kitchener Rangers 7-2.

The Greyhounds scored in three games after being shut out 3-0 and 1-0 by turned back the Red Wings 9-2

Bob Foster Wins 'Toughest Fight'

NEW YORK (AP) — Light heavyweight champ Bob Foster has returned to the United States following the successful defense of his title in a bout he calls his toughest since he became No. 1.

Foster won a unanimous decision Saturday in a 15-rounder in Johannesburg, South Africa, against Pierre Fourie, fighting in his home country.

The title bout was a rematch of an earlier fight in Albuquerque, N.Mex., where Foster won a much more one-sided decision.

"Fourie gave me my toughest title fight since I won it in 1968," Foster said Sunday. "He certainly learned a lot in Albuquerque . . . He had me really worried at times."

The two clashes were completely different in style. Foster dominated the first fight with long-range lefts. But the South African carried the fight to Foster in the early rounds Saturday and was slowed down only in the late rounds by Foster's punishing left hooks.

Fourie did not switch to the left-handed stance as he was expected to do. He went southpaw only once, in the fifth round when he missed with a looping left. Foster promptly backed him into the ropes, and Fourie resumed boxing right-handed.

Fourie was warned several times by British referee Roland Dakin for butting and hitting on the breaks. There were no knockdowns in the fight, although Fourie stumbled in the last round.

Foster, at 174½ pounds, now has 51 victories, 42 by knockout against six defeats, Fourie, 187 pounds, is 44-13-1.

About 42,000 fans watched the outdoor bout and box office takings were reported at $685,000, one of the largest gates ever taken at a light heavyweight title bout.

Foster's share of the purse was $250,000.

It was the first professional fight between a white and a black in South African history, but Foster appeared unimpressed with his page in the history books.

"You don't think about history when you're in the ring. . . you think about what your opponent is going to do," Foster said.

Munroe, Hayworth, Loren All Combined in Tiiu Leek

MONTREAL (CP) — Tiiu Leek—her first name's pronounced like T-U. — is a 23-year-old Montreal-born model who is, in the opinion of a National Film Board casting director, a combination of Marilyn Munroe, Rita Hayworth and Sophia Loren.

When the tall, slim blonde walks onto the NFB's big sound stage here, something electric passes through the scores of slow girls, dancers actors, stage hands, and all those who have just been invited to watch a day's filming in the studio.

Because, after years of modelling in Montreal, Toronto, New York, and overseas, it's Tiiu's first starring role in a film, and she's good—perhaps a star being born.

That's odd, because the name of the film is A Star is Lost. And its even more odd because the big production song-and-dance number being filmed on a tinsely Ziegfeld Follies set is just part of a NFB series of language-training films.

Almost 80 per cent of the films available to Canadian schools for language and other instruction are foreign films, the NFB says in its annual report. It's one of the board's current priorities to strengthen the proportion of Canadian material available to Canadian teachers.

A Star is Lost is the last of five 30-minute films being made by the board to assist in teaching English as a second language. A similar program is under way producing films for teaching French, and the film board hopes they will have a market not only in Canada but around the world.

Daisy de Bellefeuille, an Austrian-born linguist with a command of eight languages, is executive producer of the series who says instruction has to be interesting and fun.

"Once you loose a student's interest, forget it," she said in an interview.

"We wanted to make purely dramatic films in a way that will enrich the language of people just learning English. You can't put anything didactic in the middle of them, saying 'and now, we tell you that the past tense is such-and-such.' Do that, and you loose the thread of the whole thing and it becomes boring."

Each 30-minute film can be broken down into four 20-minute segments and each segment has four "core scenes" for instruction. The scripts were written to be entertaining, but using a vocabulary and language structure graded to various levels of learning.

"Outside of those core scenes, the action ought to be very easily understood even by those whose English isn't good," Miss de Bellefeuille said. "What we want is that students will be so interested, accused and entertained that they will try to use the language."

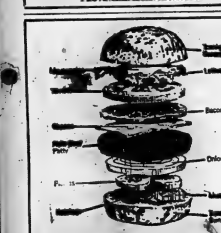
"I know as a linguist that if you are interested, you will try to learn a language. It's a psychological trick. After watching one of these films, an immigrant, say, should be able to say to himself, 'It's not so hard to learn another language. I know, it better than I thought I did.'"

Most people, she said, have an inferiority complex about trying to use a second language, not their own. But they will eagerly absorb it if they learn in an entertaining way.

A Star is Lost is a story of kidnapping and the destruction of a Hollywood studio by interna dissension. Other films in the series include a science-fiction comedy, a cops-and-robbers thriller, a dream-fantasy comedy, and a slapstick comedy.

"I decided that in order to get through to people you need either comedies or thrillers. You can't do psychological drama or real-life drama because you have to talk about things that are not on the screen."

Everything on the screen in the five films will be dealt with in accompanying film strips or still-photo projection, tape recordings of questions and answers and a book as a teacher's aid. The complete packages should be ready for distribution next summer.



Miss de Bellefeuille said she hopes the films will be seen on television, particularly on the French networks, where there are many listeners and viewers who never attempt to use the English language.

"I think if you want to be a bilingual country, that's the thing to try and do, otherwise it's a sham. If one of these films went on the French network, you could have a French person explain what it's about. Then if the audience liked the thing, they would wait with it.

ROME (Reuter) — The grand-niece of Pope Pius XII has brought a libel suit against the stars, producer, director and writer of the film Massacre in Rome, which alleges the late pontiff did nothing to prevent the Nazis killing 335 Roman hostages, justice officials said.

The officials said a lawyer representing Countess Eleonora Rossinandi, daughter of Elisa Pacelli Pacelli, niece of Pius XII, presented the suit to judicial authorities Wednesday and asked them to stop the film being shown.

Named in the suit is British actor Richard Burton, who plays SS Col. Herbert Kappler, who supervised the massacre.

Also named are Italian Actor Marcello Mastroianni, who plays an Italian priest who tries to stop the massacre, producer Carlo Ponti, director Yorgo Pan Cosmatos and Robert Katz, American author of the screen play and original book.

DNDO, Calif. (AP) — Late movie director John Ford left nothing in his estate to his son, court records showed Wednesday.

Ford said in a will signed last March: "I specifically request that no share of my estate be distributed to my son, Patrick Michael Ford."

No reason was given.

The will places most of Ford's estate in a trust for the benefit of his widow Mary and, in the event of her death, for his daughter and two grandsons, Timothy and Daniel Ford.

Ford died Aug. 31 of cancer. He was 78.

CULVER CITY, Calif. (Reuter) — Child-desertion charges were dismissed Wednesday against actress Sheila Scott, 42, who was accused of leaving her infant at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Judge Frank Troost dismissed the charge at a preliminary hearing. Miss Scott was accused of leaving her four-month-old son at the studio gate with a note for actor Chad Everett.

The actress told the hearing that Everett is the father of the child. However, a paternity charge against Everett was dismissed last Sept. 10 in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Miss Scott's lawyer said the baby boy has been returned to Saturday's Answer

To Your Good Health

Arteries 'Harden' As We Grow Old

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you explain to a layman what is the true meaning of hardening of the arteries? Is this condition fatal? Does it affect the heart?

My husband is 74 and has this condition. Doctors have explained it to him, but to me he says they are speaking serious, and he will not let me talk to the doctor. He thinks he is old enough to take care of himself. I realize this sounds silly but it is true.—M.H.K.

"Hardening" of the arteries may not have been the most descriptive term for this condition, but it has been in use so long there's no likelihood of changing it now.

As we grow older, our arteries accumulate plaques, or deposits, in the inner lining. Over the years this reduces the size of the interior of the arteries, just as over the years lime or other sediment accumulates in the water pipes of a house. In a house, the flow of water is reduced. In the body the flow of blood through the arteries is reduced.

You ask if this is "fatal" or if it can "affect the heart." The answer depends on the extent of the "hardening" and the location of it. This process of hardening goes on all our lives, but not necessarily at the same rate or in the same parts of the body. Just as some folks get grey hair earlier than others, some have more "hardening" or clogging of the arteries earlier than others do.

If the coronary arteries of the heart are severely affected, then yes, the action of the heart will be affected. But that is something that may happen, not will happen. Or, to summarize, let's say the arteries serving the legs may be involved more seriously. For such a person, the legs may tire much more quickly than is some other patient.

So, you see, I cannot really answer your question about the seriousness without knowing how severe the "hardening" is, or where it is.

But by the age of 70 (and a good deal earlier than that) we can say that everyone has some hardening of the arteries, and the question is whether it is severe enough to cause trouble, dose or doesn't cause any

What to do about it is a quite different matter.

You've doubtless read reams of stuff about cholesterol and triglycerides. The reason for concern is that these seem to play some part in hastening of the arteries, although there is a good deal that we still do not know about the process. Westchoa a person has remained reasonably active all his life also is probably a factor.

But perhaps the important thing to keep in mind is that our diet and mode of life in our younger years can go a good deal to do with hastening of the arteries. After the condition has become severe, it's a little late to try to undo what has been done.

I've tried to put this in layman's language, but, trying to explain all the ramifications of hardening of the arteries is not easy. I do hope this has helped a bit.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 years old and have a mole on my face that is slowly getting bigger. Do you think it could be cancerous?—J.C.

At your age I doubt it—but if it really is changing in size, better have your folks take you to the doctor and make sure.

Note to J.A.R.: No, shingles do not "turn into cancer," although in some cases shingles can linger for a long time.

Oswald: "For many years George Coffin of Waltham, Mass., has been collecting and writing about interesting bridge hands. His newest compendium, entitled 'Bridge Perfect Plays and Match Point Ways' includes some old timers and very new ones.

Jim: "Here is a simple one called 'The Power of the pre-play.' Just look at the West and North hands and the bidding. We'll give you a clue to the proper play. You decide to open a heart and not your slightest ace of diamonds."

Oswald: "That is quite a clue because we feel that the ace of diamonds lead would almost surely be the best opening. Any way you do open the eight of hearts and your partner proceeds to cash three heart tricks while South follows suit. You have to discard on the third heart. What discard do you make?"

Jim: "There is one and just one discard that will guarantee defeat of the contract. Pop up with your ace of diamonds."

Oswald: "This sensational discard will get your partner to lead a diamond. If South ruffs with the nine you will score your two trump tricks immediately. If he ruffs with a high trump you will collect the setting trick with it later on. Either way you get a plus score."

Five Billion Spent On Oil Pipelines

TORONTO (CP) — Companies building pipelines to supply the Canadian market with oil, natural gas and refined products have spent more than $5 billion since 1950 to build lines that would go around the earth about 3½ times.

Two oil pipeline companies and two natural gas pipeline companies are the main carriers to move these products east and west from fields in the West—Alberta is the main source of Canadian fossil fuels. Dozens of other companies are involved in collecting oil and natural gas from production fields for delivery to trunk lines and moving them to refineries and industrial and residential consumers.

Pipelines in Canada, ranging in size from three-inch refined product lines to four-foot crude oil lines, have a combined length of more than 86,000 miles.

Natural gas lines account for a major portion of total mileage—more than 60,000 miles—because of the nature of the commodity. Lines that run under city streets are connected to a system that originates in the western fields. More than 27,000 miles of natural gas lines make up city grids and connections with cross-Canada trunk lines.

The pipeline systems deliver a daily average of more than 70 million gallons of crude oil and more than 3.1 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

Pipeline company officials say there is no basic difference between oil and natural gas pipelines. Oil lines have no interior coating while natural gas lines sometimes are coated with a plastic-like material to reduce friction.

Oil moves more slowly. At speeds of three to six miles an hour it takes 30 to 40 days for a gallon of Alberta oil to reach refineries in southern Ontario. The average speed of natural gas through trunk lines is about 15 miles an hour.

Pumping stations at intervals along the oil lines and compressors on natural gas lines maintain pressure and keep the gas moving.

One company official said a common misconception about crude oil is that it has the consistency of molasses. In fact, crude oil has about the same viscosity as water and is moved through trunk pipelines without being heated. The oil just has to be kept about three feet underground and the temperature of the oil in winter rarely drops below 36 degrees.

Companies from the petroleum products collect on inside walls of pipelines and companies use what they call "pigs"—cylindrical objects covered with brushes—to clean them. Pigs are flushed through with whatever is moving in a line.

Current cost of delivering a gallon of crude oil from western fields to southern Ontario refineries is about 4 cents. The cost of bringing natural gas to markets in southern Ontario is 20 per 30.5 cubic feet.

The main components of the oil delivery system are the trunk lines of Interprovincial Pipe Line Co.—from Alberta to Eastern Canada—and Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co.—from Alberta westward. TransCanada Pipelines Ltd. is the main carrier of natural gas to eastern markets and Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. takes gas from northeastern British Columbia and Alberta to B.C. markets.

The TransCanada system, more than 4,000 miles long, is the longest in Canada and it was the debate in Parliament over building this system—in which closure was used to push legislation to meet planning deadlines—that led to the defeat in the polls of the St. Laurent Liberal government in 1957.

The Interprovincial pipeline system is more than 3,300 miles long, including portions that pass through the United States—north of Lakes Superior and Huron.

Included in the more than 18,000 miles of oil lines is about 2,000 miles of refined product lines. More than half this mileage is used to transport liquid propane gas—a crude oil derivative—in the West.

Pipelines in Canada likely are headed for a period of rapid expansion as pressure from energy shortages creates a demand for Arctic lines. The U.S. Congress has rushed through legislation to allow construction of a trans-Alaska line from Prudhoe Bay to a harbor port at Valdez. A U.S. company has proposed construction of a parallel natural gas line.

Currently, there are three active proposals for Arctic lines in Canada: a Mackenzie River-valley natural gas line, which would be a competitor to an Alaska line; a Mackenzie Valley oil line, which its proponents say would be complementary to the Alaska line; and a selection from the Arctic Islands, which would be routed either along the east or west side of Hudson Bay to Central Canadian markets.

Oil Scientist Is Expert On Bad Odors

Patrick is an environmental scientist for Ashland Oil Inc., and he always carries his most sensitive and reliable odor detector with him. It's as plain as the nose on his face; in fact, it is the nose on his face.

Patrick is the official nose at Ashland Oil. It is his job to detect and analyse bad odors at the company's refineries so that they can be corrected in production processes.

"No instrument can duplicate the human nose for detecting odors," says Patrick. "It always accurate—barring hay fever or a head cold, that is. If you can smell an odor and it is irritating, the nose knows."

To be sure, Patrick brings other equipment along on his odor search. He has designed a mobile testing unit, mounted in the back of a van, which determines the source and concentration of odors.

Nose for Weather

The great slinger - like projection on the nose of this British Royal Air Force Hercules transport plane soon will be probing weather secrets. The nose houses advanced gadgetry which will measure and record in still air ahead of the disturbance created by the slipstream and the plane's own aerodynamics. It will also carry a laser proger or and camera to take three - dimensional pictures of a cylindrical sample of cloud. Every drop of moisture in the cloud will be counted. (CP Photo)

University Office Is Old Warehouse

He's not complaining.

Dr. Byrne heads Athabasca University, contemplated in 1970 as a $50-million institution in suburban St Albert with an enrolment of 10,000. But when university enrolments began declining, the Alberta government scrapped plans for what would have been the fourth provincial university and gave a mandate to develop a pilot project aimed at continuing education for persons who would not normally attend university.

So instead of occupying a posh office on a futuristic campus, Dr. Byrne has a small office in the university's city warehouse building—an administrative office in the city's warehouse district.

Dr. Byrne, a former deputy education minister, isn't bitter about the sudden turn of events. He's even concerned that if university enrolments keep declining the province will want Athabasca University to progress with the original plan to alleviate some of the pressure on University of Alberta.

This is an infinitely more important thing that we are doing now than it would be to start another university," said Dr. Byrne in an interview.

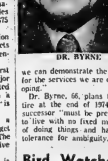
"Many people can't understand a university without a campus. We say the university is a concept. In their homes, the students have a bit of a campus."

The university, with the cooperation of Edmonton Journal, launched its first offering—a course on world ecology—in the newspaper. Study packages, including material on tape cassettes, supplement the basic information in the weekly articles when the students pay a $75 tuition fee.

Upon successful completion of a unit, the student gets credits toward a degree in environmental sciences.

It is believed to be the first time in Canada that a major newspaper has been co-operated with a university in such a venture and Dr. Byrne is pleased with the results.

"The paper has been a marvellous way of getting through to the public. The university has come alive through the newspaper."



The biggest problem is communicating with the students who are spread out all over Alberta and southern settlements in the Northwest Territories.

Instructors are in touch with students through the mail and tapes are being formulated for a toll-free telephone system that would allow students to call their instructors for assistance.

Other activities centred on the humanities and social sciences and Dr. Byrne's staff is exploring other ways of expanding the university's role in continuing education.

The provincial government has pledged financial assistance for Athabasca University until 1977.

"We have to prove by then that our scheme has merit," said Dr. Byrne. "The future of this little idea lies with the people we have here . . . if we can demonstrate the need for the services we are developing."

Dr. Byrne, 66, plans to retire at the end of 1974. His successor must be prepared to live with no fixed method of doing things and have a tolerance for ambiguity."

Bird Watchers Aid Air Force

NEW YORK (AP) — To help steer airplanes away from localities where they might be endangered by birds in flight, bird watchers are working with the United States Air Force.

The air force has signed a contract to take the masses of data amassed since 1900 by the National Audubon Society's Christmas bird count and put it on maps so that training flights can be routed around areas of concentration for large birds such as ducks, geese, cranes and pelicans.

Salt Used To Harden Gumbo

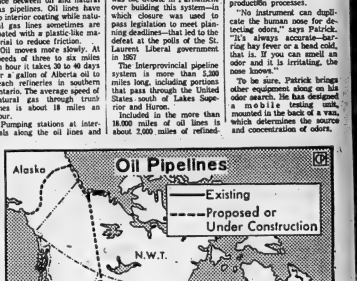
REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan roadbuilders are seasoning their work with salt and finding that it works better than just gravel and clay.

Salt—20 tons a mile—has been mixed with gravel and clay to form the base of 250 miles of rural roads providing a harder and more easily compacted surface.

H.A. Clampitt, director of the municipal road assistance authority, said no one knows exactly why, but salt tends to dry out and harden clay.

The idea isn't new—ancient Rome used salt to harden stable floors—but the Saskatchewan authority started considering the idea in 1955 after it began piling up as a byproduct at potash plants and at oilfields where brine solution is used.

The salt used to be free, but when the authority found a practical use for it, the price became $12.50 a ton.



Salt was first tried in 1967, west of Melfort, providing a road surface so hard as to appear ice. But when wind and rain washed the unpaved road away the salt didn't. Some roadbuilders found they had to put an inch of asphalt on top of the salt-clay base for the use of motorists.

Besides using salt for road bases, the government has used calcium chloride, bought at $80 a ton from Ontario, in "dust" emulsion out of the air and control dust. It is spread on the surface of unpaved roads.

Canada's Oil Pipelines

At speeds of three to six miles an hour, Alberta oil moves through pipelines to the west coast and southern Ontario. Pumping stations at intervals along the route keep the oil moving, but it still takes 30 to 40 days for a gallon of crude oil to move to Ontario from Alberta. The map shows proposed Mackenzie Valley pipeline from the Arctic Ocean, jbe Alaska route to Valdez from Prudhoe Bay, and a Toronto - to Montreal route. (CP Newsmap)

How Natural Gas Moves

Natural gas pipeline looking like spaghetti thrown at a map of Canada stretches more than 60,000 miles and carry an average of 3.1 billion cubic feet of natural gas each day. This map shows major lines, but omits some smaller lines around Edmonton that collect gas from the Alberta fields and feed it to cross-Canada pipes. It does not show some 37,000 miles of lines that make up grids under city streets to distribute natural gas to offices and homes. (CP Newsmap)

North Bay Policeman Slain In Shootout at Parking Lot

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — One police officer was killed by a shotgun blast to the head and another wounded in the shoulder in a Saturday night parking lot shootout in the centre of this Northern Ontario city.

Dead is Constable Len Slater, 30, who leaves a wife and three children. Const. Gordon McCourt, 40, was in satisfactory condition in hospital with a shoulder wound.

Also in hospital is Camille Ethier, 34, of Astorville, 16 miles south of here, who is charged with capital murder and three counts of attempted murder.

Police said Ethier was hit in the neck and shoulder by a bullet from the service revolver of Const. Norm Shillington and is expected to live.

There were cars in the Canadian Pacific Railway station parking lot during the shooting but police said there was no indication of any bystanders when the gun battle broke out.

Police said Const. Slater, a member of the North Bay force for four years after serving with the provincial police at Port Credit, Ont., was gunned down when he responded to Const. McCourt's call for help.

Const. McCourt was the first to arrive at the parking lot after police received a report of a man being seen in the area with a gun.

As he got out of his police van, he was hit in the shoulder. The officer managed to get to his radio and call for an ambulance and assistance.

Const. Slater was next on the scene and was shot as he approached the parking lot after leaving his car, police said. Both officers were alone.

Const. Shillington and Sgt. George Nicolson arrived moments later and both were shot at. Const. Shillington took cover behind a car and hit the gunman after an exchange of shots.

Police said a second man who they refused to identify was held overnight but was released Sunday. No charges were laid.

Retarded Children Reported Mistreated

TORONTO (CP) — The Sun says Orillia Hospital School is investigating a number of incidents of physical and mental abuse of retarded residents.

The newspaper says the reports are contained in a confidential provincial health department memo and they include:

—At least three staff members giving retarded people burning cigarettes to eat.

—A boy with a wooden leg being provoked to irritation and then being punished by having the artificial limb taken away.

—Two mongoloid boys, a deaf girl and a number of boys capable of work within the institution being used to discipline other residents.

Richard Wilson, administrator of the institution, said in an interview Saturday night that he is aware of some incidents and an internal hearing has been "tentatively" scheduled for Dec. 12.

The administrator said he has heard of incidents involving burning cigarettes and if they are true "it's indefensible."

In each case, the memo lists staff members as witnesses to the incidents.

Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter and deputy Stan Martin said Saturday night they were aware of an investigation of one minor incident at the institution but were unaware of incidents of physical and mental abuse.

Canadian Resident Watergate Witness

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — John Reynolds, Progressive Conservative member o fParliament for Burnaby-Richmond-Delta, says he has been advised by a lawyer for Watergate witness John Meier that President Nixon will be forced to resign after Joe Della, B.C., resident presents his testimony early next year before the United States' Senate committee investigating the Watergate affair.

Mr. Reynolds said the comment was made by lawyer Robert Whyshak of Los Angeles Friday.

In an interview he quoted the lawyer as saying that "after Meier testifies, Nixon will have to resign."

Mr. Reynolds said he will meet in Ottawa Monday with Immigration Minister Robert Andras to renew the fight to obtain landed immigrant status for Mr. Meier in Canada.

Mr. Meier has already given investigators for the Watergate committee information about a

Queen's Professor Is Critical of Forum

VANCOUVER (CP) — A forum of nuclear power organized by the provincial government ended in criticism Saturday with participants and spectators saying the debate didn't inform anyone.

Dr. W. Bennett Lewis, a retired professor at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., criticized the forum for putting the emphasis on debate between proponents and opponents of nuclear power rather than on informing people.

"It's the first time I have been faced with professional polemicists—people who make their living going around telling horror stories about nuclear power," Dr. Lewis said.

Dr. Lewis said that without nuclear energy there likely will be starvation in the world because of the need of power for agriculture.

Planner, Councillor's Wife To Benefit if Borough Buys

TORONTO (CP) — The wife of a borough of North York controller and a borough planning board member will share a $18,800 sales commission if five properties they have offered for sale are purchased by the borough.

Jane McGivern, wife of Controller Alex McGivern, and planning board member Edward Wells, both real estate agents, have offered the properties to the borough at a total price of $920,000.

Mrs. McGivern and Mr. Wells both said in an interview last Friday they saw nothing wrong in trying to sell the properties to the borough.

Mrs. McGivern said her husband checked with the borough legal department before she and Mr. Wells, her sales partner, made the offers.

She said her husband was told she might offer the properties in the borough provided he declared an interest in the matter and abstained from voting on any discussion concerning the possible transaction.

Mr. McGivern did so when the purchases were discussed by board of control last Wednesday.

Lloyd Fleck, the real estate broker for whom Mrs. McGivern and Mr. Wells work, said in a interview he is satisfied there is nothing legally wrong in the proposed sale but wishes they had not done it.

Mr. Fleck also said he was concerned that Mr. Wells had not informed members of council that he was a licensed real estate salesman with the firm when he sought appointment to the planning board last January.

Mrs. McGivern said it was common knowledge from news reports that the borough was interested in purchasing an area of land near the municipal offices for a proposed redevelopment plan.

snowmobile buyer's guide
A few hot features don't make a high performance snowmobile. It's how you put them all together.
There are a lot of snowmobiles around with big, fast engines, slide suspension systems and sleek, racy styling.
And there are a lot of snowmobile buyers who think that's all you need to make a high performance machine. But, there's a little more to it than that.
Power from a reliable source
Take the all-new T'NT from Ski-Doo.
We've got the engines. 3 big twins by Rotax that really crank it out. But, instead of just worrying about the performance you need to get you moving, we also worry about the reliability you need to keep you moving.
So we developed a rugged, Square Shaft clutch that increases available power by reducing power loss. We used a tough, light aluminum-steel frame to keep sled weight down. And on our muscular 440, for example, we chrome-plated the cylinder walls and added two additional transfer ports per cylinder to help it run cooler and last longer. The extra power you get is free.
A complete handling package
When we designed a slide suspension system to improve T'NT handling...we didn't stop there. We also incorporated a stable 16-1/2 inch track, a full 28 inch ski stance, mounted the engine low and up front over the skis and added (as standard) shock absorbers and Ski-Doo Carbide ski runners to give you a good grip on ice and hard packed snow.
Comfort is part of performance
When we set out to make T'NT look good with its sleek, low-profile styling and handsome sheet-moulded cab, we also set out to make you feel good riding it. With a comfortable 3-layer foam sandwich seat and a 4-way suspension you can adjust for the smoothest ride over any terrain and load condition.
T'NT from Ski-Doo. It's got everything you expect to find in a high performance snowmobile, including a speedometer and tachometer as standard equipment. But T'NT isn't just a few hot features. It's a totally engineered machine. See it at your Ski-Doo dealer's. There are six new models to choose from, including two with electric start. And all have a full one-year warranty.

Sweeping Powers Sought

Oil Allocation Board Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — The government sought sweeping parliamentary powers Monday to control distribution of gasoline and heating oil supplies in shortage-threatened areas, primarily Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

Legislation proposed to establish a special energy supplies allocation board and to give it power to ration supplies, control prices and use ships, rail cars and pipelines on an emergency basis was introduced in the Commons by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

Many of the powers may not be necessary, he told reporters, but the government must prepare for the worst possibility—a potential shortage of 200,000 barrels of oil a day out of normal imports of 800,000.

He called for passage of the proposals by Christmas and there were indications the Commons would co-operate.

Conservative energy critic Alvin Hamilton said he was disappointed with some aspects—"it's only a token measure for the current crisis"—but his party would support it.

The allocation board's first task will be to impose rationing at the wholesale level, possibly by Jan. 1.

The program will apply only in regions where shortages exist and will oblige wholesalers to distribute supplies on a priority basis. Details have not been worked out but institutions such as hospitals and homes for the aged will come first.

A tithe same time, the board will have power to fix prices and prevent suppliers from cashing i non heavy demand by raising prices unnecessarily.

Mr. Macdonald said there appears to be no threat of individual rationing for the first three months of 1974, but the crucial period will come in late winter and early spring when supplies will be severely strained.

If individual rationing was needed, the board would issue individual rationing coupons and control their use through local, regional and central rationing boards. It also would set up a special tribunal to hear complaints.

The scheme would operate much the same as rationing measures adopted during the Second World War, Mr. Macdonald said.

Except for parts of Ontario and British Columbia, no areas outside Quebec and the Atlantic provinces face shortages this winter.

The proposed legislation sets out stiff penalties for violations of the bill or regulations imposed by the allocation board. They range from $1,000 to $50,000 in fines and prison sentences of up to two years.

Mr. Macdonald described the bill as sweeping in terms of the petroleum industry but said it shouldn't be compared with the War Measures Act, invoked during the 1970 Quebec crisis.

The allocation board could take charge of rail cars, ships and pipelines to move supplies to areas where they are needed most. This also applies to foreign ships within Canadian jurisdiction. The powers could be invoked even though they might interfere with customer commitments or cause financial losses.

In the case of pipelines, the government could order the operating company to build new branch lines or other facilities.

Scientists Jubilant

Jupiter's Violent Radiation Belts Fail to Silence Pioneer

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Pioneer 10 has sailed safely through Jupiter's radiation belts and still is transmitting important data as it heads for the Milky Way.

Jubilant scientists have begun to study data on the shape and nature of the giant planet's magnetic field, the magnitude of violent radiation belts and the turbulent atmosphere.

"I'm elated," said Charles Hall, Pioneer project manager, after the unmanned 570-pound spacecraft—nearly destroyed by violent radiation storms—swept within 81,000 miles of Jupiter's colorful, cloud tufts Monday night.

Hurled onward by Jupiter's gravity, 2.6 times greater than earth's, Pioneer began a voyage which departs the solar system in 1987 and subsequently enters the Milky Way.

Project scientists estimated Monday night that Pioneer's radio might continue to send data for five years, out to a distance of two billion miles from earth near the orbit of the planet Uranus.

The intensity of electron and proton radiation trapped in belts around Jupiter grew steadily Monday as the space probe plunged toward the planet. Scientists monitoring the rising radiation feared the spacecraft might be damaged or silenced.

Then about an hour before Pioneer swept on past Jupiter, at 82,000 miles an hour, radiation intensity began declining. The worst was past.

"If the (radiation) intensities had continued to go up a few minutes more, most of the instruments would have saturated and we'd have gone home without anything," Hall said.

Scientists said a picture Pioneer took shortly before its closest approach to Jupiter showed the planet's Great Red Spot. They speculated that a darkened area on the edge of the vast oval—larger than the earth—might be shadows cast by towering orange clouds.

The natives are asking the Supreme Court to again order work stopped until a final decision is made on their rights.

Patrol Aircraft Decision Near

Only Lockheed, Boeing In Running for Plane

OTTAWA (CP) — Although the government has not given official confirmation yet, the word is out that the cabinet has decided which its aerospace giants still are in the running to build Canada's new multi-million-dollar long-range patrol aircraft (LRPA).

Reports Monday said the companies are American-owned Lockheed Aircraft of Canada and Boeing.

They will receive government funding to help define their proposals for replacing the aging propeller-driven Argus that now is doing the major aerial surveillance work on the Canadian coasts.

Unsuccessful companies are the British Hawker-Siddley company and McDonnell Douglas of the U.S.

The defence department refused Monday to confirm the reports but said an announcement on the LRPA is expected shortly. Defence Minister James Richardson, who will make the announcement, was out of town Monday.

It is hoped the plane will be in the air in 1978 or 1979.

Although the government has never set a figure on the cost, talk here is that it will have to spend $1 billion for the 20 or 30 aircraft the armed forces want.

The cabinet decision would give the green light to Lockheed's proposal for its proven Orion turbo-prop anti-submarine aircraft and Boeing's idea to start from scratch with a surveillance aircraft using a three-engine 727 airframe.

It turned thumbs down on the Nimrod, a proven anti-submarine aircraft built on the Comet airframe by Hawker-Siddley, and a McDonnell Douglas idea of building the required plane on a DC-10 frame.

Because of the size of the contract and the potential to make sales in other countries, all companies have had to interest the government.

All emphasized that the contract would mean considerable work for Canadian industry.

Alberta Tears Up Royalty Contracts

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government is taking on the power to respond to federal energy moves, tearing up long standing contracts with producers of oil and natural gas.

The Conservative government of Premier Peter Lougheed introduced legislation Monday at the start of a special energy session of the legislature giving the cabinet power to set royalty rates, a form of tax on production, at any level it desires for both crude oil and natural gas.

It was the government's first move to increase gas royalties since it came into power in 1971.

A main feature of the legislation, the government says, is a requirement that holders of the 33.09 Crown leases that produce $5 per cent of the province's oil sell their product only to an Alberta petroleum marketing commission.

Another feature is that producers from Crown oil leases must pay their share of royalties "in kind," delivering to the government a percentage of their product, to be established later, instead of paying the value of this production in cash. Cash may be asked for in some instances, however.

The legislation voids contract clauses, held by about 75 per cent of Alberta's producers, stipulating a maximum royalty of 16 2 3 per cent.

The government has said the higher royalties are being sought to make sure oil companies do not gain windfall profits from price increases during the energy crisis.

Spokesmen have said the marketing commission represents the province's main effort to outflank Ottawa's export tax of $1.50 a barrel on crude oil.

Premier Lougheed said he hopes the commission will be able to sell oil to the United States at higher-than-current prices, thus eliminating the need for all or part of the export tax. The federal tax was imposed to prevent rising U.S. prices from causing a drain on Canadian oil.

The premier also said the commission might sell oil to Canadians at a lower price than to the United States, provided the Alberta still receives "fair value" for its products.

He has said fair value might be the price paid at Montreal for imported crude oil.

Indians Say Quebec Cannot Seize Lands

OTTAWA (CP) — Land title possessed by the 6,000 Indians and Eskimos in the James Bay territory of Quebec cannot be extinguished by Quebec alone but also requires parliamentary approval, lawyers for the native people argued Monday in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Montreal lawyer James O'Reilly said land rights of the native people are enshrined in similar acts passed by Quebec and Ottawa in 1912 which added James Bay to provincial land.

Both acts said the land could not be developed without first negotiating settlement with Indians and Eskimos living in the

Hanoi Troops Seize City

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam tanks and troops fought their way into a district capital in the Central Highlands Tuesday, and the battle was still raging as dusk approached, government military spokesmen reported.

The South Vietnamese command said government forces destroyed six North Vietnamese tanks in the fighting at Ben Duc, in the lower Central Highlands 90 miles northeast of Saigon.

Lt.Col. Le Trung Hien, Saigon's chief military spokesman, said it was the first time the Communists have attacked a district capital since the ceasefire Jan. 28.

Meanwhile, the South Vietnamese air force was making its heaviest attacks since the ceasefire on other Viet Cong and North Vietnamese positions.

The air raids today and Monday were in retaliation for the Viet Cong attack earlier Monday on the Nha Be oil depot, six miles southeast of Saigon.

Officials said 20 million to 25 million gallons of fuel were destroyed—about 50 per cent of the country's fuel reserves.

The Viet Cong claimed the South Vietnamese air attacks killed or wounded dozens of civilians and destroyed hundreds of homes in the Lac Minh area, the Viet Cong headquarters 78 miles north of Saigon.

U.S. Likely To Boost Tax on Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress may soon be asked to authorize a tax increase on gasoline that could raise the price in the United States by 10 cents to about 60 cents a gallon.

Administration forces favoring such an increase were working toward that goal in Congress even before a shakeup of President Nixon's energy advisers, sources said.

President Nixon was expected to announce today the creation of a new Federal Energy Administration headed by William Simon.

Also today the Senate was scheduled to take the measure to put the country on year-round Daylight Saving Time to conserve fuel.

Simon, who will remain as deputy treasury secretary, maintains that a heavy tax on gasoline is the best way to reduce consumption.

Oil

If necessary to protect the public interest.

While focusing on petroleum products, the bill also allows electricity rationing in cases where the power is generated by oil-burning power stations. Other forms of fuel such as coal could be rationed as well, but Mr. Macdonald said gasoline and heating oil are the main worries.

The legislation would expire automatically Dec. 31, 1974, but could be extended indefinitely by cabinet order.

In other developments, Mr. Macdonald told the House that a 35-cents-a-barrel weekend increase in the cost of Venezuelan crude oil will not be reflected for "some weeks at least" in higher retail prices.

Imported oil is used in all markets in and east of the Ontario Valley while domestic oil is used almost exclusively in other areas of the country.

The Venezuelan government, in the latest of a series of monthly increases, raised the price of crude to $7.74 a barrel from $7.39 in November, $4.90 in October and $3.11 last January.

Mr. Macdonald also told Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) enough steel will be available to extend the interprovincial crude oil pipeline to Montreal.

The statement was challenged by Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) and Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said his information backs up Mr. Macdonald.

Swing Into December

November may have been a wet and cold month but the first few days of December remember brought sunshine and cold but clear days to the area. And even the sun is shining you can almost think ahead to the warm days of summer only seven months away. Making good use of the weekend sunshine were Seamus Donohue, 6, in foreground and his four-year-old sister, Siobhan. The children now living in Ottawa and visiting their father in Belleville, were playing in the playground at the Four Seasons Hotel.

November Weather Was Near Average

The month of November was a bit cooler and wetter than usual. Not record-breaking by any means but just a bit.

The weather office at CFB Trenton reports the average temperature in Belleville and the Quinte area this November was 30.1 degrees.

This compares with a mean daily temperature taken from the past 25 years of 32.9 degrees.

The coldest day in the month was spread over two days, the 16th and 17th when the temperature dipped to 20 degrees.

The warmest day was Nov. 28 when the temperature soared to 50 degrees, coming within one degree of matching the last warmest day of 55 degrees set in 1937.

But, says the weather office, some temperatures in early November have sometimes reached into the low 70s, and the low has sunk to 8 degrees below zero.

The mean minimum temperature in November is 30.1 so this area's minimum in November of 31 was slightly higher than in other months.

The mean maximum temperature for the month is 45 degrees but this November the temperature reached a high maximum of 37.4 degrees, a bit lower than the average.

And the Quinte area was slightly higher in precipitation. A total of 7.33 inches of precipitation fell, with 3.69 inches of that coming in the form of rain.

Snow (unmelted) that fell accounted for 1.4 inches.

The weather officer says that the total precipitation of November is not exceptional considering that in 10 years of the last 30, the area has had above 4 inches of precipitation. "And it has gone as high as 5.3 inches," he said.

The average amount of precipitation over 3.3 inches in November's amount of 3.78 was slightly above the average.

"All in all it wasn't overly hot or overly cold and we didn't have any daily records," said the weather officer but the month's average and predictions for December. The Farmer's Almanac, for the record, he says, has cold winter forecast for those who sweat by its predictions.

Optical Industry Inquiry Called for in Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon has called for an independent investigation into the optical industry in Ontario.

Speaking in the legislature Monday, he repeated charges voiced earlier and said there appear to be price-fixing in the optical industry.

Mr. Nixon said Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) first raised the issue six months ago and now has been the subject of an investigation by The Globe and Mail.

"Is the minister aware that his lack of action in this matter for the last six months has further contributed to the loss of confidence in the province's house and in the community in his effectiveness as an administrator?"

Mr. Roy suggested a royal commission be set up by the federal government to investigate the entire optical industry, and in particular, the activities of Imperial.

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, said amendments to the Health Disciplines Act empowered the Optical Co. Ltd.'s control of the industry.

Mr. Lewis said the amendments read as though the ministry of health were in "cahoots" with Imperial Optical in order to have that company control and dispensing control of the industry."

Mr. Roy said that because of the lack of action, the premier should no longer tolerate health Minister Richard Potter as a cabinet minister.

Mr. Davis said the Liberals would be lucky if they could get a man of Dr. Potter's calibre and asked the NDP leader to wait until the Health Disciplines Act is completed before making any judgments.

Dr. Potter noted that earlier charges concerned a conflict of interests on the optical governing body—the board of ophthalmic dispensers.

"I think the government certainly will be looking at the structure and the membership of the—whatever the board is called (Ophthalmic Dispensers Board)," Mr. Davis said.

Charges were investigated and found and not substantiated, he said.

Meanwhile, outside the house, a Consumers Association of Canada official said a publication of Ontario's optics industry will be high on the agenda of an Ontario branch executive meeting Thursday.

Aspertia Turner, chairman of the association's Ontario research committee, said she was "most perturbed" at the newspaper disclosures.

Ronald Brownridge, assistant secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, said there is certain to be an investigation of "implications" that some opthalmologists are indirectly receiving outside income from the sale of eyeglasses.

Noting that new rules of ethics for the industry are being prepared, Mr. Brownridge expressed hope that the rules will prevent this sort of thing in future."

Prince Edward Development Draft

McFarland: Parts of Plan 'Old Hat'

PICTON—The town of Picton has received Prince Edward County draft official plan but Mayor H. J. McFarland considers some of its contents "old hat."

"I have a Bible here that Moses had in the ark 1 that's inadequate in peak traffic.

He said that the plan should be carefully studied by each councillor, the town clerk and the town solicitor.

Mayor McFarland noted that county council has spent approximately $30,000 in a five-year period in preparing plans.

Picton deputy-reeve James Bird replied that the original planning consultants did not act with adequate efficiency, in council's opinion, and a county planner was later hired.

"We were forced into doing this by senior government," commented reeve Bird, discussing preparation of a plan.

He added that if the county had not taken action the government might have chosen to impose its own legislation.

W. (Wally) Evans, Picton's representative to the Prince Edward planning board attended last night's council session and the commission continued for about six weeks before it resumed last summer that the dispute would go to arbitration.

The police commission is represented at the hearing by solicitors H.B. Willston and A.M.J. Rock of Toronto. Arbitrator is George Ferguson Q.C. of Toronto.

Mr. Mason said that Eric Hardy of Hardy Consulting Ltd. also is in Picton for the hearing. Mr. Hardy headed surveys of the town's economic base and of the salaries of other municipal police departments.

Talk Subdivision Draft

PICTON — Town council will hold a special meeting at 7 p.m. Dec. 19 to examine a subdivision agreement draft proposal.

The agreement will be "proof-read", according to councillor Larry Richardson, during the meeting.

Town solicitor Jack Ward remarked the agreement proposes a "middle-of-the-road" course geared to the municipality's situation at this time. It is not intended as a permanent agreement since items such as trunk sewers and trunk mains are not mentioned.

There will be a separate agreement for each development according to the lawyer.

Several developers attended last night's council session to hear discussion of the agreement. One of these, Malcolm Campbell, of Campbell Construction, Picton, felt that developers should be allowed to study the agreement with council.

Picton Arbitration On Police Pay Opens

PICTON — An arbitration hearing to resolve the salary dispute between Picton police department and the town police commission opened here today.

Jesse Mason, police commission chairman, said that police are seeking a 31 per cent salary increase in a one-year period. The commission's last offer outlined a 19 per cent increase in the first year of a new contract and a five per cent increase in the second.

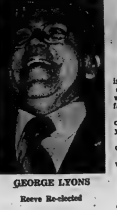
Mayor Offers Signals At His Own Expense



PICTON — Mayor Harvey J. McFarland has pledged signal lights at his expense for a Picton intersection, if the town council obtain action through other channels.

He forwarded his offer after council had read a report stating that Main and Paul streets intersection did not meet requirements of transportation and communications ministry for signals at this time.

It was noted that, should the town seek legal approval for the signals from the ministry, it would be billed with full installation cost if permission for lights were granted. The ministry refuses to subsidize a system unless requirements are met.

Mayor McFarland said that he hopes to speak with the minister as he considers action necessary at intersection.

Cost has been estimated at a minimum $5,000.

GEORGE LYONS
Reeve Re-elected

Big Turnout In Deseronto Election

DESERONTO (Staff) — In an election Monday that brought out the biggest turnout of voters in recent years, James Bates was returned for a fourth term as mayor and George Lyons as reeve.

Mr. Bates' victory was his seventh year as mayor, defeating former council member Jim McVicker by a margin of 182 votes. The incumbent received 453 votes, Mr. McVicker 311.

Mr. Lyons defeated Edward Gordonier, a councillor for eight years, with a vote tally of 398 to 341.

All members of council will serve a one-year term. In 1974, another election will be called in the town. This will bring town elections in line with other Ontario municipalities where campaigns now are in every two years.

Re-elected as public utilities commissioner over Jack de Boer, a newcomer to Deseronto politics, was Adrian McCormack. Mr. deBoer polled 292 votes to Mr. McCormack's 472.

Six candidates contested three council seats in the election which saw 61.8 per cent of the town's 1,228 eligible voters turn out.

Jack Mitchell was returned for another term with 360 votes. Marvin Brooks, receiving 356 votes, and Fletcher Vick, with 351, were also elected.

Defeated in the election were Hugo Newman - (335 votes); only woman candidate Diane Sergeant (300) and Merton Cummings (310).

Council Expected to Endorse Trenton Marina Project

TRENTON — A resolution is expected at next Monday's council meeting to endorse with plans to develop a marina facility in Centennial Park.

The project has been under consideration for the past 18 years. Through lack of funding and other park priorities the development was shelved.

Monday night council met with representatives of Jobanno and Gore Consultants to discuss the $800,000 scheme.

Council endorsed the idea of creating the marina considering the town's location at the mouth of a large inland river system, forecast revenue from the tourist trade and apparent shortage of area marina facilities.

When the project was conceived, council was told it would need $400,000 to complete. Since the early 1960s the price has doubled, and while there was some doubt on council the marina would pay for itself, there was also fear of the price doubling again if action was delayed another five years.

Many drawback told council that due to cost increases of labor and construction, "the marina operation will lose money."

Plan statements co-incided with those of a municipal officer who after creating a forecast for the marina said, "I'm not enthusiastic about the marina from a dollars and cents point of view."

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry, like members of council, felt a weak financial operation might well be offset by the other non-monetary benefits such as the tourist trade. Though the marina itself would not be creating great sums of money, boaters would be shopping for groceries and supplies in the town.

There was speculation whether the area conservation authority would be able to subsidize part of the project. It was mentioned Trenton — any one municipality in the Trent Conservation Authority — was already getting a good portion of the conservation dollar in green-belt land acquisition near the downtown core.

Cost of the project will not fall totally on Trentons shoulders. Federal grants and in-

Ask Ottawa For Tides Information

TRENTON — Town council last night endorsed a request to the federal government to provide tide information to communities surrounding Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

The petition, proposed by St. Catharines, requests the federal government to regularly relay information to shoreline communities prone to spring flood conditions.

A municipal officer said it wouldn't affect Trenton greatly, even though it suffered from high water last spring.

"We're already getting the same information from the United States Army Engineers Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry said. "We asked for it once and they kept giving it to us regularly."

Big Saving Is Seen

TRENTON — Trenton is in for big savings following a financial report received at council Monday night.

Treasurer Brian Fagan said by appropriating $211,000 against the town's debenture debt, annual payments can be reduced by more than $36,000 over the next 20 years.

A second effect would be a $267,000 savings on accumulated interest from the lump payments.

The funds are available through current budget money set for capital budget expenditures.

For a zero balance in the current budget category, the final $21,000 would be spent paying off several sewer, sidewalk and road construction jobs undertaken this past year.

Recreation Director Is Hired

PICTON — A 24-year-old Kanata, Ont., man Richard Hall, has been hired as Picton's recreation director. He was one of 35 applicants for the job vacated by Wayne Ring of Picton.

Ross Conkwright, deputy-reeve of Picton and chairman of council's recreation and parks committee, said that Mr. Hall's appointment would be effective next Jan. 1.

He was hired at a salary of $8,200. In addition he will receive an annual car allowance.

1,000 Jobs At Loch Sloy?

PICTON — Town council's fire committee will investigate a request from Loch Sloy Holdings Ltd. for a fire protection agreement.

In a letter to council, Harvey McFarland junior, vice-president, said 1,000 fire hydrants are available for use at the company's industrial park and urged negotiations for an agreement "in the very near future."

At the opening of Monday's council session Mayor Harvey McFarland said there are now five industries in operation at Loch Sloy industrial park. He predicted that, in the next 18 months, there could be from 500 to 1,000 employees.

At Marmora-Lake

Two Share 64 Years In Local Government

MARMORA — Two local government staff members, sharing a total 64 years of municipal service, received tributes for their work here Monday night.

Thos Bateman, Marmora and Lake township' clerk-treasurer and Mrs. Gertrude Leonard, township tax collector, both joined the municipality's staff in 1941.

Salaries for both posts were never raised, and Mr. Bateman and Mrs. Leonard assumed and held the positions through the years because they also wanted to serve their municipality and liked meeting the public, Hastings County Administrator Carl Bateman said.

The county official was among local government representatives who spoke at a banquet in the Royal Hotel here, marking the long service of the two township employees.

Both will retire at the year's end.

Mrs. Leonard took over a job left vacant by the death of her husband, Orville.

In a busy life she also had helped her husband farm, was secretary-treasurer of her local school section, and she succeeded township school board. The Beaver Creek Telephone Co., a local operation, also called on her time, until its takeover by Bell Telephone.

Mrs. Leonard raised two sons, Albert, now township road superintendent, and Graeme of Toronto. She has three grandchildren.

With her retirement council has abolished the tax collector post, contracting the work to a computer service.

Mr. Bateman notes that assessment has increased from 500 to 2,600 since he joined the township in 1941.

When he started, his work involved less than three days a week. Among other big changes is the switch from local compiling of election lists to merely revising records each time there's an election.

Born on the Malone Road in Madoc township, he also farmed for a number of years and also secretary of the local school section. He also has been secretary-treasurer of the Marmora Agriculture Society.

The Batemans have five children, eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

A Livelier Winter?

There have been the usual conflicting predictions as to the severity of the winter season. One or it has been uncommonly mild and one newspaper has pointed to a Farmer's Almanac claim that it is to be that kind of a winter. Depends of course which Almanac one reads; this one we saw calls for storm conditions around the turn of the year and of course anything can happen before then. A year or two ago we recall a snow-free Christmas day, a situation of course that did not last for long.

What about the winter sports scene?

In Belleville there is a variety of indoor as well as outdoor sports. There is bowling, indoor tennis and facilities for squash rackets are on the way. The snowmobilers of course just like to get out there, fuel crisis or not (nothing has been said of any restrictions in this recreational sphere) and there are the skaters who like to get out on a frozen pond.

The latter may be in the minority though, as also are the zealots who like nothing better than a walk on a crisp winter's day. Sadly, those delightful Christmas card scenes relied for the most part on the nostalgia of days past.

Is there any chance though it might return, especially with fuel scarce for mechanized travel? Perhaps there is an opportunity here for tourist operators to promote not only the usual snowmobiling, but also winter walking. How about a return to old-fashioned winter activities that place more emphasis on the outdoors — for it is true picture were to be given of the average seasonal pastime in Canada today it would show the extent of our sedentary ways: an easy chair and a view of the television set.

The younger in particular like to get out. Maybe there is scope here for members of the Ontario Motel Association of which former Bellevillian I.t.-Col. Kenneth Willcocks of Bancroft has just been elected president.

Winter sees reduced operation by many motels, the closing of dining facilities for example, and it may be unrealistic to expect otherwise. But if Col. Willcocks, a former commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and his fellow motel operators could see their way to encouraging more outdoor recreation in winter it could be of benefit to all concerned.

Cancer Research

Cancer, despite advances in treatment methods over the years, remains a serious menace to the health of Canadians and there is a danger, according to a Cancer Society spokesman, of research programs being held back for lack of funds.

Kenneth West, Ontario division president of the society, told the provincial division's annual meeting in Toronto that the society at large will have to collect even more money than before, not only because requirements for education and service in the field are increasing, but also because ever-increasing amounts will be needed for the research arm, the National Institute of Canada.

Belleville's Shirley Woodcock, representing the society at the local unit, was among those who heard Mr. West warn of the urgent and continuing needs of this facet of medical research. We could wish for greater progress in combating the menace, but it will certainly not be forthcoming if the society does not have the funds to pursue research.

The division's campaign goal for 1974 is $4,700,000, according to Mr. West.

Cancer services for patients in Ontario is the provision of overnight accommodation for patients who must travel from out-of-town to attend out-patient clinics in major centres. Thus far the society has built five lodges: in Thunder Bay, London, Hamilton, Toronto and Ottawa. The establishment of another one, in Kingston, is anticipated.

Another field of preventive treatment is the Industrial Cancer Education Service which now has six nurses presenting the division's Seven Steps to Health program to thousands of workers each year. Seminars are also conducted for medical and teaching professionals and the general public.

This is vital work, remembering also that regular check-ups and early diagnosis are of paramount importance. It is very much in the public interest that campaigns to pursue cancer research receive our continuing support.

Sizeable Boost in Unemployment Contributions in 1974

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

When 1974 begins, Canadians will start paying substantially more for unemployment insurance.

They will surely be asking, more insistently than ever, is that insurance can be one reason why the jobless rate in this prosperous country never seems to go down to an acceptable level.

The compulsory UI premium—"tax" would be a more accurate word — will rise by more than 30 per cent to $5.35 a week or $278.76 for each employee at the maximum contributing level. The employee pays just over two-fifths, and the employer pays the rest.

These "contributions," however, cover only about 36 per cent of the cost of UI operations. The other 64 per cent is paid by the government from its general tax revenues.

With UI benefit payments nearing $3 billion a year, the accumulated deficit in the UI fund approaching $500 million, and the levy on employees and employers rising by nearly a third, it's time for the government of Canada to re-examine the UI scheme and its relation to the labor supply.

Some members of the scheme are quick to denounce its critics as selfish, tight-fisted morons who must be taught that the strong should help the weak.

But such glib accusations are no answer to the problem. Unemployment insurance has, like the Income Tax Act, become a political patchwork of short-term policies and arbitrary measures, almost devoid of any coherent principles.

The government's eagerness to share the wealth has undoubtedly created a good many people that idleness beats working, since such a government would never allow them to go without the necessities of life.

Just how many freeloaders there are is the big unanswered and unanswerable question. Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras apparently thinks there are relatively few, but he hasn't produced any evidence to prove his point.

There have even been disturbing reports that the share-the-wealth philosophy has led some misguided civil servants to deter job-seekers from taking work.

The unemployment insurance plan is obviously not functioning efficiently, unless efficiency be defined in terms of swelling the bureaucracy and spending the people's money around.

It's true that Ottawa has periodically launched drives to uncover those who make a mockery of the UI plan, and to halt their abuses. But, after a while, the problem seems to be as acute as ever.

It may be too much to hope that abuses can ever be eliminated from a universal unemployment insurance scheme. But the government must find ways to maintain the worthwhile features of the system, while removing the incentive temptation it affords to many to live in idleness off the efforts of their neighbors.

"Of course I need the car — you don't expect me to walk to my keep-fit class?"

Greek President Clung To Power Too Long

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — The downfall of Greek President George Papadopoulos apparently began when he surrendered to ambition to cling to power and thus diverted from his stated course of preparing the way for his own replacement.

In so doing, he sacrificed the vital loyalty of the army whose officers increasingly felt he was betraying the aims of the 1967 military coup to eleanse public life of corruption and smooth the way to eventual democratic government.

Nethertheless, Papadopoulos evidently felt secure against any counter-coup, buttressed as he was behind a highly efficient system of surveillance while Greece rode the wave of a European boom that helped keep the country complacent.

As an additional measure, he apparently manipulated army transfers to deter formation of any officer opposition group.

But the student revolt last week, and Papadopoulos's violent response with troops and tanks which left about 11 or 12 dead, provided the opportunity opening the dissident officers needed. Almost overnight, support for the president evaporated and he was under house arrest.

Some of the many rumors and reports circulating in Athens suggest Papadopoulos engineered the student uprising as an excuse to invoke martial law and strengthen his hand, but whatever the true story, it was his undoing.

Although the timing of the latest coup was a surprise, many observers of the Greek scene felt it was inevitable. Papadopoulos put himself in jeopardy, they say, as soon as he moved to "demilitarize" his regime, ousted military colleagues from his cabinet and set about consolidating his quasi-democracy through elections set for 1974.

Meanwhile, the constitution Papadopoulos designed would leave him all-powerful until at least 1981 when the first presidential elections were to be held.

All this was in direct conflict with the stated aims of the military coup that took power in 1967 and installed Papadopoulos while promising to eliminate corruption and aim eventually for democratic elections.

Despite promises by the new regime to "return to the honorable land" of the last coup, it remains to be seen whether this means another long period of military rule for Greece or whether the new rulers really intend to "create the necessary conditions for a return to parliamentary life on healthy foundations."

Barrett Avoids The Party Line

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Some political matters:

This has been a time for annual NDP party meetings across the country and once again there has been trouble about party policy.

In British Columbia the convention voted a reprimand to Premier David Barrett for not following party lines on labor.

Then in Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney personally intervened to prevent passage of a resolution which proposed nationalizing the province's energy resources.

Both leaders are committed.

In Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney personally intervened to prevent passage of a resolution which proposed nationalizing the province's energy resources.

Both leaders are committed.

Schreyer in Manitoba said he wasn't going to be tied down by platforms. And leader Stephen Lewis he has taken the same position.

Which surely must signal the clear end of probably this party's most awkward practice.

In its zeal for the supposed "democratic approach" and desire to get everyone in the act it has overlooked that it just wasn't politically 'oractical' to have convention design platforms.

In the emotional atmosphere of these gatherings practically anything can have a chance of evidently felt secure against

And then the political leadership may have to flirt with defeat by trying to administer it as Premier Blakeney feared with the nationalization proposal in Saskatchewan.

The realities of office have forced the western leaders to face practicality, and Stephen Lewis, in many ways an astute young man, has long had a sense of it.

One change that was somewhat overlooked in Premier David's reorganization of his personal office was the an'ouncement that Hugh Latimer was assuming other duties.

Mr. Latimer is an old pro politician who for a long time was associated with the Conservative party as an organizer.

He was brought into the premier's office as a contact man after Mr. Davis took over as leader.

This was the first time that a man with such a political background had been directly attached to a premier's office.

No reason was given for shifting him out, but presumably the premier felt that with the political pressures there have been his presence could be embarrassing.

UK's Difficulties
A South African View Of Multi-Culturalism

South Africa frequently is criticized for its policy of apartheid, a system that keeps the various races more or less in their own groups and discourages free association. The South African government regards its policy not so much as discriminatory racial, but as a program of "separate development". At the same time South Africans insist that race problems in other countries and note there is discrimination there too. The following is an extract from an article by Anelia Ferraz in The South African Financial Gazette.

If ever there was a lesson that experience has taught, it is that, if you start forcing people of different colors to integrate, you are asking for trouble.

Nowhere in the world has integration really succeeded. Your Frogs and your Spaniards generally tell you that this is not so, and they will probably quote Kenya as an example of how Whites and Blacks live amicably together.

This (the Kenyan example) may or may not be true, but it is beside the question. Tiny minority groups, whether they are Black or White, pose few problems. It is when they begin to represent a sizeable proportion of the population as a portion of the population as a whole that trouble starts. We have learned those lessons of history — if she had taken the trouble to study history carefully what has happened in, for instance the United States. And it is also through slavery, whilst a race problem on itself — she would not be in the racial mess she is in now.

It may not be much of a mess as yet, but mess it is and it is going to get worse, not better.

It is in the power of government to forbid racial discrimination and quite another to stop it.

This hostility spreads in nearly every walk of life. The Soweto riots are the end of last year the entire Asian work force (500 men) left the Natal Municipal Hosiery Mills came out on strike against what they called "job preservation".

Asians complained that, while they were doing the same work force, every one of the skilled and highly paid jobs was held by a White. The Runnymede Trust reported that all the "Coloured" housing was built by British workers in a system of White supervision.

One British critic has said: "There is no escape from the ghettos for thousands of Britain's colored immigrants — Asians and West Indians — who to talk of a system "which keeps Colored workers in menial jobs and installed Europeans as an exploiter."

The word "explosion" springs far too readily to lips of many writers as we have seen in the case of the Runnymede Trust, in Britain Non-whites are regarded as an inferior, supplementary labor force".

The real problem for Britain, however is not so much whether it is worthwhile or possible for ever to do all the dirty jobs, but the general attitude of the public to Blacks. It is a question of hostility and often hatred that is already finding expression in riots.

A year ago there were violent racial clashes in Liverpool, when squads of police moved in to separate gangs of Whites and Nonwhite youths from setting up "no go" areas.

Not so long ago a race riot between Black and White pupils in a Black Country school and a gang of 100 or so Colored teenagers armed with such weapons as shotguns, stilettos and milk bottles stormed into a Dulwich School and attacked White students.

A West Indian schoolgirl was burned to death in her home when a gas cylinder which was planted in her home exploded.

Two West Indian families fled their homes in Leeds after White youths began a campaign of terror against them.

The lesson of all this is, in the words of a Los Angeles Times writer, that "British tolerance has proved unable to withstand the impact of 2 - million Asians, West Indians, and Africans. Most sadly," he writes, "British examples compels the conclusion that racial and religious prejudice is endemic. If men of different colors and creeds cannot live happily together in once tolerant Britain, where can they?"

Or, as another writer in a recent article in The Star put it: "Where racial and cultural boundaries coincide in a multi - racial society, friction is inevitable."

We in Southern Africa discovered this centuries ago, and have adapted to it and still are adapting to it.

Employees And Part Contracts

Montreal La Presse: ...

What often strikes the outside observer is that union members are not always informed about their employer's economic problems. In an objective manner before they are asked to accept or reject them.

The executive, which is rarely neutral in these matters, usually makes use of membership meetings to arouse the ire of the workers, and a vote is taken in this sort of atmosphere which is hardly conducive to serene reflection.

We believe one should insist that at least the details of the proposed contract is given to the union members before they are asked to vote on it. Some people go even further.

The Woods report, commissioned by the federal government in 1968, recommended this precaution. And the employer's right to make his point of view available to the workers" before the vote takes place.

One must not forget that unions are institutions which they serve with zeal, and their actions can upset not only business interests or those of the population in general, but also the lives of their members.

These members have the right to be protected, especially since they are not always free to join or not to join a union.

We should, therefore, favor any measure of this kind which would guarantee impartial exposure of the facts before every vote concerning acceptance of a new contract or the beginning of a strike.

There should also be room to ask for more than 50% even if it is secret, when taken during a meeting risks being biased.

This is because of two things: On the one hand either the union members present have been badly informed or the meeting has been used mainly to arouse their passions and on the other hand, only the minority group turns up for the meeting.

Is the case, for example, of the Montreal bus and subway workers, it seems obvious that the group which represented a majority of the meeting was not the real majority of the membership.

Therefore, should we not be for as to make the vote obligatory, we should at least have another suggestion from the Woods report which recommends the vote, in such cases, be held either when employees enter work or by mail.

This way, one would have a larger vote less susceptible to being influenced by the heat of meetings. Wouldn't democracy be better off?

NDP MP Wants Indians, Ex-cons on Parole Board

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democrat bid for Indian and ex-convict representation on an expanded parole board was branded discriminatory by the other parties in Commons debate Monday.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) argued that adding two Indians and two former prisoners would give the board needed representation and experience, but members of other parties said it would create a bad precedent.

Mr. Howard said Indian representation is necessary because of a disproportionately high number of Indians in prison.

Amendments to place Indians and ex-convicts on the board were introduced by Mr. Howard during debate on a bill to expand the parole board by 15 part-time members. The board now has up to nine full-time members.

Mr. Howard said 25 to 30 per cent of the federal prison population in western Canada consists of Indians. In some provincial jails, the level is 75 to 80 per cent.

Despite their numbers, native peoples do not get equitable consideration when they apply for parole, he said.

Wally Firth (NDP—Northwest Territories), a Metis, termed the large number of native people in penal institutions "a deplorable situation as far as I'm concerned." Before the white man arrived, native people had a good rehabilitation system for lawbreakers, "a system without locks or bars."

The only non-NDP speaker to support Mr. Howard's suggestion on Indian representation was Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot). However, he was unhappy the separate amendments on Indians and ex-convicts were lumped together for debate.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said parole board members should not be picked on a racial basis. Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said such a selection might pave the way for linguistic, regional and sexual representation.

Plane Passengers Face, Federal Head Tax Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Air passengers will be hit with a government head tax within weeks, the first of what will probably be a series of steps to higher air fares.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand announced Monday that air carriers will have to pay a $2.50 head tax for passengers boarding aircraft at airports operated by the transport department. The Air Transport Association of Canada has indicated the cost will be passed on to the air traveller.

A single passenger could wind up paying the charge several times in one trip, if he happened to switch from one flight to another on his way to his destination. He would also have to pay when boarding a return flight.

Ford and Union Reach Agreement

TORONTO (CP) — United Auto Workers (UAW) and Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. reached a tentative agreement today in the 14-day strike by 15,000 workers in five Ontario plants.

Details of the settlement were withheld pending ratification by the union membership.

The agreement ended a marathon bargaining session which began Saturday and halted only occasionally until the settlement was announced about 8:30 a.m. today.

Key issues in the strike were union demands for voluntary overtime and optional retirements with full pension after 30 years' service.

The latter issue had been complicated by a federal government announcement that legislation requiring an age qualification of 25 years for full pension would not apply in certain circumstances.

The union had insisted on the right, while the company had held that concession on that point would be out of line with a prior settlement with Chrysler Canada Ltd. and might be too costly to fund.

On the overtime issue, the union had demanded that compulsory overtime be banned from the new contract. Ford had proposed the United States terms that permitted mandatory overtime for six Saturdays in a year and one hour a day for assembly line workers in the auto plants.

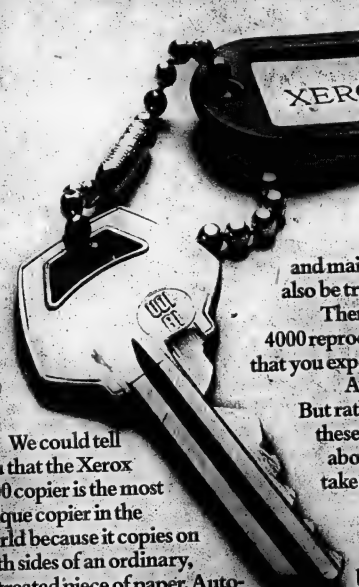
The Chrysler agreement had maintained past practices that allowed the company to require employees to work up to eight hours a week overtime.

The Chrysler wage agreement setting a $5.13 hour rate for major assembly line workers had been accepted by both parties.

Other issues at Ford were matters relating to working conditions, discipline, plant safety and fringe benefits, including a new dental plan.

The talks had halted production at the Ford car-truck assembly plant in Oakville, the small-car assembly line at St. Thomas, the engine plant in Windsor, the glass works at Niagara Falls and national parts depot at Bramalea.

Ratification meetings are expected to take most of this week but if the contract is approved workers might be back on the job as early as Monday, at the latest Monday, a Ford spokesman said.



Berets, Clocks Dangerous

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer affairs department Monday issued a warning against certain Italian-made berets and a clock-radio lamp combination made by the Longine Symphonette Society of Intercredit Bank.

The berets have been found to be dangerously flammable, the department warned. Owners are urged to throw them out.

The clock-radio-lamp appliance was found to be defective after a St. John's, Nfld., consumer woke up early one morning to find the radio smoldering.

We could tell you that the Xerox 4000 copier is the most unique copier in the world because it copies on both sides of an ordinary, untreated piece of paper. Automatically. And that would be true.

And we could tell you that because it does copy on both sides of a piece of paper, you'll cut your filing space in half and save money on paper and mailing costs. And that would also be true.

Then we could tell you that the 4000 reproduces with the crisp clarity that you expect from a Xerox machine. And that also would be true.

But rather than have us tell you all these wonderful and true things about the 4000 copier, why not take it for a test run. Then you'll say... "It's true, everything they said about the 4000 was true!" And that would be fantastic.

MPPs to Get $4,500 More

The legislation calls for a private member's salary to be raised to $15,000 a year from $13,000, and the tax-free expense allowance be increased to $7,500 from $6,000.

Outside the legislature, Premier Davis refused to confirm that a free vote would be allowed on the salary increases which will be made retroactive to Oct. 1, 1973.

The premier would say only that any member of the legislature may vote any way he pleases at any time.

Members of the three provincial parties, except in rare instances, vote along party policy lines. A free vote frees them from voting with other members of their party on any issue.

Basically, the government is accepting the recommendations of the three-member commission on the Ontario legislature headed by Dalton Camp.

Robert Nixon, leader of the 22 Liberals in the legislature and Stephen Lewis, who heads the 19 New Democrats, told reporters they would support the bill.

"As far as I know the party will support the proposals as recommended by the Camp Commission," said Mr. Nixon. "We think it's a fair and justifiable change."

Mr. Lewis also said there was no indication that any member of his caucus would vote against the raises and it would be "hypocritical" since his party supported an independent appraisal of salaries as provided by the Camp Commission.

Premier Davis said he had discussed the bill with his caucus and expected full government support. But he was evasive when asked repeatedly by reporters whether he would allow a free vote on the issue.

There are additional pension and travel allowance benefits in the legislation as well as an additional representational allowance of $1,500 for the leader of the third party—Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party.

The premier said it may be that some members feel the commission's recommendations are not generouf enough and some may feel they are too generous.

But Mr. Davis urged acceptance.

The legislation also adds a range of items for which members will receive compensation after Jan. 1, 1974.

Those are:

—Allowances of 15 cents a mile for auto trips to and from Toronto and within a member's riding.

—Unlimited travel by train and bus to and from Toronto and within the riding.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

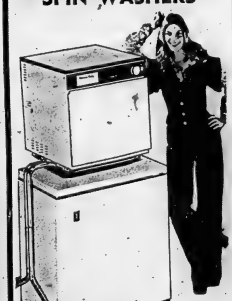
Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research Institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.



Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Piano Lessons—Practice Makes Perfect

La-da-da-Da-da.

You're in playing scales on the piano.

C-D-E-F-G-A-B-C.

Over and over and over.

Remember?

Piano lessons are a part of so many childhoods. Sometimes just for a year or two, sometimes right through high school, piano lessons require daily discipline as much as a "good ear" for music.

In fact, anyone can learn to play the piano. It's a matter of mastering the mechanics and memorizing the keys.

It's with this in mind that many parents send their children along to a piano teacher, hoping that musical talent will emerge during the lessons.

There is, of course, a possibility of that happening, but the best results usually occur when music lessons are suggested by the child.

Take the case of Jamie Voogt. After just three years of study, the nine-year-old pianist is working at his grade five conservatory book.

He takes lessons once a week from Dolores Wall, and is one of her most eager pupils.

"I've wanted to play the piano ever since I was little," explains Jamie.

He practices every day except on Sunday.

"I miss a rest then and do music theory instead," says Jamie.

Wanting to learn makes the necessary practising no ordeal at all.

"Well, I like doing the pieces, but doing scales is yukky."

Yukky is one of the least strong and most descriptive words to describe scales used by piano students.

Nobody ever really likes the repetitious drilling, but without it a student can't advance.

"I try to show my pupils the value of scales by relating them to pieces where arpeggios and chords depend on scale-playing," says Sister Mary Avila.

A piano teacher for more than 20 years, Sister Mary suggests that age seven or eight is the best time for most children to focus their attention on learning piano technique.

"Concentration is probably the single most important quality in learning to play well," she says.

Audrey McSherry, who studies piano at St. Joseph's Convent once a week, is one of Sister Mary's best students. She practices about half an hour a day, and is in grade four.

Of course, playing the piano well gives others pleasure too.

(Remember how you always had to play when Auntie Myrtle came to visit?)

As students become more skilful they gain confidence about playing for audiences, such as they do at recitals. There are three or four recitals yearly in Belleville at which young pianists have a chance to be heard.

Recently the residents of Hastings Manor were treated to a recital by students of the 15 registered music teachers in the area.

Registered teachers belong to the Ontario Registered Music Teachers Association. In order to be members they must have a degree from a recognized school of music, and proof of teacher training and experience.

Music teachers must never stop studying, says Lorraine Pregent, president of the local association. Besides keeping their own musical ability in top form, they must stay aware of new teaching methods and materials, and changing requirements for their students.

"Establishing rapport with my students is one of my top priorities," says Mrs. Wall. She says that getting children to relax and enjoy the piano always results in better performance.

She and Jamie have the kind of easy-going relationship that make lessons fun for both of them. She encourages him and he responds by asking to play more difficult pieces.

Rowena Boyce, who has taught piano for over 40 years, has several methods of inspiring her students. With her younger pianists, she rewards them with colorful stickers on the pages of their music books as they perfect each piece.

The positive approach is favored by all teachers nowadays, and the type of teacher who rapped your knuckles and snapped "Sit up, sonny and keep those wrists high off the keys!" is long gone.

One of Mrs. Boyce's pupils, Susan Wishart, is just starting out in her grade one book.

Asked what her favorite piano music is, Susan replies, "The ones in the key of C with no sharps or flats!"

What beginner wouldn't agree with her!)

Susan is following in the footsteps of an older brother and sister, also taught by Mrs. Boyce. Music teachers often instruct whole families, from mom and dad right down to the kids.

Yes, there are plenty of adults taking lessons, some for the first time, and some for a "brushing up" after years of neglecting the keyboard.

Audrey McSherry concentrates as she plays her recital piece from memory, and Jamie Voogt wears the same intense expression as he plays one of his "fun pieces", his reward for practising scales. Below, music teacher Rowena Boyce counts the rhythm for Susan Wishart as she plays one of her beginner's pieces, "Long, Long Ago", Cutline

Lorraine Pregent shows Addie Vinall where that note she was missing is, and helps her with the fingering techniques that are all-important to smooth piano playing. The two women have a relaxed student-teacher relationship that make piano lessons fun for them both.

An educational consultant for the separate school board, Mrs. Vinall has been studying now for three years, and admits that she'd be further ahead if she's practise more.

"But we just moved my piano into its own room," she says, "and Ill have my own practice place. I'm sure I'll do very well now."

She is already doing well, and deriving great satisfaction from playing music by Bach and Handel.

Mrs. Vinall has found piano-playing quite easy, and thinks that her experience as a typist has helped her.

"Definitely," agrees Mrs. Pregent. "Children's hands are still supple and flexible and can adjust easily to difficult positions at the piano. But adults hands are already formed and the stretching and bending of fingers can be much more of a chore."

Housewives do make good students though, says Mrs. Wall, and the other teachers agree with her. Women who can spend an hour or more a day practising are bound to do well.

That's what they all say.

Back to the piano.

Ann Landers

She Forgave and Forgot

Dear Ann Landers: Funny how your advice for somebody else had a message for me. It took it eight years ago and I am writing to say thank you. It was the "forgive and forget" answer you gave to a woman with small children and a husband with a "wandering eye."

You said, "If there is a light in the window, and the man has any good in him, he'll be back. Then you added, 'Don't be stubborn or proud.' Take him back. I promise you won't regret it."

When I read that letter my husband was living away from home and he wanted to come back, but I just couldn't bring myself to accept him. Your advice to that woman seemed somehow just the way meant for me. So I took it. The eight years that followed were our happiest.

Three weeks ago death took my darling, my husband. The days and nights are lonely, but the warmth of the memories of the years we had together will sustain me forever. So, Ann, I want to thank you for helping me, even though I didn't write to you.—Your Friend in Marshfield, Wis.

Dear "Friend: Your heart-warming letter reminded me of those wonderful words by Robert Frost:

"Home is where, when you have to go there,

"They have to take you in."

I'm glad I helped. Thank you for letting me know.—

Dear Ann Landers: I am pregnant and it is all your fault. I wrote to you two and a half months ago and begged for your help. You let me down.

Our sons are six and three years of age. I didn't want any more children. My husband has been nagging me for a third baby for two years. When he became impossible I wrote you a letter and asked you to print it and stick up for me. (You write better than I talk.) When my letter didn't appear in the paper I felt deflated and I lost my will to fight. The next month I was pregnant.

Now I am depressed and miserable. I'm afraid that after this baby is born, Jack will talk me into having a fourth, and then I will really take the gas pipe. I feel so helpless.

Please, Ann, tell me what to do. The pills were no good for me and Jack won't get a vasectomy.—There's A Crowd

Dear Crowd: Ask your doctor to do a tubal ligation (tie your tubes) when your third child is born. It's a simple procedure and will free you from the worry of pregnancy for the rest of your life. For a woman who didn't want a third child, four is too many.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sorry the lek is blurred but I'm crying on the paper. My boyfriend disgraced himself, and I need your help.

Mom baked a Boston cream pie. I offered Ollie a slice and he said, "Let me cut my own." So I let him. He cut himself like half the pie. I thought my mother's eyeballs would fall out of her head. After he ate that big hunk he said, "Gee, that was good. I think I'll have just another small piece." Then he cut himself a normal slice.

When he left, Mom said, "Don't let me see that boy ever here again." What can I do?—Tears in Tulsa

Dear Tears: You can teach the hog some manners. And until you are sure he has learned, serve him—don't let him help himself. P.S. I hope your mom gives him another chance.

Men Raise Consciousness, Too

MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AP) — Did your wife come home the other day and tell you she wanted a "marriage contract" or a separate bank account or her own job and career?

And, you didn't know what to do?

While the woman of the house goes off to her "consciousness-raising" group, the man can go to his.

Dr. James J. Gallagher, a 42-year-old psychologist who runs a career-counseling firm, is offering group sessions for men who are baffled by the changes of the role of women in, modern society.

"It's almost directly geared to the idea that the man who has a relationship with a woman who is growing gets culturally put off balance because we haven't been trained to this new growth," he said. "It's to help men who are sensitive to what's happening to women become more knowledgeable of the consequences to them."

Gallagher accepts the liberation of women as a sociological change that won't be reversed.

He has set up his first group, advertising for participants in several weekly periodicals where he believes he is likely to find what he thinks will be the typical applicant: white, middle-class and relatively well-off.

Events of the last week will be discussed, focusing on the individual's relationship with a girl-friend or wife, a secretary or shopkeeper. A consultation with a police-woman or just any woman with whom he had contact.

If problems arise in that relationship, they can be discussed and, focusing on man can be brought to understand them with the aid of the other participants, Gallagher said.

Gallagher likes the idea of working with a group because "the most people are trained for their roles in life in groups.

"We've been acculturated as males in groups—school groups, buddy groups, army groups. Anybody reaching out for a new role definition needs the support of a group to risk trying on a new role."

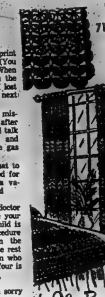
The meetings "will be a cross between a free-wheeling discussion and a planned experience."

"Men's consciousness-raising groups don't get together just to talk about sex," Gallagher said. "Topics might include what it means to be a man in this changing society, the demands placed uniquely on male-role stereotypes of the bread-winner, hero, champion—and how we have realized these in our own lives, how do we deal with success and failure."

"We're not talking about whether you hold doors open for women but about who controls what you do with your life."

Gallagher believes the discussion groups must be limited to men to ease the search for the proper role for each individual.

"By establishing an open relationship with other men, I can see who I really am and establish myself in relationship to women," he said.



Vienna Centres Advise Mothers

VIENNA (AP) — This city has 24 advisory centres for mothers offering counsel and medical care for their children under six.

The Vienna Press and Information Service reports that each centre is visited by an average of 31 mothers a day and more than 100,000 children a year.

Special classes for expectant mothers are provided and each new mother receives a free layette.

The relationship between social worker, doctor and mother often becomes a source of personal friendship, the service reported.

Get That Chip Off Your Shoulder

City DORIS CLARK

"You can always start a fire with a chip on your shoulder." Whoever said that said a mouthful. And there are times when such a conflagration gets out of hand.

What do we mean when we talk about a chip on our shoulder? Well, isn't it something like a person carrying around with them some sort of resentment against the world in general, and just waiting for someone to take a poke at that "chip on the shoulder," to let go his temper?

The resentments may be very deep — going back to those very early days when an unsettled home gave a small baby his first impression of an unhappy world. Then there are other times when merely being tired or having a hangover can start the day off with said chip firmly fixed on shoulder.

Whichever is the case, try to recognize it about yourself if you are a guilty party. You can knock your own chip off, you can talk it all over with yourself and deliberately plaster on a smile until the idea of giving out a little cheer takes hold.

And it is likely to take hold when someone who has his own chip — or his reason for depression perhaps — catches a spark of good humor from you. Try it.

Dear Doris: I am 65 and my wife 54, so she is still a young woman. My trouble is that one time I interest her and I am normal, then the next time at a critical stage I am completely dead, which makes her angry. She will say, "If you are no good, leave me alone."

I do not know when this will happen; any help would be appreciated. My doctor brushed me off with: "Act your age!"—Regular Reader.

Dear Regular: My medical consultant feels your difference in age is part of the problem. At 65 some of us are still active physically; some are not.

It is a good sign that you are at times quite capable of intercourse and this may be pointing up the need for a good emotional bond between you and your wife. Being overtired is another thing which can affect your potency.

If you two enjoy each other's companionship and don't forget to give affection and kindness in whatever way you can, this will help your security and improve sexual performance.

And here's another suggestion, straight from me: Don't let your doctor brush you off. Get him to explain things better; and ask again for any assistance he might be able to give you in stimulating physical well-being.

Dear Doris: My problem started with my daughter about three years ago. Now she is 13, working and has her own apartment. I found out she was taking birth control pills. She collects strays, dirty long-haired types who have parties at her place and stay overnight.

This is ruining our marriage. I am a lawyer, but he told me I have no grounds for divorce. What do you advise?

Worried and Desperate.

Dear Worried: I suggest that your seek marriage counselling. Your daughter's life is out of your hands now. Work on improving your own lot.

Your basically good marriage has been under a lot of stress and strain lately. Ask for counselling at your Regional Welfare Office or local Family Service Bureau.

Collie Mothers Kittens

WATERFORD, Ont. (CP) — The veterinarian says it's impossible, but Fancy, a four-year-old spayed part collie, part spaniel, insists she can be as good a mother to two barn kittens as any cat.

After three litters of pups, Fancy's owner, Mrs. Edwin Marchand, decided to have her spayed. But the operation performed two years ago hasn't stopped Fancy from nursing part of the feline litter born in the Marchand's barn last month.

Originally, there were three kittens but one of them died so Mr. Marchand brought the others into the house.

"I started feeding them with an eyedropper and we kept them upstairs. One night they were mewing quite a bit and Fancy went over and lay down beside them. The next morning we woke up and found the kittens being nursed by Fancy," Mrs. Marchand said.

The mother of the two kittens is still around the farm but she seems to have forgotten about her young and is content to let Fancy sit in, the owner said.

Zone or End Development Order to 31 Municipalities

TORONTO (CP) — Thirty-one Ontario municipalities have been told to introduce zoning bylaws governing land use or face government freezes on development, Treasurer John White said Monday.

New Democratic Leader Stephen Lewis had asked Mr. White in the legislature what he would do to prevent situations where developers build just outside town boundaries on unzoned land, often disrupting the town's planned development, and frequently in contravention of official plans.

The province imposed development controls on two Huron County townships last Thursday after officials of Goderich, 60 miles northwest of London, complained that a shopping centre outside the municipality build despite the ministry could kill a similar development within the town planned for almost three years.

Mr. White said Monday the government will fight the development, Rockedge Properties Ltd., in court if it attempts to proceed.

In a similar case in Chatham, a court recently ruled the township had expressed intent to allow a building permit before its controls were imposed and he project was allowed to proceed. Rockledge contends it gained a similar commitment from Goderich township, Nov. 19.

Mr. Lewis and Michael Cassidy (NDP—Ottawa Centre) called for legislation that would give the official plan for an area legal status until zoning bylaws were introduced.

Such a solution "may be a possibility," Mr. White said, although such action "will be contrary, I suppose, to the general policy of the government which is to get the decision-making power down to the local level."

Mr. Lewis argued outside the legislature that such a policy would leave power with municipalities to pass zoning bylaws, but subject to review by the Ontario Municipal Board, would give the government control over development with adverse effect on a neighboring area.

Steel Walls Down At Fort Chretien

OTTAWA (CP) — The steel security wall at the entrance of the Indian affairs headquarters, built to prevent further sit-ins by Indians, has been torn down, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien reported to the Commons Monday.

The minister had been asked by Joe Clark (PC—Rocky Mountain) to promise not to put such strict security measures in place in other department buildings across Canada.

And Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and The Islands) got chuckles from all corners of the House when she asked the minister if he was going to rename the headquarters Fort Chretien.

Outside the Commons Mr. Chretien said the wall was torn down "because it didn't do the job we wanted it to do."

He said that insurance companies had complained of the hazard to employees created by the glass doors which the steel wall replaced.

Sometimes, the minister explained, workers after a long lunch hour get painful entering the building and the pushing and shoving could lead to someone being shoved through the glass doors.

Mr. Chretien said that tighter security was still in effect in the building.

Mechanical Fitness Cards Being Faked

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation aimed at stopping a black market trade in motor vehicle mechanical fitness certificates was introduced in the legislature Monday.

Gordon Carton, minister of transportation and communication, brought in legislation that would also change the driver licence classification system, and give municipalities the right to ban trucks from the left lane of multi-lane highways as well as prevent abuses of mechanical fitness certificates.

Mr. Carton told the legislature that under the present system there has been inadequate power to remove dealers and mechanics who deal in fraudulent fitness certificates.

Earlier debate on the issue indicated a black market on the mechanical certificates exists in the province.

Oil Tank Drained

Yesterday, Belleville police received a report that thieves had stolen 200 gallons of home heating fuel from a Foster Street home.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that his department was called out to investigate the theft at 5.31 a.m. yesterday. They found that thieves had drilled a half-inch hole in the bottom of an outdoor storage tank at 253 Foster Street and had siphoned off approximately 200 gallons of fuel oil.

The homeowner who reported the fuel oil missing told police that the tank had registered full on Sunday but was empty Monday evening.

There was very little oil spilled on the ground, police said.

The fuel oil is valued at approximately $50.

Stolen Car Recovered

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police had a quiet night last night with detachment officials reporting the recovery of a stolen car as the only major incident of the day.

Around 5.40 p.m. yesterday, an officer on patrol on Highway 401, just east of the Salmon River bridge, stopped a late model car and discovered that it had been stolen from the Ottawa area.

The driver was placed under arrest and will be returned back to Ottawa this morning where he will be arraigned in Provincial Court.

Missing Man Found Dead

PICTON — The body of 79 year old Clayton Staffles, missing from the Prince Edward Home for the Aged since last May, was found in a nearby field last weekend.

Earl Foster, RR 2, Fawcettville said last weekend discovered the body wedged in heavy brush about a mile north of the county home.

Mr. Staffles, formerly a Milford resident, was the object of an intensive police search last spring. He was a pacemaker-heart device and it was believed that he might have been hiding from searchers because he did not wish to return to the county home. He had resided there only a short time before his disappearance.

Funeral services were held Monday from the Hicks Funeral Home with Rev. James MacKay officiating. Interment was in Cherry Valley Cemetery.

More Lights Going Out

PICTON — Picton residents will be asked to exercise discretion in holiday lighting displays this year in view of the energy crisis.

Town council received a letter from the Ontario Utilities Commission outlining plans for a 50 per cent reduction in holiday lighting time this season.

Reeve James Bird applauded this step and suggested that individuals might exercise similar precautions.

Mayor McFarland said an announcement is slated in plans for the outstanding lighting displays that are traditional at his home and Picton offices.

Talk Before Corby Tour

Belleville Rotarians yesterday heard a talk by fellow member Emile Kopalek, as an introduction to a subsequent tour of the Corby Distilleries plant of which he is company controller. The various operations were described by assistant personal manager Jack Bell. The Corby plant has 82 buildings on its 23-acre site.

Improvement Levy Will Be Repeated

The Belleville Downtown Improvement Area board of management again next year will raise $15,000 to be used in downtown improvement projects.

City council, at the request of the area board of management, agreed to the $15,000 budget to be raised by a special levy against downtown businessmen.

Last year the organization placed trees and planters and new waste baskets in the downtown area.

The downtown are board of management also requested council action on passing that section of the city's sign bylaw which would prohibit the use of overhanging signs.

Appointment of the following persons to the board of management was approved by council: Bryson Leslie, Charles Bristol, Nate Hayes and Aldermen Jack Bridel and Roger Porter as council representative.

Protection Coming Up

Sue Wright, a member of the Stirling Girls' Hockey Team, bites down on material used to take an impression of her teeth, first step in the preparation of individually fitted mouthguard. With her is Myra Tallman of the Hastings-Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, one of several people who assisted with the taking of impressions Monday at Centennial Secondary School. The health unit and the school board is co-operating to provide mouthguards at $5 apiece to all young athletes subject to tooth injury.

Mouthguard Project Starts

Project Mouthguard got under way in Hastings county Monday morning with the first clinic at Centennial Secondary School.

The project, jointly sponsored by the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit and Dental Service and the Hastings county board of education is providing high school students active in sport with mouth protection. The custom-made guard is a clear plastic appliance that fits over the upper teeth. It does not restrict breathing and allows normal speech.

The guard will prevent 95 per cent of tooth and jaw injuries in contact sports, says Dr. D. A. Warrick, director of dental services for the health unit.

Cost of the guard is $5, the price of the materials. If provided in a dentist's office the guard could cost as much as $30, Dr. Warrick said. Included with the cost of the guard is an insurance policy for dental injury up to $300.

Impressions are taken of each student's mouth at the schools where the clinic operates. The impressions are taken back to Queen Alexandra School, where the board has installed equipment to manufacture the guards.

Further clinics will be held at North Hastings High school Dec. 4, Trenton and Bayside, Dec. 10, Quinte Dec. 11, Moira, Dec. 17, BCI Dec. 18 and Centre Hastings Jan. 7.

Sidney Offered $60,000 for Site

A Toronto developer has offered Sidney township council $60,000 in cash to buy a 45-acre parcel of land in the extreme north-east of Trenton. The land, which the township bought in 1970, will be geared to commercial use, says the developer.

Despite persistent questioning, developer Stanley Greniuk would not elaborate on the scheme until the offer is sold and purchase is "signed, sealed and delivered" today.

In making his offer before council Monday, Mr. Greniuk did not reveal any details other than the site would be developed for commercial purposes. He said the deal was pent on any proposed building would be a Toronto-based company. He indicated local merchants would likely be asked to participate in the project.

Council agreed to sell the property and will sign a formal agreement today. Last night, in a telephone conversation with Mr. Greniuk, Reeve Gordon Wilmot Sherwood is expected today to complete negotiations with the developer.

The property is roughly bounded by the Canadian National railway line to the south, Trenton's Sidney St. on the west, and the old Crowe's boundary and the highway it self on the northeast and north. A seven-acre privately owned parcel of land, running across the northern boundary of the property, separates the site from the highway. At present, pasture land borders on the eastern portion of the township-owned land.

Mr. Greniuk said he fears possible adverse competitor reaction if de tails of the plan were revealed. "We're not playing with peanuts," he said. "We're playing with big money. If the council refuses my offer, then well have to look around for another site."

The land deal is subject to two conditions. First, all necessary government approvals must come through before May 15, 1974. If by then, permission from various provincial and municipal agencies has not been received, the developer can renege on the agreement. Secondly, the deal would become null and void should Mr. Greniuk not receive a letter of commitment from the major Montreal-based tenant. -

Barking Dog, Rabbits Under Council Scrutiny

Complaints of barking dogs and prolific rabbits continue to be a matter of concern for Belleville city council.

Residents of the Sinclair Street and Richlie Ave. area on the city's West Hill are fed up with the continued barking of a dog in their area and have petitioned council to do something about the problem.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said that two letters have gone out to the owner from city hall with no action.

The matter was referred to the city solicitor for possible court action.

Two weeks ago council voted to amend the city's restrict to 10 the number of rabbits that may be kept by any one household.

The amended bylaw was before council Monday but on the request of Mayor Jeffrey was tabled to allow information to be obtained from other municipalities as to how the rabbit problem was handled.

Reason for the tabling was that a number of city residents who have raised rabbits for food, objected to the limitation in the number of animals which might be kept.

"I had no idea that many people raised rabbits for meat," commented the mayor.

Energy Shortage Could Reopen Hastings Mine

FROM THE OTTAWA BUREAU OF THE INTELLIGENCER

OTTAWA — The economy of northern Hastings county may receive a renewed boost from the mining of uranium if talk of the energy crisis.

That indication came Monday in the House of Commons from Energy Minister Donald S. Macdonald in reply to a question from Jack H. Ellis, Conservative MP for Hastings.

Mr. Ellis asked if the minister has considered establishing a uranium stockpiling program and said he was particularly interested in that part of north Hastings where there are four idle mines.

Mr. Macdonald replied that the government has not specifically considered a new stock-piling effort because it anticipates an improvement in the international price for uranium mines.

This improvement will provide "greater incentives to bring some of our existing Canadian mines back into capacity production, and I would think that the north part of Hastings county has a bright future," the minister said.

Outside the House, Mr. Ellis said the minister "made a sound very rosy." He understands that "we could expect to have some production there in the not-too-distant future."

Mr. Ellis said that his record with community leaders in the Bancroft area and a high official of Faraday Mines indicate "they're anxious, ready to go."

The mine was forced to shut down a few years ago because it couldn't compete with firms such as Dominion Mines, which were producing uranium for $8 per pound, while Faraday was spending $12 to $14 per pound, the MP said.

However, Dennison's recent long-term contract with Japan is worth $800 million and is based on an average price somewhere between $14 and $21 per pound, Mr. Ellis said.

He said the Faraday Mine's ? seam which is of high-quality ore, but isn't extremely thick, meaning it's harder to mine.

A long-term commitment for such ore would be required to reactivate mining at the Faraday site just off Highway 28 about five miles west of Bancroft, he said.

If mining is resumed, the company will attempt a "more complete integration with the community," Mr. Ellis said. No more homes will be built by the firm at its town site near the mine, he added.

Mr. Ellis said he is primarily interested in the possibilities for Faraday Mines because he understands that the other three uranium mines in the area are "not really viable" and may have deteriorated to the point where the min shafts are filled with water.

The first-term MP feels the financial feasibility of uranium mining will improve during the current energy crisis because all energy source will be exploited to a greater degree.

Library Gets $14,000 To Cover Shortage

The Belleville Public Library Board is short $14,000 in funds necessary for the recently opened library addition on Pinnacle Street.

A request for the additional funds was made Monday and city council has voted to pay over the money from its 1973 capital works reserve budget.

Linton D. Read, chairman of the library building committee, is a letter to council said the shortcoming resulted from unforseen expenses over and above its current budget and debenture proceeds. The debenture sale for the library addition was for $250,000 but the total cost worked out to $264,000.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said her understanding was the $14,000 shortage was the result of not taking into consideration interest on money borrowed prior to the issuing of debentures and for architectural fees for tiling in the new addition with the existing library structure.

"It was an honest omission," said the mayor.

The alternative to council voting the necessary $14,000 out of its current budget would have been to issue further debentures to cover the amount.

City Manager Albert Elliott felt it would be better to pay the money out of current funds rather than issue further debentures.

The local Cheshire Homes organization also appeared before council asking for a grant to assist in unexpected expenses involved in the installation of a lift system at the John Street home.

President Lt. Col. Wilkinson, told council that the elevator would cost about $19,000 of which all but about $5,000 had been raised.

Although Alderman Stu Meeks was prepared to recommend a grant to the organization, the matter was tabled at the request of Mayor Robin Jeffrey to allow her to discuss it at the Quinte Executive level.

It was pointed out that the home for physically handicapped adults would serve Prince Edward, Quinte and area municipalities might be prepared to assist.

Insurance Agents Elect Max Wright

Other members elected to the executive were first vice-president, Cliff Enright, CLU; second vice-president, Gordon Miller, CLU; secretary, John Mahoney and treasurer, Eugene Harrison. Past -president is William Yeates, CLU, also of Belleville.

The Bay of Quinte Association is one of 8 branches of the "Life Underwriters Association of Canada representing 15,500 of Canada's life insurance agents.

Speaking at the annual meeting, Max Wright, newly elector president, said "It is a pleasure to witness the steady growth of our local association, particularly when this growth is associated with a larger number of truly dedicated members who have made it their aim to work in a professional manner."

Another highlight at the annual meeting was the presentation of the National Quality Award to thirty-seven members.

Seniors Will Pay Lower Arena Rent

The Belleville Eagles senior hockey team, this year beset by limited attendance and consequent financial problems, are going to receive a break in arena rental for the balance of the 1973-74 season.

Over the objection of Alderman Ben Corke, who claimed the proposed arena committee recommendation rental schedule was too great, city council Monday evening approved a recreation-arena to reduce arena rental to the lower figure paid by the juniors.

This means the seniors for the balance of the season will pay $73 for their first home game per week. $80 for the second and $150 for playoff games.

The arena rental paid so far this season by the seniors has been $185 for the first game, $145 for the second with the playoff rate set at $250.

It was estimated that the reduced rental could mean as much as $1,500 lower arena rental for the balance of the season.

Alderman Corke not only objected to the amount of the arena rental reduction but was also critical of the committee recommendation being brought in to council without previous notice and not in open session.

Committee chairman Alderman Jean Smith, however, said the committee meeting had been held too late for the recommendation to be in the city council agenda which is prepared several days in advance.

Alderman Stu Meeks said in the interest of having senior hockey continue in Belleville, council should approve of the reduced rental.

Alderman Paul Russell took the same view, holding that council had an obligation to both the hockey players and the fans.

"We should give them a break this year," he said.

Boy 'Critical'

The nine-year-old Agincourt boy injured in an accident on North Front St. Saturday was reported in critical condition in Kingston General Hospital today.

Brent McMurray darted into the path of a car when he was crossing the street with his family. He suffered a fractured skull and a broken thigh.

Arsenic in River Well Under Limit

Despite persistent claims by local environmentalists about a high arsenic content in the Moira River, Belleville residents need have no fear about arsenic contamination of their water supply.

This has been shown as the result of an analysis carried out by the sanitary engineering branch of the Ministry of the Environment for the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

The sample of river water taken into the filtration plant shows the arsenic content is less than 1.01 milligrams per litre.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission in 1967 in setting out drinking water objectives, indicated that a concentration of arsenic in excess of 0.05 milligrams per litre consitituted grounds for rejection of the water supply.

While the analysis of the Belleville water supply indicated an arsenic content of less than 0.01 milligrams per litre, for all practical purposes it can be said that the test indicates a zero reading.

The reason for the less than 0.01 reading as the sensitivity of testing equipment will not detect an amount less than this figure.

Alderman Dr. John Stack said he hoped that the analysis would "clear up once and for all" the claims about arsenic content.

"There is no arsenic (in the water supply)" stated the alderman.

And Mayor Robin Jeffrey also expressed relief on the analysis results.

"It shows there is nothing," she said.

Collision Causes Nearly $1,000 Damage

Belleville city police investigate a two-car collision at the intersection of West Moira and Sidney Sts. Monday afternoon. Police estimate there was close to $1,000 damage to the two vehicles. Frank Brouns, of RR 5, Belleville, was driving north on Sidney St., police say, his car came into collision with the vehicle, driven by Frank H. Reed, of 3 Lyndale Cres., proceeding into the intersection from West Moira. Mr. Brouns was charged with failing to yield at a through street by city police. There were no injuries reported.

Richard Martin—Not Suffering

Sabres' Winger Sets Hot Pace

MONTREAL (CP)— Richard Martin, the hard-shooting left winger of Buffalo Sabres, has scored more goals since entering the National Hockey League in 1971-72 than any other player in NHL history did in his first three seasons.

Martin, who is fourth in the NHL's individual scoring race with 27 goals, has 81 goals that far this season, giving him 97 in less than three seasons. The previous high was 32 recorded by Gilbert Perreault, Martin's linemate with the Sabres who is currently recovering from a broken leg.

Perreault had 38 goals in his first season, 36 in his second and 28 last year.

When Perreault suffered the broken leg, many people thought Martin would suffer without his talented centre setting him up. But in the 14 games Perreault has missed, Martin has scored nine goals and seven assists for 16 points.

But like most other players in the NHL, Martin is going to have his difficulties moving in'o the top rung of the scoring ladder as long as Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins keeps up his torrid pace.

Esposito now has 53 points, including a league-leading 25 goals, in only 23 games. Boston team-mate Bobby Orr follows with 42 points on 13 goals and 29 assists while Ken Hodge of the Bruins is third with 18 goals and 20 assists for 38 points.

Behind Martin is Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs, who has 12 goals and 17 assists in 25 games while defenceman Brad Park of New York Rangers is sixth with six goals and 22 assists for 28 points.

Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens and centre Dennis Hextall of Minnesota North Stars have 27 points apiece. Cournoyer has 15 goals and 12 assists while Hextall has five goals and 22 assists.

Philadelphia Flyers continue to lead in the defensive department. The Flyers Bernie Parent has the top individual goals-against average of 1.93. Philadelphia's goals-against total of 37 after 23 games is 47 fewer than the total they had at the same time last season.

The Flyers also are the most penalized team in the league with a total of 583 minutes, an average of 25.3 minutes per game.

WENT TOO FAR

LONDON (CP) — Bobby Campbell, coach of Arsenal's First Division soccer club, went too far in putting out feelers to players on other teams, an Arsenal spokesman admitted Monday. The team was fined $4,000 and illegally approaching two players for Queen's Park Rangers.

Reserve Clause Modified

NHLPA Rejects Plan

By LLOYD JOHNSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Many players have suddenly taken a liking to the National Hockey League's reserve clause, once regarded as an abomination.

When a modified version containing a one-year option system was announced Monday by NHL president Clarence Campbell, it was instantly rejected by the National Hockey League Players' Association.

Alan Eagleson of Toronto, the association's executive director, said he had been advised by Ira Millstein of New York, the NHLPA counsel, that the attainment in the reserve clause may be illegal under United States anti-trust legislation, and he made a vague suggestion of a player strike.

"Mr. Millstein has told us we should take immediate steps to prevent the effect of the owners' proposal," Eagleson said.

"I will be in touch with all the player representatives today to discuss any possible legal action against the NHL.

"Furthermore, I will discuss this matter with Mr. Millstein to determine whether strike action might be considered to support the position of the players."

Eagleson said the NHLPA rejected the recommendation of the NHL owners for several reasons.

One was that the requirement for a team to be compensated reduces the value of the option.

A clause in the modified system says that if a player should decide to become a free agent, the team with which he signed will compensate his former team with either another player, future draft choices or cash, to be determined by the owners of the clubs.

Campbell said the modifications "give our players the most liberal standard contract in professional sports," but Eagleson disagreed.

"The player is still not a free agent. For example: What if Bobby Orr wants? What is Paul Henderson worth?

"If Bobby Orr were to play out his option with Boston Bruins, what team would hire him, knowing it would be obliged in part with several players and thousands in cash?"

Eagleson also said the owners' proposal would hurt the rival World Hockey Association. It would postpone movement of players to the new league by adding an option year to present contracts.

The reserve clause has been challenged in the United States courts by the WHA, which has sued the NHL for more than $30 million in damages, alleging that the major senior professional hockey league runs a monopoly in tying up hockey talent.

The dozen or so lawsuits have been grouped for hearing early next year in the Philadelphia federal court of Judge A. Leon Higginbotham.

Last August, Judge Higginbotham gave the WHA the right to sign players who were under pre-1972 contracts to NHL clubs. A year ago he prevented the NHL from enforcing its reserve clause.

It has been generally accepted that the NHL's reserve clause binds a player to a club for life unless traded. The NHL has been extremely careful in giving out any interpretation of the reserve clause because of the pending litigation.

Campbell, releasing details of the new option clause, said that all players under an NHL contract, at both major and minor league levels, have been notified that the 16 NHL club owners have "unanimously adopted" a new player contract which includes the mutual option system for future contracts.

There is one main exception in the case of amateur players obtained in the draft in June, 1974.

If a team signs an amateur to a one-year professional contract, there will be a mutual option of two years before he can become a free agent.

"Our NHL owners believe that a means of replacing talent is important for professional hockey will suffer greatly," said Don Ruck, NHL vice-president based in New York.

The new system is designed primarily to keep balance in the league by preventing clubs with the most money from buying the better players.

If two teams involved cannot agree on signing a free agent, each team must submit its proposals for equalization to a neutral arbitrator selected by the NHL's board of governors.

The NHL system is seen as an improvement over the setup of the National Football League, where commissioner Pete Rozelle is the arbitrator and makes the decision in settling player disputes.

Ruck said that the NHL-appointed arbitrator "shall be guided by the policy that each opponents for equalization purposes shall be used only as the last resort."

The NHL said Monday that players under a 1972 form contract whose final year expires Sept. 30, 1974, will become free agents on June 1, 1975.

Jim Harrison Pressed

Harrison, with 35 points on a league-leading 24 assists, is just three points ahead of linemate Ron Climie, Danny Lawson of Vancouver Blazers, Toronto Toros' Wayne Carleton and Terry Bernier from Quebec Nordiques.

Frank Hughes of Houston Aeros, who tops the league in goals with 19—one more than Lawson, Climie and Tom Webster of New England Whalers—is another point back at 31.

Jack Norris, Edmonton's veteran goaltender, is the runaway leader in the goals against department with a 2.40 goals against average.

Quinte Saints Two for Three

Despite the fact they had only a nine point lead at the end of the second period and a 13 point lead after three quarters in their game last night with Centennial, the Quinte Senior Saints rolled to a 76-63 win over the Chargers in Bay of Quinte High School Boys' Basketball play.

The Saints collected 23 points in the final quarter, with most of them coming in the last 10 minutes to take the win in their first game of the regular schedule.

The loss was Centennial's second. They lost to Trenton in their opener last week.

Scott Gallupe led the Saints with 15 points, with Rick Colkin adding 14, Steve McCracken 12 and Bob Walbridge 10.

Doug Yates led the game's scorers with 24 points for Centennial, while John Hipwell bagged 10.

The Centennial Midgets stopped a clean sweep of the three games by Quinte by trouncing Saints 73-54.

Three players had 12 points each for the Chargers, with Art Pultz, Ron Rodgers, and Jim Graham all leading the way. Tony Graham added eight.

Two Close Shaves

Belleville Lions major midgets hooked up in a pair of close Ontario Minor Hockey Association games on the weekend, tying Oshawa 1-1 on Saturday and downing a 5-1 decision to Peterborough, Sunday.

Towers Food City major storms were held to a goal by Steve Mellow as they lost Sunday in Peterborough 7-1. Doug Evans potted three for the winners with singles for Steve Connelly, Rod McGillis, Mark McInnes and Pat Martin.

In tournament play in Peterborough, Belleville Kinsmen major bantams were outscored 5-1 by Oshawa in their first start and were then eliminated 5-5 by Peterborough. Bobby Crawford had the only goal for Kinsmen.

Golden Mile Moves Back Into First

Larry Pascoe paced Fraser into undisputed possession of first place in the Gas House Hockey League last night with an 8-5 white wash of Constellation.

The win gives Golden Mile 17 points, one up on the second place Doctor's and two up on Mead Johnson.

Al Ray led the Milers with four goals, while Jerry Lucas potted two. Wayne Brown and Terry Pugs added the others, with Brian Smith bagging four assists.

In the other games played last night, Stanley Struthers defeated Rosebush Fuels 3-1, Fraser and O'Neill doubled the count on Stewart Warner 6-3, and the Yardmen upset the Intelligencer 3-1.

Larry Pascoe paced Fraser and O'Neill to their win with three goals and, a pair of assists, with Glenn McKechan adding two goals and Wayne Andrews one.

Herb Laickford scored the winning goal in the final period to give the Yardmen their second win of the season. Other markers went to Jim Blatchford and Ron Smith.

Sonny Farrell and Jim McGuire were the only scorers for the Intell, while Bill Bunnett added two assists.

Bobcats Have Shot At Second

It will be the loop's most productive attack matched against the weakest when Belleville Bobcats visit King City Red Wings for a Metro Junior B Hockey League contest tonight.

Bobcats, in fourth place in the standings, just three back of front running Bramalea, have counted 127 goals in 18 league starts while compiling a 14-4 record.

Red Wings haven't had an easy time of it. To say the least they are struggling.

With only a tie to show in 19 outings, King City has managed only 60 goals while allowing opposition snipers 134.

Undisputed possession of second place in the tight race will go to Bobcats with a win tonight. And the Belleville club goes into the action with four games in hand on leading Bramalea.

Statistics show the Bramales team at the top of the heap with 31 points off 14 wins. Five losses and three ties in 22 tries. Wexford Warriors and Markham Royals are next in line with 29 points each and then come the Cats with 28.

Pickering is next in line with 23 points, Peterborough has 21, St. Michael's 21, Oshawa 16, Etobicoke 13, Toronto Nationals 10, Oak Ridges nine and King City one.

Dionne Favors Trade

TORONTO (CP) — Alan Eagleson says Detroit Red Wings should seriously consider trading Marcel Dionne a chance losing him to the rival World Hockey Association.

Dionne wants out of Detroit and Eagleson, his lawyer, is trying to pave the way by suggesting Ned Harkness, Red Wing general manager, trade the temperamental 23-year-old centre.

"Marcel doesn't feel at home in Detroit," the hockey lawyer said in an interview Monday. "I have told Harkness that he will be doing Marcel and himself a favor if he trades him.

"Either trade him or lose him to the World Hockey Association."

Toronto Toros hold Dionne's WHA rights. They made a serious bid last summer to land Darryl Sittler of Toronto Maple Leafs and Syl Apps of Pittsburgh Penguins—both Eagleson clients.

The Toros are still looking for a National Hockey League standout, such as Dionne, to make them a legitimate hockey contender in Toronto.

Dionne's three-year contract runs out at the end of the 1973-74 season and he has publicly stated he considers playing through in Detroit where he set a scoring record for rookies two years ago.

"Harkness wants to sign Marcel for five years for tons of money," Eagleson said. "I've told him Marcel isn't happy.

"He would rather play somewhere else. It's just like Dale Tallon (another Eagleson client), the biggest hockey name in Vancouver for three years and unhappy, and now the No. 3 centre in Chicago but happy.

"Dale hasn't had a complaint in three years, nor has Dionne a complaint about him," Eagleson continued. "It's the same as with Sharky (Mike) Walton. There were no complaints while he was with Boston, unlike when he was here in Toronto.

"Then Bep Guidolin took over coaching, the Bruins, and they didn't get along, but Sharky is prospering in Minnesota (with the WHA's Fighting Saints)."

Eagleson feels he and Dionne will be in a strong position because they all down with Toros' president John Bassett. Bassett has expressed interest in the WHA while both Sittler and Apps were concerned because they couldn't ignore the financial opportunities.

Toros still have plenty of opportunity to pick off Leaf help during the off-season. Jim McKenny, Paul Henderson, Garry Monahan and George Ferguson have contracts expiring.

All are on the Toros' negotiation list and all are represented by Eagleson who also is executive director of the NHL Players' Association.

"Leafs would like to sign them all to multi-year contracts," Eagleson says. "That's fine, we're willing, but only if the money is right."

'Serious Incident' -Campbell

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers say centre Bobby Clarke will play next Saturday at Toronto with 28 stitches in his face.

Clarke was injured in a brawl during a National Hockey League game with California Seals at the Spectrum Sunday night which the Flyers won 5-1.

The melee in the second period was triggered when Barry Cummins of the Seals bashed the Flyers' captain with his stick. Clarke's team-mates jumped Cummins, grabbed his stick and beat him about the face. Cummins was ejected, as was Bob Kelly, who led the Flyers' charge from the bench.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Monday in Montreal he expected to receive an official report on the disturbance later in the day but would not say what further action would be taken.

He said it usually takes a couple of days to get all the information, sometimes longer if the report is contested by either Philadelphia or California.

Clyde Gray Stops Marcotte

QUEBEC (CP) — Blood apparently ran thicker than water in at least one Canadian prizefighting family today.

That became apparent here Monday night when Clyde Gray of Toronto retained his Canadian welterweight boxing championship with a ninth-round technical knockout over Fernand Marcotte of Quebec City in a scheduled 12-round bout.

Fernand Marcotte Sr., one of the challenger's three handlers, advised referee Barry Davis of Toronto to stop the bout after the eighth round before his son suffered further damage to his eyes.

The referee complied, although he said later that both had the ringside doctor felt the younger Marcotte could have continued. But Davis confirmed that he did not think at the time that the 34-year-old challenger stood much of a chance, as Gray had piled up a tremendous lead.

Nearly 7,000 fans apparently agreed with the elder Marcotte's decision.

Under the five-point must system that was in effect, the 27-year-old Gray had won every round with 49-point totals on each of the three judge's cards.

Marcotte had scores ranging from 30 to 33 points on the judge's cards.

"I didn't want him to go on . . . I didn't want Junior getting hurt for nothing," the elder Marcotte said. "He didn't want the fight stopped, but he couldn't see because of the blood."

Gray, who collected $15,000 as his share of the gate compared to $5,000 for Marcotte, was unmarked except for a swollen index finger on his right hand. He said his opponent had "been much tougher than I expected."

"I was trying to get to the cuts," he said. "I was also trying to knock him out in every round, but I couldn't catch him even when his eyes were giving him a lot of trouble. . . . He's tough . . . he's one helluva fighter!"

"He has a sneaky right hand and he caught me a couple of good shots in the fourth round," Gray said. "He's still a threat, but he didn't use any combination at all tonight—he was looking for the boomb all the time.

Marcotte had knocked out his last three opponents after recovering from surgery to his left elbow.

Gray, whose crisp combinations and masterful counter punching had him in control almost from the opening bell, said he needed the fight cross to good advantage all through the bout.

Gray also holds the Commonwealth crown, and said his next bout will likely be a defence of that title against Bunny Grant of Jamaica, in Toronto in the early spring.

Although Gray did not rule out a rematch with Marcotte both father and son maintained they would rather wait.

"When I get 40 fights under my belt I'd like to try him again," Marcotte said.

The victory was Gray's 42nd in 46 pro fights, while the loss was Marcotte's third in 34 bouts.

Marcotte told reporters he felt as if he couldn't move his arms after three rounds and that the champion had "eaught me bad" in the fourth.

His father said Marcotte continued to look for the big punch throughout the match although his corner was supporting him "to go for the combinations."

10 Major Leaguers In New Surroundings

Philadelphia Phillies and Atlanta Braves scored first, tiging getting a cluster of trades Monday, and promised more this week.

"We will still try to make another trade or two," said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark after obtaining pitcher Ron Schueler from Atlanta for shortstop Craig Robinson and pitcher Barry Lersch.

In all, 10 major league players were swapped in four trades Monday. After the Phillies and Braves completed their announcement, these deals were revealed:

—Oakland Athletic sent Horacio Pina to Chicago Cubs for Rob Locker in a trade of right-handed relief pitchers.

—Houston Astros dealt reliever Jim Ray and utility infielder Gary Sutherland to Detroit Tigers for right-handed pitcher Fred Scherman.

—Chicago White Sox received Mexican League right-handers Francisco Barrios and Manuel Lago from the Jalisco club for infielder Rudy Hernandez, who moved from Iowa of the American Association to Mexico.

—The Astros traded Cecil Upshaw to Cleveland Indians for Jerry Johnson in an exchange of relievers.

Miami Safety Attacks

MIAMI (AP) — "Wherever the football's in the air, I'm just as much a receiver as the other guy," says Jake Anderson of Miami Dolphins.

The brilliant safetyman showed more like the primary receiver for the opposition when he intercepted four passes, returning two for touchdowns, as the Dolphins whitewash a late Pittsburgh flurry and trimmed the Steelers 30-26 in the Monday night National Football League game.

Anderson, a six-year veteran from Colorado, scored on a 27-yard return off Joe Gilliam in the second and then sparked a pass from Terry Bradshaw, returning it 36 yards for a score 92 seconds into the second period.

In all, he returned his four interceptions 131 yards, setting up another touchdown on one of them.

The Dolphins, incredibly, at most blew a 30-3 lead as the Steelers, behind Bradshaw, rallied for 18 points in the final quarter. The final two points came on a gift safety—a Miami defensive manoeuvre.

The Dolphins built a 30-3 lead on Anderson's interceptions, but the Steelers rallied on a 32-yard scoring run by Franco Harris and a 37-yard touchdown pass from Bradshaw to Barry Pearson to pull within six points late in the fourth quarter.

With 1:04 left Miami quarterback Bob Griese stepped out of the end zone intentionally to give the Steelers a safety and permit a free kick—an on-side kick.

Record Could Fall To Hawley This Week

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — With eight wins in his last two days at Laurel, jockey Sandy Hawley is certain he'll break Bill Shoemakers world record of 485 victories at Laurel race track next week.

"I feel terrific," Hawley said after he won with three of six mounts in his first start "today" at Laurel. "I didn't think I'd get off with a bang like this.

"I think we can break the record this week after the next start I got today."

The 30-year-old Hawley, native of Oshawa, Ont., who won five races on closing day at Toronto's Greenwood race track Saturday, now has 481 wins—four short of Shoemaker's record.

"I went 500 but 485 and 486 will be huge thrills for me," said Hawley who was the runner-up winner on the Ontario Jockey Club circuit with 379 triumphs from 1,379 mounts.

At Ontario tracks—Fort Erie, Greenwood and Woodbine—he also was second 249 times and third 304 times. Robin Platts was closest with 143 wins.

Shoemaker set the record in 1953 aboard 1,683 mounts. He also finished second 302 times and third 310 times.

Hawley will be on at least four mounts today—Sleep Lonely in the fifth, Modest Lass in the sixth, Jane Lacy in the seventh and Jet Again in the eighth.

Energy Showdown Day Comes Next Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — David Lewis clutched the energy crisis to his political bosom less than two weeks ago, proclaiming it "an issue which is ours" and possibly the New Democratic Party platform for a winter election.

He may have his issue and a general election after next Monday when a Conservative non-confidence motion, based on the energy crisis, is introduced in the Commons.

Everything hinges on the wording of the motion and how many hard-liners Mr. Lewis has among his 31 members in the 264-seat House—members willing to fight a February election.

Sources say the motion will be worded to embarrass the NDP into supporting it.

The New Democrats have held the effective balance of power since this minority Parliament opened Jan. 1. But observers consider this non-confidence motion the most serious threat yet to Prime Minister Trudeau's government.

One NDP member was asked Monday if there is any possibility the party might adopt the previously-used stance that it would be irresponsible to defeat the government while important social legislation remains before the House. The House still has to approve bills increasing family allowances and tying the Canada Pension Plan to the cost of living.

"If we did that," he replied, "no one would believe us."

Conservative credibility also is on the line. If they simply use the motion as a grandstand to repeat their energy position, their supporters could be left wondering.

Mr. Lewis dropped a not-so-veiled threat Nov. 20 that he would dump the 109-member government if it lifts the voluntary national price freeze on petroleum products at the end of January as scheduled.

The Conservatives could use the freeze as part of their motion.

However, once the freeze is lifted, gasoline and fuel oil prices will rise west of the Ottawa Valley. This huge area includes a sizeable proportion of the 105 Conservative seats and all of those held by the New Democrats.

Mr. Lewis has said more voters than ever are accepting the NDP view that energy resources must be "treated like a public utility" rather than be subject to the whims of large, multi-national corporations.

College Fire

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Ladies College, a 114-year-old private school for girls, escaped total destruction Saturday, when a fire broke out between the second and third floors.

Fire chief Ed Crouth estimated damage to the building at $75,000 and $25,000 to the contents, but the rest of the building, valued at $1.6 million, was saved.

Index Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Wholesale food prices fell in October for the second month in a row, but costs of industrial raw materials and manufactured goods rose and the over-all general wholesale price index was up nine-tenths of one per cent, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

TORONTO (CP) — A department head at the University of Toronto has been asked to conduct an inquiry into the operation of troubled Conestoga College in Kitchener, Ont.

Five Die of Cold

ROME (AP) — At least five persons, including two newly born, died from cold during the night Tuesday as the worst snowstorm in a decade swept the Italian peninsula.

More than a hundred towns were isolated by huge snow drifts on roads and rail tracks and the city of Avellino, with a population of 42,000, was without electric power and heating gas for the second day in a row.

Police reported 400 motorists stranded on the Naples-Bari superhighway overnight.

The then newly born died in a clinic at Matera, from lack of heating. The other three victims were peasants who froze to death when they were caught in the open by the storm.

Missing were six charcoal-burners in the mountain wood south-east of Naples. Six policemen who went on foot to look for them Monday also were missing. Snow in the area was 6½ feet deep.

Dead Constable's Wife Blames One-Man Patrols

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The wife of a police constable killed in a gunfight Saturday blames the lack of two-man patrol cars for his death.

"If my husband had been in a two-man patrol car, he would be alive today," said Marilyn Slater in an interview Sunday.

Constable Len Slater, 32, was alone in his patrol car when he went to a downtown parking lot to help a fellow officer who had been wounded by a gunman.

Constable Slater, a veteran of five years on the North Bay police force and a father of three, will be buried Wednesday in his hometown of Bracebridge.

His colleague, Constable Gordon McCort, 41, is in satisfactory condition in hospital with a shotgun wound in the left shoulder.

Camille Ethier, 24, of Astorville, a village 16 miles south of North Bay, has been charged with capital murder and three counts of attempted murder. Ethier is under guard in hospital with a single wound from a service revolver and is expected to live.

Mrs. Slater said her husband often mentioned the difficulty of working without two-man patrol cars at night.

Municipal Tax Concessions Will Be Ended in B.C.

MACKENZIE, B.C. (CP) — Municipal tax concessions given corporations by the former Social Credit government will be ended this month, says Premier Dave Barrett.

He told a public meeting Sunday: "Before the year is out you will see action by your government to stop those concessions and we will have a redistribution of that tax load to ensure that every major international corporation operating here in B.C. and crown corporations will pay their fair share of taxes in every town of this province."

The New Democratic Party premier declined to give any details or indicate the amount of taxes involved.

The Canadian Press distributed an erroneous report of Mr. Barrett's speech Sunday night, quoting him as saying all corporate tax concessions in B.C. would be ended this year.

Without going into detail, Mr. Barrett told the meeting: "We intend to see that there is more equalization of that tax base and we don't want the idea of the homeowner building up his taxes to support industries."

Mild Weather Saves Little Natural Gas

TORONTO (CP) — Although weather in southern Ontario has been six per cent milder than normal since Oct. 1, only a slight decrease in natural gas sales has resulted, Ronald Lougheed, gas supply manager for Consumers' Gas Co., said Monday.

And despite the threat of higher oil prices, there has been no rush to convert to natural gas.

Mr. Lougheed said his company, which supplies the Niagara area, greater Toronto, the Ottawa Valley and part of New York state, has adequate fuel supplies for at least two years.

John Patterson of Ontario Hydro public relations said demand in the province has been hovering around 12-12.3 million kilowatts hours a day the last couple of weeks.

Shoplifting On Increase

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Despite elaborate detection devices, warning notices, increased surveillance, heavy fines and stiff prison sentences, police and store owners agree shoplifting is on the increase.

Many stores refuse to release details of how many shoplifters are caught on their premises or how much is taken but police estimate shoplifting costs retail business two per cent of their profits.

Inspector Greg Cousins, of the Hamilton criminal investigation bureau criticized some stores for recent staff cuts in discount-type operations.

"It's false economy," he said. "They'll lose more in the long run."

Inspector Cousins also said some stores refuse police assistance.

"Maybe it's their image—they don't want to be connected with the courts—or its too much inconvenience for them."

Hamilton police now issue first offenders a ticket stating the criminal charge of theft and ordering them to appear in court on a certain date, instead of taking them to the police station.

People with previous shoplifting arrests or those stealing goods valued at over $200 are charged at the station and dealt with in the usual manner.

Duncan Clark, head of Eaton's loss prevention department in Hamilton, said his company prosecutes shoplifters in 70 per cent of the cases.

"We have made exceptions for pregnant women, old and senile people and outpatients of mental hospitals."

Mr. Clark said he does not believe current penalties for shoplifting are severe enough.

"Maybe the embarrassment is enough of a deterrent for first offenders, but the courts are nowhere near severe enough on repeaters."

Al Elliot, manager of a downtown Hamilton Kresges store said he has been coping recently with all upswing in price-switching.

His store has introduced a coding system which cashiers can identify at a glance.

"So we can correct this at the cash register now. It certainly makes a few customers look very guilty and embarrassed."

A Burlington, Ont. psychiatrist said the stores themselves must shoulder much of the blame for increases in shoplifting.

Dr. George Stone said store managers deliberately make things attractive to buyers and invite people to pick products up.

"If merchandisers are going to take advantage of people's impulse buying, why are they so surprised by impulse shoplifting?"

He said if stores sell their goods in this manner, they should be prepared to write off a certain amount of profit, as inevitable shoplifting losses.

"It's all part of the undercurrent in society where the individual feels he has to strike back at the impersonal institution."

Dr. Stone pointed out, however, he was not talking about youths stealing for kicks or those shoplifting with criminal intent.

These people, he said, "deserve what they get."

Macmillan Tells Of Years as PM

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The sixth and final volume of Harold Macmillan's memoirs, At the End of the Day, covers the last three years of his seven-year term as British prime minister, ending with the onslaught of illness that forced his resignation in October, 1963.

It was an eventful period, including a major threat to world peace in the Cuban missile crisis of 1962, the beginning of the involvement of the United States in Indochina, Britain's first unsuccessful bid to join the European Common Market and, perhaps most troubling to the author, the Profumo scandal.

"It was, I must admit, as much a surprise to me as to ordinary folk to hear of this strange environment in which men of some importance, sometimes even holding high positions, were led to mingle with crooks, charlatans, pimps and courtesans," he writes.

"In my youth, good manners, although not necessarily good morality, made such a confusion impossible."

John Profumo, Macmillan's secretary of state for war—a relatively junior ministry—was accused of consorting with Christine Keeler, a prostitute who also had associated with a Soviet naval attache. Profumo denied the charge on the floor of the House of Commons.

Macmillan backed his minister. But two months later, confronted with mounting evidence, Profumo confessed that the charges were true and resigned.

Macmillan was bitter, both at Profumo's "unforgivable" falsehood and at the treatment of the case by the press.

"The Times was awful—what has since been called a "holier than thou" attitude which was really nauseating. The 'popular' press has been one mass of life stories of spies and prostitutes. Day after day the attacks developed, chiefly on me—old, incompetent, worn out."

A judicial inquiry absolved the Conservative government of blame but the writer remains resentful over the incident.

He is happier recalling his relationship with then President John F. Kennedy, particularly the close and constant consultations between the two leaders in the course of the crisis that arose when Soviet nuclear missiles were found on Cuban soil.

He also tells with satisfaction of the conclusion of the nuclear test ban treaty, signed by Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union two days after Macmillan entered hospital with the kidney ailment that forced his resignation.

Canada plays a relatively small part in this volume, although the writer expresses some impoliteness with John Diefenbaker's hostility toward Britain's projected entry into the Common Market at a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in 1962.

Sanitarium At Guelph Began in '83

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Marville O. Vincent, medical superintendent of Homewood Sanitarium, sighed.

"I can assure you that Elvis Presley, Red Skelton and Doris Day have never been here as patients," he said.

"But of course, even if we deny their ever having been at Homewood, people will say we're just doing it to protect them and go right on believing these famous people have been here for treatment."

Dr. Vincent, a native of Charlottetown and author of published articles on subjects ranging from alcoholism to demon possession, is superintendent of the first private psychiatric hospital in Ontario, opened in May, 1883 by a group of Toronto businessmen.

At the time, he said in an interview, a facility was needed for patients who refused treatment in a provincial "asylum" and could afford the more dignified care offered by a private institution.

Guelph was selected as the site to enable patients to get away from the stresses of living in Toronto and enjoy the peace and quiet of a rural setting. Its 206-acre grounds were then located on the outskirts of the town.

Today the setting is no longer rural, the grounds have shrunk to 55 acres, and the 80-bed facility has grown to 218 beds with about 1,600 admissions annually. But the atmosphere is still designed to alleviate tensions and enable stress-ridden patients to resume a normal life.

And such patients are as likely to be found in Guelph itself as in Toronto—or Hollywood.

"We feel we have a moral obligation to give patients from the Guelph area priority in admission to the hospital," Dr. Vincent said. About 35 per cent of the patients live within 30 miles of the city.

The staff of 485 full-time and 115 part-time employees includes 12 full-time psychiatrists. Two others share their duties between Homewood and the Community Psychiatric Hospital, a government-financed institution under the same roof. There are also three psychologists, a general practitioner and an internist.

The patients are evenly divided between long-term patients, mostly geriatric, and persons suffering from emotional disorders or addictions who are generally admitted for shorter periods.

The hospital is active in discussions towards setting up a regional detoxification centre to supplement its own treatment and rehabilitation program for alcoholics and is setting up an after-care program for discharged patients.

Dr. Vincent took over in 1972 from Dr. G. S. Bryan, who was instrumental in making Homewood the first private or public psychiatric hospital in the province to achieve full accreditation.

Post-concert Party Costly

MONTREAL (CP) — The British rock group The Who and 14 other persons spent eight hours in city detention cells Monday after a suite rented for a post-concert party was damaged.

A police spokesman said the 18 persons were arrested about 5 a.m. Monday after hotel employees who went to the rock group's floor to investigate complaints of noise and glass breaking found the suite in a shambles.

All those detained were released at 1:15 p.m. after the group agreed to pay for all damages.

"The hotel is not, bringing charges against them and neither are we," a Montreal Communist police spokesman said.

Hotel general manager Fernand Roberge said, damage was about $5000, but local precinct Donald Donald who sponsore dthe Sunday night Who concert said the $5,000 paid in cash included bills for the 12 hotel rooms rented by the group.

"There was about $,500 damage to the suite which was rented by a record company for a post-concert party," he said.

The promoter also said some of the 18 persons detained were not in the damaged room.

"Several of the people were rousted out of bed by the cops," he said.

The performers included singer Roger Daltry, lead guitarist Peter Townshend, drummer Keith Moon and bass guitarist John Entwistle.

Robinson Reveals All

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite his tough-guy portrayals on the screen, Edward G. Robinson was a cautious man in interviews, skirting controversy and avoiding references to his personal life.

Now his autobiography has been published posthumously, and his quicksilver revealed, with such matters as troubles with his first wife and their son and his decade-long struggle to save his career from destruction by hunters of Communists.

Robinson was working on the book with screen writer-playwright Leonard Spigelgass when cancer struck the actor early this year. He died at 79 on Jan. 26, two months before the motion Picture Academy was to present him with a special Oscar.

He had told his wife Jane: "Pick up the Oscar for me, dear-est one, and don't wear black."

The book is called All My Yesterdays, and he indicates that some of them were bitter. He had a long, calamitous marriage to former actress Gladys Lloyd, described by him as a manic-depressive treated, many times for her mental problems. The ultimate tragedy for Robinson was when their divorce forced him to sell his art collection, one of the best in America.

Robinson also had to endure the many drunken escapades of his son. The father wrote: "Whatever agonies my sons forced him into these behavior patterns are matched now by my own agonies as I remember them."

Born in Romania, Robinson grew up in the tenements of New York's East Side and began fighting for the underdog early—he was one of them. His support of causes brought him under suspicion from the Red-hunters who determined who could not work in the entertainment industry in the late 1940s.

His phone ran with crank calls, and the mail brought.

He had been a top star, but suddenly Robinson couldn't find work. He spent his days with his art collection.

Death threats and name-calling—"you dirty, filthy, Communist, Jew gangster."

Robinson sought a hearing before the House of Representatives un-American activities committee, even though he believed "it is embarrassing and boot-licking and sickening to me to have to say, 'No, I am not and have never been a member of the Communist party. . . .'

He wasn't called, and his film career ground to a halt. Finally, Congressman Sam Yorty, later to be Los Angeles mayor, arranged an appearance before the committee, "but the actor's professions of innocence failed to stop the descent of his career. He returned to the stage, then played second leads in B pictures.

It was arch-conservative Cecil B. DeMille who reformed Robinson to favor with a role in The 10 Commandments.

Showbiz Shorts

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (Reuter) — Rhodesia's censorship appeal board has decided that the controversial rock musical Jesus Christ, Superstar, is a "powerful and moving film" and the Rhodesian public should not be deprived of their right to see it.

In a judgment made public Monday, the board turned down an appeal by two Rhodesian Christian groups against the showing of the film.

The film was originally passed for public exhibition Nov. 6, but a storm of protest caused the appeal board to hear arguments by the Evangelical Fellowship of Rhodesia and the Rhodesian Christian group.

The appeal board found the musical, although "noisy and unbelievable," has strong impact and "a great deal of good may be done to the cause of religion by the film if, because of it, persons discuss and think of religion."

The board rejected arguments that the fact Judas Iscariot is portrayed by a black man in the film will harm race relations in the country.

NEW YORK (AP) — The producer of a musical has cancelled its Broadway premiere because "I could not in all conscience charge the necessary ticket prices for a production that I do not believe is ready to open."

The show, Rachael Lily Rosenbloom and Don't You Ever Forget It, was scheduled to make its debut Wednesday at the Broadhurst Theatre where it has been on preview tryout. The plot involves an obese woman who attains a meticulous cure in Hollywood.

Producer Robert Stigwood said the musical had fallen two weeks behind its preparations and costs prohibited further rehearsal. It was originally financed at $400,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Martin, Agnes De Mille and 13 others were inducted into the Theatre Hall of Fame Sunday night, nine of them posthumously.

Mayor John Lindsay presented scrolls to Miss Martin, Miss De Mille, director Elia Kazan and designer Jo Mielziner.

Actor Cyril Richard accepted for the late Lilie Langtry. Critic Brooks Atkinson, who himself was elected last year, accepted for the late critic George Jean Nathan.

To be eligible a person must have had a Broadway career spanning at least 25 years and must be dead or more than five major credits.

LONDON (AP) — A concert audience gave soprano Maria Callas thunderous applause Sunday, raised flowers on her and sang her an impromptu chorus of Happy Birthday.

Then admirers, including two elderly women, climbed onto the stage at the Royal Festival Hall in an unsuccessful attempt to follow the star to her dressing room.

The emotional scene, rare for London audiences, came at Miss Callas' second concert here in a week, following an absence of eight years.

Miss Callas, 20 on Sunday, appeared with tenor Giuseppe di Stefano.

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your best ideas will come to you in the early morning. Inspirations you get at that time will be worth pursuing.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Don't wait too long to ask for something that you need from another. Your chances grow slimmer as the day progresses.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Take advantage of co-operation offered by a friend willing to help you at this time with something new you've been considering.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Tomorrow you won't be very productive. Be sure you put in a full day today, were work or career is concerned.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) A situation important to you can be managed nicely today. Tomorrow complications set in. Don't put things off until then.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you find yourself a trifle short, go to your family for help, not to outsiders. Ask only for what you really need.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Discuss any major moves you make in the next few days with one whose advice you value. Don't act on your own.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Limit your tasks to those which you feel are truly rewarding. Leave more mundane chores for another time.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be more effective today doing things that permit you to use your initiative in situations you can personally supervise.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will have an opportunity to smooth out a family problem. If you don't act it will persist a while longer. The choice is yours.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something will happen today to keep your hopes exciting a future prospect. It favors your newest endeavor.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Neither look forward nor backward. Concentrate only on your priorities of the moment. If you do, you'll be successful.

Poor Dentures Cause Earache

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently had an examination to try to find out why I was suffering from earaches, swelling of the throat and legs, high blood pressure and various nervous tests. The ear-nose-throat specialist's diagnosis was that my ear was coming from my false teeth which I have had more than a year. I asked for a second opinion to take to my dentist and it read: "Right otalgia secondary to malocclusion." Would you explain just what this means? — J.S.W.

Otalgia is pain in the ear, in this case related to a dental condition.

The dental problem is identified as malocclusion. It means the teeth do not come together properly, and this can throw the jaw out of exact alignment and cause pain in the jaw or in the ear as in your case.

I doubt that it has anything to do with your blood pressure or tests, but might contribute to your nervousness—you may be clenching your teeth with a malocclusion.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your column where you said if bothered with leg cramps at night you should ask your doctor could give me another pill but I already am taking three kinds of medication for various things and don't want to add to it any more. When I go to bed I get such cramps I have to leap right out of bed. Sometimes the cramps last for an hour.—Mrs. R.S.

Medications of the quinine type very often are helpful, but if you don't want to take any more medicine, there are other ways of combatting leg cramps. A change in diet (le get calcium) often helps. There also are some simple exercises that can do wonders. Some readers say they have gotten rid of their cramps with two treats.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would appreciate it if you could explain one of my exercises to increase the size of the head.—Mrs. B.H.

There are none—except that exercise (or hypnosis) which can make an apparent, although not real, improvement.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a place on my neck, and since nothing I used would heal it, my doctor cut it out. The lab report said it was basal cell cancer.

I am out in the sun a lot; did I do something to cause this? Should I stay out in the sun? Will this now appear in other places on my body and head?

What should I do if this cancer comes back? Will the word cancer given me the shivers, and then to be told I have it, at age 71, that am I to expect and what should I do? — E.M.A.

First thing to do is to claim it isn't cancer; term is "basal cell" cancer, a type wich can be treated more expeditiously in the sun. But that isn't the sole cause, and there is no way of telling whether it caused yours.

Anyway, a skin cancer of the type you had is readily visible and accessible, and is readily curable (by removal). There is no reason to think that yours will spread to other areas.

The one precaution you should takeis to have your doctor check that area from time to time, to make sure that the entire cancer was removed so it doesn't continue to grow.

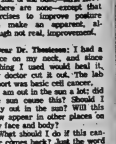
King plays role below station

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Today's hand was played at New York's Cavendish Club some 40 years ago.

The bidding was simple, but would get the same way today in any sort of game. Some hands just feel inexorably right.

West opened the ace of hearts and continued the suit. This was that second trick with his queen and led the king.



South ruffed with the queen at which point West made a remark that has given a number lately bad play a name it still holds.

West plopped on the king as remarked, "No better place for it."

He was partly right. From declarer's standpoint there was no better place for his South spot in the diamond return; three trumps with two leads and chalked up game and rubber.

West did have a much better place for that kind of prompting. He should have kept it right in his hand. Later on when South played ace and West would still collect a trick with the king, but he would score number and the setting trick with his ten spot.

What's more, when West over-ruffed he should've seen that a discard would insure two trump tricks for him. He might have seen this if he had just concentrated on the play and not bothered to talk.

Esso Cuts Prices Due to Tax Change

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. announced Tuesday it is reducing the wholesale price of gasoline and diesel fuel across Canada because of a government revision in the calculation of the federal sales tax for those products.

Effective immediately, prices east of the Ottawa Valley are being decreased by 1.4 cents a gallon for gasoline and diesel fuel and by eight-tenths of one cent a gallon west of the Ottawa Valley.

A spokesman said the reductions result from a change made by the federal government in the base on which it determines the sales tax. The change was communicated to the oil company last Friday.

The spokesman said the federal sales tax had been calculated on the wholesale price of gasoline and diesel fuel to the dealer. Now it is being calculated on values that have been established by the government, producing lower total tax revenues.

Other oil companies did not immediately announce similar price reductions, but Imperial Oil generally is a price-setter in petroleum pricing in Canada.

The reductions Tuesday came four days after major oil companies increased prices east of the Ottawa Valley with the approval of Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

Imperial Oil had raised gasoline, diesel and heating oil by four cents a gallon and aviation and turbo fuel by 4.5 cents a gallon Saturday in Eastern Canada.

Shell Canada Ltd. increased gasoline, diesel and aviation fuels by 3.6 cents a gallon and furnace and stove oil by five cents a gallon.

Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. had increases of 3.6 cents a gallon for gasoline and aviation fuel, 3.5 cents for diesel fuel and five cents for furnace and stove oils.

"The new method of taxation is based on the federal government's establishment of new base values for gasoline and oil, on which the national revenue department sets taxes.

Before last Friday, the base value was calculated as the company's wholesale price minus freight allowance and the company paid a 12-per-cent tax on that amount. Imperial's wholesale prices were higher than its new base values.

The new method of calculating base values is similar to that in other industries where the manufacturer's price varies according to his customers.

James Bay Case Under Advisement

OTTAWA (CP) — A request for leave to appeal a Quebec Court of Appeal ruling that suspended a lower court injunction halting work on the James Bay hydroelectric project was taken under advisement Tuesday by the Supreme Court of Canada after almost two full days of arguments on the motion by lawyers representing the native people of James Bay and the James Bay Development Corp., its subsidiaries and contractors. No decision on the motion is expected for about a week.

McKeough Seeks Accord To Develop Oil Sands

EDMONTON (CP) — Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough called Tuesday for a full national commitment that will lead to early development of Alberta's oil sands.

Mr. McKeough said such a commitment by the 10 provincial governments and Ottawa would ensure Canadians of future low-cost power without Alberta being the loser.

He said in a speech to the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce that Alberta would benefit from the estimated $16 billion to $24 billion it would cost to develop the oil sands.

It would result in major construction projects in that province, and large royalty incomes.

The full and vigorous support of the government of Canada and of the provincial governments, prudent adjustments in the requirements as they touch on aspects of tax policy and careful and co-operative planning by various parts of this nation can mean that all in Canada could have low cost power and Alberta would not be the loser."

The minister said the problems of such a policy would be immense l"but the potential prize is very big."

"For the entire nation, including the oil producing provinces, it would ensure a protecting of the industrial cost base in a world environment in which for most countries this is hard or impossible to accomplish."

Mr. McKeough said it made no sense to attempt to strengthen Alberta's economy by increasing the price of petroleum "when with every dollar we add to the price of a barrel of oil we create a windfall profit of $10 billion, and the bulk of this goes to the oil companies that have that 90 billion barrels in their inventory."

Alberta would get extra income from royalties "but why would the Canadian consumer give up $1 to put some 20 cents into the general revenue of Alberta?"

Mr. McKeough also foresaw the possibility of Canada winding down its exports of oil to the United States.

All Shaheen's Oil Available for Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — New York industrialist John Shaheen has given assurance that production of his Newfoundland refinery would be made available to Canada.

All but about seven per cent of the Newfoundland production had originally been planned for export, mainly to the United States, France and Germany.

Mr. Shaheen said in an interview that the refinery had been scheduled to get into production this week but a petrifiers strike would delay this until later this month.

Election Gossip Mounting

OTTAWA (CP) — The energy issue set Parliament Hill afire with election speculation Tuesday as interest mounted in a Conservative motion of non-confidence in the minority Liberal government, scheduled for Monday.

The motion, focusing on energy, will be designed to attract the support of the New Democratic Party.

The wording will not be announced until Friday and NDP Leader David Lewis has refused to say how his party will vote. But several NDP members say there is a distinct possibility the party will abandon the government.

Secretary To Nixon Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal Judge today ordered President Nixon's personal secretary back into court to tell what advice White House lawyers gave her before she testified about the Watergate tapes.

U.S. District Judge John Sirica said he wants to find out the relationship between Rose Mary Woods and lawyers who have been representing the White House in court.

"We want to get to the bottom of this," the judge said. "I think the whole thing should be opened up."

Then Sirica ordered Miss Woods summoned to court immediately.

Sirica made the surprise move while Samuel Powers, a Miami lawyer retained by the White House as a consultant in the tapes case, was testifying.

It was Powers who brought Miss Woods to court when she testified for the first time Nov. 5.

Angry U.S. Truck Drivers Block Bridge, Turnpikes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Truck drivers blocked off the Delaware Memorial Bridge as the main highway between New York and Washington, D.C., during the height of the rush hour today and tied up traffic at several spots in Ohio in the latest of a series of protests over rising fuel prices and lower speed limits.

Bridge police said the blockade of the two-gait, eight-lane bridge ended shortly after 9 a.m. The bridge normally carries about 48,000 vehicles a day over the Delaware River.

The Ohio blockades came on Interstate 70 also the scene of a series of stoppages Tuesday, and on the Ohio Turnpike, closed during the night at several spots and reopened briefly at dawn.

Police said at least 100 rigs halted Interstate traffic in both directions just west of Norwalk, between Elyria and Fremont in the northern part of the state.

Highway policemen on the scene "simply asked us to leave enough room to let the people through to get to work," said one trucker. "We fully agree with that. We just want to hold up freight."

Another 60 trucks blocked traffic on Interstate 70, just east of Columbus, and demanded a meeting with Governor John Gilligan.

Buses and commuters in cars tried to find alternate routes in the area around Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del., during the bridge blockade.

The heavily-travelled New Jersey Turnpike begins on the New Jersey side of the Delaware River.

The Ohio truckers had warned of new stoppages. Walter Barclay of Omaha, Neb., one of the leaders, said: "We're trying to shut down the whole U.S.A. to get the fuel price down and let us have fuel prior-ity."

The overnight turnpike blockades had closed all lanes of the toll roads in three places. Authorities said 200 to 400 trucks were involved at one point.

Earlier today, police used tow vehicles to remove some of the estimated 150 trucks blocking an interstate highway in Pennsylvania, and drivers blocked roads in at least three other states as they continued their protest against higher gasoline prices and a new 55-mile-an-hour speed limit.

Truck blockades were also reported in New Jersey, West Virginia and New York, and there were demonstrations by truckers Tuesday in Connecticut and Delaware. At least 13 arrests were made by police.

Truck blockades formed Tuesday night at Lamar, Bartonsville, Danville, and Statonville on Interstate 80 in Pennsylvania, with an estimated 800 trucks involved in a massive jam-up at Lamar which halted traffic in both directions.

There was no indication of a concerted U.S.-wide effort to tie up traffic but some drivers and a West Coast trade magazine have called for such a move.

Higher Heating-oil Prices Coming in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher heating-oil prices are in the offing in what officials say could be an important test of the idea that the United States can conserve through higher prices.

The increases of two to three cents a gallon are expected to be approved today by the Cost-of-Living Council, said William Simon, head of the administration's new Federal Energy Administration.

Sources within the Cost-of-Living Council have predicted that heating oil prices may increase by eight cents a gallon before the winter is over.

Meanwhile, State Secretary Henry Kissinger was to meet with Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian oil minister, to discuss that country's cutoff of oil to the United States.

Also expected to meet with Kissinger is Belaid Abdesalam, the minister of industry and energy for Algeria.

State department officials say they do not expect the meeting to accomplish much in arranging quick resumption of oil supplies.

South Vietnamese Plan Offensive in Highlands

SAIGON (AP) — Hundreds of South Vietnamese reinforcements poured into Quang Duc province in the lower central highlands today to take the offensive against North Vietnamese forces threatening the provincial capital.

Spearheaded by 20 tanks, North Vietnamese troops Tuesday captured the district town of Kien Duc, near the Cambodian border 90 miles northeast of Saigon. It was the first district capital lost by the Saigon government since the ceasefire last January.

The South Vietnamese command said 1,000 troops retreated from Kien Duc to a point a quarter of a mile from the town. But other military sources said they pulled back to Gia Nghia, the provincial capital 12 miles to the east.

"We think Gia Nghia is the next target; it is directly threatened by enemy pressure," said a spokesman for the command.

North Vietnamese shelling has already closed the airport at Gia Nghia, he reported.

Bridge Widening Under Review

City council will reconsider proposed plans for widening and reconstruction of West Bridge Street to three lanes.

This was the council decision Monday when it approved a notice of motion from Alderman Jim Meeks who said that three-lane width could be achieved by reducing sidewalk width and moving service poles without sacrificing lynes now lining the roadway.

The street widening proposal is now before the Ontario Municipal Board which is awaiting new traffic counts before making a decision.

Alderman John Stock felt there was no need for creating another high speed traffic artery in this area. He said widened streets and higher speed limits served to increase the accident rate.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the city engineer would be agreeable to council reconsideration of the Bridge Street reconstruction proposals.

And Alderman Meeks won council approval for a second notice of motion, this one calling for provincial and federal authorities to be petitioned to investigate the feasibility of higher widest feet.

The alderman said witnesses called to testify in court cases were paid only from $3 to $10 a day when in some cases they lost their wages from their normal every day jobs.

"Its completely unrealistic," he said, "A man cannot possibly support a family on from $3 to $10 a day."

Museum Is Preparing A Victorian Christmas

What with the government asking everyone to cut back on their consumption of energy and father using that as an excuse to let the neon reindeer gather frost in the garage rather than going to the trouble of placing them on the roof, a Christmas without electricity could lead to an old fashioned celebration.

Instead of relying on Ontario Hydro to bring a festive glow into their homes, people may turn their hands to making their own Christmas decorations.

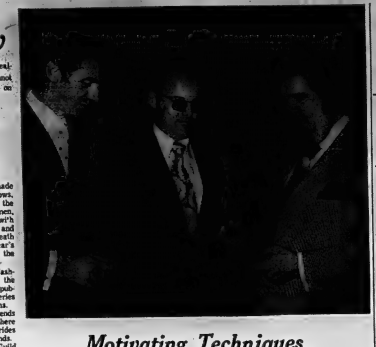
At least that's what they are doing at Glanmore House, the Hastings County Museum, on Bridge Street East.

Historical Society members are starting to decorate their late Victorian showcase for the Christmas season and they plan to provide Belleville residents with a special type of Christmas display.

Starting this evening, the society will be holding a series of Christmas workshops which over a period of three nights, will see the museum being decked out with all the trappings that accompanied a turn-of-the-century Christmas.

Popcorn strings, festoons, kissing balls made of apples and cedar bows, crackling yule logs in the fireplaces, gingerbread men, marzipan figures made with a delicious almond paste, and holly will all bring a breath of history to this year's Christmas festivities at the museum.

In addition to the old fashioned decorations, the museum will present the public with an interesting series of pre-Christmas programs.



During the two weekends that precede Christmas there will be horse and buggy rides around the museum grounds.

The Belleville Theatre Guild will present selections of Christmas material in various parts of the museum on Dec. 13 and Dec. 19 will feature a series of marionette performances for children in the Paul Lamp Room, while the Eastern Ontario String Quartet will entertain adults in the Billiard Room.

On Dec. 20, Frank Foley will treat visitors to the museum with an exhibit and demonstration of his music box collection and on the following day everyone will join in a caroling session on the museum's steps.

This is the first year that the museum has tried to put on a special Christmas program and curator Marten Lewis hopes that its popularity will encourage the historical society to develop a more extensive program next year.

For those people who don't know what they are going to do without their 60-watt Rudolph or their 300-watt Star of Bethlehem, perhaps the museum will hold some helpful tips. After all they certainly knew how to celebrate Christmas before there was electric energy—let alone an energy crisis.

Motivating Techniques

Motivation and its application in a person's work and personal life was the topic dealt with at an early morning seminar sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville yesterday at the Four Seasons Hotel. Bob Proctor, president of XOCES Inc., explained his theories to Armin Quickert, Kiwanis Club president. Leland Val Van De Wall, right, holds a device which he used to show that for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction, explaining that people react to others according to the way they are treated by them.

Goals Make Life Vital

A person should become more goal-oriented and not just task-oriented if he wants to get the most satisfaction and enjoyment out of his job.

"A person who is task-oriented gets hurt easily, he runs his foot often. He doesn't recognize the opportunities that come his way because he is too busy getting hurt.

"But a person who sets himself a goal and is goal-oriented can knock his foot off and still keep going. He's directed his life toward something he believes in. He is in love with an idea."

This was the message directed to area business management people attending a morning seminar at the Four Seasons Hotel sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

The speaker was Robert Proctor, president of XOCES Inc., a company that strives to show the businessman how to make his business as well as his personal life more productive and meaningful.

Mr. Proctor told the group they should focus on a goal and help their employees do the same and become emotionally involved with it.

"If you get your employees concentrating on a goal, and not just a financial or company one, their sales go up. You make the atmosphere where you work more pleasant" said Mr. Proctor.

He suggested that those in management take their employees aside, especially the one who isn't doing too well, and ask them what their goals are.

"They may be taken aback at first but eventually they will tell you, whether it be a new home, good health or getting the kids through school," said Mr. Proctor.

He told the audience that those in a management position are dealing with something unique. "You are dealing with people," he emphasized to his listener.

"Man is a frightened wanderer. You must find his true identity, to seek the success he seeks in all departments of life. And success depends on the image we have of ourselves," said Mr. Proctor.

Leland Val Van De Wall, also with XOCES, brought out the role of the human factor in making a company a pleasant and efficient place in which to work.

He mentioned the situation of a secretary in a company who gets blasted at dumb because she is not doing her job as well as she could.

"But she isn't dumb. The person quitting her dumb job," emphasized Mr. Van De Wall, "Someone should take her aside and find out what her problem is.

"She may be expected to know something that hasn't been properly explained to her." he said. He told the group of the amazing results that come about by encouraging the confidence and efficiency of the girl once the problem was solved.

"Those in management should talk to the individual about a job well done, they may have fallen in love with. By doing this you make them excited about going to work. You make going to work a fun place. They become eager to want to go to work," said Mr. Van De Wall.

"It's not easy to set a goal. To find out what direction your life should go. Those in management should ask their employees where they want to go. And not just something esoteric or spiritual but, since we live in a material world, something material," continued Mr. Proctor. A new education for the kids, he offered as examples of goals.

"A person can get anything he wants if he goes after it," he said. "But a person cannot stand still. He has to either go up or down," said Mr. Proctor illustrating on a blackboard "A person cannot tiptoe through life," said Mr. Van De Wall.

Mr. Proctor and Mr. Van De Wall both emphasized the importance that employees get a smile play in dealing with people and creating good feelings in a company.

Using Newton's law that for every action there is an equal and opposite action, the two speakers reinforced the opinion that a customer or employee reacts according to the way he is treated.

Mr. Van De Wall told those in attendance they must change their way of thinking, their habits, if they want to make their place of business as well as their personal lives satisfying, fulfilling and enjoyable as they can possibly be.

Sidney Land Deal Signed

Sidney township signed a $60,000 offer of purchase with a Toronto developer for a 45 acre parcel of land northeast of Trenton Tuesday. The land will be used for a commercial site whose major tenant would be a Montreal-based company.

Developer Stanley Greniuk revealed to Reeve Gordon Wilman yesterday that a large furniture store is likely to be built. Mr. Greniuk was unavailable to further elaborate upon his plans.

At Monday's regular council meeting, Mr. Greniuk offered $60,000 for the land on condition he receive all necessary governmental approvals as well as a letter of commitment to lease from the Montreal firm. Should this not occur prior to May 15, 1974, the offer would become void.

Trenton Area Awaits LIP

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Approvals still awaited, and cutbacks in winter works projects could make this a hard winter for area unemployed.

Closing date for Local Initiative Program projects was Oct. 15. As yet, there has been no word of approvals. This, coupled with no provincial winter works projects as yet, is already having an effect on district welfare offices.

Though it is impossible to tell to what extent these slowdowns are affecting welfare rolls, a welfare souce said 18 applications a day are coming into county offices in Belleville.

The same spokesman acknowledged winter generally brings increases in applications. They will peak in January and February, amplified by fewer government make-work schemes.

LIP programs, due to begin in early December are being delayed by holdups in the Toronto Canada Manpower offices where the program is administered.

Whether it is an indication more interest is being paid LIP programs or because there are more area unemployed, the number of local applications submitted reached 18 triple the amount of the pre-vious year.

John Cole, Manpower counsellor here, said he expected work "long before this."

"We're playing it by ear on a day to day basis," he said.

The LIP programs that obtain approval commence at the discretion of the sponsoring agency and generally run six months.

Bellevillian In Crash

MADOC — A 78-year-old Belleville area man escaped injury when his car was struck in a rear-end collision on Highway 7, near Marmora Wednesday.

Provincial police at Madoc said Stewart Lough, RR 2 Belleville, had slowed as a car ahead turned off the highway. His vehicle was hit by an automobile driven by Donald Lavigne, 40, Peterborough.

Total damage was estimated at $850.

February Liquor Vote For Townships

MARMORA — A liquor plebiscite in Marmora and Lake Township will be held Feb. 29.

The letter from the Chief Elections Officer setting out the date has been received in answer to council's recent application for permission to hold a vote to decide whether the townships would remain dry or go wet.

Council has given three readings to a required bylaw covering three questions which will be voted on by approximately 900 permanent residents of the combined townships.

Three Flee Hotel Fire

COLBORNE — Three people were plucked from a second-floor balcony early this morning, fleeing a fire which caused $20,000 damage to Colborne's Queen's Hotel.

The trio were 76 year-old Mary Scarlet, her son Jack, and his wife Kathleen. The Scarlets were owner-operators of the hotel.

The fire was first spotted by patrolling Provincial Police officers from Brighton shortly after 2 a.m. today.

Police said the blaze began in the barroom area.

No cause has yet been named.

The barroom was completely gutted said a Colborne fire department report.

Colborne and Brighton firefighters combined forces for three hours in fighting the fire.

There were no injuries resulting from the blaze.

The sights and sounds of Christmas now are adding seasonal sparkle to the Quinte scene. Among the traditional sights is the Belleville Salvation Army band, making music in the glow of street lamps Wednesday night. It brought the sounds of carol music to the city's eastend suburbs.

Committee Appointed to Examine Arena Need in Sidney Township

A five-man committee has been formed to investigate the feasibility of constructing an arena in Sidney township.

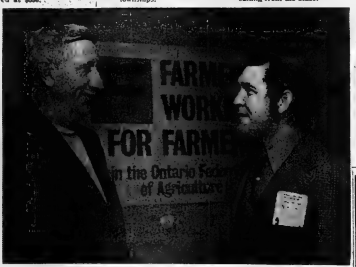
A special meeting called by council Tuesday appointed Fred Hosking, township resident, as chairman.

Reeve Gordon Hillman said the committee will survey township residents to investigate the need for a township ice surface.

"Some figures were thrown out," said the reeve this morning, "but no one had any ideas as to cost or what would be built?

Mr. Hosking indicated that no adverse comments were heard from about 25 people in attendance. However, concern was expressed that any proposed arena should not interfere with those in surrounding municipalities, such as Frankford and Stirling.

"We realize an arena is not a paying proposition," said Mr. Hosking. "We also realize there are many considerations as to possible effects."



Without being emotional about it, I'm not sure there's a need for it."

The committee, representing various parts of the municipality, will be talking to township residents in coming months. Only a preliminary investigation will be done, Mr. Hosking was quick to add.

A provincial government representative was present during the meeting at township offices to provide information on possible recreation building grants available. The meeting was a result of a delegation that spoke to council in November.

Load Limits

MARMORA — The Ministry of Transportation and Communications has approved a Marmora and Lake townships plow, restricting load limits on the Beaver Creek, Shanick and Moira River bridges. Ministry approval is limited to two years.

Farmers' Spokesmen

At the recent Ontario Federation of Agriculture convention in Oshawa two Quinte-area farmers were chosen to represent their home counties in the organization. Vacant Sidney House Is Destroyed by Fire

Volunteer firefighters from Batawa spent more than three hours trying to contain a blaze which burned a vacant Sidney township farm house to the ground Wednesday night.

Sidney Fire Chief John Aquino said the firemen were called by provincial police to the blaze on the township's third concession around 9 p.m.

The house, owned by Carl McFaul, RR 1 Ameliasburg was spotted burning by an OPP officer from Highway 401, two miles south.

When firefighters arrived the frame house was already lost. They concentrated on preventing outbreak of fire in a nearby barn, containing 4,000 bales of hay.

Cause of the fire has not yet been determined and a damage estimate was not known.

Sewage System Start in 1974

MARMORA — Marmora village residents can expect construction of the municipality's sewage system to begin early next year.

That was the news, in a letter last week to W. A. Shannon, village clerk treasurer from P. J. Crabtree of the provincial government's Project Development Branch.

Mr. Crabtree stated in his letter that the final design for both the sewage collector system and the sewage treatment plant is now nearing completion, prior to the Ministry of the Environment reviews.

The ministry anticipates being able to let these contracts out to tender during February next year. Construction would then commence early in the spring.

Will Clean Up Dump

MARMORA — A collection of old stoves and refrigerators on a section of abandoned road near the Norwood Road off Highway 7, has caught the attention of John W. Tooley, Regional Inspector of Waste Management Branch.

In a letter to Marmora and Lake ownships council Mr. Tooley has directed the attention of council to an authorized disposal site or covered with earth.

After some discussion, council decided the area will be cleaned up and fenced early next year, when the cost has been budgeted. Gates will be added a each end of the road to permit Ontario Hydro access to transmission lines.

Reeve Graham Bell brought another unauthorized dump on the Tiffen Road to Council's attention. He asked the council members to view in and report their findings to him.

Manager Needed

MARMORA — Marmora Arena is without a manager again.

John Luker of Trenton has submitted his resignation, Councillor James Cook reported at the last meeting of Marmora and Lake council. But the arena committee is hopeful it will be able to secure the services of a local man to oversee the work.

A meeting of the Committee, Marmora Arena Reconstruction Committee and councillors from Marmora village, the townships and Deloro village has been set for Dec. 8 to discuss the arena.

The Democratic Process

Whether we like it or not politics play a major part in our lives. The hand of Government is everywhere, whether by legislation or regulation by edict, paying our income-tax or receiving an unemployment check — not to mention a host of other situations where the administrative process impinges on people's lives.

This is the routine of politics, at the grassroots level, and no one escapes it.

"Playing politics" is something else again and of course it certainly not our own, escape its none too subtle depredations. It has been practised here in a number of guises and indeed it has its advantages, its element of helping a community to arrive at the truth of any given matter, its value as a counter to apathy.

Msgr. J. P. Sullivan as chairman of Belleville General Hospital says that opposition party politicians are improperly trying to involve the hospital in provincial politics. There was the matter for instance of discharge entering and probing the matter from the hospital, then the visit of NDP member Dr. Morton Shulman raising the issue of arsenic content from the old Deloro Mine operation with possible pollution to the Moira river basin area and suggestions it was affecting the health of people in the Quinte region, and finally, according to Msgr. Sullivan, there has been political talk surrounding staff changes at the hospital which the chairman insists are normal: in the one instance because of a changeover in a number of key personnel positions, and in the other, moves to jobs elsewhere at higher salaries.

All this, in the Quinte riding of which Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter is the member, is there is smoke without fire. Yet as we have said, the truth of any given matter is not to be found in its burial from public view, or in the muzzling of our politicians of whatever political hue. Undoubtedly the smoke from these Quinte area brushfires does come in part at least from the fires of political exploitation. However, if Msgr. Sullivan and his board find it irritating, as he has said, let's not forget it is part of the legitimate political process, a vital facet of democracy, an effective means of keeping the public, public bodies, and Government at large, on their toes.

Swimming Group

The city of Peterborough has a sterling group of young people, along with their adult coaches, in its Ornamental Swim Club Association A sports group which has distinguished itself at home and abroad over a period of many years. At the team level is busy trying to raise sufficient funds for another trip to England.

The attractive girls in their distinctive uniforms who belong to the POSCA are surely one of the most effective groups of young ambassadors throughout Canada. They have a long history of aquatic successes and are a credit to their community. Head coach of the club Gordon Ibbotson began back in 1944 is Mrs. Pansy Forbes.

Another Peterborough young people's group setting a good example these days is the air cadets. The community's 534 squadron — boys and girls — are building their own plane which they fully expect to become operational. About 60 cadets and half-a-dozen adult supervisors have been working on the plane for the past three years. A piston engine was purchased in kit form from a U.S. firm, and several other experienced people, pilots included, are assisting in the project.

To buy a similar plane outright would cost as much as $15,000, whereas this machine is expected to cost only about $5,000. While the cadets will have use of the plane, regulations however will not permit pilot training in a home-made machine.

As an example of initiative though and of long hours of concentrated work this is hard to beat.

Christmas Parade

The Christmas parade was a fine effort, featuring many of the old and experienced hands and some new ones. Lots of younger try too in the majorette groups . . . but where were the mature, teen members of yesteryear?

It was a nice international touch to have Australian exchange student Rosemary Downs as Belleville's parade's role she performed with grace and exuberance.

Not so long ago a young lady from Bermuda, a student at Albert College, was under carnivial queen. These are all indications of the very significant part visitors from overseas have come to play in the life of "The Friendly City."

Arabs Now More Sure of Themselves

Mood Of Confidence Slips From Israel in Wake Of Events

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The mood in Israel is one of gloom, foreboding and harsh public statements about the future. After winning three of the four Middle East wars since 1949 and perhaps almost the fourth in October, the Israelis are aware quick desert battlefield victories are no longer the panaceas they were in 1967 and 1956.

The Arab countries in the struggle, Syria and Egypt, were rejuvenated by their early victories against Israel. The complete story of Israeli losses is still not released by Tel Aviv. That Arab elation continues in their growing oil boycott against powerful industrialized countries which have always supported Israel.

Islam is experiencing victories and a feeling the Israelis can be beaten or checkmated in a way not shared by the Arab world in perhaps centuries.

Meantime Israeli insecurity is based on many related events. The heavy losses of young warriors for such a small country, representing on a proportionate basis one dead soldier for a man for every Israeli family.

The economy has burned off its hard-won surplus from aggressive export and tourist programs, high taxation in an outcry of powder, fuel and weapons losses, amounting to perhaps $400 millions. Inflation already experienced in Israel as everywhere else is jumping as a result of the war.

Most revealing and ominous of all the Israeli future uncertainty competence is the public display of angry differences among the generals. The hardliners wanted to wipe out the isolated Egyptian 3rd Army no matter what the cost. The softliners have felt Israel for the first time over-extended herself militarily.

Some of the generals will express their frustration even further by entering politics, since the country faces a national election. Prime Minister Golda Meir, once like Caesar's wife above suspicion, is also being criticized in public for permitting the forces to be caught off guard by Egyptians and Syrians.

The fact is Israel like other all-conquering countries of history had become self-confident, under-estimated the enemy and his ability to strike at a soft under-belly which the Israelis, hardened by constant self-vigilance, figured they did not have. Foreign Minister Abba Eban's complaint in the United Nations of Arab dirty tricks in attacking on Yom Kippur that most accred of Jewish holidays, was very slim pickings since it was also the Moslem feast of Ramadan. And why should Arabs care about attacking on a Jewish feast day in any case?

Shades of the Pearl Harbor syndrome and pre-war accusations Japanese reasoning that Sunday morning in U.S. naval base was also "sacred" in its own way as the time when navy men were off base playing golf, or sailing or sleeping in. The Israelis' frustration at becoming, for being caught off guard, a position they have rightly avoided since the 1948-49 war of liberation, is understandable.

And now as their friends in the Third World slip away, breaking ties because of Arab pressures in Africa and Japan moves into a strong pro-Arab stance, the Israelis, who always viewed themselves as alone in the world, are truly alone in many ways and for complex reasons.

How much they must recall the voices of doom of the prophets of the Scriptures as they also recall ancient struggles to keep back the enemies of biblical Israel.

The Syrian is still descending "like the wolf on the fold," in our own day unwilling to negotiate or parley or talk with a modern Israel. Israel's deep peace is more than, well-founded.

Oil Shortage Exposes Rifts in European Market

By CY FOX
BRUSSELS (CP) — The oil shortage in western Europe illustrates that in many ways solidarity among Common Market members remains an ideal rather than an actuality.

But there are signs, as well, that the crisis is spurring governments and business alike into intensified action to ease the impact of oil scarcities on what already have proved to be highly vulnerable economies on this continent.

The latest government leader to announce stepped-up efforts on development of alternative energy sources is Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany, who also has urged establishment of a European energy council.

The idea of an energy council was received with skepticism by some European officials, who doubt it will ever become a significant reality. Others see it as a meaningless concept without the collective will of member states.

Yet Brandt's suggestion appears more plausible in the light of published reports that the French and West Germans may co-operate in the vital area of enriched uranium production.

The French are going ahead with a "gaseous diffusion" project for production of enriched uranium, a fuel needed to produce nuclear power.

Joining in the French project are Italian, Belgian, Spanish and Swedish interests, with only the site of the enriched uranium plant yet to be determined.

This step is considered only a partial and long-range answer to the energy crisis which experts predict will continue long after any possible settlement of the Middle East conflict.

But it indicates that serious attempts are being made in Western Europe to reduce dependence on Middle East oil.

An approach to the problem from a different direction has materialized in the form of plans for improving the railway systems of several Western European countries.

Supporters argue that a good train system consumes far less oil than does the armada of cars and trucks needed to transport an equivalent amount of passengers and freight.

Britain is undertaking a major program to improve its train system over the next five years.

The British announcement coincides with recommendations for similar rail development in other parts of Europe proposed by international railway officials in Florence, Italy, and elsewhere.

Yet there remains the conspicuous absence of a common energy policy for all nine countries belonging to the Common Market.

There also is the problem of how the Community can call itself united while Holland, a loyal member, is left in limbo to deal with an Arab oil embargo.

Chancellor Brandt has proved foremost among leaders to deplore an attitude that "would leave the Netherlands to fend for itself."

Surveying the energy field, Brandt has aptly summed up the Common Market's predicament with his statement that "if we cannot unite on the energy question, then we shall not be able to achieve anything substantial in other directions either."

Whither Free Enterprise in Ontario?

By DON O'HEARN
The Toronto Star Bureau
TORONTO — There never has been much doubt that the Progressive Conservative party of Ontario is a party of free enterprise.

Any man on the street will tell you this.

But recently there seems to be some doubt in the minds of the leaders in the party about this is properly appreciated.

For men such as the premier and Energy Minister Darcy McKeough are not only talking but making every opportunity to proclaim that their party stands for free enterprise.

The emphasis has become so pronounced that one instinctively looks for motives.

For while the Tories have always been champions of exercise they really haven't been all that active with it.

In fact over the years they have prided with pride to such public enterprises as Ontario Hydro, Workmen's Compensation Board and the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission. They either initiated or developed.

Then just a short while ago McKeough was talking of development by government of the Athabasca tar sands.

So why the change now?

One obvious reason is that in the light of the energy problems the NDP has been pressing vigorously for a Crown energy corporation.

Such an NDP demand, of course, is a red flag to the government and is to be depended on to bring out its most bullish speeches.

The practicality question today the government here is at odds with Ottawa but it is particularly so on the energy question.

But with government one in the end always looks to politics and the most reasonable answers to the free enterprise crusade probably are political.

One would do to shore up the position with the business community, which along with the rest of the public has been somewhat disillusioned with the Davis administration.

And a second, and admittedly a long shot, is that it already has made up its mind that it will run and steer the next election into a fight over socialism versus free enterprise.

Lundrigan-Davis Hassle

By STEWART MACLEOD
OTTAWA (CP) — The terms of settlement which, temporarily at least, cooled the raging feud between John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) and Fisheries Minister Jack Davis may come back to haunt the Commons.

In the presumed-conscious House, a mischievous MP could cite this case to argue that a statement can be withdrawn by uttering three modified accusations.

It is doubtful whether it would work, but since procedural arguments usually involve references to earlier rulings from the Speaker, this case is bound to be tested in the future.

What happened is that Mr. Lundrigan, in firing torpedoes at Mr. Davis' new program of licensing fishermen, accused the minister of "deliberately misleading the House."

Such a remark always has been regarded as unparliamentary and there are invariably demands for a withdrawal. A member can say misled, but the word deliberately, in such a case, is taboo.

Despite urgings from Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, Mr. Lundrigan was in no frame of mind to withdraw anything. "I will not back away an inch," he said. That set off a 15-minute procedural wrangle which, at one point, almost resulted in a Newfoundland MP being suspended from the House for the day.

The Speaker, in an attempt to get the House on to other business, pleaded with the member to "change only one word." As the argument continued, Mr. Lundrigan repeated, on three subsequent occasions, that the fisheries minister had misled the House.

Conservative House Leader Thomas M. Bell (PC—Saint John-Lancaster), trying to cool the scene, referred to these three statements, all of them without the word deliberately.

"Three times the honorable member has used the word misled but not the word or phrase deliberately, which I think is to be used that would be burdensome to the chair. So if there could be an acceptance of only the use of the word 'misleading' we have got over the impasse for the time being at least."

The Speaker suggested the acceptance of this as a withdrawal would require "extreme leniency." But he questioned whether the chair "should be placed in the position where I have to examine the full pound of flesh or whether I should be satisfied with something less than that."

The next day, when the subject was raised again, the Speaker said that "although the amendment or modification which had been made by the honorable member for Gander-Twillingate was not entirely satisfactory, I was willing to accept it."

Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen said he was willing to drop the matter on the understanding that Mr. Lundrigan "fully withdrew the allegation against the minister and that the rules of the House in your judgment by opinion have been fully satisfied."

There the matter ended, and the clever Mr. Lundrigan came to withdrawing anything was to say "Mr. Speaker, that the minister misled the House."

In the best of debate, the words chosen are the result from time to time and it is invariably by withdrawal that they are used.

As the custodian of the rules, request.

The Speaker will continue to ask that such statements be withdrawn. But it appears certain that at some point there will be a reluctant MP ready to cite the ruling in "The Lundrigan Case."

The fact that it will not work until, not necessarily discourage the attempt.

Government And The Fuel Crisis

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

When is parliament going to hand out the ration books for oil for each family? Are Messrs. Sharp and Trudeau and the rest of them going to double in transportation? Is Parliament going to stop their trips by plane to save?

Doubling up on transportation is fine, but after four or five working men ruin the interior of your car, and your wife and men don't wear a suit to work, is Parliament going to allow for the repairs? What about the old folks who can't take the cold — are they just to wither and fade away?

Don't say Parliament did not see this coming, they just didn't care. Just like they did for 22 hour for wheat, shelled or not; to an adult, a housewife can make more by shelling peas than a paper boy tops this. Today one is only getting by, by a thread with the cost of food and rents. People can now say to their children "just do a needle and your socks on, so you'll be warm together". Next they will say use flashlights; is Parliament going to supply the batteries? Then it will be don't use your TV, or radio, and if you have an electric stove don't cook on it, save the power.

It is the little man that breaks his back to keep his breed ones alive today. And what does he get, don't do this, don't do that.

CN Says It Is Ready To Expand Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian National Railways will be able to expand its operations to meet demands which the energy crisis may impose, CNR president Norman MacMillan assured the Commons transport committee Tuesday.

The railway has plans which will enable it to react quickly to anything that develops, he said.

It would be ready to increase substantially rail capacity to make up for any cutbacks in air transport which could result from the crisis.

But any measures introduced in the near future to deal with the energy problem are not likely to include using electricity to run trains, he said in response to questions from Conservative MPs Elmer Mackay (Central Nova) and Dan McKenzie (Winnipeg South Centre).

Age Is Important

Methane from Manure Farm Energy Source

WINNIPEG (CP) — There's no reason why any farm family should worry about fuel shortages this winter if it has livestock, delegates to the National Farmers Union (NFU) convention were told Tuesday.

In an interview later, he said the waste from 20 hogs is enough to heat the home of a family of 12, and the equipment needed for converting the manure to methane is both cheap and not complicated.

Using production of methane as an example of greater local self-sufficiency of agricultural communities, he advocated a return to an earlier era of Canadian life when, communities got together on a host of projects.

Welch Is Sympathetic To Pickering Protest

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — A spokesman for the Whitevale and District Residents' Association said Tuesday that Housing Minister Robert Welch appreciates the group's contention that some of the province's best farmland would be destroyed by the North Pickering project.

After an hour-long meeting between Mr. Welch and five members of the association, Gordon Willson, association president, said the recently appointed minister was receptive to their arguments and promised to study in detail an earlier brief.

"It seems he's becoming more aware of the agricultural aspects of the planning to date," said Mr. Willson.

Cut Costs in Home Fuel Use

TORONTO (CP) — Home appliances consume a fairly small percentage of the energy used in Canada. But in the face of fuel shortages and rising costs, home-makers can cut that percentage by using the appliances efficiently.

For instance, most automatic washers have water level and temperature controls. The level should correspond to the size and type of the load you are washing. Using more water than you need can be wasteful; not using enough may mean you have to run the wash through again.

A press release from Maytag recommends following the suggestions of the appliance maker and garment manufacturers in selecting water temperature. But it says those rules can be bent to save energy.

For instance, if you pretreat soiled areas such as collars and cuffs, you can use warm instead of hot water to wash while clothes and get good results. It may take a little elbow grease to be sure the pre-treating detergent is rubbed into the heavily soiled areas before the clothes are put in the washer.

There is no reason to use the full wash cycle with a load of clothes that is only lightly soiled. Most washers allow you to adjust the wash time, permitting you to conserve your own time as well as the energy used in running the washer.

There are several ways to conserve energy with a dryer. Avoid over-drying: it not only wastes energy, it is hard on the fabrics. Clothes should be removed when they have a little moisture left in them. If you have a time-control dryer, check near the end of the cycle to find the correct time to remove the clothes.

In cold weather, a dryer in a workable location may have its venting disconnected—so that it vents its warm, moist air into the home. The exhaust vent can be covered with a lint bag to catch any particles. Bags are generally available from appliance dealers.

In warm weather, the dryer must be vented to the outside air. Otherwise, it can put too much moisture into your home and the heated air would be a burden on air conditioning.

Venting should be checked regularly to make certain it is clean and that there are no obstructions. It is even more important to keep the lint filter clean to permit free air circulation.

If you have a dishwasher, you can conserve hot water by washing a full load. Instead of washing a small number of breakfast and lunch dishes, wait, if you can, until after dinner.

Modern dishwashers are designed to wash even heavily soiled dishes, somewhat when it is absolutely necessary, you don't need to pre-wash. Let the appliance do the job and save the hot water and detergent you would use in hand washing.

Be sure the insulation in your dishwasher is good. It not only reduces noise but keeps heat less to a minimum.

Dishes that are allowed to air-dry are just as dry as power-dried dishes. When possible, let them dry on their own in the dishwasher. If your dishwasher does not have a "wash only" setting, you may be able to program it for no heat or less heat.

The water heater should be set at 140 to 150 degrees, the range for most efficient operation. Insulating hot-water pipes can reduce heat loss.

If you have a waste disposer, put fibrous foods such as celery or corn husks into it first and other food wastes on top. This arrangement helps break up the fibrous foods and dispose of them quickly.

Use cold water to flush food wastes through the disposer. It is better to use too much water than not enough with a food waste disposer. Not enough can result in a buildup and cause plumbing problems.

Say 'Cheddar Cheese Please'

Last week's British Empire Dairy Show of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association brought cheese to the minds - - and lips - - of Front Street shoppers who visited the display.

The cheeses being judged were cheddar, still the most popular Canadian cheese. From the creamy, delicate flavor of new cheese to the tangy bite of well-aged cheddar, cheese is a favorite food of most families.

The high protein content of cheese makes it an appealing menu addition for cooks who are buying less meat these days. Cheese sauces, or just grated cheese, over vegetable dishes, eggs or rice make meatless meals tastier and more nutritious. Boiled potatoes and onions become "special" when covered with cheddar.

One hint for health-conscious mothers: serve an ounce-and wedge of cheese with your family's toast and jam for breakfast, and, you're sure that they've started the day with protein to keep them going.

Here are some recipes that use cheddar to advantage.

Isabella Quiche Quiche

several slices of stale bread, with crusts cut off two eggs per person
¼ cup milk per egg
¼ cup grated cheddar cheese per person chopped green onions (optional)
parsley flakes
salt, pepper and basil

This is a handy make-do dish for lunch or supper that looks superb when it comes crusty and bubbling from the oven.

Turn the oven to 325 degrees.

Butter the inside of one small oven-proof dish or casserole for each person you're serving.

Place the slices of stale bread inside the dishes, pressing them firmly around the sides to form a little bowl of bread.

In a large bowl, beat the eggs, add the milk and beat this mixture until it is foamy.

In the breaded casseroles, sprinkle the chopped green onions, and a little grated cheese. Pour the egg and milk mixture over this until it comes within half an inch of the top of the dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, basil, and the rest of the grated cheese.

Bake in the oven for about half an hour, or until the egg mixture has risen well above the top of the dish and looks golden and a little crusty.

Serve immediately in the individual casseroles.

Spaghetti Peasant Style

whole peeled medium-small onions margarine or butter cooked spaghetti
grated cheddar cheese

You'll hardly believe that anything so easy and economical can taste so good.

Arrange the onions in a baking dish and dot generously with butter or margarine. Bake at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes or until the onions are fork-tender. (Turn them occasionally during the baking.)

Boil spaghetti until tender in salted water. Drain and spread on a hot platter. Pour on the hot cooked onions and the buttery cooking juices, and cover thickly with grated cheese. Serve hot with a leafy green salad.

Cheesy Beer Crab Soup

3 tablespoons butter
one-third cup diced onions
one-third cup grated carrot
1 can condensed celery soup (10oz.)
1½ cups grated cheddar cheese.
1 ½ cups beer or ale
½ cup milk
1 can crabmeat (7 oz.)

Saute the onions and carrots in butter until the onion is transparent.

Add the next four ingredients. Cook over low heat until smooth and the cheese is completely melted.

Add crabmeat and bring mixture to a boil.

Serve piping hot with crackers or croutons.

Bella's Cheese Cookies
(from "Food that Really Schmecks")

¼ cup soft butter
¼ tsp. salt
2 grains cayenne
1 cup grated old cheddar cheese
¼ cup crushed rice crispies
½ cup all-purpose flour

These have a nippy crispness that is an ideal accompaniment to cocktails at Christmas parties.

Mix all the ingredients together thoroughly, shape into small balls, and put them on a buttered cookie sheet. Flatten them slightly with a fork. Bake at 375 degrees for eight to ten minutes.

The Incredibly Fast Casserole

Grease your casserole dish. Pour in half a can of tomatoes. Cover them with a layer of grated cheddar cheese. Add a layer of sliced onions. Cover with a layer of cheddar cheese. Add a layer of cooked hamburger, crumbled and tossed with salt, pepper and garlic powder. Cover with the rest of the tomatoes, another layer of sliced onions, and a final layer of cheddar cheese. Bake in a 350 degree oven until the top bubbles furiously, about half an hour.

Ann Landers

He Answers for Ann

Dear Ann Landers: Can I be you for a few minutes? I have an uncontrollable urge to answer—Outspoken.

Dear Outspoken: You say you resent homosexuals and that the male fashion industry is crawling with them? Where's your proof? Have you ever met the designers of "those fruity horrors," as you put it? According to you, a man who wears a floral shirt, tight pants and a fur coat must be a homo. By the same reasoning, all women who wear low-heeled shoes, slacks and shirts must be lesbians.

If a man wore today what was considered fashionable 300 years ago he would be considered a fag beyond a question of a doubt. Remember George Washington and Alexander Hamilton in their white, powdered wigs, silk stockings, and lace handkerchiefs in their sleeves.

Your resentment of homosexuals must lie deeper than not being able to find square clothing for your young sons. I'll bet you have a brother or an uncle who is a homosexual and it's him you hate.

If you want your children to look like a bunch of undertakers, be my guest, but most people find the new styles exciting, youthful and alive.—Well Dressed And Straight

Dear W. D. and S.: Thanks for your letter. Now what am I going to do about the mail I'm sure to get from the undertakers?

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16, a high school junior and worried about myself. I am such a perfectionist that it takes me twice as long to do everything. Unless a paper is perfect I won't hand it in. I have rewritten things four and five times because when I make an error I refuse to erase it.

If I am unsure of the spelling of a word I look it up. After a while I find myself looking up words I am 99 per cent sure of. This can take hours.

It wouldn't be so bad if I were a perfectionist only about myself but I also expect perfection from my friends. If someone says, "Between you and I,"-I can't stand it. I have to correct him right then and there. Anyone who says, "I could care less—" gets told immediately that the expression is "I couldn't care less." I got into quite an argument over that one last week.

I realize my inability to tolerate these little mistakes isn't normal. But how kooky is it really? Am I in trouble?—Particularly Penny

Dear Penny: Everybody has some odd habits, no matter how well concealed, but yours are bad because they rob you of valuable time that could be better spent.

The satisfaction you derive from these oddball demands on yourself are compensating for satisfactions you should be getting in other areas. Talk this over with your school guidance counselor. You need help.

Dear Ann Landers: My son has a paper route. He clears $12 a week and spends every cent on comic books and candy. I have asked him to put at least part of his earnings in the bank and save toward college but he ignores me.

What can I do about it? The boy's father and I are divorced and I don't have a man around who can help.—Out - Hdled Mother

Dear Mother: There's more involved here than $12 a week. Your son is either out of control or he soon will be.

I urge you to seek some outside counseling for yourself, to begin using their discard lights to stuff pillows for hospitals in India. The problem lies with you.

● Have a hot sandwich at any time on a trip — take frankfurters along in a thermos jug filled with boiling water.

Put To Good Use

NORTHAMPTON, England (AP) —8 Schoolgirls here have begun using their discard lights to stuff pillows for hospitals in India.

Travel Tips For Handicapped

There's a new book out — just perfect for handicapped people who have a yen to go places. It's called "The Wheelchair Traveller".

This amazing directory lists 2100 places on this continent that are particularly usable by people with one handicap or another, whether walking or in a wheelchair. It tells about hotels and motels, restaurants and resorts. Handicapped travellers themselves pooled the information and handed it over to the editor of the book, Douglas R. Annand, a paraplegic who has spent the past 20 years in a chair.

Want one — either for yourself or for a dear one of yours whose wanderlust outdistanced his capacity to cope? The guide costs $3 per copy, third class postage paid. Write for it to "The Wheelchair Traveller", Ball Hill Road, Milford, N.H. 03055, USA. (The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society gave us these details.)

Dear Doris: I have a baby grandson who is now six months old. He looks like a lovely healthy baby but I have noticed that he doesn't react when I speak to him. I asked his mother if he seemed to her to not be hearing properly but she immediately went on the defensive. Said of course he was hearing and was perfect in every way.

I just had to shut up. But I am worried still.—Former Nurse

Dear Nurse: It is never too early to check a child's hearing. Many parents are not alert to the signs and hate to face possible imperfections. Such folly!

As a first step toward detection, a parent can gently shake a rattle or tap a spoon against a glass when the child isn't looking. If he continually fails to respond to the sound at a distance of three to six feet, he may have a hearing problem and should be taken to a pediatrician or otologist (ear specialist) for a physical examination.

For free information about the danger signs of hearing loss in children and steps to take if hearing loss is suspected, write yourself to Hearing Alert, Washington, D.C. 2007. Hearing Alert is a program of the Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf.

Show his mother this column — even if it means risking her displeasure. There is a child's well - being at stake!

Dear Doris: We adore our lovely queen, and deplore the omission of God Save The Queen at social functions. We would like to see in print a reminder that this should be done as a mark of respect. — Mrs. M.

Dear Mrs. M.: I agree that our Queen is a lovely person and deserving of some deference. Many people, however, feel that our own national anthem should come first, since Canada has been working away at being seen as a country rather than a colony.

(To know all is to forgive all. Let Doris help you to understand and live happily with those you care about. Send your letters in care of this newspaper.)

Wiretap Ban Passed, Proclamation Later

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill outlawing private use and possession of wiretapping devices likely will be passed by Parliament before the end of the year, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Tuesday.

But, he added time will be needed before the bill becomes law so people may dispose of bugging devices. The bill becomes law on proclamation by the government.

He was commenting to reporters after winning what he regarded as a major Commons victory when an amendment passed by slim majorities.

That amendment made it legal for police to use in court evidence obtained as a result of an illegal wiretap.

Under the bill this will be the law:

—All private wiretapping is outlawed.

—Possession of electronic eavesdropping devices also is outlawed except in the case of police.

—Victims of illegal taps can seek punitive damages in civil courts and violators of the bill may lead to jail terms of up to five years.

—Attorneys-general and solicitors-general, or their agents, may apply to a judge to permit police to wiretap in cases where other investigative tactics have failed.

No illegally bugged conversation may be used in court. But evidence collected as a result of such a wiretap can be used if the trial judge says so.

The federal solicitor-general may authorize bugging without a judge's approval in cases of national security.

Any person bugged by police must be informed within 90 days of the removal of the bug. In special cases such as continuing investigations, a judge can authorize postponement of this measure.

Ex-official of Union Says Plasterers Formed Combine

TORONTO (CP) — A former plasterers union official accused another union agent Tuesday of organizing a price-fixing combine against Toronto builders.

Edward Thompson, 60, told the royal commission investigating crime in the construction industry that Charles Irvine, Canadian vice-president of the union, created this alliance about 18 years ago.

Mr. Thompson said Mr. Irvine had been the enforcer, "the Gestapo," to keep the combine working.

The aim of the combine was to divide up the plastering contracts in Toronto between five large and about eight small companies, Mr. Thompson said.

They gave themselves a 25 per cent profit plus a "kicker" which seemed to range between $20,000 and $100,000.

He testified work on Toronto's city hall, the Royal York Hotel and three hospitals had been done by this combine.

This overpricing is one of the factors that is making plastering a dying trade, Mr. Thompson added.

He said enforcing of the combine rules was done by phoning workmen and telling them the union executive had decided they were to stop work for a particular contractor. In some cases they were paid up to $25 a day from a special fund provided by all contractors.

After Mr. Irvine worked his way up in the union ranks and was appointed international representative, he became the great white father" with power over the unions "more than God's," Mr. Thompson said.

He then turned his attention to the cutthroat competition between plastering contractors, Mr. Thompson added.

When combines investigators began "rattling doors and seizing files," Mr. Irvine simply told the builders to kick in two per cent each of their work for a defence fund to cope with any such problem, Mr. Thompson said.

Eleven lathing and plastering contractors were convicted of price fixing in 1959 and fined a total of $75,000.

Mr. Thompson said the Toronto local was told by Mr. Irvine to refuse to sign agreements with builders who were not in the combine and those in the group carved up the commercial construction business like a giant pie.

He said he walked into one meeting of the combine and found they were playing with paper airplanes made out of $1,000 bills.

When one member double-crossed the group by bidding low to win a downtown contract, he was disciplined.

Mr. Thompson said the man was driven to the country and threatened with physical violence.

Checkerboard Titles Protected

TORONTO (CP) — An amendment to Ontario's planning act, aimed at protecting the land titles of those who purchased lots under the so-called checkerboarding system, was given first reading Tuesday in the legislature.

The legislation, introduced by Treasurer John White, gives the minister authority to validate the titles if a municipality so requests.

Artistic Woodworking Settles Bitter Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Artistic Woodworking Co. announced Tuesday it has reached a settlement with workers who have been on strike since Aug. 21 in one of the most bitter disputes in Ontario labor history.

Sarel Van Zyl, Artistic's general manager, said the agreement was reached with the Canadian Textile and Chemical Workers' Union, which had been negotiating its first contract with the company.

The settlement provides an agreement identical to one reached two weeks ago, but subsequently rejected by the union, Mr. Van Zyl said.

The company would take back all strikers who were not convicted on charges resulting from picket action during the strike.

But the company will continue as an open shop, with 85 non-union employees, Mr. Van Zyl said. Forty-one union employees are eligible to return to work—32 immediately and nine as soon as they are cleared of charges pending in court.

Total work force will be 128, compared with 117 when the strike began.

Of the original strikers who totalled about 70, many have found other jobs and do not want to return.

Nine strikers facing charges will be suspended until their court appearances, but will be reinstated with retroactive pay if they are acquitted, the company official said.

Confirming the settlement, a union spokesman said the main issue during the strike was whether immigrant workers have the same rights as do Canadian workers.

Opposition that the union encountered during the dispute shows that, immigrant workers have yet to gain equal recognition, the spokesman said.

Promoter Comes and Goes

Legion-sponsored Party Failure at Box Office

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

What would Christmas be without children?

A lot less profitable for the Christmas promoter, a new species that has sprung up to make money from the festive season.

Toronto newspapers yesterday revealed the existence of 19 organizations using telephone solicitation to raise money for "good causes."

A battery of solicitors hired by a promoter calls businessmen, asking them to buy tickets for a Christmas party for underprivileged children. After paying expenses and throwing the party, usually a children's variety night climaxed by a visit from Santa, the bulk of the money goes to the promoter.

The practice is legal. As long as the party is held the law can't touch the promoter, regardless of how many tickets he sold in excess of the number of children entertained.

A Christmas variety night for underprivileged children was held in Centennial Secondary School last night, sponsored by the Legion branch here.

It was organized by Ian M. Garden (Ontario Incorporated) of 505 Eglinton Ave. West in Toronto. The promoters asked the Legion to sponsor the event for a flat fee of $500. A contract was signed. Later, the Legion membership had doubts about the action, but the contract couldn't be broken.

Ian M. Garden (Ontario Incorporated) had, in the meantime, moved into the second floor cloakroom in the Legion Hall, where it set up a number of telephones. The solicitation of businessmen was underway.

A woman calling herself Miss Brenda Boothe of Ian M. Garden (Ontario Incorporated) telephoned the office of Hastings county board of education from Toronto. She booked Centennial Secondary School auditorium in the Legion's name for Dec. 5. Because the Legion falls into the category of service clubs, it is entitled to rent board premises at reduced fees. The rental charged was an initial $40 with an additional $10 for every hour the auditorium was in use.

The next move came from Leslie Stubbs, Ian M. Garden representative sent to Belleville to organize the promotion.

He telephoned the Family and Children' Services of Hastings county and the social service (welfare) department of the county, asking them to send clients to the variety night.

The unsuspecting social workers began notifying children in their care of the big party the Legion was throwing for them.

It was gloomy about the prospects of getting kids out on a school night, especially to Centennial, a school outside the inner city," said a Family and Children's Services social worker. He estimated fewer than 30 of his clients would be able to attend. Because no transportation arrangements had been made by the promoter, some of his social workers were going to transport the children in their personal cars.

Miss Tucker, county welfare director, told the promoter about 150 children in his care would be able to attend. His workers notified parents and some workers made arrangements for parent with cars to pick up neighboring children who had no transportation.

Ralph Boomhower, head of the Belleville Firefighters 28-year-old annual toy project, blew the whistle on the operation.

Hearing that the promoters were aiming at 2,200 ticket sales, at $5 each, he made a radio spot on the show to protest. He was afraid the promotion might hurt the firefighters' toy fund appeal. He was joined on the air by a disgruntled Legionnaire who said "Anyone who buys those tickets is crazy."

"Every year the firefighters help about 1,200 children whose names are submitted by welfare agencies," says Mr. Boomhower. "Of those 1,200, fewer than 500 are in the age group to enjoy a kids' party."

How many tickets were sold in Belleville is unknown. It's a moot point if any ticket were distributed to donors.

Mr. Stubbs, interviewed in his temporary Legion Hall office Tuesday morning, refused to say how many tickets were sold. Pressed on the issue, he said social workers had told him to expect between 250 and 300 children. "You figure it out for yourself."

Mr. Stubbs refused to give his name.

"I don't want my name in the paper," he said. "I want the Legion to get the credit."

His company puts on similar variety nights for the underprivileged "across Canada", he said. His telephone campaign had met with a "fair response" from city businessmen.

Both the Family and Children's Services spokesman and Mr. Tucker of county welfare were told by Mr. Stubbs earlier this week that his organization hadn't got around to printing tickets. So none would be distributed.

The social workers were told to issue an open invitation to all their child clients to attend the show.

A random check of city businessmen failed to turn up any who had bought tickets. Businessmen solicited were told that when they agreed to "sponsor" a child or children, a representative of the promoter would call immediately to pick up the money and drop off the tickets.

One businessman checked with Belleville Chamber of Commerce. Its director, Don Sutton, telephoned the Legion, learned the promotion was legal "and the kids are getting a party and that's all I know."

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crabbe had no knowledge of the promotion and no comment.

In Toronto, Sgt. Thomas Stewart of the Metropolitan morality squad called the Christmas promoters "very frustrating for us."

"They have created a business for themselves," he said. "A small amount goes to charity and the rest lines the promoters pockets."

Toronto's Better Business Bureau, queried earlier by the Globe, advised that Ian M. Garden (Ontario Incorporated) was a legal organization.

Yesterday, it began warning against donating to telephone solicitors. It advised the public to ask for a slip, making the donation tax-deductible before giving to any charity. Only reputable, government-registered charities can provide one.

The promised variety show went on as scheduled in Centennial auditorium.

Twenty-five children attended — 20 of them brought by a Family and Children's Service social work.

A 10-member troupe of entertainers went on with the show. Santa Claus appeared and gave every child a simple jigsaw puzzle. There was a free soft drink for everyone and the party was over.

Santa Had Few Admirers

The Christmas party for underprivileged children held at Centennial Secondary School last night attracted only 25 youngsters, 20 of them driven to the event by one social worker. The party was staged by Ian M. Garden (Ontario Incorporated) a promotion firm from Toronto, that used Legion sponsorship to solicit funds for the party from city businessmen. No estimate of the number of $5 tickets sold was available.

Students to Launch Businesses

If a junior-sized stockbroker approaches you in the next few weeks with a prospectus sheet and a request to buy a common share in his company, don't call in the securities commission.

The salesman is legitimate — part of a national program to teach business practices to high school students.

He belongs to Junior Achievement, perhaps the ultimate in learning-by-doing projects for young people.

Garth Stephenson, CA, executive director of Junior Achievement in Belleville is now organizing the first projects in the city.

Junior Achievement assists groups of young people to set up their own companies to manufacture and sell a product. To raise capital they sell shares — one to a customer at $1 a share. For a year, from fall until May, the groups run their companies. Each company liquidates its assets in the spring and winds up the business. For a few months, the students have gone through all the operations connected with operating a business — from raising capital to production, through selling and accounting to liquidation.

About 75 per cent of the Junior Achievement projects in Canada last year were successful — they returned his $1 to each shareholder and in some cases paid a dividend.

A pilot project of Junior Achievement operated in Belleville during the summer.

The company produced and sold silk-screen decorated T-shirts. It returned their original investment to shareholders, but instead of issuing dividends, the company employees paid themselves a wage of about $10 to $30 each.

"You get an experience and an exposure to what business is all about," Mr. Stephenson told Moira students to whom he introduced the program this week.

Display piece of the Junior Achievement movement is a company that operated in Toronto to produce compressed sawdust fireplace logs impregnated with chemicals that gave varicoloured flames. The product was so successful that two company members dropped out of school after their company was liquidated, lent their business for themselves and are now millionaires.

"We don't expect that sort of thing from every company," said Mr. Stephenson.

The Belleville Junior Achievement executive has assets of about $5,000 money donated by the Rotary Club and other organizations. It has rented premises at 400 Front St., where companies will go into production one night a week. Each of the four or five companies expected to be formed in the city will have three advisors. The advisors have been recruited from top management personnel in local industries.

But the executive's assets will not be used to compensate shareholders whose companies go bankrupt. It is used for rental, insurance, and capital costs of equipment. The students' companies, of course, pay a rental for all these services.

If you buy a share in a Junior Achievement company you buy your investment in youth Canada and take the risk of not succeeding in education and the third is barely under way.

Pied Pipers ?

The Pied Pipers of Belleville played an irresistible tune at the city's fire halls last night as groups of cub scouts visited the firefighters and brought them Christmas gifts for Belleville's underprivileged children. As in past years, the firefighters at both fire halls are collecting toys for needy children. Last night, 40 cub scouts from the city's 11th cub pack visited Fire Hall Number 1 on Dundas Street. Captain George Woodhouse was so pleased with the gifts they brought that he couldn't resist trying his hand at casting a spell on the children with his magic flute. He needn't have bothered. They were fascinated by the display put on by the firefighters.

Three Areas Lacking Say Teachers of Deaf

A newly formed association of teachers of the deaf has identified three areas where facilities are lacking for the hearing impaired.

They are: services for pre-school deaf children, post-secondary education for the deaf and teacher training.

The Association of Canadian Educators of the Hearing Impaired (ACEHI) says it is taking a "firm stand" in pushing for improvements in these areas. Until the national association was formed here following a teachers' convention in September, teachers of the deaf had no professional organization of their own.

Gary Gervis, teacher at Ontario School for the Deaf here, is national director of ACEHI.

He says his association will seek the early establishment of proper facilities at both the preschool and post-secondary levels of education. Few hearing impaired people attend colleges or universities in Canada because few programs have been set up to meet their specific needs.

The ACEHI will urge universities and provincial departments of education to set up university level programs for training of teachers of the hearing impaired.

Controversial Drain Under Way

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Construction of a seven-mile long municipal drain, expected to cost approximately $100,000, is finally under way and can be expected by Thurlow residents either before winter sets in or in early spring 1974. Following one of about five natural water-courses in the township, the open drain will carry spring runoff into the Moira River at Corbyville.

Work on the drain, a contentious issue in the municipality over the past 18 years, was passed last night by Menard Construction Ltd., a Cornwall-area firm. Last month, township council made an initial $27,000 progress payment to the company.

The Green Valley, Ontario, firm offered Thurlow the best price on a tender called in July this year. Quadrangle Construction submitted bids higher than the $81,000 quoted by Menard.

Company officials could not provide a completion date since work is subject to possible early frosts. Gold weather could halt clearing of the watercourse of overgrowth and installation of culverts on township farms and road allowances. Should this occur, further work would be put off till early spring.

Both sections, the north and the east branches, drain a watershed roughly encompassed by the fifth and third concession roads and the Moira River. On the east, the watershed extends up approximately a mile into Tyendinaga township.

Meandering through the fourth concession, the three-and-a-half-mile long east branch serves 124 landowners. The older section of the drain, the north and north branch, runs easterly and then swings south to roughly parallel the Moira River. More than 150 people are served by this branch, although some landowners will benefit from both.

Once work has been completed and the final cost calculated, individual property owners will be assessed unequally. Depending upon an owner's outlet liability and the extent to which his land will benefit, he could pay anywhere from over $1,000 to less than $10.

This payment will either be made in a lump sum within one year yet to be agreed by council, or debentured over five years with the accompanying interest charges.

However, the township will get some relief. A third of the total cost will be picked up by the provincial government under the ARDA provisions. The federal government will pay another third under the ARDA program. This would leave the township to pay only a remainder of the expected $100,000.

At such time, township officials are likely to receive further adverse reaction to the drain's installation, a subject that has been of some interest to township residents for a decade.

Of course, it will be a benefit to the people in the watershed," said Reeve Lawrence Casey, in commenting on the project that drains an area encompassing at least 2,000 acres. "Some people are badly in need of it for their low lying farmland. Its good flat land."

The reeve expects there will be some complaints from those assessed differently due to the drain, but hopes that "there won't be too many objections or complaints."

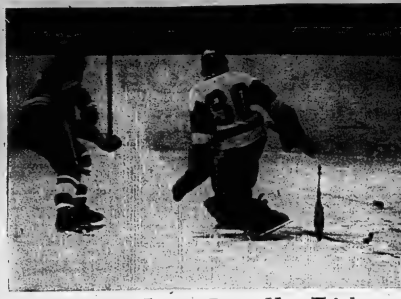
Since 1964, when the township originally engaged a Kingston engineer to study and report on reconstruction of the drain's main and north branches, township residents have raised objections to the project. Petitions urged the report be extended to cover the east branch, a request that council acted upon.

However, after the drainage referee threw out the first report, another engineer, Sidwell and Associates Ltd., a Peterborough firm, was hired by council to produce another study of the entire watershed.

Due to $18,000 had been spent by Thurlow prior to 1971 when council requested the Ontario Municipal Board to approve a debenture issue of $18,000 for five years.

Drain construction had been held up because of the time-consuming process of finding a second consulting engineer, and calling two separate tender bids prior to OMB approval.

Three separate series of appeals through various levels of government by property owners complaining of high or unfair assessments, delayed the project further.



After waiting two years, this spring Thurlow council received successful OMB approval and tenders were immediately called.

Getting It Together

Menard Construction Ltd. workers assemble one of 18 elliptical culverts, roughly seven feet high by nine feet broad, that are currently being installed in Thurlow township's municipal drain network. The open drain takes an easterly course over seven miles of private property in the fourth concession. Five 10-gauge corrugated steel sections are bolted together before being sunk into the ground along one of about five natural water-courses in the township. Another four arched culverts imbedded in concrete, are being installed.

Foster Bags Hat Trick

King City Red Wing goaltender Jack Shaw (called up from the Wings' midget aye-tem) looks behind him for the third time for the puck off Belleville Bobcats' Robbie Foster's stick, as the Belleville captain completes his hat trick in last night's Metro Junior B game in King City. Foster's three goals helped the Bobcats to come from behind to tie the Wings 6-6.

Bobcats Pull Out 6-6 Tie

TORONTO (Special) — Belleville Bobcats created a three-way tie for second place in the Metro Junior B Hockey League standings last night. But they had to come up with a goal at 19.58 in the third period to do it.

King City Red Wings were just two seconds away from posting their first win of the season when Mark Coates connected to make it a 6-6 score with Belleville goalie Bob Moore on the bench in favor of an extra attacker.

Wings' goalie Jack Shaw was caught out of position after making the save on John Sergeant's shot and Coates was in the right spot at the right time to salvage the tie.

It was a big point for Bobcats who were down 3-1 after one period and trailed 5-3 heading for the third. Cats share second place with Wexford and Markham. Each team has 29 points, two back of Bramalea.

Team captain Robbie Foster supplied the scoring leadership for Bobcats with three counters. Coates had a pair and Andy Ricketts, playing in spite of an injured knee, had the other Belleville goal. Jim Richardson helped himself to four assists.

Dave Hynek was Wings' top hand with three goals. Checking in with one each were Wes Jarvis, Jeff Spence and Andy Tarantino.

Bobcats' task was made more difficult by the fact they were missing defencemen Tim Yohn (ill), Vern Amey (injured back) and Dave Fleming (received game misconduct penalty during game with St. Michael's, Sunday).

Forwards Kevin Joudwa and Norm Jones were also out of the lineup. They each picked up a game misconduct during Friday night's win in Belleville over Wexford Warriors.

Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter, commenting on the player situation, said "We were pretty thin tonight but we'll have Joudwa and Jones back for Friday's game and Flesch will be in the lineup Sunday. Amey and Yohn should also be on deck for the weekend games."

Bobcats are at home Friday to Toronto Nationals and Sunday, first place Bramalea Blues make their first visit of the season to Belleville.

Off their shooting in two games against his club, Hunter figures Wings should have some wins to their credit.

"They're a hustling club. They make you work," observed the coach.

Bobcats had Western Tire Juvenile Ken Just and Lions Midget Ken Lynch up for last night's game.

Goalies Moore and Shaw were kept busy all the way. Moore was credited with 37 saves and Shaw, 32.

Dixie Lee Loses 8-4

Belleville Dixie Lee peewee minors took it on the chin at Memorial Arena last night, dropping an 8-4 decision to Trenton minor peewees.

Ken MacDonald, Rick Cole, and Marko Turcotte each fired a pair of goals for Trenton with Ken Corneau and Kelly Scott adding the others. Doug Bald and Bert McPherson each collected two assists for the winners.

A First for Chuckwagon

Perseverence Pays Off

Tuesday was a night of firsts in the Gas House Hockey League, as Chuckwagon Foods recorded their first win of the season, and the Doctors moved back into first place in the league standings, pushing Golden Mile and Mead Johnson.

Chuckwagon's victory was a 4-1 win over Stewart Warner to give them four points on the season. The team has two ties.

Jack Zylstra and Doug Semark each fired a pair of goals in the win, with Craig Webb and Mike Flieger drawing a pair of assists a piece.

Brian McQuaid fired the only goal for Stewart-Warner.

The Doctors rolled to their ninth win of the season, trouncing the Rosebush Fuels 8-1. They now have 18 points, one more than second place Golden Mile and Mead Johnson.

Bill Minaker had the hat trick for the Doctors, and he added an assist.

Other goals went to Ted Lewis, Gary Goyer, George Jacklin, Hyalie Bryant, and Bob Dolan. Jim Jones contributed three helpers.

Neil Goyer spoiled Doctors' goal tender Ron Green's shutout bid.

In the other game played last night, Mead Johnson shut out an 8-1 win over Rollins Lumber.

Dave Fox led the way with three goals, while Bob Mulvihill scored a pair.

Leaders 5 Points Up

A 9-2 victory over the 418 Mosquitoes Monday night kept the CFB Trenton Barflies five points ahead of their nearest rivals in the race for top honors in the Belleville and District Dart League.

Demonstrating the strength that led them to be league title last year, Barflies won the singles matches 5-1, the doubles 2-1 and triples, 2-0.

In last night's other matchups, Belleville Yardmen tightened the standings by stopping the Foreigners 7-4 on four singles, a double and two triplies.

The Smoke Eaters turned back ANAF Dukes' bid for second place. Smoke Eaters, taking all three doubles in the second frame, scored a 7-4 win over Dukes, and moved to within five points of the league leaders.

Other markers went to Pete Quackenbush, Ray Summers, and Alec Belch. Mike Geegan had three assists for the winners.

Dale Bamber was the only scorer for Rollins, who suffered their fourth straight defeat after four wins at the start of season.

The Midgets made it a clean sweep by bombing the Kenner Midgets 94-49. John Geen had 19 points to pace the winners.

Ferguson Injured

TRENTON (Special) — A shoulder separation has knocked centre George Ferguson of Trenton out of the lineup of Oklahoma City Blazers of the Central Hockey League.

Ferguson, injured in a recent league game, is expected home today.

Enjoying a very productive season with Blazers, the Toronto Marlboro grad was making a determined bid to earn promotion to the parent Toronto Maple Leafs.

Reports indicate that doctors in Oklahoma City felt it would be necessary to put a pin in the injured shoulder.

Officials of the Toronto club, evidently preferred to have their club doctors take a look at Ferguson.

George spent last night in Wellesley Hospital in Toronto and this morning, his mother, Mrs. N. T. Ferguson, said it had been decided a pin will try, be necessary.

"We expect George will be home for two weeks or so. After he has had time to rest the shoulder, he will begin skating again, perhaps with Leafs in Toronto," advised Mrs. Ferguson.

Canucks Lose A 'Tie' Game

By PAUL CARRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Los Angeles Kings registered their first victory in 11 games Tuesday night, but Vancouver Canucks, now winless in five games, will always consider the contest a tie.

The Kings won the National Hockey League game 3-2 after a third Canuck goal with less than 20 seconds remaining was called back by referee Dave Newell because a Canuck was in goalie Rogatien Vachon's crease.

General Manager Hal Laycoe and coach Bill McCreary of the Canucks both said no one was in the crease, and television replays appeared to back them up.

The replay showed Barry Wilkins of the Canucks in the crease before the puck was fired by Jerry Korab, but he got out before Korab released his shot.

Coach Bob Pulford of the Kings had a different view.

"He was in there shoving Rogie," Pulford said.

In the only other NHL game, rookie Gordon Roberts scored two goals as St. Louis Blues beat New York Islanders 3-1.

In Vancouver, both teams constantly gave away the puck and made mistakes in their own end.

The Kings took a 2-0 lead in the first period on a pair of goals by Mike Corrigan, both when the Canucks lost possession of the puck. The Los Angeles side was disciplined and appeared to be in control.

But in the second period, they became disorganized and the Canucks put on the pressure. They outshot the Kings 15-4 in the middle period and tied the game 2-2 on goals by Don Lever and Bryan McSheffrey within 70 seconds.

Don Kozak scored for the Kings in the third period and the Canucks, although they did put the puck in the net once, couldn't tie the score legally.

Referee Newell will submit a report to league headquarters on a stick-swinging incident in the first period. Los Angeles's starting goalie Gary Edwards and Bobby Schmautz of the Canucks took a couple of swings at each other but neither connected. Each received a match penalty, which carries with it an automatic $200 fine and a hearing before league President Clarence Campbell, who can bring suspensions or added fines.

In New York, Brooks, playing in his second game since being called up from Denver of the Western League, said he knows what it will take to stay in the NHL.

The 23-year-old Cobourg, Ont., native says he'll just keep working hard and score goals.

"I couldn't help but score the first goal," Brooks said. "I just got in the slot and got the puck. On the second one I had a lot of open room in the net."

Andre St. Laurent had scored to give the Islanders a 1-0 lead early in the first period, but Ron Anwyl of the Blues tied the game late in the period.

In tonight's games, the Blues visit Detroit Red Wings and Atlanta Flames meet California Golden Seals at Oakland.

IOWA WOOS JAUCH

EDMONTON (CP) — Coach Ray Jauch, who directed Edmonton Eskimos into the Grey Cup this year for the first time since 1960, says he's "been approached" about the head coaching job at the University of Iowa. But Jauch, 35, says it would take "special circumstances" for him to leave Edmonton.

BRYANT HONORED

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (CP) — Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama was voted coach of the year Tuesday by his colleagues in the Southeastern Conference for the fourth time in 12 years. Fran Curci, Kentucky's first-year coach, was runner-up in the voting.

Waltons Late But Produce

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

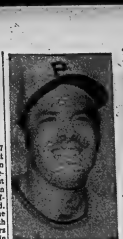
Minnesota coach Harry Neale was pleased with the way his Saints ripped into Los Angeles Sharks in their World Hockey Association game Tuesday night and he predicted more of the same for other opponents.

"This was our best effort of the year," Neale said after the Saints beat the Sharks 9-3 and tied Houston Aeros for second place in the West Division.

"If we continue to play like that we're going to beat a lot of people by virtually the same score. We hope to stop going up and down . . . like a yoyo."

In the only other contest Tuesday night, Edmonton Oilers hit their winning stride again after an extended slump and shut out Chicago Cougars 2-0.

Neale was especially happy about the production of the Walton brothers, Mike and Rob, who almost didn't make it to the arena.



Near-blizzard conditions in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area caused several players to be late and the start of the game was delayed 25 minutes.

The Waltons didn't arrive in time for the opening face-off, but they made up for lost time later in the evening.

Mike scored three goals, his second such performance this season, and Rob chipped in with a goal and two assists.

Edmonton 2 Chicago 0

Chris Worthy made only 27 saves to record his first shutout of the season as Edmonton banded Chicago its fourth de feat in a row. Len Lunde's first goal of the season, midway in the first period, was all the offensive support Worthy needed, but Brian McKenzie added the clincher into an open net with 36 seconds to play as Cougars removed goalie Rich Coutu in favor of a sixth attacker.

Top Pitchers On the Market

Briles, Pittsburgh Pirates' No. 1 pitcher last season, was dispatched to Kansas City along with rookie infielder Fernando Gonzalez Tuesday, in exchange the Royals gave up catcher-outfielder Ed Kirkpatrick, infielder Kurt Bevacqua and minor league first baseman Winston Cole.

Cincinnati and Baltimore were involved in another big one with the Reds' Grimsley the key man. Cincinnati sent the power-throwing left-hander and minor league catcher Wallace Williams to the Orioles for outfielder Merv Rettenmund and two minor leaguers—shortstop Junior Kennedy and catcher Bill Wood.

There would have been more trading activity Tuesday but third baseman Ron Santo of Chicago Cubs threw a curve at the owners. The Cubs were reported on the verge of a swap with California Angels for pitcher Rudy May, but Santo objected.

The veteran third baseman exercised the option of a player with more than 10 years of major league service, refusing to approve the deal. He is the first to use the new contract rule.

"This is difficult," Santo said when interviewed in Chicago. "I didn't believe it at first but now I have to be convinced they want to get rid of me. No, I don't want to go. . . .

"I've given the Cubs everything I've had for 14 years. I can't say anything bad about the organization. It has been an honor.

"But I want to stay here and I think that's fair."

Hawley One Off the Mark

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — When you're hot, you're hot.

Or, said Sandy Hawley after he won three more races Tuesday, "that's the way they come with me; I win none or I win many."

His victories at Laurel race track gave him 404 for the season, one short of Bill Shoemaker's world record set in 1953.

Hawley, 24, of Oshawa, Ont., gives the impression that he doesn't much care about the record.

"The big thing to us is still 500. Even before I rode a horse this year my agent and I said we were shooting for 500. We weren't going for 404 and Shoemaker's record. Our goal was 500.

"... We're going to do our best and that means night or Sunday racing."

Hawley gets at least seven chances today to break the record. He's scheduled to ride William De Great in the second, Keep Off in the third, Virtu in the fifth, Fortune Seeker in the sixth, Gala Image in the seventh, Broadway Beau or Nolalaka in the eighth and I Will Do It in the ninth.

"I also have Sandy on a horse on the also eligible list in the first," said Bob Maxwell, his Maryland agent. "If there are any scratches, Sandy's horse, Palace Whirl, could draw in."

In a featured article Tuesday in the Washington Post, the newspaper's racing reporter said:

"Indeed, Hawley is more Hartack than Shoemaker on a horse, more spit than polish, but he gets the job done. His mounts tend to drift in or out during the stretch as he gives them loose rein, but they are always charging.

"Perhaps more important is the fact Hawley rarely rides a horse into trouble. He places his mount where it should be placed, He is patient and many of his mounts seem to sustain their run a little longer for him than they do for other boys."

Cappelletti Wins Heisman

NEW YORK (AP) — John Cappelletti, who almost quit the Penn State football team early last season, reversed his field in dramatic fashion Tuesday when he was named winner of the Heisman Trophy as he outstanding college player of 1973.

The six-foot-one 215-pound senior running back from Upper Darby, Pa., more than doubled the point total of runner-up John Hicks, an offensive tackle from Ohio State. No interior lineman has ever won the Heisman Trophy and Hicks was one of the few ever to finish as high as second.

Cappelletti received 229 first-place votes and 1,057 points from 819 Heisman electors across the country. Hicks received 114 first-place votes and 524 points. He was followed by Texas fullback Roosevelt Leaks.

Hawks Nip Marlies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks strengthened their hold on second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series Tuesday and moved to within six points of circuit-leading Peterborough Petes as they outscored Toronto Marlboros 7-6.

The lead changed hands four times in the contest as the teams took turns scoring in bunches.

Brad Dilles opened for Toronto at the 19-second mark of the first period but goals by Wilf Paiement and Ron Phillips gave St. Catharines a 2-1 lead before the period ended.

Kevin Devine scored twice for Marlboros within a 45-second span and Mark Napier added another 11 seconds later to give Marlboros a 4-2 lead after only 1:28 of play in the second period.

Dave Gorman, Dave Sabrian and Rick Addams gave Black Hawks a 5-4 lead but Bruce Boudreau evened the count before the period ended.

Boudreau got his second goal of the game to give Toronto a 6-5 lead in the third period but goals by Bill Hampton and Gorman, his second of the night, gave Black Hawks the victory.

In other games, Kingston defeated Kitchener 5-4 and Hamilton edged Oshawa 4-3.

Goalies Face Barrage

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltenders for Boston Braves and Nova Scotia Voyageurs could hardly be blamed if they ran for cover during a pair of American Hockey League games Tuesday night.

Hershey Bears fired 37 shots at goalies Ross Brooks and Dave Reece in a 8-6 triumph over the Braves.

Goalie David Elenbaas of he Voyageurs stopped 47 shots in a losing cause as Jacksonville Barong won 6-2 with the help of four goals in the final period.

The victory by the second-place Bears gave them 76 points, two behind Cincinnati Swords in the South Division. Baltimore Clippers are third with 22 points, one more than Jacksonville.

Providence Reds lead the North Division with 32 points, four more than New Haven Nighhawks and Novo Scotia.

Tax Moratorium Is Extended

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will extend the existing tax moratorium on home improvements until 1977, Revenue Minister Allan Grossman said Tuesday.

The moratorium was due to expire at the end of the year.

Under the legislation, home improvement is not assessed unless it adds more than $5,000 to the market value of the property.

The revenue minister told a tax conference that an increase in the exemption level is necessary "particularly in view of the sharp rise in property values during the past few years."

A planning consultant who examined property maintenance owners that if they improve their properties, their assessments, and, therefore, their property taxes automatically go up.

"This is an exaggerated and generally erroneous reaction," Mr. Grossman said.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The federal government plans to introduce major amendments to farm credit legislation early next year, which will be aimed specifically at helping farmers under the age of 35 get established, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Tuesday.

Answering a question from a delegate at the National Farmers Union (NFU) convention, the minister described the proposed legislation as "the most advanced farm credit legislation we have ever had to help young farmers."

Earlier, in a speech to the group, Mr. Whelan noted that the federal Farm Credit Corporation has kept its lending rate at seven per cent and is lending more money than ever before.

Report Says Most People Want Sunday Shopping Curb

TORONTO (CP) — Most Ontario residents appear to favor more restricted Sunday shopping rather than a "wide open" Sunday, says a government paper tabled in the legislature Tuesday.

The 38-page brief on Sunday laws and uniform store hours comes to no substantial conclusions on the controversial Sunday closing problems but lists several options.

Justice Secretary George Kerr, who tabled the report, asked for comments and suggestions from the public.

But Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, called the paper "ridiculous" and said it was "a make-work project for George Kerr."

The paper says there appear to be four basic options with regard to legislation regarding Sunday observance:

—Implement proposals of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, which would mean a more restricted Sunday, responding to the changing needs and expectations of society;

—Up-date existing laws to recognize current practices while at the same time ensuring that flagrant abuses are avoided;

—Proceed under the umbrella of The Lord's Day (Canada) Act, discouraging Sunday work indirectly by extending existing shopping legislation and empowering municipalities to enact bylaws to control Sunday retail hours.

—Liberalize Sunday shopping laws but "on the basis of representations and studies to date, it appears that most residents of the province would be in favor of more restricted Sunday shopping rather than a 'wide open' Sunday."

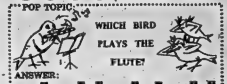
On uniform store hours, the report says the trend toward extended opening hours may or may not lead to higher prices for local and downtown merchants but apparently means lower costs and prices for a number of suburban plazas.

"This suggests that it is misleading to think that extended store hours will result in a generally higher level of retail prices," says the paper.

The first option on uniform store hours is to continue the existing system by which the province empowers municipalities to regulate store hours. This practice is familiar to the public, but might result in intermunicipal competition on closing hours, the report says.

The second option, to introduce provincial uniform store hours legislation to closely regulate retail hours, would provide some protection to the small independent retailer but interfere with natural movements in the market place.

Option three is to introduce provincial uniform store hours legislation in order to provide a broad regulatory framework which would permit most existing retail practices while avoiding unreasonable extensions of hours and irrational competition.



The fourth option suggested is to withdraw existing provisions governing store hours and permit the market to regulate itself and the fifth is to empower regional and metropolitan municipalities to determine retail hours within their boundaries.

Wells Has Mediators Ready in School Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Thomas Wells told the legislature Tuesday the provincial government is prepared to send 28 mediators across the province if school teachers withdraw their services in contract disputes.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said there was a possibility that a number of schools would be closed effective Jan. 4, 1974.

"What is the minister prepared to do besides simply offer his services in negotiations?" asked Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Wells said his ministry was in daily contact with boards concerned and said he hoped most of the disputes might be settled by the end of the year.

The minister said the threat of withdrawing services was "all part of a tool in an ongoing confrontation regarding salaries and working conditions in various disputes."

Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) said the situation in Ottawa was serious because it involved 3,000 teachers and 63,000 students.

"I suggest to the minister, where you have sent mediators into Ottawa it hasn't worked," he said.

"I think we will have to wait and see how things turn out," said Mr. Wells.

Employees to Be Paid If Firms Forced to Close

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government Tuesday introduced legislation that would protect workers when a plant is shut down by environmental laws.

Labor Minister Fernand Guindon brought in amendments to the Employment Standards Act which cover the question of termination pay.

"It is made clear that if an industry is closed as a result of a stop work order under the Environmental Protection Act, the employes of that industry will be entitled to pay in lieu of notice," said the minister.

The question was raised earlier in the month when a Toronto lead plant was shut down briefly.

The plant has since reopened but there are indications that the city of Toronto will move to close it under the Health Act.

Several opposition members suggested the legislation should be expanded to cover any forced closing.

Mr. Guindon indicated that this was a new area that required careful consideration.

Audience Disrupts Performance Of Kingston Symphony, Soloist

By EUGENE LANG

Centennial Secondary School Auditorium is packed as a famous poet arrives to read poetry for two hours. He tells audience that his first poem is made up of six stanzas. To his amazement after the first stanza has been recited a goodly portion of his hearers break out into applause. He tries again, but no sooner has stanza number two been delivered, than again his message has been interrupted. Courage pushes him on, but to no avail, so finally after the fifth stanza he gives up the ghost and one go unheard.

Impossible? Or more likely improbable? It just couldn't happen here in enlightened Belleville!!! Well, it did at Centennial Secondary School on Monday evening as the Kingston Symphony Orchestra made its third appearance here before a practically full house. This is what Conductor Alexander Brott faced in the opening series of Preludes and Fugues that he orchestrated a few years back from skeletal notes left behind by a young musician named Beethoven. In fact, the uncalled for, but necessary and unwanted (by the conductor) applause was so flagrant that Dr. Brott simply stopped the orchestra at the end of the third prelude and, leaving the final fugue unplayed, walked of the stage. The Schubert Symphony was interrupted after each movement in the same manner, unnerving both conductor and orchestra in their over-all portrayal.

The soloist, renowned American Harpsichordist, Igor Kipnis was also in for a jolt in both his appearances as the two Bach Concerti were unmercifully punctuated with handclapping after each movement. All in all there were no less than twelve incidents of applause that were totally unrequired.

All printed program spell out the number of movements in a concerted (more than one section) composition, so that the audience will know how many segments the work is made up of, thus ensuring a continuous flow from one movement to another without interruption by the performing artist or group. This is recognized at all concerts of serious music, but seems to make no dent on local listeners. Over the years, many musicians, both in solo recital and concert have wondered why Belleville audiences persist in this displayal of ignorance. Will it come to our ears becoming out APPLAUD and DON'T APPLAUD ? We sincerely hope not but who knows? This might be the answer. The last 25 years have not shown any marked improvement — let's turn over a new leaf for the next 25 to come.

Now to the music that we heard by this excellent orchestra from our sister city to the east. Dr. Brott has done the musical world a decided favor in scoring the practically unknown (and surely previously unheard) early Beethoven contrapuntal studies, especially since he so tastefully orchestrated them in the manner of the era in which they were written (1791-1795). Three of the twelve were played in his transcribed form, eliciting smooth articulation from the strings and crystal clear contrivance from the wind band. Signs of the mighty master who would rise from these elemental exerpitnings were evident in many passages, such as the slow linguorous first Prelude preceding a lively emphatic fugal subject or the poignancy of string writing in the E Minor Prelud which set off strong propulsions in its closing fugue. Some Haydenesque leanings were discernable in the sonorous concluding F major Prelude — too bad we did not hear its companion fugue.

The Fifth Symphony in B Flat Major, an early work written at the age of 19 was the lovely Schubert offering to cap the evening. Shimmering strings were noted in the opening movement while gorgeous tones emanated from the flute and oboes in the romantic flow of the heavenly Andante, which was moulded by the players with classic grace. Schubert's affinity for the dance of the Austrian peasant was noticeable in the earthy rendition of the Menuetto allaeuvrilly spiced with golden horns in the trio. The finale saw Dr. Brott letting loose the reins and allowing his players to gleefully sprinc along in the light hearted capriciousness that envelopes this Allegro Vivace. All were enjoying themselves here, notably the cellos in their galloping gallery.

Two concerti (No. 1 in D Minor and No. 5 in F Minor) by J. S. Bach were the works chosen by guest artist Igor Kipnis, this being the first time that Belleville audiences have had an opportunity to listen to the progenitor of the present-day piano. Renditions of solidity and breadth were encompassed by the soloist in the outer movements as opposed to serenity in the slower sections. The two-manual Rutkowski and Robinette harpsichord is a marvellous simulation of the 18th century French counterpart, giving the artist plenty of scope to demonstrate his diversified talents in regard to ability and agility. There were times when it was overbalanced by the orchestra, more mike amplification being necessary to bring out its pungent upper register and thereonsant sonority of its bass notes.

To the continued applause there warrant ed) of the audience Mr. Kipnis replied with two Bachian encores in solo guise. The first a stately Sarnbande from the First Partita in B Flat Major, allowed us to hear the muted lute sloo as opposed to the fullness of the instrument. Then we heard the Prelude and Fugue in C Minor from Book one of the Well Tempered Klavier, the opening section spiralling along in perpetual motion with a jaunty fugue to conclude it. In retrospect it was an excellent concert in every respect and one in which the sponsors, The Quinte Arts Council and Elliott Meyers can be proud in underwriting for the musical benefit of the many hundreds who attended. Our applause to all who were responsible for this attraction — of, yes — did you notice we held our applause to the very last?

Picton Housing Site Seems Suited to OHC

PICTON— Town council approval in principal to a Downes Avenue site proposed for low rental housing units. A total of 66 senior citizen units and 30 family housing units has been proposed for the location.

A letter from S.J. Kaye, development officer, eastern region, the Ontario Housing Corporation stated that the property seemed suited to the development both geographically and physically.

He observed that the 3.27 acres site has access off both Downes Avenue and Walburn Street.

Picton reeve James Bird reminded council that, because of low-lying land in this area, "serious water problems" have been reported.

Several councillors agreed that if the OHC utilizes the site possibly these difficulties cound be corrected at no cost to the town.

STARS—THURS. Dec. 6

Aries (March 21-April 19) You tend to be careless today and act without thinking. Look through, because you'll try too hard to please one who is pursuing you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Don't attempt to do something that you're not qualified to handle. You'll fare better if you admit you don't know how.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) An important relationship is under a severe strain at this time. It could erupt into open hostility if you make unreasonable demands today.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Be sure you don't renege on a promise you made. Though it will be hard to come through now you must, or you'll lose his respect.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Let others think for themselves today. Even though you feel your ideas are best, permit them to use their own heads.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 21) Be very careful how you handle merchandise or property belonging to someone else. A mishap could prove very costly.

Libra (Sept. 22-Oct. 23) Don't agree to something today just for the sake of expediency. You will later regret you made such a lopsided bargain.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You must continue to pace yourself where work is concerned. It's another one of those days where you'll try to do too much. You'll goof up.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're likely to fritter away most of today on trifles rather than what you should be doing. It will catch up with you later.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you'd have to be careful with any tools you use, in the home. Don't talk on the phone while the iron scorches your new dress.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will be very restless, both physically and mentally. You won't be thinking as clearly as usual. Minise travel.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you'd have to be careful with any tools you use, in the home. Don't talk on the phone while the iron scorches your new dress.

Diet Monkeying Fails to Impress

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What's the story on "needles and pins" feeling in the hands? According to a nutrition book it could be a low-grade anemia.

So three months ago I instituted my diet, as the book suggested, adding fat-free dried milk, wheat germ, vitamins in complex, C, D and E. Have found some improvement but still suffer at times. Would liver shots or liver extract help?—Mrs. W.M.

While, very obviously, good nutritional important, I'm not too sold on the idea of monkeying with health foods, varieties of vitamins, and special diets as the first recourse for whatever ails you. That attitude has, however, acclaimed a lot of publicity. Too much? At times, yes.

It is true that an anemia could cause the "pins and needles" in the hands, but that is by no means the only cause. It can be from neuritis of various types. It can be from what I call we call mechanical factors. These can include bony changes in the neck, or pressure points on nerves radiating from the shoulder. Another possibility is a pressure on nerves in the wrist.

Rather than spend three months cluttering up your diet, it would seem sensible to me to have a blood count to start with, which would show at once whether you are anemic. If so, start correcting it. If not, then your doctor start some tests to sort out the other possibilities. If you have pernicious anemia, vitam B-12 is the essential treatment.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl, 18, in good health, active, etc., but my hands sweat. When I'm nervous they really sweat and this is very embarrassing. Then I get even more nervous and they sweat even more.

I am entering a career program in athletics, but am afraid to go to a doctor about this. Does anyone else have my type of problem?

I think it may be nerves but I'm not the "nervous type," J.R.

Does anybody else have that problem? An army of people—the majority of them around your age. And in healthy individuals, the answer comes down to nerves.

You may not be the "nervous type" but these sweaty palms tell a different story. Something that bothers you—you've already admitted that. Learn what you worry about it the more you sweat.

N eneed to be afraid to go to a doctor about it, but there isn't much he can do except reassure you and maybe give you a mild sedative to take if you are expecting some nervous situation to develop.

However, I'm really not much in favor of trying to sedate people for something like this. Why start popping pills when, I think you'll discover, as you become more self-assured and more worrying about having moist palms, they'll stop sweating.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 78 and recently have had unusually good eyes, but suddenly cataracts have developed. Could the drops the ophthalmologist put into my eyes cause cataracts? I have also heard that pupils in the eyes should not be dilated in people past 40. Now they all seem to be using drops. Is this harmful?—M.C.R.

Such eye drops do not cause cataracts—but since yours developed rapidly, I should tell you that the rate at which cataracts form varies widely from person to person.

As to not using drops in the eyes of patients past 40—that is a subject to be harmful if they have glaucoma. However, the specialists more and more are testing eye pressure (to see if glaucoma is present.) If the pressure is normal, use of ordinary eye drops is helpful and not harmful.

Win at Bridge

Insurance policy Contract

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Today's hand is a variation of an old theme. South finds himself in a very sound six no-trump contract. He wins the spade lead and sees that there are 13 top tricks looking him right in the face.

Is there any problem? Yes! Diamonds have been known to divide 4-0. In that case if South goes after all the tricks he will wind up behind the 8-ball.

Can he guard against this? Yes! He simply ducks the first diamond and goes for his contract.

A rubber bridge player should make this safety play automatically. What's 30 points against 1440?

A match point duplicate player should take this same precaution with this hand. The reason is that he should see that very few pairs will land at six no-trump. Some will have reached a grand slam. They will all receive him if the diamonds break.

Some people might even fail to reach a slam. Those players will beat him if he goes after all the tricks and the hand collapses.

In addition there will be quite a few pairs at six diamonds. Six no-trump bid and made will beat six diamonds bid and seven made.

How about the other pairs at six no-trump. They won't be proud of their bidding, but if they are good players they will make the same safety play.

THE CARD Service

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♠	Pass	2♠
Pass	3♠	Pass	3♦
Pass	4♠	Pass	4NT
Pass	5♦	Pass	6NT
Pass	7♦	Pass	Pass
Pass

You, South, hold:
♠K J 8 5 ♥A 3 2 ♦K 10 4 ♣6 4 3

What do you do now?

A — Bid six notrump. Your partner will go to seven if he needs it but on right hunch.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding six hearts to show two kings your partner bid six diamonds to show just one king. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

Driving A Bargain

TOLLESBURY, England (CP) — Charles Shepherd is happily driving a vintage, 1926 Bull-nose Morris car in perfect shape which he bought for $5 pence ($2.40) despite its market value of £1,000. The car was sold to him by two retired schoolmistresses who said they bought it for £1 in 1936 and loved the bumpy ride under the old-fashioned bonnet. Hence, the selling price of 5 pence. Charles didn't ask questions.

Guests Unwelcome

LONDON (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ogunsola have promised a London magistrate they will not eat each other's food in future. Mrs. Ogunsola, separated from her husband but still living in the same house, had complained that Frank had an expensive habit of bringing friends home each night and cleaning out the refrigerator.

THAT FOUR LETTER WORD

HOME — means everything to the happy family. To have its fullest meaning it must be your own. There is no security in rented accommodation. Let us show you one of our models now nearing completion on Dunnet Boulevard. This house with attached carport has L-shaped living dining room, large kitchen with ample eating area for average family and 3 bedrooms. Basement divided for future rec room.

A BAD FOUR LETTER WORD

MOVE — can you tell when circumstances on the part of your landlord will force him to utter this ominous word? When it happens it's not much fun. Preclude this happening with a home of your own. Why should your children have their schooling disrupted because your landlord can no longer look after your accommodation. For their sake have the foresight to own your own. For as little as $1,500.00 down we can offer 3 bedroom townhouse accommodation that is your very own. We have a model suite to show you.

THE BEST FOUR LETTER WORD

GURS — not only is it pleasing to the ear but it is pleasing to the pocket book. Once your payments are set they fluctuate very very little for the term of the mortgage, not so with rent! It continues to climb and what is worse it does not qualify for your family to look to in the years ahead. There is no way to accumulate money quicker than in owning a home. We have a model in West Belleville the plan of which we built last year in the east end and has recently resold with a $13,000.00 profit. Who is to say it won't happen again. Ask us to see our model houses in all parts of the city.

Gas-saver

These new three-wheeled cars, called Reliant Robins by their British manufacturers, get up to 60 miles on a gallon of gas. The glass-reinforced plastic body can withstand minor traffic bumps without damage. It is powered by a 750-cubic-centimetre, four-cylinder light alloy engine that can maintain 70 miles an hour. Cost in Britain is about $2,000. (CP Photo)

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

If you neglect your health, you are likely to catch a cold this winter. Your car may also suffer a cold this winter, especially if you neglect its mechanical health. So be sure to take some preventive measures.

A weak battery will not supply the necessary power to start your car in cold weather. An ordinary, fully-charged battery will have maximum power at temperatures of 80 degrees or higher. But chilled to 32 degrees it can deliver only about 60 per cent of that power and at zero, only 45 per cent. Obviously, a weak battery is not going to achieve even this.

If your present battery is in good working order, apply waterproofing solution to all exposed ignition wires, clean battery posts and terminals of corrosive matter, and make sure that all connections are tightened.

Check condition of points, plugs, carburetor, choke. Clean or replace them if necessary to help insure quick starting. Remember that even with a healthy carburetor, the engine cannot work efficiently with a badly clogged air filter.

Have your car's cooling system drained and flushed. Inspect the radiator, hoses and connections for leaks. A proper winter thermostat should be installed. Repair or replace defective parts immediately. Sealant is not recommended as a permanent cure for leaks in a hose. Then add anti-freeze to insure against a costly freeze-up.

Check the fan belt for tension and fraying, for, if it breaks, the generator or alternator will not turn, and the battery will quickly discharge. A faulty generator or regulator can also result in an already starting difficult. If not impossible, on a cold day. Have them both checked.

Odorless, colorless carbon monoxide from a faulty muffler can be deadly. Check the entire system for leaks, and drive with the window opened a crack at all times.

The defrosting system should be kept at a fiddle. Wipers should have good arm tension and live blades. Replace them if they don't. Use a solvent with adequate anti-freeze in the washer system — not plain water — and keep it full at all times. Ice remover in a spray can is excellent for removing snow or sleet from windshields, and helps keep them clean during freezing weather.

In winter the hours of darkness are greater and the car's lighting system will be used more. Have the headlights checked, both high and low beams, as well as parking lights, brake lights and turn signals.

Make sure that heater and horn are operating properly.

Steering should be adjusted so that it is tight and there is no play.

Apply some graphite or light oil in door and trunk locks to prevent freezing.

Uneven brake adjustment is a contributor to many winter-time collisions. With one wheel braking more than another, your car can be thrown into a dangerous skid on wet pavement; or loc. As part of this check-up, have a service man give your brakes a thorough examination. Afterwards, always make sure that the brake fluid is at the right level. Any drop in the level in the master cylinder reservoir will indicate a leak. Have it remedied immediately by a competent mechanic. Disc brakes suffer less from fade than the conventional drum type, but they also should be inspected regularly and the pads checked for wear.

The best way to protect your car from salt corrosion is to wash it frequently. This reduces accumulation of the salt slush on the body. Having it waxed at the start of winter will help provide maximum protection.

It does your car more harm than good to store it in a heated garage at night. The brine-ice solution clinging to the underbody slowly melts in the heat and, if it is not protected by undercoating, rusting of the to park in an unheated garage.

It's a good idea to keep your gas tank full in winter. Moisture in the air in your tank can condense on the inside walls. If water gets into your fuel line or carburetor, you've got trouble. Fill her up when it gets to the half full mark, or use fuel-line anti-freeze.

It is also important to carry emergency items in your car trunk in order to be fully prepared to go in ice and snow. The Ontario Motor League advises winterizing your car trunk by packing:- a flat-bladed shovel; a large bag or bucket of sand to provide traction on ice or hardpacked snow; be sure to keep the sand dry or it will freeze solid and be of no use; a combination ice-scraper and snow-brush for clearing windows; a first-aid kit; flares or reflective triangle to place behind vehicle at night; a flashlight.

Using an automobile engine heater on cold nights can spare you aggravation. With a warm engine and warm oil, starting is quicker and easier. A gasoline saving is possible since long warm-up periods with the engine running are not necessary. There are a variety of engine heaters, all operating on normal electric current. Some are inserted to replace a headbolt on the engine, and others screw into the water system drain-plugs. Still another type, the dip-stick heater, keeps the oil warmed. Your garage serviceman can advise on the best type for your car.

NEW BOOKS IN THE REFERENCE ROOM

CANADIAN CLOCKS AND CLOCKMAKERS — G. Edmond Burrows.

In recent years, a large number of books have been written about Canadian antiques, but until the publication of this book, little information had been gathered about Canadian clocks and clockmakers. The author describes the work of several of the surprisingly large number of clocks and watch makers in eighteenth and nineteenth century Canada, and includes over 300 black and white photographs of antique clocks. Some of the important patents for clocks and watches are reprinted, and the book ends with a list of nineteenth century Canadian clockmakers, repairmen, and dealers.

CLOCKS MADE IN CANADA BY THE ARTHUR PEQUEGNAT CLOCK CO., ONTARIO — Paul L. Lavoie.

This clock company is one of the major ones mentioned by Burrows. Collectors will be interested in this reproduced catalogue, which features clocks illustrated in the company's catalogues from 1904 to 1928. Descriptions of the clocks are taken from the catalogues, and a short history of the company is included.

EARLY CANADIAN POTTERY — Donald Webster.

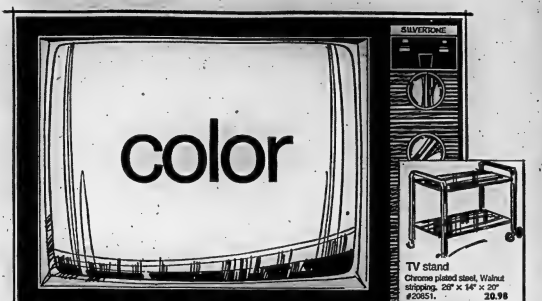
A much needed addition to the small amount of information on Canadian pottery, this book will be welcomed by historians as well as collectors. Many full-page illustrations, some in color show the pottery produced in Quebec, Ontario and the Maritimes. The author, an amateur chaeologist as well as an expert in the field of Canadiana, describes the method of making pottery and the work produced in various areas, concluding with a chapter on the archaeological excavation of old potteries.

THE FURNITURE OF OLD ONTARIO — Philip Shackleton.

Collectors of Canadiana will enjoy this authoritative guide to furniture made in Ontario from the beginnings of settlement to 1880. Six hundred illustrations of pieces of furniture, each fully described, show its development from crude, make-shift, pioneer items to the elegant copies of European designs. In the introduction, the author writes about the early settlers, changing fashions in furniture and the history of furniture-making in Ontario.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL EXPLORATIONS IN SIGNAL HILL, NEWFOUNDLAND, 1965-1966 — Edward B. Jelks

Part of the Canadian Historic Sites series, this book is about the work that was done at Signal Hill National Historic Park, St. John's, in order to find the remains of the military installations that had been in that location in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Descriptions of the excavated buildings and artifacts, including bottles, coins, buttons, and dishes, are accompanied by many photographs. This study provides insight into what life was like on the Hill in the nineteenth century.



BIBLIOGRAPHIA CANADIANA — Claude Thibault.

This long-awaited, complete bibliography of Canadian historical works — "all you ever wanted to know about Canadian history and were unable to find" — lists 25,000 books and periodical articles, of national rather than local interest, from the first writings to 1970. All aspects of history are covered, including political, social, cultural, and economic. Students of history will find this a useful aid to research.

More Drugs Are Shipped Into Canada

By PETER MICHAELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Racketeers are shipping illegal drugs into Canada as never before, just as public and media interest in drug enforcement is waning, the national co-ordinator for RCMP drug surveillance said Wednesday.

There is an organized attempt by major criminal groups to increase drug use throughout the world, said Insp. Gordon Tomalty.

Marijuana is coming in from Mexico, Jamaica and the U.S., hash is shipped from the Far and Middle East and hard drugs arrive from Italy and Southeast Asia, he said in an interview.

The drug gangs are entering the country under every conceivable guise, said Insp. Tomalty.

"Let your imagination go, and anything you come up with for tricking customs inspectors has probably been tried."

Recent drug shipments had come in by air freight and on the passengers of jumbo jets who cannot all be searched carefully because of their numbers. Container shipments are popular hiding places and, in one case, the frame of construction equipment was hiding a drug cache.

RCMP figures show that 4,853 pounds of hashish were seized in the first nine months of this year, compared with 3,306 pounds for the whole of last year.

More than 10,000 pounds of marijuana has been seized during the same nine-month period. Only 7,265 pounds were recovered by police in 1972.

Insp. Tomalty agreed that increased police surveillance might, account for part of the higher seizures. But the racketeers were working harder too, getting off more shipments.

"But you don't hear so much about drug abuse these days because the public and the media seem to have tired of the subject."

Trouble in Montreal

Steinberg, Dominion Employees on Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Two supermarket chains serving more than half the grocery needs of the Montreal area were hit by strikes today in separate disputes involving the Retail Clerks International Association.

Outlets in the Dominion Stores Ltd. chain opened at 8:30 a.m. with management personnel attempting to handle the duties of clerks, cashiers and other in-store employees, but a union spokesman said in midmorning "almost all" stores were closed.

About 1,800 warehouse and distribution workers at Steinberg's Ltd. went on strike Wednesday, stopped regular deliveries to stores. The company has asked suppliers to deliver directly to the stores and has received "very positive responses," a spokesman said.

A union official said another 2,600 Dominion employees were meeting this morning to ratify a strike vote taken Sunday.

Agnew's Job to Be Filled

Ford Scheduled to Become U.S. Vice-president Today

WASHINGTON (CP) — An early-evening ceremony has been scheduled to swear in Gerald Ford as United States vice-president, with confirmation by the House of Representatives, his final hurdle, viewed as a near certainty.

The swearing-in session, which president Nixon was expected to attend, was to follow today's House vote on Ford's nomination.

The House scheduled its daily sitting for earlier than usual today to begin a debate which could last up to six hours before a confirmation vote.

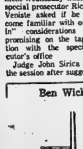
The 59-year-old Michigan congressman, the House Republican leader, was confirmed 92-3 by the Senate last week, and a similar lopsided vote today appeared so certain that plans were made for a joint meeting of the House and Senate at which Chief Justice Warren Burger would administer the oath.

Top Aide of Nixon Faces Cryptic Query

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cryptic question left unanswered overnight awaited President Nixon's top aide today upon resumption of the Watergate tapes' hearing in federal court.

Alexander Haig, White House chief of staff, expressed puzzlement Wednesday when assistant special prosecutor Richard Benveniste asked if he had "become familiar with or involved in" considerations of cutting or promising on the tapes litigation with the special prosecutor's office.

Judge John Sirica adjourned the session after suggesting that Ben-Veniste reword his query to clarify it.



Ben-Veniste was referring to the president's proposal Oct. 19 to prepare summaries of the subpoenaed tapes, have them verified by Senator John Stennis and submitted to the court and the Senate Watergate committee.

When special prosecutor Archibald Cox refused to accept the proposal he was fired by Nixon.

Senator Edward Kennedy, meanwhile, told the Senate in a report Wednesday that Cox was fired because of "chronic White House unhappiness with the vigor and scope" of his investigation.

The report said judiciary committee hearings disclosed "for all but the most credulous" that Cox's refusal to accept the compromise on the tapes "was only the precipitating incident, if not a complete pretext."

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — James Schlesinger, United States defence secretary, said today European defence independence is not likely to be practicable in less than 10 years. "Europe could move over the period of a decade or more towards achieving defence independence, but in the short run that is not an option seriously open to her," Schlesinger said.

GRIMSBY, England (CP) — Britain's cod war with Iceland ended today by deed as well as word. Two Icelandic trawlers unloaded a cargo of 70,000 pounds of fish at this English east coast port for the first time since the fishing limits dispute erupted 14 months ago.

All Mental Hospitals To Be Picketed

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Picket lines were to go up today at mental hospitals across Ontario as a union representing 15,000 hospital workers presented demands to provincial authorities.

A spokesman for the Service Employees International Union announced plans for the demonstration to back wage demands and improved working conditions.

Meanwhile union executives planned to present the health ministry in Toronto with a brief saying that hospital workers belong to the "working poor" and often are below the poverty line.

"In many instances public assists once or welfare might afford these workers with almost an identical income as they would earn working in a hospital," the brief said.

The union spokesman said Ontario hospitals were being picketed in a "peaceful demonstration which will not disrupt the operations of the hospitals."

Israeli Pullback Key
Oil Embargo Could Relax

The United States government, forced to approve a price increase to ensure supplies of heating oil, has been handed a sweetened offer by the petroleum-hoarding Arab States.

The Saudi Arabian oil minister said in Washington that his government would be willing to relax its oil embargo to the United States in steps phased with Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands.

Sheik Ahmad Zaki Yamani, touring western countries to explain the Arabs' use of oil as a political lever against Israel, attended a 50-minute Washington meeting with State Secretary Henry Kissinger, William Simon, the head of the new federal energy administration, and other officials.

The offer, which appeared to be extended to other countries as well, left open the possibility that some kind of Arab embargo would continue until all Arab lands, including the eastern section of Jerusalem, had been evacuated by Israel.

But Yamani hinted that a relaxation of the total embargo imposed on the United States and the Netherlands could begin during the Geneva peace conference, due to start Dec. 18.

He also said the Arab states were not insisting on a complete Israeli withdrawal before relaxing the oil reductions.

"I think that when the Israelis decide to withdraw and there is a timetable for that, there will be a timetable to increase production step by step in a manner which corresponds with the timetable of the withdrawal," he told reporters.

King Faisal imposed the oil boycott on the United States and the Netherlands to protest its support of Israel during the October war. Saudi Arabia, which helped finance Egypt and Syria in its attack against the Jewish state, has taken the lead in Arab militancy against Israel. Deliveries to Western Europe and Japan were also reduced.

Kissinger will call on Faisal next week. The state secretary will stop first in Egypt for a meeting with President Anwar Sadat and go on from Saudi Arabia to Syria, Jordan, Lebanon and Israel before attending the opening of the conference in Geneva.

Davis Advocates Staggered Hours

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis urged corporations Wednesday to voluntarily stagger their working hours in an effort to ease overloaded transit systems in Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton.

The premier told the presidents and directors of 45 large downtown Toronto companies at a private dinner that staggered hours must receive a high priority in Ontario's transportation planning.

"I am very optimistic that there will be full co-operation," he said.

The introduction of staggered working hours was part of the province's urban transportation policy announced in November, 1972.

The City of Toronto currently has its employees on a staggered system.

Mr. Davis announced that metropolitan Toronto chairman Paul Godfrey would head a committee with the responsibility of co-ordinating the voluntary co-operation of commerce and industry in the downtown sector.

The object of the system is to stretch the morning and evening rush-hour peak periods to two hours from one.

Oil Firms Estimated Shortages

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday that government forecasts of the severity of Eastern Canada's oil shortage are based on information from oil companies.

He said about 800 financial analysts all must know if the predictions are not accurate, oil companies will be largely to blame.

Mr. Macdonald said any kind of banning petroleum exports to the United States is an "absurd notion" because the oil industry here is highly integrated with that in the U.S.

Such a ban would produce retaliation on other fuels and chemicals needed by Canada, he said, and might produce "a ban on coal supplies to Ontario Hydro and the steel mills."

Stanfield Doubts Motion Will Pass

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday he is not confident about the results of a non-confidence motion the Progressive Conservatives plan to bring against the Liberals in the Commons Friday.

The Conservatives say they will bang the motion on the energy crisis.

But Mr. Stanfield, here for the taping of a television show Under Attack, said in a news conference afterwards that he thinks the New Democratic Party will vote with the minority government.

He said the NDP will use some sort of excuse for supporting the Liberals, possibly that they are waiting to see what the Liberals will do when the inflationary price freeze on oil is lifted at the end of January.

Or the NDP might cite the great amount of business before the House of Commons.

Mr. Stanfield refused to be specific about the wording of the motion.

Protesting Truckers Relax Highway Blockade in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Protesting truckers ended their 24-hour blockade of the Ohio Turnpike early today but vowed to continue on two other major roadways in the state.

The massive rigs began rolling shortly before highway patrolmen accompanied by National Guard low trucks assembled near the traffic jam, apparently ready to force movement by the 1,400 trucks.

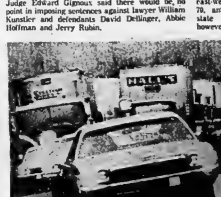
Sections of Ohio's other major east-west highway, Interstate 70, and the north-south Interstate 75, remained clogged, however.

On the turnpike, Walt Lowery, a trucker who met Wednesday night with representatives of the federal transportation department, said the drivers felt they had dramatized their complaints about higher fuel prices and low-ceiling speed limits. He said the truckers would wait 10 days to see what action was taken on their complaints in Washington.

In Columbus, Governor John Gilligan held a staff meeting after threatening legal action if the truck blocks remained in place.

Federal and state officials tried with little success throughout Wednesday to persuade, mollify or threaten the drivers in order to clear the highways.

State roads east of Columbus, which also had been blocked by the truckers, were cleared Wednesday night after state officials threatened to arrest any driver who refused to move his truck.



Most drivers left 15 blocked access intersections voluntarily. Six didn't, and they were arrested by Ohio highway patrolmen accompanied by National Guard crews on tow trucks.

In Michigan, police arrested one driver as they cleared blockades early today from interstate highways west and north of Detroit. Police said 60 trucks were involved.

Elsewhere, Governor Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania threatened to use the National Guard to keep roads clear. New Jersey Governor William Cahill met the Guard on alert, saying deliberate obstruction would not be tolerated.

In Washington, Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar urged the truckers to lift their blockades and promised the investigate their charges of price-gouging at the truck fuel. Brinegar also promised a review of the allocation of fuel at truck stops.

Clyde Lusk of the federal transportation department's energy office told turnpike truckers at a meeting in Berlin Heights, Ohio, that the Cost-of-Living Council would investigate their claims that they are charged as much as $1.10 a gallon for fuel. Some protesting drivers have demanded a ceiling of 35.9 cents.

Truckers Drive Three Abreast

Pennsylvania State Police in patrol cars at left leave tractor trailer drivers after giving them a warning for riding three abreast on a 2-lane one way Interstate 80 near Milesburg, Pa. travelling 15 miles per hour in a 40 miles per hour minimum zone. The truckers, protesting high cost of fuel and 55 miles per hour speed limit, relented and resumed normal driving pattern. (AP Photo)

Ministry Has Alternate Source for Area Water

The Ontario Ministry of the Environment has proposed an alternative source to Lake Ontario as a supply source for Belleville area water service.

This was learned Monday by city council through a letter from the ministry executive director, K. H Sharpe, who said the proposal was now in the hands of the printer and shortly would be made available to local municipal officials for consideration.

The letter said the proposal would be mailed out before the end of November, but Mayor Robin Jeffrey said at the council meeting it had not yet been received at city hall.

Mr. Sharpe said the alternative to a Lake Ontario water supply source for Belleville, the township of Thurlow and part of Sidney was expansion of the existing Bay of Quinte source, whether under local control or by the ministry as a provincial project.

Some years ago the then Ontario Water Resources Commission proposed tapping Lake Ontario as a supply source for the Belleville-Trenton Public Water Service Area but due to the high costs involved the proposal met with a cool reception.

The Commission at the time, said it would not impose the project against the wishes of the participants.

Since then there have been discussions regarding extension of water service from Belleville into Thurlow and Sidney township but: local authorities have been awaiting the ministry proposal before making any decisions.

After local authorities have reviewed the new proposal by the ministry, an advisory board meeting will be called to resolve the issue.

In the meantime, the Belleville Public Utilities Commission chas expressed concern over the condition of the present intake at the water filtration plant in the city's west end, which is said in need of replacement.

But in view of the possible extension of service from the Belleville Plant into Sidney and Thurlow, it is felt a larger intake should be installed. However, before installing the larger pipe, the local PUC wants assurance from the ministry that it will provide the 15 per cent subsidy allowed for installation of area water facilities.

Mr. Sharpe in his letter said that should the decision be that the ministry acquire the Belleville treatment plant and distribution works as part of an area project, the 15 per cent subsidy would be part of its recommendation.

The ministry official said the ministry still had some reservations concerning the long-term condition of the Bay of Quinte as a water source. These concerns relate more to the cost of treatment and ultimate disposal of backwash water than to specialized techniques relating to taste and odor control.

However, in view of the importance of a reliable intake at the Belleville plant, the ministry concurred in the PUC decision to proceed.

Mr. Sharpe expected that a meeting with PUC officials, and representatives of the affected municipalities would be called some time in December.

Buy Trenton Golf Course

Members Aid Country Club

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton Country Club's top attraction the golf course was sold this week, a direct policy turnaround in continuing attempts to breathe new life into the organization.

In recent months, due to lack of participation and bills coming due, club directors have faced the decision of selling off assets.

An undisclosed amount of debentures are is outstanding on club properties and are due for payment before the end of this year.

Several weeks ago directors took a vote of the general membership and the decision was to sell the club house and curling rink on the south side of King Street.

Since then no one has come up with a satisfactory bid. The speculated anticipated price has been reported around $100,000.

The sale of the golf course Tuesday night comes after fruitless weeks of listing the club facilities in photo multiple listing services with area realtors.

Restrictions on sale of the course provide that it be maintained as a golf course. If it proves a losing proposition the group of 28 purchasers are bound to sell the land to the town for the price they are paying — $14,000.

The 28, all members of the club will each chip in $500 and with the golf course they will also take on responsibility for the country club mortgage. This is said to be in the neighborhood of $35,000.

This proposition is expected to give the club some breathing room from bills and a chance to get on its feet.

The scheme was the result of two nights of meetings this week. Sources say because there was such disparity of opinions among members the Monday night meeting had to be adjourned and re-convened Tuesday.

Jack Wilson, club president and manager of Trenton Chamber of Commerce, has not been available for comment since Tuesday's session.

Two proposals that night split the 46 voter's exactly in half. These were to sell the club facilities to Trenton's Knights of Columbus for $78,000 or to sell to club member Lyle Carr for $100,000.

Mr. Carr arranged a consortium of businessmen willing to put up the money providing the business management was placed in their hands.

The Knights of Columbus included in their proposal a recommendation to cover the curling ice surface and create a banquet facility.

Both of these were eliminated with the overnight proposal to buy the golf course.

Further meetings are expected Sunday to more completely discuss the situation.

Rollins Proposes Napanee Condominium

NAPANEE — Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd., Belleville-based builder, has outlined a proposal to town council involving a $640,000 condominium townhouse development planned for 1.8 acres the company owns here.

Robert Marcotte, company vice-president, unveiled an architect's drawing of the project to council, but said it's still a long way from the initial stages of construction. He explained the project would require rezoning and an adjustment of town bylaws.

In Belleville, the builder has two completed townhouse condominium projects. Another is planned for the Parrott Dr. extension, but has been held up due to lack of Ontario Municipal Board approval.

In the city's north end, all 64 units of the Prince of Wales Dr. development are occupied said Mr. Marcotte Wednesday. The project, which was completed in 1972, is credited with being the first condominium not only in Belleville but in east central Ontario. Zone 30 units on O'Hara Dr. are complete.

The Napanee site is the fourth such development the company is planning. No other townhouse condominiums are currently foreseen in the company's area of interest—from Port Hope on the west, to Brockville on the east, and north to Peterborough.

The proposed Napanee development, financed under the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation's assisted home ownership program will consist of six four-bedroom and 36 three-bedroom units. At resent, the price of the three-bitroom units is tentatively set at $25,000.

Rotary Gives $1,000 for Handicapped

PICTON — The Picton Rotary Club has voted to donate $1,000 to the Kingston Regional Centre for Handicapped Children.

The donation was announced by club president Howard Mailett during a luncheon meeting.

The club has also approved a $25 donation to the Picton arena commission to be used to provide free ice time.

Fights to Bring Court Students Are Warned

DESERONTO — Public school children been have been warned that any further fighting incidents will result in charges and an appearance in juvenile court in Belleville.

At a special assembly, the students were addressed by Deseronto police constable Norman Clarke and principal Al. Camelford.

Addressing himself particularly to senior grade students, Mr. Camelford spoke about the situation developing at the school with frequent fighting on the playground.

Constable Clark spoke about fighting on the way home from school. In one such fight, one girl reportedly had her arm cut by a knife and two other children had to be taken to hospital.

While only a minority of youngsters were involved, Constable Clarke said the situation would develop to a point where it was out of control if everyone did not help. He said the children themselves could assist by attitudes and behavior and reporting incidents to teachers or police.

A safety club in the school has been discussed between Mr. Camelford and Constable Clarke.Purpose of the club would be to make children aware of safety involving home, cars, snowmobiles, fires.

It is hoped a club can be started in January.

Arbitration Verdict Is Awaited In Picton Police Pay Dispute

PICTON — Arbitration of a salary dispute between the Picton Police Association and the town police commission has closed and both sides now are awaiting a decision.

Arbitrator George Ferguson QC, Toronto, promised his verdict as soon a possible.

The association is seeking a 31 per cent salary increase in a one-year period. The commission's final offer was 19 per cent in the first year and five per cent in the second year. The dispute went to arbitration after negotiations broke down last spring.

Chairman for the police commission Jesse Mason said he was satisfied that "a tremendous amount of information" backed commissioners arguments against the 31 per cent raise during the arbitration hearing.

He commented that consultant Eric Hardy presented statistics for this community and many other regarding salaries and local tax bases.

He said evidence was presented concerning the arbitration award recently made in Walkerton received a salary comparable in size to Picton. A first class constable in Walkrton received a salary of $10,000 in 1973.

Mr. Mason said that all Picton police officers qualify as first class constables.

Representatives for the police association contended during the hearing that policemen should be classed as professionals and paid accordingly.

Roads OK for Winter

MARMORA — Road Superintendent Albert Leonard says all Marmora and Lake township roads are in good condition for winter and the crew has finished stockpiling sand for winter control.

Two tons of chloride will be ordered and two or three more days work will complete erecting of snow fences, he told council. Reeve Graham Bell cautioned Mr. Leonard to curb spending as much as possible till the new year, owing to the 1973 road fund being depleted.

Finance chairman Bob Drummond reported the two townships are in a good financial position, 90 per cent of property taxes having been collected to date.

Jury: Keep Jail, Old County Home

PICTON—A grand jury has suggested Prince Edward-County's old home for the aged should be retained, although a new building is under construction.

The jury's report, following a tour of the public buildings, stated the old home, built in 1905, might be used for future county offices or senior citizen apartments.

County council voted to demolish the old brick building with the completion of a modern structure on the same site.

The jury report also made several recommendations concerning the courthouse.

It was noted that the big pillars and exterior woodwork of the building require repairs and paint. The exterior wall of a new addition to the structure should be completed with a stone veneer according to the jurors' report.

The report further suggested that the old cell block building should be retained and maintained for historical and educational purposes in conjunction with the county museum.

Jurors advocated that "if and when" a new registry office is build it would be more economical to construct it on adjacent land rather than demolishing the historic old cell block at the courthouse.

Improved parking facilities at the courhouse also were recommended.

At Shire Hall the grand jury reported a possible need for repairs to woodwork in the rear of the building.

The registry office was not toured since plans are underway for a new building.

Township Garage Open

MADOC—Clarke T. Rollins, MPP Hastings, officially opened the new $80,000 Madoc township garage recently.

The new municipal building is on Highway 62 north of here. Weiger deJong of Stirling was the general contractor.

The garage was officially opened by unveiling a plaque and members of council members, engineer and general contractor and the date of opening.

Township reeve Cecil Woods told guests that $5 per cent of the cost was already paid and the structure would be debt-free by the end of the year.

The provincial government paid a 75-per-cent grant toward the cost.

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings attended the official opening and said the garage was a credit to the township.

Decline in Stock Market Produces Mixed Reactions

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Today's troubled stock market provides a classic confrontation between the two major camps of "experts".

—The technical analysts, who base their forecasts on a wealth of data about the patterns of the past, tend to foresee a recovery in stock prices.

—The fundamentalists, who are guided by what they are going on around them, tend to be gloomy about the market.

Those are generalizations, of course. It's possible to find technicians who are bearish, and fundamentalists who are bullish. Without disagreement, there would be no market for stocks.

But there can be no disagreement about the fact that stocks have suffered the sharpest decline that has been given expression of investors and analysts has ever experienced.

That most popular of hardsticks, the Dow Jones average of 30 New York industrial stocks, soared to a record 1,067 in January, slid to a post-1971 low of 846 in August, recovered to 988 in October, then quickly plummeted to 851 — a new 1973 low before finding any buying support.

Technical analysts make much of that pattern—the fact that the August low became a support level in November—plus the enormous daily turnover of shares, and the odd-lot short sales (suggesting that the little man, who is proverbially wrong, expects still lower share prices).

One esoteric forecasting technique is based on the Elliot wave theory, which has established a considerable loyalty among technical analysts over the years. Over-simplified, Elliot's theory is that prices move in waves—five major waves in one direction alternating with three minor waves in the opposite direction, following which the trend reverses itself.

Elliot's followers say that the theory calls for the Dow to recover to 950, retreat to 880, then advance to about 980 in early 1974.

Fundamentalists say, in effect, that the technical analysts are all wet. (There's no denying that the interpretations of technical indicators, as recorded in early October, landed on the whole to be bullish, and that technicians foresaw the sharp decline that was then just around the corner.)

According to a good many of the analysts who take the fundamental approach, the outlook for stock prices is not as bright as the Elliot-wave people and other technical analysts would have you believe.

They expect the energy crisis to have a greater snow-balling effect than has been widely realized—energy gasoline pumps force a truck line to stop delivering; a manufacturer must shut down for lack of materials the truck would have brought, and the wholesaler and retailer run out of manufactured goods to sell.

From this chain of events, they are convinced that corporate profits—the prime determinant of stock prices, in the fundamentalists' view—will finally decline, after their enormous growth over the last few years.

The energy crisis, they contend, is compounded by the continuing decline in U.S. public confidence in the Nixon administration, as shown by public opinion polls.

Finally, there is their suspicion fear that the Arab cutbacks in oil shipments to the world's most industrialized countries could lead to grave military consequences. Wars have begun with less serious provocation.

Need for Caution

Canadians should hold no brief for cruelty and repression under whatever political guise the right-wing regime in Chile is a case in point. It is because of the brutality of the new regime that pressure is being mounted against the Canadian and other governments to admit refugees from Chile.

But here is an unusual situation. These refugees, for the most part are adherents of Marxism, followers of the deposed left-wing government of President Allende, who took his own life during the coup, and who include large numbers of political fellow-travellers from all over Latin America. Many had come to Chile, or had been encouraged, to do so, to complete the consolidation of what to all intents and purposes was a Communist state in South America. And not forgetting that the Allende government was elected democratically, a first for any Communist state.

Think, while the new government leaves a lot to be desired, Canada in its own interests must be wary as to the political affiliations of any Chileans it admits in this situation.

An advertisement in The Globe and Mail in recent days tells a lot about the already strong influence of the left-wing in this country. Under the heading: Canada: Act Now to Save Lives (in Chile) it contains scores of names of persons supporting acceptance by Canada of refugees; and it contains some very strange bedfellows. In addition to Labor Unions and a sizeable number of leading churchmen, and church groups, a small host of academics and members of the general public, there are included under the heading Organization List such bodies as the Communist Party of Canada, Revolutionary Marxist Group, Young Communist League, African National Congress (Canadian Section), Canadian Peace Congress, and several other organizations representative of the far left.

If nothing else, a glance at this kind of lineup should persuade Ottawa to proceed with caution. To admit in any numbers — even a few can overthrow the established order, as Cuba's Fidel Castro proved — people of this political affiliation, could be to hasten the day when Canada might face a similar threat.

"... so I said to Gromyko—Look here Andrei, it's about the way you treat your minority groups ..."

Neighborliness ?

The Americans are a people who seem fated to have few friends. Fair weather friends perhaps, but today when things have been going rather badly for them in one way or another, there are not many voices raised in support of a country and people enduring some travail.

Canadians, even as neighbors, and major trading partners, are far from generous in their attitude toward the Nixon policies and its people There is plenty of criticism, much of it niggling, but little is heard in public here that could give any aid and comfort to those crossing the border.

But along comes Gordon Sinclair, veteran Toronto journalist and broadcaster in a radio commentary castigating an ungrateful world for turning against the United States after spending billions of dollars in aid from the Americans.

Reprinted in U.S. News and World Report, the magazine has been flooded with requests for a reprint and similar himself has made tapes for a number of U.S. radio stations.

Much of the criticism directed at the U.S. is a result of that fact that the most powerful and wealthiest nation on earth might expect from smaller nations. Yet again, while many countries are indebted to the Americans for aid, nobody enjoys acknowledging such help, and gratitude does not sit easily on the human breast, any more than it does on nations.

Belleville, while it does not have the immediate neighborliness of a border point, shares Lake Ontario with the Americans and we have pointed often to the mutual advantages that would accrue if there was a revival of passenger boat traffic between the two countries, say by hovercraft.

We have been reminded also of the occasion seven or eight years ago when then Mayor Jack Rose's new MP for Hastings sent snow-clearing equipment to Oswego to help that city after it was hit by a particularly heavy winter storm.

This is the kind of practical neighborliness that brings people together. It is too bad we don't have more regular contacts. For instance we could invite participation from border communities in future Christmas parades or in some similar public function.

Yugoslavia Under Tito and After He Is Gone

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Yugoslavia's Marshal Josip Broz Tito, like Spain's Franco and China's Mao Tse-tung, is over 80. This column has analyzed Spain and China under the long-lived rule of Francisco Franco and Mao. Now what of Yugoslavia with or without Tito?

The prospect of his demise does not seem to be as widely mentioned within or outside of the country as does the matter of his wife Jovanka Broz. Since 1941, Yugoslavia has a substantial state system of power elites and a mixed party-military ruling apparatus which would tide the country over any immediate crises of leadership after the leader dies.

In both cases—Spains right-wing apparatus and Yugoslavia's nationalist Marxist one—they exist to perpetuate the kind of state each leader has created, Franco since 1939, Tito since 1941.

In many cases, Spain and Yugoslavia are amazingly similar to their post-war experiences. Economically both had to come out of the wilderness of autarchic economic policy, make peace with the big industrial powers of both the West-ern European and Soviet-dominated economic power blocs.

Spain now trades with the U.S.S.R., the bitter ideological enemy of the civil war and post-war years, as well as with her Eastern European socialist satellites and Cairo's Marxist Cuba .For exaMple, Cuba's largest cigar market is in Spain.

Yugoslavia's major trading partners are West Germany and Italy (both members of the European Common Market) and the U.S.S.R. in that order. Both have relied over the years on U.S. financial aid and later American import demand for their goods.

Years ago America was the decadent democracy to France's propagandists, and capitalistic warlike state to those of Tito. Changing trade patterns and mellowing leaders changed all that.

Both countries have had severe problems with regional differences. Tito with the political upheavals in Croatia two years ago. France with the Basque revolt of about the same time. In both cases, these two leaders acted true to form as centralists and dead set against separatism. Not a happy legacy for whoever succeeds both men as leaders.

Tito's still greatest moment for South Slav nationalism in a Marxist jacket was his June, 1948, break-away from Stalinism and the suffocating embrace of the U.S.S.R.

No other Eastern European Communist state has been able to do it in quite the same way. And certainly no other tried as early as 1948 when the vicious and ruthless Stalin had free more years of rule in Russia.

It's true the Romanians, and for that all too brief time the Czechs, have moved to Titoism of their own brand of national communism. The Romanian version has stuck. The Czech version had first French brute force to revert to stifling Stalinist style regime.

Tito has magnificently survived the 1948 split. At present he is enjoying the use of a billion-dollar credit agreement with Moscow while he does the same with $335 millions from the U.S. Export-Import Bank.

Yugoslavia's military pilots once trained in the Second World War German Luftwaffe fighter and in the early 1950s on the first MiG 15s, have since been trained in U.S. Air Force bases in U.S. jet fighters purchased for a Communist air force.

In 1974, the 10th congress of the Yugoslav Communist party meets in Belgrade. By then Marshal Tito will be approaching 82 years of age. If he lives, the success will surely be discussed, even more so before then, if he does not.

Former Attorney-General Wishart Back as Special Assistant

By DON O'BEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Premier Davis, it seems, is a man who likes surprises—and this time he has come up with a good one.

The premier has brought former attorney-general Arthur Wishart back into the realm of government by naming him as his executive assistant, a personal office.

And in this move everybody should be a winner.

There have been few men around here who have held the respect that Mr. Wishart did in his half dozen years as attorney-general.

Going back on that period which ended in 1971, it is hard to remember one serious criticism of him, even from the opposition side of the house.

He was taken as a completely serious man, and above all always a reasonable one. Even who could see both sides of a question and whose decisions were not dictated at all by any personal ambitions.

Premier Davis hasn't been all that specific about just what he has in mind for this 70-year-old Sault Ste. Marie lawyer to do.

But apparently he is to act as a bit of a buffer: between both his own members and some of the delegations who are always clambering at the door of the very busy first citizen of the province.

He should be excellent at both tasks.

Then he was in the house he was always a bit of a man apart. For example he lived at different hotel than the cabinet members. And otherwise he behaved likewise.

But still he had both the admiration and friendship of his colleagues. And if they seem can't see the premier he will be the next best thing.

Similarly with delegations. He will give them understanding and sympathy but he has the stature so that they won't feel let down.

Incidentally, when talking of the transfer of James Fleck from chief executive officer to the premier to secretary of the cabinet most press men, including the writer, classed this as a demotion.

The premier says no to this. He says it is a "horizontal" shift.

Accepted. However, it does take Mr. Fleck out of politics,

Palestinian Arab Refugees And The Embargo On Oil

By AL COLLETTI
UNITED NATION S (CP) — Among the main demands of the Arab states for restoring full oil production and ending their complete embargo of deliveries to some countries is "self-determination" for the Palestinian Arab refugees.

The Palestinians are scattered largely as a result of the 1948 war which led to the establishment of Israel in their former homeland.

They have been the focal point of Arab hostility toward Israel and have helped light the fuses of the wars which have bedevilled the Jewish state.

Some of the refugees live in the Gaza Strip, along the eastern shore of the Mediterranean, in camps extending for miles. It is a continuous slum.

The Palestinian Arabs are estimated to number more than two million. They make up about half the population of Jordan. Others are in Lebanon and Israeli-occupied territory along the west bank of the River Jordan.

Of the total, perhaps 750,000 might become part of any new Palestinian state on the west bank of the Jordan.

Israel remains opposed to the creation of the independent Palestinian state although she has expressed willingness to make preparations to the refugees as part of a peace settlement in the Middle East.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat insists a peace settlement with Israel must include restoration of the "legitimate rights" of the Palestinians.

The problem in the long run may have less to do with the creation of a Palestinian state than with providing the means of supporting it.

There has been a long history of lack of accountability for the Palestinians. Their frustrations have led to the formation of extremist groups which engage in ugly and indiscriminate terrorism.

Now the industrial countries, particularly Japan and states of Western Europe, have had the issue forced on them. Since Western Europe and Japan depend on the Arab countries for most of their oil, they are particularly susceptible t e Arab pressure.

The question arises whether purchases of oil at increasingly higher prices from the Arab states in the Persian Gulf, plus possibly Libya and Algeria, might be used as the mechanism for collecting funds for the Palestinians.

As collectors and perhaps distributors of the revenues, Arab oil-producing countries would be in the position of being sponsors of the Palestinians.

A flow of money from the Persian Gulf could be cut off if, for example, there was a renewed serious outburst of terrorism.

Already Arab oil politics is paying off in other ways for the Palestinians.

Japan and the Netherlands, both special targets of the Arab oil squeeze, plan to make big increases in their annual United Nations contribution to aid the refugees.

Japan will boost its donations to the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees to $5 million next year, almost a five-fold increase from this year's contribution. The money is for food, clothing, education and other needs of the refugees.

College And Liquor Issue

Editor
The Intelligencer

I was very surprised to hear from the statement of the opposition that is being rallied in a nothing more than humiliating to the applications made by Loyalist College for various liquor licenses. I am not shouting the leaders against the principle of liquor licenses, to have a very tenuous connection with the College.

Belleville has precious little to offer its young population where is an adequate bus service. At the same time there seems to be a vociferous minority force which takes delight in preserving this deprived state of affairs.

A college is not merely a collection of classrooms, a teaching factory. It is a community in itself. As such, it has a certain claim to the normal rights of a community and the availability of moderate liquor is one of these - not to mention a fair measure of autonomy and respect.

Those who are opposed to the existence of a pub at Loyalist are under no obligation to patronize it, they certainly need not be missed. On the other hand opposition to the licensing from such a body is having no real connection with the College is nothing more than the insulting imposition of one party's moral values on another — bigotry, to be exact.

This letter, although it represents what I believe to be the views of the majority of people here at Loyalist, is not an official statement from the College and should not be construed as such.

Liberals Retain Regina Seat

REGINA (CP) — About the only thing Liberals and New Democrats could agree on Wednesday night was that Liberal Ted Malone won a sweeping victory in the Regina Lake-view byelection.

He defeated his only rival, New Democrat Don Keith, 4,349 votes to 2,600, retaining the seat for the Liberals by double their 1971 margin.

That put standings in the 60-seat legislature at NDP 44, Lib. 15, Independent 1.

The byelection, fourth since the 1971 provincial general election, was necessitated by the September death of MLA Don McPherson.

Liberal leader Dave Steuart said the Malone victory was the result of "a feeling that the government needed to be slowed down a little, that they were a little too arrogant."

NDP Asks Details On Price Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald tried to sell the Commons "an energy insurance policy" Wednesday but ran into resistance from the Progressive Conservatives and the New Democratic Party.

T. C. Douglas (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) said NDP support for new energy measures hinges on how the government intends to control oil and gasoline prices after the voluntary price freeze ends Jan. 31.

Speaking after Mr. Macdonald described the bill as oil and gas insurance for this winter, the NDP energy critic called for a statement "within a day or two" on what price structures the government will introduce when the five-month freeze expires.

The NDP position on the bill and on the minority Liberal government's over-all energy policy would depend on the post-freeze price policy.

Any announcement on prices within the period requested by Mr. Douglas would come just before Monday night's Conservative non-confidence motion on the energy situation.

Before debate on the energy bill began, all parties attempted to pave the way for the non-confidence motion by rushing five bills through the House. The attempt was scuttled by Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) who said he could not consent to debate the passage of a bill to exempt certain religious groups from Canada Pension Plan contributions.

He opposes the bill because he feels it would be unfair to exempt Hutterites, who he said do not accept the loyalties and responsibilities assumed by other citizens.

All party action to clear the bills followed behind-the-curtain negotiations and another attempt was expected today to have at least some of them passed.

The Conservatives hope pushing through the remaining legislation will increase the chances of NDP support on the non-confidence motion. The NDP has voted frequently with the minority Liberals, saying important legislation remains on the order paper.

Opening second-reading debate Wednesday, Mr. Macdonald stressed the precautionary nature of the bill and called it "ambiguous to an insurance policy."

The bill gives the government power to ration oil and gasoline supplies, control prices and take over transportation facilities in energy emergencies.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) said there is "a heavy burden on the government to show the need for this legislation." The government has given insufficient information on the energy situation.

If more information is not forthcoming quickly a Conservative committee should be allowed to call witnesses and "establish the facts."

Mr. Macdonald said the proposed legislation, introduced Monday, estimates the potential risk and cost of expected energy shortages. It was necessary to anticipate that measures more stringent than voluntary lowering thermostats may be needed to cope with energy interruptions.

Underestimating the risk of such shortages this winter is a disservice to eastern Canadians who depend heavily on imported oil, he said.

Shaheen Optimistic, Macdonald Is Not

OTTAWA (CP) — The question of whether an oil refinery to Come-By-Chance, Nfld., may help prevent the expected energy crisis in Eastern Canada this winter was open to debate Wednesday.

New York promoter John Shaheen says his $200-million Newfoundland refinery, officially opened Oct. 30, "definitely will start in 19 days." Energy Minister Donald Macdonald says the refinery cannot be counted on until possibly February or later.

They do agree on one thing: The 100,000-barrels-a-day facility at Placentia Bay is the government's "ace in the hole" as far as the developing energy shortage is concerned.

But Mr. Macdonald told reporters Wednesday his advisers feel that "for the time being, the production from the refinery could not be counted on . . . at least in the early part of the first quarter of 1974."

Mr. Shaheen, whose Shaheen Natural Resources is the parent of Newfoundland Refining Co. Ltd., said in an interview afterward that the minister probably meant the refinery's production would not be needed by the East until February or March.

Mr. Macdonald said the refinery already is two months behind schedule.

"There are a lot of start-up problems," he said.

None of those has been labor difficulties. The latest, a walkout by 350 pipefitters, was termed a minor detail by Mr. Shaheen, who expected it would be settled soon.

Mr. Shaheen said the refinery will be producing 70,000 barrels a day initially and will reach its full capacity by the end of the month.

The refinery might make up half the 100,000-barrels-a-day shortage Mr. Macdonald has predicted as the worst shortage the East will suffer.

The other 100,000 barrels a day is coming from the Western Canada basin through the Panama Canal to Montreal, the rest by various forms of land transportation.

Mr. Shaheen announced Tuesday that his company is willing to sell its oil to Canada—instead of to the United States, France and West Germany, for which it originally was destined.

Mr. Macdonald, however, was skeptical of reassurances by Homer White, president of Newfoundland Refining, that the company has iron-clad contracts with Iran and Kuwait providing about 38,000 barrels a day.

"Shaheen's supply is as much subject to interruption as any body else's."

Another problem faced by the refinery is where to put all that two huge supertankers are bringing over the refinery's three-million-barrel tank farm is filled and it costs thousands of dollars a day to keep a supertanker moored and idle.

Mr. Macdonald said it is unlikely Mr. Shaheen will reroute the big tankers to United States ports because of the Arab sanctions.

"If the Kuwaitians found out that he was exporting crude oil, he wouldn't be getting any more."

Mr. Shaheen countered this by saying his company already had sent one million surplus barrels of crude to the Gulf Oil refinery at Point Tupper, N.S.

Retired Executives Act as Consultants

TORONTO (CP) — Ten retired business executives work part-time in their own management consultant firm and they say the dividend it pays is their own sense of worth and well-being.

Associated Senior Executives of Canada Ltd. was started about 10 years ago to provide management advice to small businessmen. Fees are variable and nominal and the executive members work as volunteers and when they want to.

Wilmot Abernathy, its president, says: "We are all retired from senior positions in business. We don't have to make a living. But we are a properly organized company.

"We don't set out as specialists, because after you retire, in a short period, you are no longer a specialist. But you don't forget those principles that made you successful.

The number of members has varied over the years. The present staff of 30 is the largest to work with the firm at any one time.

Clients have usually heard about the firm from successes they have worked with or from a bank. They appear before a committee to discuss their problems and to get a decision whether the associates will take them on.

Howard Wright, an engineer, says: "It's a matter of can we help this chap, though we'll send them out if they're fast-buck boys."

The first interview is on the house. Then a suggested plan of action and fee are sent to the client. If he accepts, a team goes to work.

"You can't do it for nothing or it loses its value for them," says Jack Wilkinson, whose background is marketing.

Mr. Wright says: "We never take on projects as individuals. We work on them two be three together. Anyone can take off for a vacation if he wants to. At our age one person could be missing at any time, but the others know all about the project."

The fees are used to pay overhead and expenses and provide an occasional party.

Ray Lister says: "This is my third year. I heard about it when Wilson was interviewed on the air. I was getting to the age of retirement. I like to play golf, but you can't play golf forever."

For retired people, the hours from 10 to 2 are hard to fill, says Mr. Wright. "By 10 you've read the paper and there's nothing more to do until 2 or 4 when you do the chores the wife has figured out for you. This fills the empty spot, and keeps us in touch."

Mr. Wilkinson says: "You maintain the work discipline you've had all your life. I don't want it five days a week any more, but I'enjoy it a couple of days."

There are some people who do drop ill, and they just deteriorate," says Mr. Lister.

Union Leader Reported To Have Used Funds

TORONTO (CP) — Charles W. Irvine, accused Tuesday of organizing a combine among Toronto-area plastering contractors, took $5,500 in union funds between July, 1969 and last June, a royal commission investigating crime in Ontario's construction industry was told Wednesday.

Shahid Minto, an accountant hired by the commission, said Mr. Irvine had transferred $10,000 in union money into his account and later replaced $4,500 of it.

He testified that Mr. Irvine, Canadian vice-president of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association of the United States and Canada, apparently treated union and personal accounts in the same manner.

The accountant accompanied police in a September raid on Mr. Irvine's office but found only a few recent receipts and some accounts written by Mr. Irvine as records for Local 117 of the union.

"There was a complete lack of internal control . . . almost a complete lack of records," said Mr. Minto.

A check of bank records showed Mr. Irvine received almost $32,000 income in recent years he could not account for—legal half of that coming from Local 117, the commission was told.

Mr. Irvine put the local under his trusteeship in October, 1971.

Mr. Minto said he was told by Mr. Irvine that most of the records had either been destroyed in an office fire or had been stolen.

"He said if he came up with an explanation he'd let us know . . . we haven't heard from him," Mr. Minto said.

Angelo Burigana, 69, business manager of Local 117, testified that during the trusteeship, Mr. Irvine had ordered him to make false receipts for union dues which were never received.

These were to indicate to international union inspectors that Local 117 was flourishing, he said. However, Mr. Irvine never sent the appropriate international dues to union headquarters in Washington, Mr. Burigana added.

Mr. Burigana, who helped Mr. Irvine form the local and has been its business manager since inception, said Mr. Irvine was never authorized to take money to organize a new local.

Detective Wounded By Toronto Thugs

TORONTO (CP) — One man was arrested and police searched for a second following a jewelry store holdup Wednesday in which a Metropolitan Toronto police detective was fired at twice from point-blank range.

Det. Pat Kelly suffered powder burns to his shoulder from one shot while a second bullet passed through his coat.

Jacob Oliver Gledhill, 41, of Detroit, was charged with armed robbery.

Police said a second suspect, believed to have been wounded in the gunfire exchange, was being sought.

A bag of jewels was recovered.

Whisky Firms Short of Fuel

GLASGOW (AP) — Bad news for scotch whisky drinkers: shortage of heating oil has forced Scottish distillers to cut production.

The Scotch Whisky Association said Wednesday the situation was severe.

Scotch whisky is Britain's biggest dollar-earner, and distillers hope their exports will reach $600 million this year.

Lewis Admits He's No Expert On Energy

OTTAWA (CP) — David Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, drew applause Wednesday from members of other parties when he prefaced a Commons question with the words "because I don't know enough about the oil industry. . . ."

Roars of approval from MP's, particularly Conservatives, forced Mr. Lewis to halt before he had a chance to put his question to Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

When the din subsided, the NDP leader turned to the Conservative benches and said "I'm flattered by the applause from my equals in this House."

He then questioned Mr. Macdonald about tax reductions received by some oil companies.

Arranged Meet

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Jacques Cote testified Wednesday he organized a meeting attended by Pierre Laporte and two alleged underworld figures, but that Mr. Laporte did not know in advance that the two would be on hand.

Mr. Cote, then a Liberal party organizer in Montreal St. Jacques riding, told the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime the meeting was held 14 days before the April 29, 1970, Quebec election.

He said he set up the meeting and attended it with Nichols Di Iorio and Frank D'Asti, both PQ, to show Mr. Laporte the seriousness of a report that irregularities were planned on election day by persons whom Mr. Cote did not name in his testimony.

Record Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) still expects a record 250,000 housing starts this year despite a drop in urban construction in recent months.

Ticket Sold

OTTAWA (CP) — Flanked by four jogging athletes, Canada's first Olympic lottery ticket was sold to Treasury Board President C. M. Drury Wednesday.

Probe Incident

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A disturbance last week at the Millhaven maximum-security penitentiary resulted in no injuries but an inquiry will be held into the incident, prison officials announced Wednesday.

Director Nicholas Cavos said the disturbance broke out the evening of Nov. 25 and caused about $2,800 damage to plumbing fixtures and cell windows.

A Gift Every Day - Send a Calendar

If you've been working up to getting a holiday parcel ready for the folks over 'ome, forget it.

The last mailing date was November 8.

And the last mailing date for first class mail if coming up fast-December 13.

One solution for mail-away gifts could be a calendar. Not, of course, those give-away types you get at every other business or bank on the street but a beautifully designed calendar you actually go out and pay for.

The advantage of giving calendars is two-fold. First, the really nice ones come "mailer" boxes, all ready to be dropped in the mailbox. Others generally fit into a manilla envelope. No wrapping, you know. Secondly, they're light and cheap to mail.

Look for calendars in gift shops and book stores.

A very special calendar, which sells for $3.95 is the Sierra Club Wildlife calendar. Produced for the prestigious conservation group, the calendar includes really outstanding glossy nature photographs. There is also a Sierra Club desk size engagement calendar for the same price.

McClelland and Stewart, the book publishers have this year produced a fine art calendar called "Heritage". Priced at $3.95, it includes photographs by John de Visser of fine Canadian antiques.

There are an endless number of "Canadian scenes" calendars available, some quite attractively designed, for under $3.00.

For animals lovers, there are inexpensive "kitten," puppy" and "horse" calendars.

For a child, theres the Golden Around the World calendar which takes the viewer on a tour of a country each month. Foods, foreign terms and customs are all colorfully illustrated. It costs $1.25.

For local mailing, you have time to send for the useful and attractive Harry Oliver Kitchen Calendar, Weekend Magazine, its producer, say its "especially designed to make life easier for Canadian housewives". It feature monthly menus, handy kitchen hints, 45 recipes and the unusual placement of days from Monday to Sunday "to help the housewife plan her meals". Send $3.95 plus 25 cent postage to Weekend Magazine, 665 Queen East Toronto 8, Ontario.

The Liberman Woman's Appointment Calendar is a U.S. production being handled by Clarke Irwin in Canada. Bound like a spiral notebook, it includes photographs and cartoons and all kinds of wise and witty quotes and advice for the feminist. It sells for $3.50.

Finally, if you'd like to give yourself a free gift, send for the Milk Calendar (345 Flint Road, Downsview, Ontario) for 25 cents. It has space to write down acquaintances, nutrition information, diet tips, food facts and recipes.

Ann Landers

Month Before Wedding, Bride's Having Affair

Dear Ann Landers: A close friend of mine is getting married next month and I am in the wedding. I think she is making a terrible mistake. She is having a sizzling affair with a guy, and it's not the one she is marrying.

I've tried to talk some to her but she keeps saying, "This is my last fling. I must get it out of my system before I settle down."

In the meantime she talks about "My Fling" constantly, and rarely says one word about her fiance. I think she is marrying the wrong guy. Or, more to the point, she isn't ready to get married at all.

My problem is, I'm the only one who knows about this mess and I feel like a hypocrite being in the wedding.

I am a good Christian, Ann, and I believe in Divine Guidance. I've been praying every night, but so far—no answer. Can you help?—Artificial Calla Lilies.

Dear Lil: It's not easy to pinch-hit for "Divine Guidance," but I'll do my best.

For openers: The problem isn't yours. It's your nutty girl friend's. Keep your mouth shut and continue to pray.

Dear Ann Landers: My parents and I get along pretty well. The only serious arguments we have are about my friends. My mom and dad are no prize buck's because the kids I have over to the house don't stand up and say hello when they come into the room. My dad especially freaks out if a guy just sits there all morning. I caught boy hailstones. Last night there were eight kids here. When they left, not one of them went out to the patio to say goodnight to my parents. At breakfast this morning Mom said, "I certainly hope you have better manners when you are in their house."

What's the matter with these kids? I agree that my folks have a point. Should I tell them?—Ft. Lauderdale

Dear Ft. Laud.: Unfortunately, your friends were not taught manners when they were younger. It's still not too late to learn. Ignore it and I think you should mention it. When an adult comes into the room, teen-agers, both boys and girls, should stand. And before they leave a house they should say goodnight to the parents of the host or hostess, if they are available.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 22-year-old daughter is being married soon. Marcia lived at home and agreed to pay room and board (a modest sum) but somehow she was always "a little short." For the past five months she hasn't paid anything.

I happen to know that Marcia has several hundred dollars worth of unpaid bills. She can't resist "a bargain." The girl could open up a full length dress store and a sport shop. Her closets were so full last spring she gave 10 outfits to a girl friend.

I asked her if her fiance knows about her bills. She said yes, but I don't believe her. I'm afraid she's going to be in for trouble when she springs these bills on him.

Should I tell him and spare Marcia the trouble later?—Wrench Mom

Dear Mom: No. This is not your department. But explain to Marcia that if she doesn't level with her fiance in advance, it could get the marriage off to a very poor start.

ADDING FLAVOR

To pep up the flavor of meat stews add a little tomato paste and dry sherry.

Women and Law:

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

The law loomed large in news about women during 1973, notably in three court decisions.

In August the Supreme Court of Canada ruled that Indian women, but not men, must give up Indian status if they marry non-Indians. The ruling held that it is not a key loss of basic freedoms guaranteed by the Bill of Rights.

The ruling was based on the case of Jeanette Lavell of Toronto and Yvonne Bedard, formerly of the reserve near Brantford, Ont.

Women who are stricken from registered Indian rolls cannot occupy land on reserves, share in band funds or be eligible for special federal benefits. Non-native women married to Indian men are added to Indian rolls.

Justice Minister Otto Lang has said his department will study the ruling to see if any change in laws might be required.

The federal advisory council on the status of women asked the Supreme Court to review the case, and a number of women's groups have protested the ruling.

A similar split occurred after the court's ruling that Irene Murdoch of Nanton, Alta., had no claim on her estranged husband's ranch business.

Mrs. Murdoch contended she contributed financially and by her work to the acquisition and increasing value of the ranch. The court's majority ruling was that "it cannot be said that there was any common intention that the beneficial interest in the property in issue was not to belong solely to the respondent husband in whom the legal estate was vested."

Property rights in marriage are being studied in both Alberta and Ontario with a view to changing legislation.

The Murdoch case is also being protested by women's groups.

A third case is being appealed in Quebec. There, in November, Dr. Henry Morgentaler of Montreal was acquitted on a charge of illegally inducing an abortion. The defence was based on "medical necessity," the first time that Article 45 of the Criminal Code had been used in an abortion case.

The Crown said the move might lead to abortion on demand.

Since then, Mr. Lang has ordered a study to find out whether the Supreme Court of Canada can or should be asked to consider the state of abortion law in the country.

Essentially, it is to determine whether there could be abortion on demand, in spite of strict provisions in the Criminal Code restricting abortions.

Several provinces have been looking at pension plans in part to determine whether they discriminate against women on the basis of sex and marital stats. A federal bill amending the Canada Pension Plan is being redrafted, and the Commons welfare committee has been urged to give priority to changes that would give men and women equal treatment under the Canada Pension Plan.

The federal status of women council, chaired by Dr. Katie Cooke was established in July. Ontario and Quebec appointed provincial councils in September.

In Alberta, a new provincial solicitor-general's department was formed in September, and Helen Hunley, Progressive Conservative member for Rocky Mountain House, was named minister. She had been minister without portfolio.

The Anglican synods of Ottawa and Niagara both voted in favor of ordaining women, supporting a General Synod vote of approval in principle at their spring meeting. The resolutions go before the National House of Bishops.

Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the federal food prices review board, was Canada's most publicized woman in 1973, as the visible target for everyone worried about the price of food.

That story, of concern to everyone, often focused on the reaction of women in their role as family supermarket shoppers.

Nice Quiet Job? Hardly

EDMONTON (CP) — Church caretaking sounds like a nice quiet job.

Not quite, say Bert and Judith Dahl, caretakers at McDougall United Church in downtown Edmonton for 10 years.

They remember a night when they were jolted awake by someone trying to smash his way through the door of their apartment in the church.

"He got away," said Mrs. Dahl, "but the police searched the whole church to make sure he wasn't in here somewhere."

The Dahls don't have it easy with four events usually going on in the church and meeting rooms every day.

"Sometimes it's a 16-hour job," said Mr. Dahl. "I get up at 7:30 and go down and unlock the doors and we don't go to bed at night until after the last meeting ends."

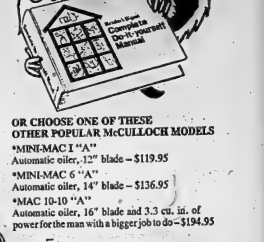
The Dahls don't boast, but they're proud of the big church's gleaming pews that hold 1,000 persons, the meticulously-vacuumed carpets and the polished shine on the meeting-room floors.

Some of the persons who find their way to the little Pioneer Chapel in the church cause problems for the Dahls. The chapel is left unlocked throughout the day and early evening for people who wants to pray or be alone in a quiet atmosphere.

"Drunks sometimes wander in," said Mrs. Dahl. "Once, after Bert asked a couple of men to leave, he found a bottle of wine and a knife."

She regrets that except when a service is being held, the chapel appears bare.

"The candlesticks which used to be on the communion table were stolen—replaced and then stolen again. Somebody even took the Bible off the table. So we don't dare leave anything out."



The one complaint that the mild-mannered couple have is directed at the weatherman for what he does to church caretakers in winter.

"It always snows Saturday night. And we want those sidewalks nice and clean before the Sunday service."

Successful Living

Take Time to Grow

By DORIS CLARK

Has it ever occurred to you that growing up and growing older sometimes means the narrowing down of interests?

All too often an adult — or two married adults — concentrate on money -making, leaving too little room in life for love, laughter and social activities.

The woman who stays at home tends to concentrate upon routine home duties; and she too excluded, far too much, love, gaiety and broader mental interests.

Don't do it. Years fly by too fast. You should be growing every minute in some way and broadening interests, not narrowing them. If you once wan'ed to know something about classical music and never did, learn about it now.

If you have a talent with pen or a paint brush, indulge it. Find a class to go to or a writer's workshop where you can show out some ideas or share helpful criticisms.

Who knows? You might just find a way of getting that new and exciting self-expression which most of us miss out on, at least partly, during the years which should be our healthiest and most enjoyable.

Dear Doris: The Kindness Club book "How to be Kind" was awarded as a special prize at the I.P. Fisher Library Pet Show recently. The book was given to Virginia Turney who had entered her cat, Henry Charles.

The Pet Show was held to encourage proper care of pets and many colorful books on the subject were on display throughout the library.

Entrants were all given a Pet Show book-mark and prizes were awarded to pets for various reasons: Tinker, a kitten' owned by Shane Ralston— for mitten paws; Brindy, a Scottish terrier shown by Laurie Gross—barks with a Scottish accent; Snoopy, a poodle owned by Diane Walsh — had the biggest smile; and Sally Stevens' rabbit, Raisin, was the only pet named after a full.

M. Lindsay,
Fisher Library, Woodstock, N.S.

Dear M.L.: Delightful! And your ingenious system of awards will doubtless inspire some original competitions in other Canadian branches.

Dear Doris: I got married in 1971, and have no children. My husband left me two days after I married him. I found out that he was married before and has six children and a wife.

Could I get married again? All I am waiting for is my annulment papers.

Miss Anonsimus.

Dear Miss A.: Sure you could, but better wait till you have those annulment papers in your hand.

(Let a Canadian social worker in on your difficulty. Doris may be able to save the day for you! Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Khyber Tribes Still Independent

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (Reuter) — The tribes of Pakistan's Northwest Frontier, age-old guardians of the mountain passes between Afghanistan and the plains of India, remain as independent and unpredictable as ever.

The main cottage industry is gun-making. Opium poppies are cultivated on the hill slopes and luxury goods are smuggled and sold openly.

Officially designated tribal areas, the preserve of the Pathan clans spread over an area of 10,500 square miles, mainly along the 30-year-old Durand Line which marks the border with Afghanistan.

Total population is some 2,000,000 in an area varying from harsh, bare mountains, rocky stream beds and dusty plains where rainfall is only 15 inches a year to the rich green valleys and snowfields of the north.

The Durand Line divides many of the fierce border tribes including the Afridis, Mohmads, Wazirs and Shinwaris whose loyalties to Pakistan have again become crucial following a change of government in Afghanistan.

President Mohammed Daoud, who overthrew the monarchy of King Zahir Shah last July, has revived the call of Pakhtoonistan, an independent state for the Pakhtoons (Pathans) along the border and as far east as the Indus River in Pakistan.

Senior army officers admit they now see Afghanistan as a threat.

The military has begun reoccupying old British cantonments left vacant since 1947 and building some of its own. New border scout units are being raised to man them.

The Pathan tribes are seldom without their firearms in town, on the roads or at home. It is common to see a man plowing his field with a sub-machine-gun slung on his back. Nearly all their weapons are locally made.

The best known factory centre is at Darra Adam Khel, 20 miles south of Peshawar.

The town, set at the base of towering, boulder-strewn hills, produces nothing but guns in its 100 or more shops and factories.

There are all kinds of weapons from penpistols and walking-stick shotguns to copies of the latest Spanish and German automatic pistols, Sten guns, automatic rifles and, by repute—though none are on display—mortars and grenades.

There are similar factory towns at Ilam Godar near the Khyber Pass and Kanigoram in South Waziristan.

As sub-machine-guns sells for about $36 and rifle arms are circulated throughout the hills and smuggled from there all over Pakistan and into Afghanistan.

Some 10 miles west of Peshawar is another remarkable example of tribal enterprise—Barra market, where luxury goods from all over the world, smuggled through Afghanistan, are sold cheaply.

Pakistanis come from all over the country to shop there. Bars—deals in items from tooth-brushes to television sets, including refrigerators, clothing and the inevitable guns.

Asked why such a display of smuggled goods was tolerated, one senior government official said: "The tribesmen would never allow it to be closed.

"If we tried, they would simply move the market to the hills and it would become a centre for intrigues. Here at least we can keep an eye on it."

The same is probably true of the arms factories.

The third illicit industry of the Pathans and the one causing most worry at the moment is opium growing.

Poppies are cultivated mainly in the areas around Mardan, northeast of Peshawar, and Kohat to the south.

On government figures, the area cultivated in 1971 was 3,500 acres. Last year this rose to 8,000 acres and the government has set a target of stamping it out by 1976.

Poppy growing has been tolerated until now with farmers supposed to sell the raw product to the government at a set price of the equivalent of $19 dollars a kilogram.

But with the black-market price at about $36, most of the raw opium is being smuggled out via India, Afghanistan or the Pakistan ports.

The government raised its price to $30 a kilogram in September to try to bring more of the crop into its own hands, but officials fear the more likely result is that the black-market price will also rise.

A campaign to stop cultivation might only force the industry further back into the hills and the government is concentrating instead on interesting the farmers in more lucrative cash crops.

Good Farming Land Is Becoming Scarce

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is beginning to grapple with the problem of managing use of that scarce resource, land.

Statistically, Canadians appear to have more land than they know what to do with — more than 3.8 million square miles. There is room for millions more people in the vast, empty spaces.

But Canadians are settling unevenly, tending to migrate to a few large cities like Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

Prospects are pointing to dangers in uncontrolled urban growth—shortage of good farm land, social problems, destruction of the environment. In effect, they say that land isn't something that can be gobbled up. Land use should be managed for the good of people and the environment.

While provincial governments have more direct responsibility for land planning than the federal government, Ottawa can exert considerable influence.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has noted that federal immigration policies, regional expansion programs and transportation facilities all affect urban growth.

He told a recent federal-provincial-municipal conference in Edmonton that Ottawa wants to fit its programs into provincial plans. Municipalities, too, had a large role.

"We must give more serious attention, at all levels of government, to where this growth is going to take place, the rate at which it can be accomplished and the pattern which it is going to follow."

This means intelligent land use, he said.

Some provincial governments have taken steps to design regional growth plans. Ontario and Alberta are perhaps the most advanced. British Columbia has established the B.C. Land Commission with wide powers over land use.

Mr. Basford said in an interview that Vancouver is a good example of the land problem created by unrestrained urban growth. The city is bounded by the mountains, the Pacific Ocean and the American border.

"You can see that within 15 years, without careful management by all governments, there is going to be an immense problem in Vancouver."

William Laze, chairman of the B.C. land commission, has said that only three per cent of B.C. territory is good farm land.

Eugene Whelan, federal agriculture minister, recently told the annual convention of the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario:

"I expect that all too often you do not even consider farming and agriculture, let alone examine the impact your planning and development is having on the farmers of your region, when you make your planning decisions."

He said poor planning has driven up farm land prices beyond the property's value as agricultural land.

That ensures that farm land will no longer be used for agriculture.

Norman Pearson, political science professor at University of Western Ontario and a noted town planner, said in a recent issue of the Agrologist that if current trends continue all the best farm land will be gone within 60 years.

He said farmers are gradually being pushed away from the best agricultural land. This could create a severe food problem because it would be difficult for farmers to produce as much on poor soils.

Some experts say government studies on the impact of certain projects on the environment are undertaken too late. There has been criticism that environmental studies are still incomplete long after work started on the giant James Bay hydro project in Quebec.

Oil and gas exploration licences are handed out before environmental studies are conducted, they say.

David Estrin, general counsel of the Canadian Environmental Law Association, told a recent Ottawa conference on public lands that there is little that citizens can do through the courts to combat government decisions to allow industrial exploitation of public lands.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1973

Building In City Booming

With a healthy boost from approximately $6 million in new construction during the current year, Belleville's assessment will top the $140 million mark for 1974.

The $6 million in new construction for the first 11 months of the year and City Treasurer Frank Morell expects that between $4.5 million and $5 million of this will show up next year in additional assessment.

However, this doesn't always apply as in the case of a new apartment structure, where can be a lengthy period from the time a permit is issued at city hall until construction is completed and the building occupied.

City building inspector Grant Sickle this week reported a total of 434 building permits to the end of November with a construction value of $5,819,856.

Of the total permits, 185 were for new single family residences with another 17 new housing or apartment suites being built. Also built of the multiple family housing units were condominium or row housing units.

Residential construction made up more about one half of the 11-month construction total with a value of $2,680,650 in new construction and repairs and alterations amounting to another $702,762.

New industrial construction for the 11-month period totalled $791,00 while commercial construction added another $800,

Institutional construction values, made up primarily of the permit for the new Belleville Transit Commission garage on Coleman Street, totalled about $500,00.

In accordance with provincial assessment policy, Belleville homeowners and their counterparts across Ontario are currently enjoying a tax moratorium on home improvements where such work does not add more than $2,500 to the market value of the property.

This moratorium on home improvements this week was extended by the province until 1977 while full market value assessments are scheduled to come into effect.

Assessments in Belleville are now set at between 55 and 60 per cent of market value while each municipality currently having its own assessment value factor.

Al Smith, of the regional assessment office in Trenton, which handles all assessments in Hastings and Prince Edward counties, says the former system will be maintained until the end of 1976.

This means that the 1977 value assessment will not be applied until the 1977 taxation year.

Instalment Received

Sidney Township has recently received a further instalment of its yearly subsidy, intended to defray municipal road maintenance costs, from the ministry of transportation and communication.

To date, the township has received $8,000 and is expecting another $20,000 before the year ends. The given payment was for just over $19,000.

The ministry provides an annual 50 per cent subsidy toward costs incurred on township road maintenance, snow clearing and equipment purchase.

Orienteering School Feature

AMELIASBURGH — Kente Orienting Club was host to an outdoor education evening at Kente Public prepared by Miss Judy Lewis and Mrs. Ethel Bissell, both grade 6 teachers and organizers of the club.

Other leaders were Miss Audrey Wilson, outdoor education consultant for Hastings county and Grant Harvey, secretary treasurer of Quinte-Hastings Trail.

Jim Galego arranged a display of sleplevearing equipment and books illustrating excursions taken by the Outers, an intermediate outdoor education group from King George Public School, Belleville.

Mr. Harvey expressed his fears that without trail association the care and upkeep of the Quinte Hastings Trail could not continue.

Decision Promised Soon On Loyalist Application

Loyalist College and 11 temperance advocates appeared before Chairman James Mackey of the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario Wednesday morning to present the pros and cons of the college running a pub nights for students.

Mr. Mackey said at the hearing in City Hall council chambers that his decision on the application will be given in the near future.

The college is applying for a lounge licence for its staff dining room and cafeteria to allow it to hold two pubs nights a month for students. It is also asking for a dining lounge licence for Lodge 313, the restaurant run Wednesdays through Fridays as part of the training of hotel management course students.

Pub nights, held twice a month on Wednesdays from 8 to 12 p.m. were a regular feature of college life until the LLBO lifted Loyalist's licence because it was operating in a dry area — Sidney township. The pub nights had been operated by the students. Under recently enacted legislation, the college can apply for a pub night licence, if the licence is held in the name of a college official, and if the pub nights are operated by college administrators.

First to be heard were 11 people in the audience who objected to the location of the licence and who were invited by the chairman to take the aldermen's seats at the front of the chambers.

Spokesman was Mrs. Barbara Trupp of Foxboro and the others were Aldermen Joe Cox, Mrs. Amy Gatcum, Rev. Fred Irish and Percy Hall, Mrs. Hazel Kerr, Mrs. Pearl Holmes, Miss Myrtle Barnum, Mrs. Ruby Barnum, and Mrs. Margaret Marlyn. Still at Belleville Hall was Bill Headley of Picton.

"We don't want Liquor in our schools," said Mrs. Trupp. "The students are there to learn".

She said she objected to "peer pressure" into the pub licence places on students who don't drink.

Several said they were not trying to deny the students, they were trying to protect them.

All objected to taxpayers' money being used in providing students with a place to drink.

Ald. Cox said he didn't want to infringe on the rights of others, but neither did he want his rights infringed upon.

He noted that Loyalist has no student residences and the pub night crowd would be returned to Belleville in cars.

"What am I going to do if a student kills my child?" he asked. "Anyone who allows a person to become intoxicated on his premises is responsible. In case of accident, do we sue the college? We would be suing ourselves."

Mr. Cox said the province, if it granted a licence, would be subsidizing an institution to compete against private interests.

"I'm surprised some of them (commercial liquor vendors) aren't here ob-jecting," he said.

Ernst Knelsel, is whose name the lounge licence would be issued, presented the colleges case. He said most colleges and universities are licensed and all other 19 Ontario community colleges in Ontario have pub nights.

"The only difference is that you are in a dry area," said Mr. Mackey.

"That's why we have to apply, responded Mr. Knelsel.

He said that during the last 2½ years the college had received 70 special occasion permits tax for pub nights. The average attendance was 350 students.

He said the college had no intention of imitating a commercial establishment and the opportunity to drink under properly controlled social conditions would eliminate liquor abuses.

Tom New, Students' Association president, indirectly injected the only humor of the proceedings into the hearing when he described the last Loyalist pub night, after its liquor licence was lifted. Equipped with a wholesale licence, the students sold caramels at 50 cents each to barter for drinks.

"We now know their ignorance of the law is no defence," said Mr. New. "I think enough of the time that our action was legal.

"Was anybody buying boxes of carmels," asked the chairman.

"No, sir," replied Mr. New, amid titters.

Solicitor Donald Templeman called on director of student services, Arthur McFarland to give the Loyalist track record.

Mr. McFarland said that the average damage at each pub night was a $75-per period was $8 — a sum fully recovered from the students.

Both he and Mr. New termed rumors of outbreaks of violence "completely false".

Mr. Templeman said that no additional expenditure by taxpayers money are required for pub nights beyond that covered by revenue. Because Loyalist is a non-residential college a pub night is necessary, he said.

"Education doesn't involve just teachers and books and classrooms," Mr. Templeman said. "It involved living in action with other people and the college feels that's what future company plans were for — the average after the fact production site is demolished over the next two years.

Among its waterfrontage on the Bay of Quinte is the ruin of the original cement plant dating back to the early 1900s.

A provincial-federal study has recommended gift of the 10-acre site be sought for an "unusual and attractive" recreation site.

The suggestion came from Trent-Severn (CORTS) study committee.

Recent, fuel-saving, mild spell — even though it's been some rain—has been a boon for getting outdoor chores done. A big beneficiary has been Belleville parks department, with workers like (l-r), Jack Ferry Parks (lef.), Jack Sills, at Quinte Exhibition Grounds, able to keep on jobs that might have waited for spring.

Milder Weather Cuts Expenses

It may not exactly have been blossom time.

But the unseasonal blithe — if blustery — spirit of recent weather helped give a rosy tinge to the start of winter this year in the Quinte district.

Many an outside chore that might have waited for spring already has been done.

Outdoors people like the Belleville parks department have found it a boon.

But, best of all, has been the boost-its-given household-ers after weeks of bleak provocative about winter fuel costs and supplies.

However the bills balance out, the baminess has meant a starting bonus.

The manager of a major Belleville-area heating oil supplier estimated Tuesday household consumption so far has been running close to eight per cent behind the same time last year.

"That's a fair saving," he added. "If we get into a normal winter people could come out ahead of the game.

However, he cautioned, experience over the years has usually shown weather variations frequently offset each other by the seasons end.

The mild spell meantime, probably has just peaked.

Temperatures reached a record 55 degrees Monday in the Belleville-Trenton area — breaking the previous high for the day — 51 degrees — set in 1950. But Tuesday saw a high of 45 recorded at CFB Trenton where the city forecaster by then was predicting cooler weather by tonight.

By tha: time, however, the city's parks department will have many a spring cleaning chore completed.

"It's made our work next spring that much easier," says parks director Lloyd Syer.

This, also has meant more work for temporary employees who, normally, would have been released earlier.

Provincial work incentive grants which helped defray costs of such projects may not be forthcoming this winter. Ge ting some of the work out of the way now may help ease next year's problems if there are fewer funds, the director notes.

American Firm to Level Pt. Anne Cement Plant

By HARRY MULHALL

The Canada Cement Lafarge plant at Point Anne is to be razed.

The plant and its heavy equipment has been sold to an American company that will demolish the site over the next two years.

Work ceased a month ago at Point Anne, the ultimate move in a gradual phasout, as production shifted to a new, highly-automated plant at Bath. Abandonment of the site, which dates back to 1901, has been progressing steadily since.

T. M. Brannen, last in a long line of Point Anne plant managers said the installation had been purchased by Standard Machines and Equipment of Uniontown, Pennsylvania.

Standard will sell the heavy industrial equipment wherever buyers are found. The market is international and sales "could be anywhere", said Mr. Brannen.

Most mobile equipment already has been transferred to Canada Cement Lafarge subsidiaries, said the plant manager.

What remains includes some of the heaviest industrial plant in the region — three kilns, overhead cranes, 12 mills, a gyratory crusher.

Standard is expected to start moving key operations per-sonnel onto the site in a few weeks, while steeled help may be sought locally.

After removal of equipment, the plant — its smokestacks long a Bay of Quinte landmark — will be demolished. A small two-storey building housing a key Canada Cement research component, will remain.

Aside from the research chemists, the once-busy site Wednesday was almost deserted. A few local residents dropped by the general offices to seek bargains in the odds and ends of office paraphernalia still left.

Mr. Brannen and office worker Grant Kells were in the building. In January, Mr. Brannen — assigned to phase out Point Anne two years ago — becomes manager of the company's Woodstock plant. Mr. Kells stays on as site community representative during demolition.

A total of 101 former workers Wednesday were listed for jobs at the plant's special relocation committee. Some are working, others taking retraining courses.

Research Lab Will Stay On

A single, small work team will continue to do sophisticated tasks on Canada Cement Lafarge property where regular operations now are being planned.

The unit is the Point Anne research laboratory which has been assigned much of the company's scientific problem-solving in the past decade.

The laboratory, some of its equipment now computerized, is the technical resource for a team of three chemists and six technicians.

Peter S. Grindrod, its chief research chemist since the centre was opened in May 1962, says the centre could continue to operate indefinitely.

It's viability will depend in the final analysis on plant economics, he indicates.

Canada Cement Lafarge now centres its basic, plant research of products in France. The Point Anne unit will maintain its trouble-shooter role for the company's Canadian plants. Its tasks include concrete testing and raw materials' analysis.

Woman Hurt In Collision

A Belleville woman was slightly injured in a minor traffic accident at the intersection of Bridge Street East and Macdonald Avenue last night.

Police report that two westbound cars, driven by Harold W. Gilfillan, 38, of RR 1 Bellevile, and John Andrew MacMullen, 22, of 31 Murray Street—collided at the intersection around 8:15 p.m.

Mrs. Edith Gilfillan car was making a left turn at the time of the accident.

Mrs. Ruth Connely, 62, of RR1 Belleville, a passenger in the Gilfillan vehicle, sustained minor bruises as a result of the accident.

Police estimate the total damage arising from the collision to be $250.

Permit Total

PICTON — Building permits issued in Prince Edward totalled $37,756.

Two of the permits granted were for new homes while others were for alterations, siding and small additions.

Land Totals 1,500 Acres

Canada Cement Lafarge — its plant scheduled for demolition — still has considerable land holding in Thurlow township.

Township officials estimates company property totals 1,500 acres in the Point area.

R.M. Brannen said Wednesday he had "no idea" what future company plans were for the acreage after the 10-year production site is demolished.

Among its waterfrontage on the Bay of Quinte is the ruin of the original cement plant dating back to the early 1900s.

A provincial-federal study has recommended gift of the 10-acre site be sought for an "unusual and attractive" recreation site.

The suggestion came from Trent-Severn (CORTS) study committee.

Conservation Land Is Heavily Used

Quinte area school children are making good educational use of the Moira River Conservation Authority's properties.

This has been shown in a report to the authority education and information advisory committee by Wendell Brooks, outdoors education activities co-ordinator for the Hastings County Board of Education.

Mr. Brooks reported that during the 1972-73 season nearly 200 teachers had participated in professional development activities at the H. R. Frink Centre east of Plainfield which was officially opened last year.

Also at the Frink centre, about 800 students participated in last summer's winter program at the centre; 300 students took part in the May-day overnight program, while another 200 students used the centre during the fall program this year.

Approximately 1,500 students were scheduled for the last spring's maple sugar visit to the centre which unfortunately was cut short by unfavorable sap weather.

Also, about 400 students visited the Vanderwater Park area of Thurlow township while another 160 secondary school students used the area for canoeing and rock climbing clinic.

Mr. Brooks expressed his appreciation of the Moira Authority for i ts co-operation in making properties available for outdoor education purposes.

Also in attendance at the meeting was Stephen Lightfoot, who has been hired by the county board of education as assistant to Mr. Brooks for co-door education activities.

No Licence Rush Yet

Sale of vehicle licence registrations are down a bit during the first few days of their sale over the same period last year.

George Olsen, agent at the licence bureau on Front Street, says that on the first day of sale, the morning of Saturday Dec. 1, he sold 113 licence plates. The previous year replace the plates this year and are good for a year.

There weren't really any lineups that first day, he says. Nor like in other years when people would try to get their plates early to get a lower plate number. Some also like to be in the first day to get plates for their new models of cars.

1973 plates are good for five years.

Up until yesterday, Dec. 6 afternoon, the licence bureau has sold about 300 vehicle registrations.

Mr. Olsen says that something new is in effect this year concerning insurance information. Now an applicant for 1974 registration must produce his insurance card. In other years he just remembered the number on that card to the applicable spot on the form.

And the form for your 1974 applica ion must be attached to the application for plates, says Mr. Olsen.

The deadline for 1974 vehicle registration is February 28.

But there's no danger about the licence bureau running short of stickers or plates.

At the bureau are 25,000 red vehicle registration stickers, 4,500 yellow trailer registration stickers and about 3,000 plates for those applying for first-time registration on a vehicle.

Sidney Building Is Slowing Down

Construction starts have slowed down in Sidney township this fiscal opening of the winter months, figures provided by John Riggers — new clerk at council's regular meeting Monday.

The building inspector's report indicates only 77 building permits, with an estimated total value of $580,450, were issued in November. Fees collected were $800.

Of the 16 single family dwellings, 13 are to be built below the fourth concession road. As of Nov. 30 this year 239 planning permits had been granted, including 15 issued last month.

This year, approximately $7.5 million has been invested in construction in the township. This figure represents 416 permits issued. Since May, the township's peak construction month this year, building starts have averaged $1,000,000. In October, 53 permits were issued for an estimated value of $783,000.

November figures reveal the Bayview Golf Club is planning construction of a $25,000 clubhouse.

Local building supply retailer will be building a $52,000 store on Highway 2 west of the Loyalist-Walbridge Rd.

Bay, River Study To Be Requested

The Moira River Conservation Authority will be requested by city council to investigate the feasibility and cost of a detailed study of the Bay of Quinte and its recreation needs and requirements of urban and rural water frontage.

The recommendation approved by council was from the city parks board of management.

Alderman Roger Purter wanted to know if the study requested would include the Moira River, while Alderman Bill Sills noted that Bay of Quinte took in from near Kingston almost to PrenQui'e Point.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the intention was to include only parts of the property under the jurisdiction of the Moira River Authority but agreed Alderman Porter's idea of including the river had merit.

The motion was accordingly changed to ask that the Moira River to as far up as the proposed Lot ice control dam, be included in the study.

Agendas May Be Smaller

The increasing shortage of paper could result in a change in the present system of printing council agendas.

Alderman Jack Smith made the suggestion Monday as shortreported on the success of the newsprint pickups the first of which resulted in the collection of 22 tons of paper — the highest tonnage ever to be recovered.

The alderman said there was a definite shortage of paper and that the local business could be forced to cut back in its use.

She felt that city hall might set an example by not using so much paper in the preparation of council agendas.

Alderman Smith considered it was unnecessary for all communications to be duplicated for each councillor's benefit and suggested some change in the system.

Mortgage Money Eases Slightly

There was increase in mortgage money supply with slightly lower interest rates in some categories in the Quinte area this month.

Funds for NHA housing are in good supply, reports A.E. LePage Ltd., report in their mid-November survey of the Canadian mortgage market.

Current interest rate range for prime residential new and resale homes — and builders' loans is 10-10.25 per cent.

Industrial and commercial funds are in limited supply with the prime in each area averaging 10.25 per cent.

There appears a "slightly lessened demand for loans in all categories, says the report.

Black Hawks One Point Out

Chicago Black Hawks' coach Billy Reay, who said earlier in the week that goaltender Tony Esposito would play "10 games" this season, relented a bit Wednesday night.

Esposito, who has started all Chicago's games this season, was replaced late in the final period by rookie Mike Veisor, thereby creating a National Hockey League first.

Veisor, a Toronto native making his NHL debut, is the first Jewish goalie in league history.

Last year he played with Dallas in the Central Hockey League, where he won the leading goalkeeper award and the CHL rookie award. His last amateur club was Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

Chicago Olympia Stadium organist played a traditional Jewish folk song when Veisor took the ice and repeated it when he made his first save.

Actually Veisor came on the scene after the Hawks had the game well in hand and Chicago went on to a 8-3 victory that put the team one point behind Philadelphia Flyers, West Division leaders.

Veisor had to share the limelight with 15-year veteran centreman Stan Mikita, who paced the Chicago attack with three goals.

Red Berenson and Henry Boucher were scorers for the Red Wings who are spotted again after a good start under new coach Alex Delvecchio.

In other games, New York Rangers defeated St. Louis Blues 5-1, Atlanta Flames and California Golden Seals tied 3-3 and Los Angeles Kings upset Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1.

New York 5 St. Louis 1

New York registered its 15th consecutive unbeaten game against St. Louis on Madison Square Garden ice. The Blues last won in the Rangers corral on Nov. 13, 1968.

Ted Irvine and Bobby Rousseau capped a three-goal New York first period with goals 47 seconds apart to spark the Rangers.

The normally hard-hitting Blues took only two penalties, but Rangers capitalized on one—to Barclay Plager. Vic Hadfield scored 65 seconds after the penalty box door slammed on Plager.

Both sets of coaches warn their players about taking cheap penalties against the Rangers. Blues' coach Jean-Guy Talbot said, "But sometimes the guys rip too much."

Rangers' coach Larry Popein said, "when the power play goes well, you're bound to score goals."

Atlanta 3 California 3

Joey Johnston's 11th goal of the season gave California Golden Seals their tie with the Flames. It came at 11:38 of the third period, while the Seals were shorthanded. California defenceman Ray McKay was serving a major penalty for high sticking.

Seals' goalie Marve Edwards suffered twisted ligaments in his left knee when Chuck Arnason scored late in the second period to give the Flames a 3-2 lead. But Edwards completed the period. He was replaced by Ted Tucker, a native of Fort William, who was making his NHL debut. Tucker played last season with Salt Lake City in the Western Hockey League.

Los Angeles 4 Pittsburgh 1

Frank St. Marseilles, 33-year-old centre, set up three Los Angeles goals in less than four minutes during the first period to get the Kings on the road to their second win in 12 games. The Penguins are winless in their last six games. The victory moved the Kings into a tie with Penguins for fifth place in the West Division.

Suspension And Fine For Cummins

MONTREAL (CP) — Rookie defenceman Barry Cummins of California Golden Seals Wednesday was suspended for three National Hockey League games and fined $300 by league president Clarence Campbell.

Cummins, 20-year-old native of Regina, received the suspension and fine for his part in a stick-swinging incident which saw centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers cut for 18 stitches on his head and face.

The incident took place during the second period last Sunday night in Philadelphia when the Seals were trailing the Flyers. The Flyers won the game 5-1.

Cummins, playing in only his fifth NHL game, had received a match penalty from referee Art Skov as a result of the incident.

Veisor—Gets Some Action

Hawley Shut Out

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — Before the first race Wednesday, Sandy Hawley might have felt he was due for a bad day.

He would have been right.

The five-foot-three jockey was shut out with eight mounts at Laurel race track, leaving him with 484 winners for the season and still one short of tying Bill Shoemaker's world record.

His trouble started after he answered questions at a press seminar. He went back to the jockeys' quarters and took off his first-race silks during a brief rest period.

When he headed for the track for the firs; race, he mistakenly donned the silks he was supposed to wear in the second race—forgetting about those he had placed on the bench.

"I was a guest at the Paddock Club . . . and when I got back to the jocks' room I took off my silks and laid them over a chair. When it came time to ride the first race, I reached up to my rack and took down the first set' forgetting that I had laid my other silks over the chair."

Hawley, seeking his third North American title—he won the championship in 1970 and 1972—is named to ride eight horses today. One, Alf Landon, is on the also-eligible list in the first race.

Expos Get Davis for Marshall

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Marshall got the green light from Montreal Expos Charles O. Finley gave the stop sign to New York Yankees and the National League owners kept the San Diego situation confused.

The action was terrific at the winter baseball meetings Wednesday.

Marshall, unhappy pitching with the weak Montreal defence despite a record-breaking 1973 season in the bullpen, was sent to Los Angeles Dodgers for star outfielder Willie Davis in the most dramatic trade of the meetings.

After the deal, National League President Chub Feeney announced that club owners met and resolved nothing in the proposed sale of San Diego team. The issue was tabled until today, when "some announcement will be made," Feeney said.

"The day also was punctuated by the appearance of Charles owner Finley, who met with the Yankees, and in so many words told them to keep their hands off A's manager Dick Williams.

Meanwhile, two other deals were consummated. The Dodgers acquired centre fielder Tommie Agee from the St. Louis Cardinals for reliever Pete Richert and Detroit Tigers purchased pitcher Luke Walker from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Marshall, who recently publicly blasted his teammates for poor support in the field, was "happy" with the deal.

"Both players are happy," said Montreal General Manager Jim Fanning, and so are we."

Marshall set a major league record last season appearing in 92 games for Montreal. He led a 14-11 record with 31 saves and a 2.66 earned run average. In 1972, the 30-year-old right-hander made 65 appearances and posted a 14-8 record with a 1.78 era.

"When you see him, as I have, over two seasons like that, then you appreciate what kind of a relief pitcher he is the best in baseball," said Fanning. "And we feel that we got the very best outfielder in Davis."

Marshall, who finished second to Tom Seaver of the New York Mets in this year's Cy Young voting, had only one regret leaving Montreal—saying goodbye to manager Gene Mauch.

"The thing I'll miss is not playing for Mauch," said Marshall at his home in East Langlin, Mich. "It was a real pleasure."

Both Marshall and Fanning pointed out that the pitcher's controversial criticism of his team-mates had no bearing on the deal.

David, a member of the Dodgers for 14 seasons will give the Expos their first regular centre-fielder since the team was organized in 1968. The 33-year-old Davis batted 2.85 with 16 home runs and 77 runs batted in last season.

Because of his status as a 10-year man in the major leagues, Davis had to be consulted in the deal. He gave his okay to go to Montreal. Fanning said, because he "has unusual rapport with our manager. He was very excited, in fact."

Torrid Toros Whip Blazers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Toros continued to be the hottest commodity in the World Hockey Association Wednesday night.

The Toros rallied for two goals in the third period to defeat Vancouver Blazers 3-1 Wednesday and climb into a three-way tie for second place with Cleveland Crusaders and Quebec Nordiquers in the East Division.

The victory was the fifth in a row for the Toros who were opening a three-game road trip in western Canada. The loss, before 8,384 fans, was only the second in the last eight games for the Blazers.

The victory was costly for the Toronto team, already hard-hit by injuries. Toros defenceman Gerard Gibbons late in the first period when he suffered a possible shoulder separation during an altercation with Blazer rookie Claude St. Sauveur, who flattened Gibbons with a series of right-hand punches.

The Toros will visit Edmonton tonight for a match with the Oilers, who lost to Winnipeg Wednesday 3-1. In the only other game, Houston Aeros whipped New Jersey Knights 5-1.

Winnipeg 3 Edmonton 1

Recognition For Champs

By Doug Walsh
Sports Editor

It always gives one a good feeling to see deserving persons receive recognition.

At this time of year, it is especially so.

Perhaps that is why members of the City of Belleville Honors and Awards Committee choose this month to announce who will receive its annual awards.

Actually, it amounts to a double barrelled reward.

There is the satisfaction of having one's name on this list of award winners. That comes just as the Christmas season is beginning to get into full swing.

Presentation of the awards won't take place until January 16, when the individuals are honored at a suitable ceremony.

Archers, softball players, weightlifters and five athletes who took part in the World Games for the Deaf in Malmo, Sweden last summer, are included on this year's list.

Junior archery champions Diane and Patti and Bruce Thompson Linda Adamson, Donna Armstrong, Ruth Kearney and Ralph Whelan.

Seventeen accomplished softball players who brought the city the Ontario Senior Mercantile C championship for women under the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund banner, will line up for awards.

SLIGES—The Christmas Sharing Fund will benefit from an exhibition basketball game scheduled for Quinte Secondary School this Saturday night.

Quinte Saints and Belleville Collegiate Institute seniors will hook up in what should be an entertaining contest at 8 p.m.

Saints' coach Jim Murray rates BCI as the team to beat in the Bay of Quinte race this season.

Murray and his senior Saints will be passing up the chance at qualifying for the annual Queen's Tournament this year. As defending Ontario High School AA champions, the Quinte team has been invited to the Purple and White tourney at University of Western Ontario, December 28-29.

Belleville Eagles manager Ted Soule, regreting the task, had to report yesterday that there is no hope of having the touring team from Russia play Eagles in Belleville Gardens.

"Quite they don't want to get beat two years in a row," quipped Soule.

A Czech team will also be visiting for a series of exhibition games and Eagles will do their best to have them here early in January.

Option Clause Termed Illegal

NHL Players Advised Against New Contracts

NEW YORK (CP) — Ira Millstein is Alan Eagleson's right-hand man when it comes to giving advice on United States anti-trust laws.

Millstein, a New York lawyer with long experience in the pro basketball wars, says players in the National Hockey League must avoid the option clause in the new contracts because, it is illegal.

Eagleson, executive director of the National Hockey League Players' Association (NHLPA), figures Millstein has been giving him sound advice. As a result, Eagleson has warned players not to risk any illegal action that might involve them in current litigation brought on by the pro hockey wars.

The NHL owners face more than $30 million in lawsuits brought against them by the World Hockey Association. The WHA alleges the NHL operates as a monopoly in violation of U.S. anti-trust laws.

A dozen lawsuits have been dropped into one big basket in Philadelphia's federal court, with a hearing scheduled early next year.

"We have no voice in Philadelphia," Eagleson said. "We are in a no-man's land" between two warring hockey leagues.

On Wednesday, Eagleson said in a statement that the NHLPA has been authorized by player representatives to reject the one-year option clause proposed by the owners Monday.

"We have advised the players not to execute any new contracts," Eagleson told a news conference.

Both Eagleson and Millstein dwelt at length on the legal pitfalls the players might face if they adopt the option system.

Although the NHLPA is not a party to the Philadelphia lawsuits, it originally was cited as a co-conspirator in a California writ a year ago. The case, like others, was shifted to Philadelphia.

Eagleson and Millstein both warned that by signing an option clause considered part of an "illegal" contract, players and the NHLPA could leave themselves open for later lawsuits.

Eagleson said this line of thinking was prompted by the fear that if the WHA should suddenly go out of business, the owners would sue everybody including the NHLPA.

The option clause could weaken the NHLPA's legal case.

If the WHA should fold, "tens of millions of dollars would go down the drain," Eagleson said.

"The owners would be looking to get their money back. They would sue everybody."

Both Millstein and Eagleson have been guided in their thinking by the recent unanimous report on the basketball merger made by a congressional committee investigating monopolies.

The NHLPA takes the same views of the committee and endorses them," Eagleson said.

The Senate committee, headed by Sen Ervin of Watergate hearings fame, said it believes that the present use of the option clause, reserve clauses, and other devices designed to tie a player to a team, deny him fundamental rights and constitute a violation of anti-trust laws.

In Eagleson's statement, the committee was quoted: . . . In order for a player actually to be free, there may not be any requirement that compensation be received by his former team."

The NHL says that without some form of compensation, in player talent or cash, or both, the league would be greatly hurt. The rich clubs would end up with the top stars who sought a change.

The NHL said on Monday it will replace its controversial reserve clause with a mutual option clause providing some compensation if the player wants to stay in the league with another club. But the player would be free after his option to go to another league.

Eagleson said the option clause will hurt the WHA next year because by holding players for another season would dry up the market of available NHL material.

Eagleson called the NHL's unilateral action improper and illegal.

"Court decisions to date state that hockey players can leave a team when their contracts expire," he said.

'Non-conventional' Sulkies Are Banned

TORONTO (CP) — Directors of the Canadian Trotting Association instituted a ban Wednesday on the use of all non-conventional sulkies at all harness tracks under its jurisdiction.

The ban takes effect Jan. 1.

Directors said they were not satisfied with what they felt were incomplete statistics as to the safety factor on all varieties of the single-shaft sulkies, the use of which until now has been optional.

Although evidence was presented to the directors on the safety aspect, it was their conclusion that there still remains several unanswered questions related to the use of the single-shaft sulky.

For the present, the directors announced, the matter has been referred to the trotting association's newly-formed equipment committee for further study.

The new rule covering sulky usage would permit only the conventional dual-shaft variety, described as any sulky having two shafts attached to both sides of the horse, the horizontal level of which shall never be greater than the height of the horse's withers.

The single shaft sulky, pioneered by Joe King and since copied by other companies, has a single shaft arching over the horse's back and is hitched to the harness at the withers.

Some horsemen have objected to the single shaft model because it tends to whip in and out like a trailer with a flat tire being towed on a highway.

The CTA ban will take effect across the country, except in the Maritime provinces where the association has no jurisdiction.

The United States Trotting Association recently ruled that use of the single shaft bikes would be left to the individual tracks to decide on.

Dief Says PC Regime Would Cut Oil Sales

TORONTO (CP) — A Progressive Conservative government would cut trade agreements with the United States, if necessary, to ensure Canadians are kept warm, former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Wednesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker, here to be honored as Man of the Year by the Jewish National Fund of Canada, said a fair distribution of oil across the country would be the first priority of a Conservative government.

Although he accepts Canada's trade relations with the U.S. as a general principle, he said Canadians should have first claim on Canadian oil.

"I don't want to see Canadians living in darkened rooms, in cold rooms, while we're exporting the needed oil elsewhere."

He said he does not expect the government to fall next Monday when Conservative leader Robert Stanfield introduces a non-confidence motion in the Commons charging the Liberal government with mishandling the energy crisis.

The New Democratic Party's desire to maintain a strong presence over government policies will keep the Liberals in power, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Fuel Shortage Prevents Extra Air Canada Trips

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for Air Canada said Wednesday the airline is experiencing heavier traffic than usual on flights to Florida and the fuel shortage in the United States is preventing it from putting on extra planes to accommodate the increase in passengers.

"Traffic is very high this time of the year anyway with the holiday season, but this year we are experiencing a 25-per-cent increase over last year . . . " he said.

The spokesman said the company's "flexibility" has been reduced because fuel shortages a U.S. points mean the airline cannot put on extra planes to cope with the increased traffic.

He said a 357-seat Lockheed will replace a 198-seat DC-8 on the Toronto-Tampa run effective Saturday and that the airline is running a daily 747 flight on the Montreal-Miami run for the winter season.

Hydro Advised To Farm Out Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — A research team has proposed that Ontario Hydro take steps in the next decade to divert more of its expertise in generating electricity to private industry.

The proposal was contained in the fifth and final report of the seven-man committee, headed by J. D. Muncaster, Toronto business executive, which has completed its review of Hydro's function, structure, operation, financing and objectives.

Tabled in the legislature Wednesday by Energy Minister Darcy McKeough, the 67-page report also calls for a more open information policy by Hydro on tendering and the end to inter-provincial trade restrictions.

At a news conference, Mr. Muncaster said the committee believes Hydro should produce less of the services it requires and buy more from the private sector.

Such a policy may not be cheaper in the short run, he said, but it would be more efficient over the long haul.

"What's intended is that Ontario industry be encouraged to supply other parts of Canada and for the export trade."

Mr. McKeough said Canada's expertise in water power, such as dam building, is sought throughout the world, and it only developed after it was taken out of the government sector.

"It may be possible for this to happen in terms of fossil fire and nuclear plants. But it probably will not happen if it remains bolted up in any government structure."

Mr. Muncaster said Hydro must retain enough of its own capability to prevent high prices and inefficiency.

He called it a "minimum mass and a minimum buy-pol-icy."

"There are lots of things Hydro must have competence to do, starting off with basic plan-ning. You can't just say to somebody: 'Design Ontario power system for the next 20 years.' Hydro's got to do that."

The report analyses Hydro's potential for using more outside services against a future in-house capability in such areas as design and construction of plant and transmission facilities, maintenance, computer functions and some auxiliary services.

Greater use of private industry also would help meet increased work loads and avoid excessive staff growth, particularly since the utility's demands are expected to double in the next 10 years.

Wall Crumbling

TORONTO (CP) —The wall around one of Toronto's most famous tourist sights, Casa Loma, is in danger of crumbling, Toronto city council reports. Council plans to spend $35,000 renovating the picturesque wall which encircles the elaborate castle and its gardens.

Manitoba's Doctors Set Pact Deadline

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's doctors delivered an ultimatum to the government Wednesday in setting deadlines for positive action on a written working agreement between the two parties.

And if the deadlines are not met, said Dr. Kenneth Wylie, president of the Manitoba Medical Association, the doctors are "willing to do anything the executive would recommend to them."

The doctors want a written agreement with the government and the Manitoba Health Services Commission recognizing the MMA as their bargaining agent.

Medical services were limited throughout the province Wednesday as a general membership meeting of the MMA drew doctors together to formulate a strategy.

Behind closed doors, the meeting set a deadline of Dec. 12 for the appointment of government negotiators. A Jan. 15 deadline was set for an agreement to be reached by the two negotiating bodies.

The provincial cabinet was reported to be gearing for meetings during the next few days to discuss the latest developments in the running battle with the MMA.

At the heart of the dispute is the desire of the MMA to have some participation in future health policies. The government has no objection to this but has remained firm in its contention that the medical profession should have no veto powers.

Opposition Hits Legislation Rush

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members balked at sitting longer hours and the government was accused of "bulldozing" bills through the Ontario legislature during raucous debate Wednesday.

At one point, after trying in vain to get opposition and government members to stop shouting at each other, an exasperated Speaker Allan Reuter said: "It's very obvious why this house has a reputation of being the most unruly in Canada."

The uproar started after Eric Winkler, management board chairman and government house leader, said the legislature would start sitting at 10 a.m. today rather than the usual 2 p.m. time.

Liberals and New Democrats recalled all-night sessions during earlier sittings and said the government should be prepared to sit for longer periods rather than using long hours to ram through legislation.

Mr. Winkler promised that the sittings would not extend beyond 10:30 p.m. but the longer sittings were geared to wind up this session of the legislature by the end of the week if possible.

Referring to the pay raise MPPs voted themselves Wednesday, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said members are now paid as full time politicians and shouldn't be prepared to take lengthy vacations at the expense of remodding through legislation.

"This late introduction of legislation that goes on time after time is inexcusable."

Edward Good (L—Waterloo North) noted that six years ago, 72 per cent of all legislation went to standing committees where the public could speak to the legislation.

"Now only 14 per cent goes to standing committees and the rest is bulldozed through here," Mr. Good said.

James Bullbrook, (L—Sarnia) drew jeers from government backbenchers when he said the opposition was allowed only 10 hours total to debate the spending estimates of the ministry of health—a total of 82.4 billion.

Donald MacDonald (NDP—York South) said the house will sit less than six months this year and "is not sitting an adequate time."

He added that the government had no right to bring in last-minute legislation until the house was sitting between eight and 10 months a year.

Mr. Lewis told Mr. Winkler he had "no respect for the legislature. You think this house is a toy to be played with."

When the bouey rises, either Friday or early next week, it is not expected to be called into session until mid-February.

More Seats Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members sought more seats in southern and Northern Ontario in separate speeches during a debate in the legislature Wednesday.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) and Floyd Laughren (NDP—Nickel Belt) spoke on a government resolution appointing a three-man commission to redrew the province's electoral map. Under the terms of reference, the committee may recommend as many as eight additional seats to the 117-seat legislature.

"What I'm concerned about, is the ratio of urban members as contrasted with rural members," Mr. Singer said.

Natural Gas Supply Assured for 2 Years

HAMILTON (CP) — There is a sufficient supply of all classes of natural gas to fulfill the needs of the consumer for the next two or three years, the president of Union Gas Ltd. of Chatham, Ont., said Wednesday.

Speaking to the Hamilton and District Chamber of Commerce, Bruce Wilson said he was hopeful that "with sound national energy policies, intelligent leadership from government and co-operation within the energy industry," his company will be able to provide users with the necessary assurances for the period beyond 1976.

"Our storage reservoirs are full and have remained that way through November because of warmer than normal temperatures," he said.

Additional volumes of gas became available Nov. 1 under a new contract with TransCanada PipeLines Ltd., he added.

However, Mr. Wilson said there has not been a major oil or gas discovery in Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan in the last six or seven years and that the ratio of reserves to production was dropping sharply.

He added the rate of discovery in the Mackenzie Delta has been "somewhat disappointing."

Mr. Wilson pointed out that while Canada produces more crude oil than it consumes, transportation bottlenecks within the country make it difficult to ensure continuity of supply to Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

He said the United States faces energy problems for "some considerable period" which will have an adverse impact on the U.S. economy.

He said there are indications of a significant economic spillver effect on Canadian manufacturing, particularly among U.S. subsidiaries in this country.

Capital Punishment Bill Now in Effect

OTTAWA (CP) — Four pieces of legislation, including the capital punishment bill, became law Wednesday in a brief Senate ceremony.

Acting for Gov.-Gen Roland Michener, Chief Justice Gerald Fauteux gave royal assent to the controversial bill extending the partial ban on capital punishment for another five years. Royal assent also was granted to amendments to the Customs Act, Electoral Boundaries Act and Co-operative Credit Association Act.

The capital punishment bill becomes law nearly a year after the original partial ban expired. It will expire Dec. 29, 1977. It retains the death penalty only for killers of on-duty police officers and prison guards.

The Customs Act amendments would hold shipping companies responsible for duties and tariffs on stolen, pilfered or incorrectly delivered goods.

Comedians Stage Stripper Number

TORONTO (CP) — The lights dim. Sleazy night-club music begins to play and from the wings two monstrous women emerge, bare-bosomed and sliding suggestively to the music and across the stage. They step down into the audience, stroll around several good-looking gentlemen in the crowd, then disappear back stage.

Puzzled, the audience wonders if this is the club hitting La Troupe Grotesque or if they've somehow wandered into a strip joint. The confusion is quickly cleared up when Paul Willis and Michael Boncoeur appear to take a bow.

The sexy sequence was, in fact, La Troupe's opening skit in which the two young comedians don life-like plastic costumes of well-endowed ladies. It brought the house down.

"It's very funny because nobody knows what to think," Michael said after the show. "Those costumes were made for us by a prominent theatre company in Toronto and cost about $200 each. That's no joke."

La Troupe Grotesque, formed in Vancouver four years ago, is one of the longest surviving comedy acts in Canada, a country which, says Paul, has "criminally no traditions of comedy."

"For many Canadians, we are the first live comedy they have seen."

La Troupe recently completed a two-week sold-out run in Toronto, displayed an original and outrageously funny brand of comedy which brought audiences to their feet and broke the club's attendance records. Moreover, it established Paul and Michael among the country's leading comedy writers and performers.

Their show is written in a similar vein to the popular British comedy act, Monty Python's Flying Circus, although Michael stresses that Monty Python was only an early influence.

"Monty Python's Circus is unique in as much as it has created a whole new dimension in comedy," he said. "We try to work in the same direction, making whole skit really funny and ridiculous and not bulking up to a grand punch line at the end. Punch lines can kill a skit dead."

While La Troupe tried to shy away from local gags, the two comedians have found that material geared for a particular audience has always proved popular.

In Toronto they aped a Buffalo television newscast heard here. La Troupe presented their own version of the report. Paul put on a coat-and-glasses mask resembling the newscaster and proceeded to read the news.

A sharp-eyed nightwatchman first noticed the blaze when his clothing burst into flames as he slept beneath a parked truck.

Paul, 26, and Michael, who insists he is 75 years old, met in high school in Vancouver. Both were child actors and had decided to make their living in the theatre. As young actors, the city was a haven, with 26 amateur theatre companies flourishing and several major companies based there. But the two youngsters were attracted to comedy and in 1968 La Troupe Grotesque was formed, originally with four members.

But success was hard to come by. Two actors dropped out and Paul and Michael went to Toronto where horizons were broader.

Since the move, La Troupe has made several successful tours of college campuses in the United States and Eastern Canada and in Toronto the CBC has shown interest in their comedy-writing abilities, hiring the two several occasions to script Sunday variety shows.

Also, their first comedy album is near completion.

Paul and Michael hope to be able to take their brand of comedy to the entertainment centres of the west coast, such as London and Los Angeles, one day.

"That," said Paul, "will mean we've made it."

Expanded Reserve Is Forces' Plan

By HOWARD KOKESH

Gen Jacques Dextraze, Chief of Defence Staff, has drawn up far-reaching plans to rejuvenate the militia with recruits, more pay and new equipment, Gen. Dextraze will be remembered by local militiamen as having visited the salute at the Trooping the Color ceremony of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment held in Peterborough on August 17, 1972. Only a reservist himself and in his words,a former commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; Gen. Dextraze has given the whole reserve program new life. Since there had been no one at headquarters specifically in charge of reserves and cadets, will mean a much closer union between the reserves and the regular force. Plans now are to boost the reserves by 1,500 in the next year through a recruiting drive.

With the general distribution of the Canadian Forces' green uniform, pay parity and increased training time, together with recruitment, it is expected to revive the reserves. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is a vital part of the reserve force of Canada and needs your support as a veteran to see that their ranks are maintained at peak efficiency. Encourage your sons or neighborhood children to join the militia. Recruits may be enrolled any Monday or Thursday between the hours of 8 to 10 p.m. at the local armoury.

The foyer of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit ANAF was greatly enhanced last week following the installation of the new unit crest. With the inclusion of the Canadian Flag on one side and the Union Jack on the other, the floodlit wall presents a very patriotic view from the main street and has drawn many favorable comments from the public as well as praise from the members.

Congratulations are in order to Mrs. Pat Curnoe, a member of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Ladies Auxiliary, who was decorated by Governor General Roland Michener recently. At a ceremony held at Government in honor of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem (Priory of Canada), Mrs. Curnock received the medal of Lady Serving Sister and was accompanied to Ottawa for the ceremony by her husband, Harry, who was also introduced to His Excellency. Terry was president of the ladies auxiliary for 1970 and is also an ex-servicewoman.

LONDON (AP) — The BBC said Wednesday it is buying fewer television programs from the United States.

U.S. westerns, especially, are not what they were, the BBC said in its annual report.

Perry Mason, Lone Ranger and Little Joe Cartwright were once popular in this country. Now, the BBC said, "they are just not making as many westerns; their detective and police programs have less general appeal, and the level of acceptability of American comedy in this country has declined.

LONDON (AP) — German maestro Rudolf Kempe, 63, has drawn one of Britain's musical plums. He was named Wednesday as principal conductor of the BBC symphony orchestra, to succeed Pierre Boulez in September, 1975.

A tall, commanding figure with gray hair, Kempe is one of the best-loved figures in London music circles. He resigned only two months ago from the Royal Philharmonic, after 11 years.

Kempe will conduct 30 concerts a year for the BBC, with Boulez as his associate conductor.

OTTAWA (CP) — Scholarships totalling $10,000 a year will be awarded students of the National Theatre School, Montreal, and the National Arts Centre, Toronto, the Canada Council announced Wednesday.

They are awarded each for the next 10 years in memory of Peter Dwyer, former director of the council, who had a special interest in developing new artistic talent. The awards are to be made annually to nine leading students at the two schools chosen by the schools themselves.

The first of the scholarships were presented Wednesday to students of the National Ballet School at its annual meeting in Toronto.

Sean Boutilier, 15, of Brampton, Ont., was one of four senior ballet students receiving $1,000 each. Kim Lambert, 17, of Thamesford, Ont., was one of two junior ballet students receiving $500 each.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Award-winning actress Mary Tyler Moore and Grant Tinker, her husband of four years, have separated.

A spokesman for the couple said Wednesday that Tinker had moved out of the couple's Malibu home, but no other action has been filed yet.

The couple has no children.

Tinker is the producer of The Mary Tyler Moore Show, a top-level comedy production in which Miss Moore plays a television news worker.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Doctors Tuesday ordered actress Elizabeth Taylor to remain in the UCLA medical centre where she underwent surgery last Wednesday for removal of a cyst on her right ovary and correction of an abnormal intestinal formation.

A spokesman for the actress said: "The doctors just wanted her to have more rest and let completely recovered."

The spokesman said that some time after the first of the year the 41-year-old actress will leave for Hawaii to visit her brother, Howard Taylor.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The wife of singer Jerry Lee Lewis has filed a court suit seeking separate maintenance and child support but not divorce.

Jaren Lewis, 31, the singer's fourth wife, charged her 37-year-old husband with inflicting mental treatment in the suit filed Monday. She did not elaborate. The suit said the couple seperated last Wednesday.

They were married Sept. 7, 1971, and have a 30-month-old daughter.

Singer Loses Suit

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — A judge dismissed Wednesday a suit filed by 48-year-old singer Michelle Triola, who claims she was actor Lee Marvin's common-law wife for six years and was entitled to half of his $1-million assets.

Judge William Monnell dismissed the lawsuit on a motion filed by Marvin's lawyer before the trial was scheduled to begin.

The singer sought a division of property, claiming she made an oral agreement in 1964 with Marvin when they started living together. She said she also agreed to give up her career as an actress to become a full-time spouse to Marvin.

The judge dismissed the case after Marvin's lawyer contended that recognition of the agreement will be against public policy because the actor is still married to his previous wife at the time his relationship with Miss Triola began.

Marvin, 50, has since remarried and appeared in court with his present wife Pamela.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Fri., Dec. 7

Aries (March 21-April 19) — You're over-rating a new interest at this time because you've only bit once. Facts will later reveal they are inflated.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Don't put too much store in a promise someone will make you today in front of others. He's just acting out his "big shot" role.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Your hunches cannot be relied on, though you're likely to have great faith in them. You see the big picture, not the fallible parts.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Today you may feel you have to be something you're not in order to impress new friends. Just be yourself. They'll appreciate you more.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Protect yourself against any situation that could have adverse legal implications. It's not a good day to sign contracts.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Today you will be bored with details where your work is concerned. This will reflect itself in the quality of your work product.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — If a well-meaning friend gives you a confidential tip that assures you of a profit, it's best you have a deaf ear to it today.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — You're not too shrewd a bargainer, as you'll later learn. If you're making a deal, don't take things at face value—dig. Ask questions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Don't try to just get through your tasks with a lick and a promise. Tomorrow, you'll have to go back and do things over.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Keep the upper on your purse closed today, or you'll be digging into your funds, buying things you won't use.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Check your calendar to be sure you haven't forgotten you invited someone home for dinner tonight and failed to tell your mate.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Stick to the facts in the stories you tell others. You will be tempted to embellish a bit. Don't. The truth will later come out.

Leg Is 'Shorter,' X-rays Urged

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In six years my left leg has become gradually shorter and today is an inch and a half shorter than my right. In the last four years my left knee has ached considerably, so much that I cannot walk even a short distance without considerable agony.

I have visited three medical doctors, two osteopathic doctors and three chiropractors, but not one has been able to tell me the reason for this shortness, or give me any relief for my aching knee. Can you suggest something?—C.S.

You say you "visited" doctors, which might be part of the answer—if you expected to have a doctor give you an answer to the first visit.

It is hard to believe that none suggested that you should have your leg X-rayed. Certainly what I would have insisted upon. The leg bones themselves do not shorten. In most instances the likely originates in a joint.

I would pay attention to the hip, followed by other areas if some hip condition does not become apparent.

If the knee itself is not involved in your problem, basically, the pain could result from the shortness of the leg throwing your gait balance and you are getting abnormal strain on the knee.

I would recommend that you see an orthopedist (bone specialist) and have him do what ever studies are necessary to learn what is causing your condition. I see no point trying to suggest anything for your knee until you have found out what causes your leg to grow shorter.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long is it safe to be on "the pill"? I have read nothing on this in years. At first it was thought safe for only two to four years. Now, after I have been on the pill for eight years, my doctor does not seem concerned, but I am. Should there be a period of cessation somewhere along the line?—Mrs. J.

You haven't read much about that question because nobody yet has any answers. Some physicians have patients who continue the pill periodically, but there is no evidence that these patients are better off than those who don't stop.

The birth control pills were tested for several years among small groups of women before being put into general use. Had harmful effects been observed in the test groups, then we would have had some sort of limit for the later, much greater numbers of women on the pill. But as yet no harm from long-term use has been apparent.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had adult diabetes for over 20 years. In the last three years every time I lie on my left side I feel a tremor run through my head and fade away in my chest. Could these tremors be the result of otitis media? Also, is otitis media dangerous, and can it be corrected by surgery?—J.R.

Otitis media—which is infection of the middle ear—can affect the balance mechanism, and that may explain what you feel as a tremor.

If the infection (the otitis media) is eliminated, the deafness can result. But the infection frequently can be corrected surgically by providing adequate drainage, plus use of antibiotics.

THAT FOUR LETTER WORD

HOME — means everything to the happy family. To have its fullest meaning it must be your own. There is no security in rented accommodation. Let us show you one of our models, now nearing completion on Bonnet Boulevard. This house with studded carport has L-shaped living dining room, large kitchen with ample eating area for average family and 3 bedrooms. Basement divided for future recreation.

A BAD FOUR LETTER WORD

MOVE — can you tell when circumstances on the part of your landlord will force him to utter this ominous word? When it happens it's not much fun. People like this happening with a holme of your own. Why should your children have their schooling disrupted because your landlord can no longer look after your accommodation. For their sake have the foresight to own your own. For as little as $1,500.00 down we can offer 3 bedroom townhouse accommodation that is very very cozy. We have a model suite to show you.

THE BEST FOUR LETTER WORD

GURS — not only is it pleasing to the ear but it is pleasing to the pocket book. Once your payments are set they fluctuate very very little for the term of the mortgage, not so with rent! It continues to climb and what is worse it leaves no equity for your family to look to in the years ahead. There is no way to accumulate money quicker than in owning a house. We have a model in West Belleville the plan of which we built last year in the east end and has recently resold with a $13,000.00 profit. Who'll be the next? (I won't happen again). Ask to see our many houses in all parts of the city.

Deaf Students Attend Colleges

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Belford is one of thousands of students attending community colleges in Ontario this year, but just one of a handful who are deaf.

He and 51 other deaf or hard-of-hearing students are enrolled in nine Ontario colleges of applied arts and technology this year under a test program started by the provincial government.

And Bruce, 21, says he is adjusting to attending regular classes with only a minimum of difficulty.

"I found it hard when I first came in," said the Toronto native, who is studying plastics technology at George Brown College in Toronto. "But now everything is OK."

Ron Cope, co-ordinator of the program at George Brown, said one deaf girl is studying to become a medical technician while a deaf boy is taking recreational leadership.

Mr. Cope said schools for the deaf have concentrated on vocational training leading to commercial office work for girls and drafting, woodworking and printing for boys. The new program puts emphasis on academic work so that deaf persons may branch out into new areas of employment.

Mr. Cope said that at one time only five per cent of the deaf went on to higher education. The new program has helped to increase that percentage substantially.

Grit Caucus Behind Move

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau appeared to make a sweeping bow to the New Democrats with his energy announcement Thursday, but he also was reacting to unusually strong pressure from his own backbenchers.

With the minority Liberal government facing possible Commons defeat Monday night, Liberal Mac Ilsley told him, in no uncertain terms, that a policy statement must be issued prior to the scheduled non-confidence vote based on energy. The reaction came during Wednesday's regular caucus when, as one cabinet minister said, "they really gave it to us."

"The feeling was as strong as I have seen in any caucus," he said.

Caucus felt that the New Democrats, for effective balance of power in this minority Parliament, required only a reasonable government gesture to woo their voting support. Until Wednesday it was not so firm indication that the government would make a move.

Although relatively few MPs cherished the thought of a winter election, there were fears that the NDP—because of its threats of abandoning the Liberals over the energy issue—had placed itself in a difficult position and would be forced to vote with the Conservatives. As late as Thursday noon there were indications the 31-member NDP caucus would, at least, split on the vote.

"Everyone was looking for a way out," an NDP member said. "But, in fact we were in very great danger of stumbling into an election."

Behind-the-scenes negotiations seemed to be leading nowhere. Word mysteriously spread through the NDP caucus Wednesday that the government would entertain positive amendments to the new emergency energy bill.

Other NDP members say they were told other government measures would be coming soon.

NDP energy critic T. C. Douglas widened the path for the Liberals Wednesday by saying his party would be happy with an announcement that the voluntary price freeze would continue beyond Jan. 31.

A Liberal M.P said cabinet ministers didn't appear as concerned as the backbenchers earned about a possible defeat, and there was no apparent move to make it easier for the NDP to support the government.

"But this changed Wednesday when we got them into caucus," he said. Many cabinet met Thursday it took the message to heart.

Clean Air Out To Help Avoid Gas Rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says there will be no rationing of gasoline before 1980, and a House of Representatives committee has taken a step to save that fuel by voting to ease auto-emission standards.

The House commerce committee Thursday night adopted a compromise exhaust gas provision that would slow clean-air efforts for at least a year. The measure added to the emergency energy legislation requested by President Nixon would require the auto-makers to meet the 1975 standards but would suspend any further exhaust cleanup until 1977.

Paperwork Piles Up--But Keep It Coming

Marvin Holzer, Belleville waste company manager, is backed by 25-ton mountain of discarded paper — much of it from city's recycling drive. But, since bulk is better business economics, Mr. Holzer says he even can handle more waste than is being produced. He suggests community groups consider paper drives for fund-raising. Details of attempt to recycle paper are given on first page, second section.

Legislature Recall On Schools Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Thomas Wells said Thursday he would ask Premier William Davis to recall the legislature if necessary to deal with possible mass resignation of 7,500 Ontario school teachers Jan. 4.

He had been asked about the possibility by Opposition Leader Robert Nixon in the legislature.

"If the situation necessitated I would certainly ask the premier to recall the legislature," Mr. Wells said.

The legislature is expected to finish its current sitting shortly and would be reconvened until the middle of February.

Mr. Nixon said that Mr. Wells should be prepared to do more than say he will send out 20 negotiators if the schools—involving 175,000 students—are closed.

"I do not want to see any schools closed in January," Mr. Wells said. "At the present time, however, free bargaining is going on between certain parties and I think it becomes very crucial that we do not interfere with that bargaining process at this particular point in time."

Mr. Wells said a policy statement and legislation regarding a teacher's right to strike is being prepared but the legislation is still in draft form.

Boards May Try to Hire New Staff

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Ontario English Catholic Teachers Association (OECTA) said Thursday there are indications that school boards may try to combat mass resignations by 4,720 teachers by hiring replacements when schools reopen after the Christmas break.

Doug Knott, chief OECTA negotiator, said at least one school board is advertising for teachers.

Separate school teachers in 11 Ontario school districts submitted resignations last Friday to back up demands for an 8.5-per-cent, cost-of-living increase.

The 11 boards are Hamilton, Perth, Windsor, Essex, Wellington, Ontario, Nipissing, Ottawa, Carleton, Sudbury, Chapleau and Schreiber-Terrace Bay.

Mr. Knott said the advertisement, by the Chapleau board, offers teachers who apply for the job a 1974-75 salary scale which "has yet to be negotiated."

He said the 11 boards have been "pink-listed" which means teachers are advised not to take positions with them until a collective agreement is signed for the current year.

Need More

OTTAWA (CP) — Yves Pratte, Air Canada chairman, indicated Thursday that an air fare increase is necessary to meet the $25-million annual cost to the company of the government's new air tax.

He refused to discuss the legislation with opposition members because he was still discussing it with teachers and trustees.

Lewis Pledges Backing

PM Meets NDP Views

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP)—David Lewis pulled the minority Liberal government back Thursday from the brink of defeat in the Commons by announcing the New Democratic Party will vote against a crucial gas-confidence motion Monday.

The pledge came after a major Ottawa energy speech by Prime Minister Trudeau, who met many of the demands the NP leader has made for changes in national energy policies.

"It was a victor y beyond my expectations," Mr. Lewis said in an interview after learning details of the prime minister's statement.

"I don't think there is any better evidence of the value of the New Democratic Party to the country and to Parliament."

He said Mr. Trudeau dealt with every major change demanded by the NDP and altered federal policies enough for the NDP to support the government without hesitation in the non-confidence vote planned by Progressive Conservatives Monday.

"... It would be senseless, sheer political irresponsibility not to recognize that we have accomplished our aims."

He said he will ask NDP members at a caucus Monday to vote against the motion—regardless of how it is drafted.

"The wording is irrelevant now.

"I have no doubt at all that my recommendation will be accepted."

He said the government adopted our programs" by announcing it would extend the voluntary petroleum products price freeze to the end of the winter, establish a national petroleum corporation, continue the crude oil export tax past Feb. 1, and work with the province to develop new energy sources.

Both the $1.90-a-barrel export tax and the price freeze were scheduled to expire at the end of January.

The NDP had threatened to bring the government if it abandoned either.

Mr. Lewis said the policy changes prove "the clout" his party wields in Parliament, but he will press for more details in some areas, particularly on the national petroleum corporation.

The NDP wants a corporation that will move into all areas of the petroleum industry, from production , to distribution. It was unclear from Prime Minister Trudeau's speech what powers the government plans for the agency.

Mr. Lewis' pledge of support came during a tour of the Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. (GCOS) synthetic crude oil recovery operation near this town of 10,000 about 300 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Fort McMurray is just south of the vast and virtually untapped northern Alberta oil sands, one of the largest energy resources in the country.

Although he has long been a bitter critic of large petroleum corporations, Mr. Lewis and his aides were granted, and made free use of, GCOS offices and telephones to keep in touch with developments in Ottawa.

He made a series of sarcastic references to corporate profits as he was taken around the site by company officials.

They appeared to take his remarks in good humor and quickly made a conference room available for a short news conference when the NDP leader announced his support of the government.

Freeze Stays Until Spring

National Oil Body Promised

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau thwarted a potential political crisis for his minority government Thursday with sweeping plans for a state petroleum corporation and a winter-long extension of the voluntary price freeze on domestic petroleum products.

In a Commons announcement dramatized by its unexpectedness, Mr. Trudeau said those moves, plus legislation for the Toronto-Montreal oil pipeline and federal-provincial development of other energy sources would form the basis for new government oil policy. They are aimed at making the country self-sufficient in oil within seven years.

The price freeze, implemented for five months last September, would be extended because the government concluded there is "neither reason nor justification" to change the price of domestic oil this winter.

But Mr. Trudeau apparently left room for price increases in eastern Canada which depends on increasingly expensive imported oil if he made no mention of off-shore prices.

Conservatives reacted quickly with bitter fury, accusing the government of nationalizing the oil industry in an effort to appease the New Democrats. With 31 seats, the NDP holds the effective balance of power in the Commons.

New Democrats, on the other hand, grinned with pleasure and party leader David Lewis, touring the Alberta oil sands, indicated he will recommend support for the government against a Conservative non-confidence motion Monday night.

Mr. Trudeau's 40-minute statement, punctuated by government cheers and opposition rebukes, effectively choked speculation the government would fall on the non-confidence motion.

That motion, attacking government handling of the energy issue, could have forced the New Democrats to end their year-long support of the minority government. Party energy critic T. C. Douglas (Hastings-Frontenac-the Islands) had said NDP support depended on continuation of the freeze.

But while New Democrats gloated, Conservatives frothed.

Oil Policy Expediency Is Claim

CALGARY (CP) — Leaders of the oil industry have termed Prime Minister Trudeau's proposed national oil policy an act of "total political expediency."

"This is just another case of the government (national NDP leader) saying jump, and Prime Minister Trudeau saying how high sir," Charles Dunkley, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada (IPAC), said.

In cases like this, Mr. Lewis has all the authority and none of the responsibility for the decision, he said.

"I'm very disappointed, but you have to look at it philosophically. Obviously, Trudeau is more interested in staying in power.

He predicted the proposed national oil company would be a financial disaster, but "Canadians may be a long time in finding out."

John Poyen, president of the Canadian Petroleum Association, challenged the federal government to explain not justify why a national oil company could explore for and develop faster than private industry.

"People must consider whether large corporate tax dollars put into high-risk adventures such as oil exploration."

Historically, most oil companies have been "either unsuccessful or disastrous" in their ventures, he said. People should keep this in mind.

The prime minister's announcement has dealt a "body blow to the morale of the independent operators and investor confidence," he said New risk capital would be especially difficult to find.

PCs Say Policy Ends Free Enterprise

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservatives lashed out at the government's proposed national energy policy Thursday, calling it everything from the end of free enterprise in the oil industry to a "blatant attempt to seduce the New Democratic Party."

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, said the announcement is obviously designed to prevent a non-confidence defeat. But, the prime minister had "completely destroyed the credibility" of Energy Minister Donald Macdonald as a minister

HAROLD FORD

Ford Is Sworn In As Vice-president

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald Ford was sworn in as vice-president of the United States Thursday night, by Chief Justice Warren Burger.

Just hours earlier, the House of Representatives in which he served for 25 years, approved him by a 387-35 vote after a debate punctuated by statements that Nixon's Watergate troubles might shortly elevate Ford to the presidency.

"Whatever grounds there are for impeachment can now be judged solely on their own merits by members on both sides of the aisle," Representative Roger H. Mills Jr. Arkansas (Dem.-Hawaii) said after the vote. He noted that Republicans especially had been reluctant to talk about impeachment while the vice-presidency was vacant.

Added to the Senate's earlier 92-3 vote, the House action completed confirmation of the first vice-president nominated under the 25th Amendment, enacted in 1967. The amendment to the Constitution calls for vice-presidents to be approved by Congress in the event the office becomes vacant. In mid-term.

Christophers Ring Bells on Weekend

During the weekend, if a teenager comes knocking on your door, give him an ear. He might not be a younger-than-usual salesman, but one of a select group of Belleville teenagers involved in the Project Christopher Leadership Weekend.

Part of the three-day, Dec. 7-9, program co-ordinated by Albert Herdoiza and Wayne Myles involves surveying specific areas of the city to discover what residents feel are the needs of their immediate community. The teenagers will offer their services to the homeowner free of charge, in exchange for a few words.

Wayne Myles, who is devoting a full year on a voluntary basis to the program, explains its aim as being directed to getting young people to participate in the community positively.

Project Christopher has earned widespread support across the continent for its work with youth, aged 13-21, Christian-oriented. It is a non-denominational organization founded in 1960 in Montreal by Father Bruyère as a summer activity program. From limited beginnings, it spread rapidly across Canada, earning the support of federal government officials along the way. At present, it has between 2,000 and 3,000 members.

"We really stress the idea of developing positive human potential" said Wayne Myles. "We look at things we can do, not what we can't. We look at what you are, not what you've got."

Acting as catalysts for a group the youths expect will number about 15, they hope to instil a respect for each individual's human potential and power to act in a manner benefiting the community. During the weekend in facilities provided by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties separate school board at George Vanier, the Christopher co-ordinators hope to show the drive needed to become a leader, and the goals he must set to derive strength and purpose from.

"We're not love dove Hare Krishna freaks," said Albert Herdoiza, in expressing his concern the project not be misunderstood. "We're challenging youth to get off their butts and look at their positive leadership potential."

"You don't need a million-dollar building or government grants to do some good."

Speaking of their own role, he said, "We try to be of service to the community, not come in with preconceived ideas. We don't come in real pushy."

Both have been in Belleville less than a week, and have spoken to various community and church leaders in an effort to discover people's needs. Since Project Christopher teaches them to survive on less than a dollar a day, they have been staying in homes provided by citizens.

They hope that after they leave Belleville those who participated in the weekend leadership course will continue working beneficially in the city.

During the weekend, three basic rules will be enforced — no drugs, alcohol or pairing off.

Energy Policy

Alberta oilman Peter Lougheed (PC—Calgary South) predicted outraged western reaction and an end to free enterprise in the oil industry.

Control to his fury was the proposal to establish a national petroleum corporation through legislation to be introduced at the next parliamentary session.

Mr. Trudeau said the company's primary job would be to help develop supplies" but it would not be prevented from entering the refining and distribution fields.

It would undertake exploration in the North, involve itself in offshore oil searches, and be given $40 million to develop, in the next five years, methods of exploiting Alberta's oil sands' reserves. The latter would be done in conjunction with the Alberta government and oil firms.

"Should the province of Alberta prefer some other arrangement for carrying on this project—such as an independent Canada-Alberta Institute—the government would be quite prepared to discuss it with them."

Mr. Trudeau said the state company is not intended to displace the private oil industry or discourage foreign oil investment, but Conservatives expressed bitter skepticism.

"He's just nationalized the industry," Mr. Bawden commented.

Mr. Trudeau stressed the importance of a pipeline to Montreal to carry current crude to eastern refineries. It would assure eastern markets of secure oil supplies while creating markets for development of the rich northern Alberta oil sands.

A larger domestic market was needed to make development of the sands worthwhile. The sands have vast potential, but the extraordinary methods for separating the oil from the sands is expensive than convential oil-well drilling.

The prime minister underlined the importance the government places on the pipeline by saying the Crown-owned Canadian Commercial Corp. has been instructed to buy necessary steel—to be sold at cost to whoever builds the line—and that the National Energy Board, which must approve the line, has been asked to make a quick decision.

The pipeline would abolish the 1961 Ottawa Valley Line which split the country into two markets. Eastern regions depend on expensive and scarce imported oil, while western areas use domestic crude.

Meanwhile, the government would "undertake new discussions with Alberta and with the oil companies to gain agreement to maintain the prices of domestically-produced oil at current levels at least until the end of this winter."

Mr. Macdonald said at a news conference later that the freeze would be lifted "when the front comes out of the ground."

But while the extended freeze would keep costs down this winter, Mr. Trudeau warned of inevitable higher costs in the future.

"In short, we must in the long run allow the price of domestically-produced crude oil to rise toward a level high enough to ensure the development of the Alberta oil sands and other Canada resources, but not one bit higher."

Ottawa would continues to levy an export tax—now $1.80 a barrel—after Feb. 1, but the new rate would be determined by the National Energy Board. Western premiers of recent days now split 50-50 with the provinces the revenue from the tax.

Officer, From Area, Saves Child

PICTON—A Toronto police officer, son of a Wellington couple, has earned recognition for saving the life of a four-year-old traffic victim.

Constable Brian Cove-Shannon, 29, administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Sandra Saracino who had been hit by a car. She revived, then suffered a breathing lapse a second time. The officer again breathed into the boy's mouth and revived him once more.

Constable Cove-Shannon is the son of Rev. and Mrs. John Cove- Shannon, West Street, Wellington. He, too, owns a home in the village and plans in future to live there with his family.

The officer's 26-year-old brother, Neil, also is a member of Metro Toronto police. Another brother, 18-year-old Rae, is enrolled in a law enforcement course at Loyalist College.

Man Hurt In Crash

MOUNTAIN VIEW — A Bloomfield man was taken to Belleville General Hospital following a one-car crash on Highway 14, at Mountain View cheese factory.

Roger Miller, 30, RR 1, Bloomfield, was treated for facial cuts. Damage to his car was estimated at $1,500. Constable H. A. Wierzba of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, investigated.

Meeting On Official Plan Tonight

PICTON — A public meeting to discuss Prince Edward's draft official plan will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Adolphustown Church Parish Hall.

Copies of the plan have been available for the past week and it is hoped that county residents will attend the meeting for its presentation.

Santa Comes To Picton

PICTON — Santa Claus is coming to town this Saturday and his visit will be highlighted by a carol sing at the Armory Mall.

The parade, sponsored by the Picton Kinsmen Club, will leave the fairgrounds at 10 a.m., with more than 50 entries participating.

After St. Nick's march through Main Street a carol fest will be held at 11 a.m. at the mall.

For parade participants there will be hot drinks served at the County Centre.

His Penalty Is All Talk

OTTAWA (CP) — An 18-year-old Ottawa youth convicted of dangerous driving was ordered by a provincial court judge Thursday to speak to all driver education programs in the city in the next three years about his driving and drinking experiences.

William Grey was convicted after evidence showed he had been drinking at a party prior to driving on the wrong side of the road when his car struck an oncoming vehicle.

Four members of a St. Catharines, Ont., family were seriously injured in the crash.

Grey also was fined $500 and lost his driving permit for three years. Judge Robert Hutton said he had considered a jail term for the youth.

"However the common interest of the public would certainly be better served if you could get across to students of your age how serious a danger driving can be," the judge told Grey.

Mel Hill, Mohawk Historian

Mohawks to Vote This Saturday

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — It's local election time here again. And, as usual, the event is bare of the flummery of other political styles.

There are no posters, signs or advertisements.

Just as usual, a big turnout of voter is expected as the Quinte Mohawks elect another two-year council Saturday.

For one thing, despite outward appearances, each campaign is a serious business.

Candidates have always emphasized personal contact — an approach facilitated in a close-knit community where the voters total around 400.

But a major factor credited in getting out the vote is a device borrowed from the white man, and one, ironically, denied elsewhere in local government elections: The party system.

This year, as in the past, candidates are aligned with two groups — the People's Party and the Progressive Party.

The system has worked so successfully, says Mel Hill, reserve historian and himself a former chief, that other Indian bands with elected councils have shown interest in adopting the Tyendinaga technique.

It helps voters identify with issues, and heightens interest.

Without the party system most election might see fewer voters out — often the case in other local government campaigns, he says.

It keeps the reserve's "electoral system from "getting in a rut," says Mr. Hill. The result of voter disinterest would be "too many acclamations."

Earl Hill, now seeking re-election to his fourth term as chief, says about 80 per cent of voters usually turn up at the polls. A member of the People's Party, this election he is being opposed by Councillor William J. Brant.

The two parties originally were named the Long Hairs and Short Hairs. In earlier electoral days the Long Hairs were identified as conservatives, while the Short Hairs were identified as progressives, say historian Mel Hill.

Electioneering here goes back to 1870, when the Mohawks abolished the hereditary system.

It was one of the first reserves to turn to the ballot for local government, and the transition was apparently without much controversy, says Mr. Hill.

Only once — some time in the 1930s — did the hereditary chiefs try to dispute the electoral system and briefly occupied the council house, he says.

Today, campaigning takes candidates into various parts of the reserve to discuss the issue at house meetings. Older voters benefit from this approach by not having to travel any distance before exchanging opinions with campaigners.

Interest in elections stays consistently high, says Mr. Hill. He recalls on one occasion losing the chiefainship by one vote.

The final expression of opinion for the Mohawks takes place at the council house Saturday where voting is from 9 a.m. to 7 pm.

Project Hit by Vandalism

Town Takes Over New Municipal Centre

TRENTON— Town hall contractors are breathing with sighs of relief today.

Town employees met Thursday with the firm which has built the new municipal centre here to pick up the keys and assume legal responsibility for the building that has been vandalized to the tune of $300 a week for the past two months.

Dozens of vandalism incidents have piled up $1,500 in damages to the parking complex and cost now it was the contractor who had to make good the repairs.

John Bolton, Mifrod Wiggers project manager, told the Intelligencer "we want to get rid of it (building) as fast as we can." Since Thursday afternoon, when the keys were handed over, the officers and the cost of vandalism are the responsibility of the town.

Mr. Bolton said the incidence of vandalism in the new complex is the worst he's seen. "Kids smash things to pieces ... they don't seem to Damage has mainly been to lighting fixtures. But destructive hands indeed the automatic car counter this week and a telephone booth was smashed earlier in the fall.

The first two floors, used for parking, are particularly vulnerable to abuse. There are no locks on the doors and no door at all where cars enter at the rear. Only the third floor, housing municipal offices, is protected.

Now the $380,000 building is the towns and work is being done to put an end to damages presently averaging $800, a month.

Council, following the wrecking of the car counter which alerts motorists if the garage is full before they continue into the building, referred the problem to the police.

Chief David Saunders said Thursday he would have officers make regular patrols. A special brief has been presented to town hall employees concerning "building security."

Not in up his head to wonder was the cost and contents of the security report were confidential and would have to have a long look at the situation.

It was necessary for keys to be handed over yesterday so work could begin on shipping furniture into the new offices for the Dec. 17 operation date.

Contractors say the building is virtually completed with only a small number of old jobs to be completed. It is anticipated the elevator will be completed well before moving day.

A 15 per cent holdback on the total cost of the job is council's insurance the building will be completed satisfactorily — the practice in all municipal works. All but a small portion of the holdback will be forwarded to the contractor, the remainder to be paid once all loose ends are completed.

Curlers Meet on Help Plan For Trenton Country Club

TRENTON — A system of membership may provide the finances to get the Trenton Country Club on its feet.

Earlier this week a group of golfers paid $1,000 to the club, taking over ownership of the golfcourse and its financial obligations. They will take over a $26,000 mortgage on the land.

The $14,000 contribution will be put to the pot to pull the club house operation above water," one spokesman explained.

Tonight, curlers will meet in the club. It is hoped they will set up their own company or corporation to handle curling rink obligations.

For the scheme to work, curlers will need to raise $35,- 00 to be put in their purchase of clubhouse bills. It will still be the responsibility of curlers to handle finances of the mortgage on the rink.

Under the new groups take care of $65,000 in mortgages. Their contributions will pay off the mortgage on the club house.

It was suggested pay plan emerged following "a recent board of directors' announcement that the club was up for sale due to pressing bills and a money-losing operation.

Curlers are urged to attend the meeting at 9 p.m. Friday to discuss the plan. It is hoped some group will come forward, following the example of the golfers. Some 35 members met with the board last past Tuesday and explained their proposal for the course.

One group, said to be predominantly curlers, earlier proposed raising $100,000 among themselves. It is hoped this money can still be mobilized in this new plan.

Collectively, some $88,000 in outstanding mortgages face the club's administrators. Over recent weeks the club was listed with area realtors but failed to draw a purchase bid satisfactory to the board.

Canada's New Image

Can it be that Canada — huge on size but scarce in population and still pursuing maturity in every sense of the word — has reached a new level of material assurance and confidence as a nation and people?

Two articles in the Ottawa Journal in recent days indicate that this is so, while warning also that shades of the old identity crisis still remain. For instance, Journal managing editor Dave Humphreys, home after four years in London, reminds us of the paucity of news in British papers about Canada; there we tend to be viewed in the overall North American context and Canadians can thank the Monarchy for the occasions it brings us more sharply into focus.

As for the British, more than ever viewed today as at best a second-class power, plagued by union strife and a reluctant work force, Humphreys has this telling point to make: "And yet they do know how to live . . . They do know something about the quality of life, in the fashionable senses and otherwise . . . The people from working man to company director, have a love of life, full of curiosity and interest. . ."

Humphreys says, in a neat comparison: "If your criteria for success is steel and concrete, glass and the freeway, Britain can't compare with Canada. Canada is the thrusting, dynamic society."

In the other article Reuters correspondent Alan Harvey, himself a Canadian, and one he says suffers from the "Transatlantic Splits" or "the tantalizing malady that besets those who divide their lives, conscIously or accidentally, between Canada and Britain" — is more positive about Canada's new image internationally. He says after years in the American shadow, "we are making an impact on our own."

"In terms of material infrastructure, amenities and surface sophistication, Canada is now widely seen abroad as a nation of world class . . ." says Harvey. A Parisian visitor, somewhat irritatingly, went so far as to say Canada "seems to be swimming in happiness."

Specifically, visitors are impressed with the range of high-quality hotels and restaurants, by the cleanliness of city streets, high standards of service and conditions of public safety, Toronto, increasingly, is seen as one of the most impressive and agreeable cities on the continent.

Some Britons with whom Harvey chatted on a flight home had been impressed by Canadian "optimism, the possibility of getting things done and, most significantly, the high standards of service. "One or two though felt that British schools "have an edge on the Canadian variety."

A German newspaperman, Thilo Bode, of Munich, noted the mood of these sentiments, seeing Canada as a practical, efficient, smooth-running and clean place, "combining the best features of Britain and the United States with a bit of French . . ." Canadians he saw as "very open people . . . cheerful and accommodating."

* * *

It is encouraging to be seen in such increasingly favorable light by people overseas. Clearly, we have something that is very well worth preserving. Canada basically is an extremely sane and balanced society, but we should not delude ourselves into believing everything is perfect — far from it. Still, what we do enjoy has made us the envy of the world.

It Was Noted

Once more a person in public life has taken advantage of an opportunity to take a shot at Belleville's daily paper.

In city council this week it was reported by the manager of the city's public utilities commission that arsenic levels in the Moira River were still low enough to be able to health. Dr. John Stock wasted no time in commenting that he hoped the press would take good note of this.

Well, the press has, just as it did when Dr. Morton Shulman, MPP for High Park, came to Belleville and said arsenic levels in the river were dangerously high and could be causative factors in fatal diseases.

The Intelligencer reported both these charges. Dr. Shulman, a physician and member of the Provincial Parliament, made the charges. The Intelligencer reported Dr. Shulman's charges — which it is job. The press doesn't make the news, it reports it.

Fuel Shortage: How Many More Winters of Discontent?

By VINCENT ROAN
Business and Economic Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Gathering winter fuel has become—alas!—a preoccupation of Canadians.

And as they try to gather it, they have good reason to fear a MORE, MORE ALAS!—that this is only the first of a number of winters of discontent ahead. Fuel.

It's natural, when one is caught in an unpleasant predicament, to try to fix the blame. Here are the usual suspects:

The consumer. . . It's charged that Canadians have been profligal in their use of a diminishing resource, simply because it was cheap. We are said to have a non-parsue, nonsar mentality, we drive too fast and see heat our buildings inefficiently.

In defence of the consumer, let it be said that the time saved in faster driving, or in using a car rather than a bus on occasion, often has an economic value that should not be overlooked in the equation.

—The oil companies. The allegations against them include profiteering, holding supplies off the market, and rendering Canada dependent upon other countries for its oil needs.

In their defence, the oil companies say they have been warning of an impending energy crisis for years, that they have been competing vigorously for sales (and profits) rather than creating a shortage, and that they need higher prices to meet higher future production costs (although they remain tight-lipped about the specifics of these costs).

—The environmentalist movement. The eco-freaks, as their critics call them, are said to have blocked new energy-producing facilities, and forced up costs at existing plants, by their successful insistence on more rigorously high standards of pollution abatement.

The environmentalists dismiss such criticism by saying that the energy industry wouldn't move fast enough—if at all—without their prodding.

—The government, especially the federal authorities. The policy established by the Conservative government in 1961, and continued by the Liberals, has been to cultivate the Canadian industry by regarding central and western Canada by use only Canadian oil, while the rest of the country (east of the Ottawa Valley) bought cheaper foreign oil.

Ottawa gambled that the foreign oil could eventually be displaced by oil from the bottom of the Atlantic off Canada's East Coast—but none has been found despite intensive exploration efforts.

The Trudeau government's position is that it is responding to the crisis. It now favors a pipeline to move Alberta oil to Montreal refineries—but even with a crash program, construction time would be at least two years.

It plans petroleum rationing at wholesale, plus other conservation measures. And the U.S. administration (suggestions to turn down the thermostat, drive with a lighter foot, and limit Christmas lighting—although there's no shortage of electricity).

But from all appearances, Ottawa continues to back away from any substantive action to get at the heart of the problem—the Arab embargo that has curtailed our oil supplies, and the 17 per cent reduction in shipments from our most important supplier, Venezuela.

The oil producers of the Middle East are competitive by nature, and their cartel could conceivably be circumvented. Canada—and the U.S.—could highly esteemed abroad.

Why, then, doesn't Ottawa at least make a serious effort to contact those producers and request the Eastern Canada's supply lines?

"This is our latest model — she's so life-like you can claim her as a dependent."

New Democrats' Strategy in Energy Crisis

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — The NDP is still at it: Trying to make facts out of half-truths.

The party, of course, is trying to make what political gains it can out of the energy problem.

One of its targets has been the possible damage to the economy of the province.

The position of the government, and it would seem to be the correct one, is that the biggest danger to the provincial economy is through possible sign-offs from recession in the U.S. which might be brought about by the energy crisis in that country.

As Ontario is a major supplier to U.S. industry if it is hurt we are hurt.

Somehow or other, however, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis manages to associate today's problem as an "alliance" between federal Liberals, Tories and large oil companies. (A lesson presumably learned at his father's knee.)

Asked for an example of this he cited that "we have exported so many trillions of cubic feet of natural gas over the last several years."

Any export of natural gas to the U.S. in past years has as much relationship to potential economic dangers in Ontario today as the dodo bird has to a bottle of whisky.

The only impact of past exports would have been on reserves. And our reserves of natural gas are not in question at the moment. The only question in doubt at all is the line capacity to deliver them.

And there doesn't seem to be much doubt of that. It seems assured that we will have the supplies of gas available to keep our industry in full operation.

The question is whether it will have the customers to justify this full operation.

And the balance in this lies with the U.S.

This may seem to some readers like beating a dead horse. For the red herring of the NDP has had what may seem like too frequent mention in this space.

However this isn't a case of a horse that is dead but of one which should be.

It is a tactic which can confuse the public. And frankly I think it is one which is bad for the NDP.

And boring though it may be to some it is one which will continue to be mentioned here as long as it persists.

Ottawa's Dilemma Over Oil Prices

Trois-Rivieres - Le Nouvelliste: Once again David Lewis's New Democratic Party has placed the sword of Damocles over the head of Pierre Elliott Trudeau's minority government.

In other words, Mr. Lewis warns the Trudeau government against an eventual increase of oil prices.

If the government authorizes access that Canadian oil industries raise the price of their products, the NDP will withdraw its support of Mr. Trudeau. As a result, Canadians might be called upon during the winter season to settle the dilemma in a general election.

It is not the first time Mr. Lewis has acted in this way. . . . This tactic, which Mr. Lewis refuses to call a threat, has been fruitful for the NDP. It was perfectly logical for Mr. Lewis to use once again the same tactics to get his point of view accepted.

If the government leader decides to fly on his own wings, it is clear that he will have no other alternative than to call upon the Canadian voters.

Since Sept. 4, the Canadian oil industry has . . . voluntarily frozen its oil prices for a five-month period. However, the government recently agreed to a first increase of three cents. It is obvious that these industries will again increase their prices. This will happen after Jan. 31, when the price freeze period will end?

Mr. Lewis wants to put everything in motion right away so that Canadians will not have to suffer a new price increase in this field.

His intention is valid and without a doubt Mr. Trudeau will have to take it into account in the elaboration of his national energy policy if he does not want to face Canadian voters on the question.

It is clear that if the prime minister does not take into account the NDP demands, he gives this political group all the cards necessary in a future election campaign. The New Democrats could easily make this question the theme of their campaign.

One thing is certain, this new thrust hovering over Mr. Trudeau's head could play an important role in the elaboration of the federal government's energy policy.

Mr. Lewis's demands are vast. But they have the advantage of touching Canadian realities closely. It remains to be seen whether Mr. Trudeau once again will play Mr. Lewis's game.

Public Service Award Comes in for Criticism

By STEWART MACLEOD
OTTAWA (CP) —Some opposition MPs are anxious to halt the annual public service Outstanding Achievement Award which, they say, usually goes to high-profile government employees.

The five award judges, none of whom live in Ottawa, this year selected A. E. Ritchie, under-secretary of state for external affairs as the winner of the $5,000 tax-free award. Last year, the winner was Gordon Robertson, chief of the Privy Council.

Since the award was established eight years ago, the only winner without the rank of deputy minister or higher was Norman McLaren, a National Film Board producer. Other winners include Louis Rasminsky, former Bank of Canada governor, R. B. Bryce, former deputy finance minister, and Marcel Cadieux, former under-secretary of state for external affairs.

While opposition MPs, and many civil servants, were being critical of it, informed sources said the government is considering raising the award to $15,000.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker received some unsolicited publicity for accepting a flask during last weekend's Grey Cup festivities in Toronto. The flask is a one-ounce miniature bottle of brandy, which he uses as a paperweight in his Parliament Hill office. It's still full.

Now that Speaker Lucian Lamoureux has decided, against Christmas trees on Parliament Hill this year, to conserve energy, some MPs are wondering about the future of the "miniature bus service" which shuttles them a few hundred yards between Parliament buildings. There are six buses, and they appear to be moving constantly.

"It's oil, not electricity, that's in short supply," said one, "It's a bit ridiculous to be burning gasoline driving around a Parliament Hill that can't afford Christmas tree lights."

When the cabinet recently met in the seclusion of a Gatineau hills cottage for an all-day session, one of the explanations was that the ministers wanted to get away from all distractions to concentrate on future policy.

The cottage was specially furnished for the occasion and one MP who visited it during the public works department was a Lavish entertainer.

Max Saltzman, NDP member for Waterloo Cambridge since 1965, is retiring. His economics spokesman, is said to have given up plans to run here in politics at the next election. He has been pondering several attractive offers outside politics.

PARADE OBSERVER

Christmas Parade And BGH Float

Editor
The Intelligencer,

Basically, the Santa Claus parade was quite good, but a question looms in my mind concerning a particular entry. Was the Bayview Hospital float trying to wish the public a "Merry Christmas" (as they should) or was it simply advertising?

For those who missed this atrocity, it consisted of a patient on a bed with an intravenous running, a mechanical piano player, and a couple of other unrelevant characters. If the hospital was indeed giving holiday greetings, it certainly was not doing it in a manner which would be understood by the majority of viewers (i.e. children). Besides, there are a variety of ways in which the hospital could present Christmas to the people - - MERRY, not dreary, ways.

Perhaps lack of money and not interest caused this rather disappointing display, but any effort at all could have outdone this one. Most hospital workers serve the community with pride, and they deserve, in return, to be represented by the hospital with more than this.

In reply to the letter from "Tacitus," I must answer lest few text. "We ought to obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29. Caesar was not perfect and because we have freedom of speech, yet we may speak!

Only since 1968 did law change the definition of an adult. No law can really make a man "a man".

Dear in Tacitus' position, hardly has time to take his head out of the sands of law to read the statistics. Dr. Ian D. Archibald, Eugene Leblanc, Dr. John Gemmell and Dr. W.K. Leibach. Are their arguments against drinking "couched in terms of their own prejudices and covered up their lack of knowledge of the facts"?

May I suggest, Sir, that you and your colleagues subscribe to "the Journal" published monthly by the Alcoholism Research Foundation, also to "Addiction" Journal which studies and research projects are aired on the problem — "Alcho!"? Easy learning.

(1) that Alcohol is the No. 1 drug problem here and in the United States:

(2) "Liquor laws will be different" says Dr. John Gemmell from Manitoba— a) because of the increasing use of high crime rate, alcohol related. Listen.

(3) Young people are drinking twice as much and are becoming "heavy" drinkers with this "alcohol". (New Legal Age Boosts Drinking — Intelligencer).

(4) Even birth defects among children are found to be now related to alcohol consumption, growth deficiency, learning disability and motor development etc. (Defects Linked to Alcohol — "The Tribune").

(5) That traffic offences (alcohol related) have gone up over 100 per cent since the lowering age limit.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure! We do not want Canada to become like Czechoslovakia, Sweden and France: their social drinking problem is out of control!

Let's stand on the open line program that between 100-150 attend pub nights at Loyalist College. This is about 15 per cent of the total student body. Why should so few infect and pressure the total body?

Let's not be afraid that we be poor — financially or scholastically.

Being truly moral is saving people from committing suicide and teaching them a better way to happiness.

Yes, Tacitus, let us all think twice - - true happiness is not in a bottle!

"Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the Lord, the God of hosts shall be with you, as ye have spoken. Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate: it may be that the Lord God of hosts will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph." — Amos 5:14,15

Manitoba Power Said Dear

TORONTO (CP) — Manitoba could quickly sell power to Ontario Hydro if its New Democratic Party government were prepared "to put a somewhat reasonable price on the power that they would like to sell," Energy Minister Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday.

He was responding in the legislature to suggestions of NDP members that Ontario Hydro improve its transmission lines between Manitoba and northwestern Ontario to create a cross-Canada power grid instead of tying into the United States market.

Mr. McKeough said Ontario's policy is that there be a national power grid and Ontario's working towards that goal.

But he said it would be helpful if Manitoba would lower its power prices.

Mr. McKeough also said that no decisions have been made on the site of further Hydro installations "nor have any decisions been made as to the site of either thermal or nuclear stations in the North.

Farmer's Union Seeking Change

WINNIPEG (CP) — Delegates to the National Farmers Union (NFU) convention Thursday approved draft legislation aimed at making the organization the official bargaining agent for farmers.

In a unanimous vote, the convention reaffirmed its support of policy adopted last year and provided NFU officials with a bill that can be presented to provincial governments.

Among the few changes from last year's proposal is a provision for collective bargaining between the NFU and provincially-appointed marketing commissions, as opposed to direct negotiations with buyers of farm commodities.

Union Members Lost $200,000

TORONTO (CP) — A plasterers' union officer apparently let a 600-member local dissolve rather than have it challenge his authority, the royal commission investigating crime in Ontario's construction industry was told Thursday.

Former members of Local 117, Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons' International Association of the United States and Canada, testified they left behind an estimated $200,000 in a welfare fund when they broke from the union.

Angelo Burigana, Local 117 business manager, said Chas. Irvine used the members' welfare fund as a club with which to keep them in line.

Plead Not Guilty

DETROIT (AP) — Three Detroit men pleaded not guilty Thursday to charges of kidnaping and first-degree murder charges in the abduction slaying of two young Detroit boys.

District Judge James Stone in suburban Romulus ordered the men held without bond and scheduled a Dec. 21 preliminary examination.

The men are charged with kidnapping and killing Keith Arnold, 6, and Gerald Craft, 8.

Charged are Geary Gilmore, Byron Smith and Jerome Holloway, all 21.

Oil Shipped

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — A spokesman for Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. said Thursday that 150,000 barrels of crude oil have been shipped from here to Montreal refineries since Dec. 1.

He said tankers continue to ship up to 40,000 barrels a day to Montreal but the amount shipped is related to the number of tankers available and "they are in short supply."

Inventor Dies

INVERNESS, Scotland (CP) — Sir Robert Watson-Watt, inventor of radar and a well-known scientific figure in Canada, died Wednesday after a lengthy illness. He was 81. Watson-Watt made his discovery while working on an idea for a death ray in 1934.

$3.50-a Clip

TORONTO (CP) — A minimum charge of $3.50 for a haircut in Ontario is one of the aims of the newly-formed Hairstylists of Ontario Association which is attempting to organize the province's 8,500 licensed barbers.

Plant Nuisance

TORONTO (CP) — City council has declared the Canada Metal Co. Ltd. lead processing plant a public health nuisance and called on three provincial ministries to curb lead pollution in the area.

Beating Charged

Court Sees Bruises On Accused

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Hummel, 61, of Saint David's, Ariz., charged with the attempted murder of a Metropolitan Toronto police detective and robbery, lifted his shirt in provincial judge's court Thursday to back charges that he had been beaten by police since his arrest.

Hummel was arrested Wednesday by detectives Patrick Kelly and Alan Richardson during the holdup of a jewelry store.

Detective Kelly was shot at three times by an unmasked man after he saw a second man wearing a balaclava near three people stretched out on the store floor.

The armed man pushed Kelly aside and ran to freedom, exchanging at least six shots with Richardson.

Daniel McCarthy, legal aid duty counsel, said Thursday night "it was a very savage beating that Mr. Hummel received since he was arrested."

Mr. McCarthy said the man "showed me his bruises before we went into court."

"I interviewed him in the washroom adjacent to the cells. He showed me his chest, stomach and back . . completely black and blue, especially on his stomach. There were hard, strong bruise marks on his back."

Hummel, said Mr. McCarthy, claimed he'd been stretched on the floor and policemen had jumped on him."

When Hummel appeared in court before Judge Crawford Guest, Mr. McCarthy said the accused man "lifted his shirt as he stood in the prisoner's box until it bunched around his neck. He was in plain view of everyone in the courtroom."

Mr. McCarthy later said "Guest seemed to be very upset at the sight of the man as well as the Crown, John Kerr."

"The judge said that Hummel should be given treatment immediately." And then he was remanded until Monday.

A second man was held in Windsor Thursday in connection with the holdup and was being returned to Toronto for a lineup appearance before witnesses.

Flooding Predicted In Spring

TORONTO (CP) — The southwestern Ontario shoreline will undergo similar flooding to that which occurred this spring if the provincial government does not embark on a preventive program now, an MPP told the legislature Thursday.

"Anyone along the Lake Ontario and Lake Erie shorelines can see already the breakup (possibilities)," said Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth).

Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, was presenting supplementary spending estimates of $7.5 million to aid flood-stricken municipalities.

"That $7.5 million is a drop in the bucket compared to what's going to be needed," Mr. Deans said.

Nixon Says Potter's Stand Is Softened

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon accused the provincial government Thursday of retreating from its tough stance on the issue of prosecuting dentists.

Last week, Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter said the government was ready to start prosecuting dentists who defy the new legislation placing them under the supervision of dentists.

The health minister said violations of the act would be brought to the attention of the attorney-general for action but the attorney-general said his ministry would not be laying charges.

"If charges are laid or if other matters require investigation they will be dealt with by authorities and we will prosecute them in the normal way but we are not here to go out and lay charges ourselves," said Attorney-General Dalton Bales.

Mr. Nixon said because the attorney-general and health minister could not agree on what was happening the premier should clear the matter up.

Premier William Davis said he would check the matter and clear up confusion that might exist.

Laporte's Organizer Testifies

Let Me Keep My Health, Asks Witness

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Jacques Cote cut short his testimony at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry this afternoon after Thursday's refusal by its commissioner to let him keep his health.

"I've lost all my political friends, at least I've kept my health," Mr. Cote, 49, told the inquiry after questioning by commissioner lawyer Guy Dupre about a man's name.

Mr. Cote, a former organizer for Pierre Laporte, late Quebec labor minister, appeared to break down in tears after repeatedly telling Mr. Dupre he did not know the man's name. "Put show me a picture and I'll tell you whether it was him."

Mr. Dupre was trying to determine the name of an informer who Mr. Cote said was sent by Frank D'Asti to tell Mr. Cote's ridings on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River, across from Montreal.

Mr. Cote, then Liberal organizer in St. Jacques, told the inquiry Wednesday he had set up a meeting between Mr. Laporte, D'Asti and Nicholas Di Iorio 11 days before the April 29, 1970 Quebec general election to discuss the telegraph system.

A telegraph system involves people going from poll-to-poll and voting in the name of registered electors who are dead, do not plan to vote or have changed addresses.

Mr. Cote said Mr. Laporte responsible for organizing 12 south-shore ridings, was not told about D'Asti and Di Iorio's presence. Both men have been identified in previous testimony before the inquiry as members of the Montreal underworld.

Mr. Cote told the inquiry he had paid the informer $500 for the information. The money had been taken from campaign funds after Communication with the legal adviser and election officer in St. Jacques.

Mr. Cote said that when he organized the meeting, he was not aware of the reputation of either Di Iorio or D'Asti.

D'Asti is serving 20 years in a New Jersey prison on a narcotics conviction. Di Iorio has been described before the inquiry as Montreal underworld leader.

Mr. Cote also testified about a third meeting involving D'Asti and Di Iorio which took place Nov. 3, 1969, during the Liberal party leadership convention.

The meeting, organized by Mr. Cote, was to seek help to finance Mr. Laporte's leadership campaign. However, it fell through when Di Iorio mentioned that Robert Bourassa had a better chance of winning.

Mr. Bourassa won the leadership convention in January, 1970, and was swept to power at the April, 1970, election.

Mr. Cote said the meeting had been arranged without the knowledge of Mr. Laporte, who said his organizers he did not want any contributions from "doubtful" persons.

The inquiry resumes public hearings Tuesday, Mr. Cote resumes his testimony Wednesday.

Doctors Need Continuing Education

OTTAWA (CP) — Almost 80 per cent of doctors agree that continuing medical education should be mandatory to retain a medical licence, the Canadian Medical Association has found in a survey.

Eighteen per cent of doctors disagreed with the association's position that a physician must demonstrate his continuing competence to practise, the association reports in its monthly journal.

Fifty three per cent of doctors felt that certified specialists should not be allowed to engage in general practice unless they demonstrate competence by written or clinical examinations. Forty three per cent said there should be no restriction while four per cent had no opinion.

The medical association has said implementation of a program of continuing education would require big changes in medical schools.

If continuing medical education becomes a condition for retaining a licence, departments of continuing education would have to be expanded and given more status.

Rolls Rolls Over

TORONTO (CP) — William Pirie was lucky to escape with only cuts and bruises when he drove a borrowed Rolls-Royce out of a parking garage in downtown Toronto. Somehow the gas pedal stuck and the heavily-built automobile careered through a plywood boarding on a construction site and dropped into a 40-foot excavation. The Rolls was valued at $28,000.

Last Big Troop Plane Flies From Trenton to Middle East

CAIRO (CP) — Canada's peacekeeping contingent in the Middle East reached its full strength of just over 1,000 men Thursday with the arrival of the last big troop-carrying aircraft, loaded with 168 soldiers.

They straggled into the Canadian headquarters camp here, about 12 hours after leaving Trenton, Ont., just as the initial planning began for Christmas festivities and a half-dozen pine trees, complete with decorations, were shipped from West Germany.

"Chris mas in Cairo? Sounds about as real as a summer holiday on an ice floe," said a private.

Nevertheless, Capt. Malcolm MacDonell of Ottawa, the Canadians' welfare officer, believes he can turn the festive season into a fairly enjoyable occasion.

"We don't really know what we'll have yet," he says. "But were hoping for some Egyptian musicians and maybe even a belly dancer or two.

"Now, I grant you that's not very Christmasy but hell, it would be a lot of fun."

Pvt. Fred Tice of Havelock, Ont., struggling to set up a camp cot in the tent he'll be sharing with 10 others in the camp, dismissed the thought of Christmas with a wave of his hand.

"I just want some cold beer fast and then a long, long sleep," he said. "Why am I not drinking already? Well, it's the army, see, and we're waiting for what? We don't know of course. But that's the army."

Sgt. Bob Burns of Saint John, N.B., in camp a few days before the last arrivals, arrived to find his brother, Cpl. Ray Burns, already on the ground and in charge of part of the processing for newcomers.

Pvt. Eric Gardener of Petawawa, Ont., packed a guitar on top of his other gear as he headed for a tent.

"Thinks he'll have time to practise and be sure as hell needs it," said Pvt. Norman Intress of North Bay.

Gardener probably will have time on his hands. The full deployment of the Canadians and 2,000 or so other men in national contingents making up the United Nations' force is an excruciatingly slow process.

The main cause of the delays is the inability of the Arabs and Israelis to agree on how and when to withdraw their armies and create buffer zones between them for policing by the UN. Most observers now believe there will be little or no progress until after a full-fledged peace conference set for later this month.

"So we have to wait," said Cadras. "Both we've been waiting six weeks in Canada to come here so what's another month or so?"

In general, the new arrivals found a camp now in fairly good working order after some major initial problems with hygiene and other matters. Morale, despite delays in deployment, appears good and the only real complaint seems to be the lack of entertainment in Cairo, particularly the glaring absence of eligible young women.

"I dont mind," boasted Tice, "im getting married soon as I go home. Still six months in this land and best. . . ."

Turkey Talk

In the kitchen at Club 213, the student run restaurant at Loyalist College, Ed Gould talks turkey with one of his students. Second and third year Hotel Management students work three days a week from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Club 213 as part of their course. In this demonstration, an Indian head was being molded on a roasted turkey for a buffet display.

Lunching in Loyalist Laboratory

An intimate little out-of the way dining room. Incredibly low prices and a complete bar.

Sound like an ideal spot for lunch? It is, if you attend or lunch at Loyalist College.

Run by Loyalist Hotel Management students, the restaurant served lunch to about 30 persons every Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

A sample menu might include appetizers like Seafood crepes de 45 cents or pate maison at 30 cents. Main dishes may be Poulet Sante au Vin Blanc at $1.60, a steak at around $2 or Pork Loin Provencale at $1.60. Selections from a dessert wagon cost 25 cents.

Drinks from the bar cost 75 cents, a bottle of wine like Nevit, a Yugoslavian Reisling, $4.50.

Friday is buffet day when everything from lobster tails to salads to whole fish or roast beef appear on a huge buffet at $2.50 per person.

Under the direction of instructors Ed Gould and Fred Gourke, Geoff Cosh is student manager.

Geoff, 22, says the problems he and the other second and third year students run into are the typical problems faced by any restaurant.

"Stuff isn't delivered or the help doesn't show up. Its the same anywhere."

But Geoff and the other students have an advantage: they don't have to make money.

The most little menu explains the low prices.

The mark up at Club 213 is just 100 per cent, it says, not the more usual restaurant mark up of 300 per cent. And besides, it explains, the restaurant is a laboratory for students. It also asks you not to expect perfection.

Geoff Cosh says school expects them to lose money.

It was designed to lose money, in fact, he says, "but we're trying to break even."

It's a difficult task, though, he says, especially since so many unusual dishes are offered that "we lose our shirts on."

But at least we get to try the dishes," he says.

"The student staff puts in a hard solid five hours of work without a break every Wednesday through Friday. Besides, they cater the monthly banquet of the school's Board of Governors."

"They get a really special meal," Geoff says.

Not too many things go wrong in the kitchen at Club 213, Geoff says.

"Ed Gould keeps a watchful eye on us."

However he admits the occasional batch of Hollandaise doesn't quite work out.

Menu warning or no, most guests have only good things to say about the meal they get at Club 213.

"They say 'It's better than we expected'," Geoff says.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH BLACK

Black — Hunt

Miss Glenda Margaret Hunt, daughter of Mrs. John Embury Hunt of Austin, Texas, and the late John Hunt, recently became the bride of Joseph Bernard Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Black, in Shettles Memorial United Methodist Church, Austin Texas, the newly-married couple now reside in Brockville.

Asphyxiation—Seasonal Killer

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (CP) — With the advent of cold weather, medical authorities are urging people to be alert to the dangers of asphyxiation.

Dr. Helen L. Bruce, acting health commissioner in St. Louis, said: "Carbon monoxide is a colorless, tasteless, odorless gas. Normal combustion produces only an insignificant amount of it, but incomplete combustion of any fuel increases the amount."

It is an insidious killer.

The early stages of poisoning are indicated by headache, dizziness and sleepiness," Dr. Bruce said. "As more gas is absorbed, symptoms include nausea, vomiting, fluttering and throbbing of the heart, and finally unconsciousness and death.

"These symptoms resemble those of many common diseases, and this makes it possible for a person or family to fail to recognize that they are being poisoned. Each year, more than 1,500 North Americans die from carbon monoxide poisoning, about 900 of them in their homes. And many of these deaths could have been prevented."

Fuel-burning heating systems should be checked at least once a year and kept in good repair and adjustment, Dr. Bruce advised.

The flames on most burners using natural gas or liquified petroleum gas should burn steadily with a clear, blue flame. A wavering, yellow flame on the normal gas burner means that it may be giving off excessive amounts of carbon monoxide. A clear, yellow or orange, steadily burning flame is an indication of good combustion of fuel oil-burning equipment.

Carbon monoxide acts somewhat like a biological bully: when breathed into the lungs, it crowds oxygen molecules off red blood cells, because it forms a tighter bond with the cells. In fact, its affinity for the cells is more than 200 times as strong as that of oxygen, Dr. Bruce said.

Puzzling Over Pennies

Instructor Ed Gould and a student puzzle over finances at Club 213, the student-run restaurant at Loyalist College. Students prepare the food, serve the meals and deal with all the management problems any restaurant must face. The restaurant laboratory is run by Hotel Management students.

MAGIC LADY
By Connie
Mrs. Norman Vincent Peale wrote a book called, "The Adventure of Being Yourself." Mrs. Peale says, "Beauty doesn't come in a bottle. It starts within". We as women need reminder (although it's difficult in today's dreamland world) that we are beautiful in our own way. Tim here is his idea are in the words, "simplicity" and "attitude". The old cliche "wash a mile in my shoes", is too often read but not understood. Mrs. Peale says to "study your man". Married or single this study will bring you enormous results. Ultimately, are absolutely deadly. No one including themselves like to be bored or to be cornered. The solution will be one of attack every time. Remember "as is now is static or "stale". In other words "as you treat is you will be treated". Don't be a loud mouth "broad", and the world smiles with you, cry, and you cry alone. If you don't believe that, try it. Next time you're angry, before saying anything, count to ten. Here is my objectionn. The best gift for any woman is to look in the mirror and smile and just repeat honestly, "Ain I magic. So the people I love and who love me think."
This week we feature our beauty But "Innershow" a long and natural silky bag only in a full range of colors. Can't grow long hair? Here's a solution. Wear a wig that looks so real, looks so natural, that no one will guess. How lucky can you get. Come on in and let's talk magic.

Dedicated Woman Dartmouth Mayor

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Ask Eileen Stubbs about the time she and several companions were thrown out when they tried to crash a service club party at which Xaviera Hollander was speaking.

She'll tell you the story with a smile. But she would rather talk about her city and what she hopes to be able to do for it.

Mrs. Stubbs, the first woman to be elected mayor of this city of 65,000 across the harbor from Halifax, is also the first woman to be elected mayor of any Nova Scotia city.

"I sense there are a tremendous number of happy people because I am here," she said.

Of her role as a woman in a responsible position with the city, she said, "I represent a type of freedom."

"We're going to have better-informed aldermen because unless we work as a unit and know what each of us is doing, we'll end up with problems. There's nothing more disconcerting than finding that someone made a statement that doesn't fit with what we plan."

"There aren't going to be many decisions made around here without my knowing about them."

She is articulate, charming, witty and vast from her "down years" experience in municipal politics and having raised eight children.

Her hair is slightly greying. She dresses smartly and has the air of an executive.

Eileen Stubbs doesn't see herself as a woman in a man's job but rather as a person in a job that demands attention. And she intends to do that job as well as she can.

One of her first changes was making the position a full-time job.

She'll talk to anyone who has a problem and work to resolve it.

She says she has sensed acceptance by residents because she was elected by the little people.

Eileen Stubbs smiles a lot. She will not reveal her age but she is a grandmother.

During a period when she was not representing people as an alderman, Mrs. Stubbs was on staff at the weekly Dartmouth Free Press. She said she decided to enter the 1971 mayoralty contest despite the odds posed by some candidates who had money behind them.

She is involved in a number of issues with business in the community, but she is most concerned about people, what the city can do for them and what they can do for the city.

She said she was pleased with the workings of her staff and happy with the way they look an interest in the city administration.

"I want to have a 'little town-big city' here. My door is always open and people who know me can come to see me. Those who don't can come and meet me.

"I know my concept of the office may be a little idealistic, yet there is a reason why it shouldn't work."

She said she wants to see more community development and involvement and she said she can only see results if people are respected.

"You've got to respect a person for his position just as you expect him to respect you."

Eileen Stubbs has only two of her eight children at home. The others are married, working or at university.

A daughter attends university in St. John's, Nfld., which, incidentally, is the only other city in the Atlantic Provinces with a woman mayor.

She said of her home life that her involvement in community affairs was never a problem with her family. When her election was confirmed, the family just went back to being a family instead of election boosters. And she went back to being a mother.

Of the incident when she and her companions were physically ejected from the stag party with Xavier Hollander, author of The Happy Hooker, Mrs. Stubbs said she hoped she would receive a formal invitation next year, no matter who the speaker was to be.

After all, she is the mayor.

IT'S A FAIR COP

Ann Landers

'Foreign Substance' Turns Off Appetite

Dear Ann Landers: What should a person do if he is dining in the home of a friend and he comes upon a foreign substance in the food like, shall we say, a hairpin in the souffle? This happened to me recently and I said nothing, but it could have been a serious thing.

Yesterday, I had a similar experience, only it was a worm in a fresh peach which had been sliced and served over ice cream. I was speaking to the hostess when I noticed it. I took my wits about me, continued to talk, and ate around the worm.

If such a thing happens again what should be done? Do you feel the hostess would want to know? — Lost My Appetite

Dear Lost: Anyone who can eat around a worm and carry on a conversation with Ok lady can eat the same time doesn't need advice from Ann Landers. I don't think the hostess would "want to know." Keep quiet, honey.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me is divorce bad before I lose my mind. My first marriage was a disaster. I was only 18 and didn't know what I was getting into. I somehow managed to finish nurse's training and support myself.

After being divorced only six months I married David, a smooth-talking, handsome alcoholic. (I didn't know it then but I should have recognized the signs.) That was six years ago and my life has been hell ever since.

I am 31 years old and look at least 48. I scream at my children and can't be civil to my friends. David has had four car accidents, two of them totals. Our car insurance has been cancelled. We've been stopped 14 times. I've caught him with terrible women, tramps he picks up in bars. I'm on needles and pins wherever he is around my family. Afraid he'll insult somebody and start a fight.

David is on a bender now but he'll call in a few days and ask me to take him back. Of course, I will. For some strange reason I still love him. I must be as sick as he is. Please, Ann, say something to convince me that I'm better off without him. — Older Than My Years

Dear Friend: In the first sentence of your letter, you ask me to tell you to divorce him. But you don't really want to divorce him or you'd have done it. The crux of your problem is expressed in the fourth sentence of your last paragraph. When you're well enough to give up the punishment, you'll split—for good.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old guy who needs to know what to do. Right now I'm hurt, mad, insulted and mixed up. This is my story.

I just phoned a girl I like a lot. We've dated some—not much, but I thought she liked me. When I asked her if I could come over after supper she said, "Wait a minute." She thought she had the mouthpiece of the phone covered and I heard her say, "How can I get rid of this creep? He wants to come over and I don't want him to." Then she came back on and said, "I'm sorry but I have to go someplace with my folks."

I just avoid this bird because we are in several classes together and have the same friends. How, should I act? Should I let her know I heard what she said?—Double Ears

Dear D. E.: Act natural. Don't let on that you heard her. Now that you know how she really feels, keep your distance and turn your attentions elsewhere.

Successful Living

Marriage Is 'We', Not 'Me'

By DORIS CLARK

A few weeks ago we talked about what makes a good marriage. One of the plus things was thinking "in terms of "we".

Being married is different from being single. A man and woman have been drawing to each other; and without losing individuality they make their plans for a home, for children, for just about everything, together.

It is no longer what I want that counts but what we want. A man and woman present themselves as a united front to the world and to their own children. They back each other up when it comes to decisions about child behavior.

When somebody visits them, they develop a knack of passing the conversational ball back and forth, and drawing out the shy or new person in their midst. Of each being responsible for certain parts of an evening's fun or refreshments.

Dear Doris: Having lived with my wife for thirty years, I hesitate to put my beef down on paper. I love her.

However, that doesn't keep things from hurling, sometimes. On a recent trip, I neglected to make a hotel reservation at the place she wanted to stay, early enough. As a result, we stayed in a motel which was not quite as convenient, from the point of view of shopping and so on.

My wife was so annoyed that our time was completely tension-wrought. I simply couldn't do anything to please her.

It is odd how love provides such fertile soil for feelings of hurt — and some resentment. I dare say this is a statement your frequently find correspondents making. It seems such a universal reaction, but kinda puzzling too.

Puzzled Husband.

Dear Puzzled: It seems we take out our feelings — good or bad — on the people we care most about. Why?

Because we are sure of them. We know that love will keep on loving us even if we blast them. If we were to take out our anger on the boss, we might get fired; showing temper to a cop might cause a neighborhood ruckus.

So your wife is inconvenienced, proceeds to be the culprit, and she takes it out on you.

She forgets that all of us are imperfect, have our hang-ups, and we still struggle along. But if we can continue to make love important enough to be going one hundred per cent all the time, and if our partner in life does the same, we manage. We have to try to keep the hurts and resentments from overbalancing the good things.

Confidential to Curious To Know: If there is no will, the widow has dower rights, which is one life interest in part or all of the husband's property, at least. Details are different in each province.

Famous Director Makes Home Movies

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — For decades Roman armies moved into battle on his command and Hollywood superstars like Betty Davis and Humphrey Bogart followed his directions.

Now veteran director William Wyler sits in his luxurious Hollywood villa home and looks down on the gargantuan city which, when he came to it, was a patchwork of cowsheds, movie studios and orange groves.

A three-time winner of the Academy Award for best director, Wyler has most of his classic films like The Best Years of Our Lives, The Little Foxes and Mrs. Miniver in his home vault, but never watches them.

Instead he has taken to making home movies of infrequent travels which he edits and shows to friends.

"In my old age I have gone back to being an amateur," says the stooped, grey-haired little man whose lively-embroidered eyes and hawk nose have fallen victim to an ever-crouching deafness.

His retirement home (he says he would go back to directing if he got a good part "but it would have to be a very good one") is set in Hollywood's aristocratic row.

Mary Pickford, a recluse, is a neighbor. Fred Astaire lives next door. The Charlie Chaplin mansion lies beyond his swimming pool and tree-lined back fence.

Among his activities has been the writing of an autobiography with the help of journalist Axel Madsen.

An emigre to Hollywood from his native Switzerland in 1920, Wyler participated in the whole span of the film capital's history from two-reel action films through talkies and the stars and technicolor epics of the 40s and 50s.

He is proud both of the variety of his films and the fact that they had something to say to their times.

"I was rather lucky in my choice of material," he says. "I'd say, talk to him down-to-earth people. I didn't like because during most of that time I was a bachelor.

"Because I didn't have to make money by being a family man, I was able to say no to a lot of projects that turned out crummy.

"Of course I said no to some projects that turned out great too—like The Sound of Music and Patton."

When Wyler first came to Hollywood he was just another of the assorted nephews, cousins and other relatives of one of Hollywood's many and grasping characters, Carl Laemmle, the head of Universal Studios.

He worked his way up through being an extra to directing of two-reeler western films.

In 1930, he caught the eye of the critics and studio chiefs with an unusual western called Hell's Heroes.

That success led to big pictures like Ben Hur and Bette Davis's greatest films, Jezebel, The Little Foxes and The Letter, and also to a stormy and short-lived marriage with actress Margaret Sullavan.

Wyler believes that getting involved in films in those days was easier than it is in the sprawling, fiercely competitive Los Angeles of today.

"In those days Hollywood was small and [illegible] so very isolated," he said. "It was easier to get a job and an opportunity.

But he thinks modern directors have one big advantage in the freedom they are given to express themselves.

"We never did things off the cuff or improvised. You couldn't even say ball in a picture. I remember making films where the leading man couldn't kiss the girl until the last shot in the picture."

He admits the new freedom has produced excesses. "Freedom has its risks," he said. "Everything has its bad side. But I know for me, I don't want anyone to tell me what films I can make. I read books I can read. I want to make up my own mind."

His independent-mindedness not only led to him being given unsolicited assignments like Wuthering Heights—a love story with a tragic ending, almost unheard of in Hollywood then—but also to "message" pictures like Mrs. Miniver and The Best Years of Our Lives.

Wyler himself calls Mrs. Miniver a "propaganda film." The picture, depicting British heroism under the blitz, is credited with helping swing U.S. public opinion towards Britain.

In the early 50s, Wyler's outspokenness led to clashes with the House of Representatives Un-American Activities committee, then carrying on a purge of alleged communists and radicals from the film industry.

"I didn't suffer in any way but I fought the committee," Wyler said. "We were not de-

Watercolor Library

An exhibition entitled Painters in Watercolor now hangs in the Corby Library upper gallery and will continue until Dec. 16. The show, made available through the Art Gallery of Ontario extension department, consists of 25 paintings selected from the work of members of the Canadian Society of Painters in Watercolor.

Chief librarian Olive Delaney said yesterday that although the library leans heavily upon the work submitted by the Belleville Art Association, it tries to bring in about four exhibitions a year from AGO. However, this year due to the turmoil surrounding the construction of the library's new wing, no other exhibition was shown.

Other circulating exhibitions in the AGO series consist of photographs, drawings, silk, posters and Chinese art. The current show consists of still life studies and landscapes done in a variety of techniques.

"Now that the library has excellent display facilities," said Miss Delaney, "we will be bringing in other exhibitions from the Toronto gallery."

Your Horoscope

Saturday, Dec. 8

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) Let your heart rule your head today where your generosity is involved. Be kind rather than too logical in helping one who needs you know.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Though your ideas and another's represent divergent points of view, a mild, calm discussion now so your relationship will remain stable.

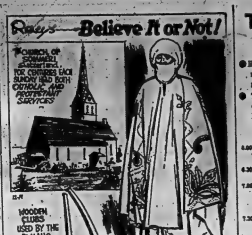
Gemini (May 21-June 20) Success will ask you to do someone's favor today. At first you may refuse. Upon second thought the nicer you will proceed through.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Today you will inadvertently say something that will upset a pal. Be sure to apologize promptly so hard feelings won't ensue.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You have two close companions: one talks a lot, performs little; the other always comes through. Give your support to the doer at this time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will need some mental diversion today. Get your mind off everything. Devote some time to a hobby or creative pursuit.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You will have to keep a tight rein on your purse at this time. Before buying something, be sure obligations already are taken care of.



Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It would be wise for you not to jump to conclusions today. Wait till you have the complete picture—it will save you an apology later.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Early in the day you won't be in good spirits. Don't saddle yourself with disagreeable chores at that time. Toward afternoon you're much more industrious.

Alberta Sets Price

Oil Companies' Role Is Reduced

EDMONTON (CP) — International oil companies across Alberta face the prospect of having their role reduced to merely finding, producing and processing crude oil.

This is the result of an unprecedented "energy week" in the legislature that produced bills to give the Alberta cabinet power to buy and sell most of the crude oil and set the prices and tax rates for it.

Previously, prices were established by companies in the open market.

The latest move came Thursday when the last of four bills was introduced in what the province has described as an attempt to prevent the federal government from muscling in on what Alberta sees as its jurisdiction over its natural resources.

The final bill, said Bill Dickie, minister of mines and minerals, will enable the province "for the first time to be the price setter of our crude oil—instead of the larger international oil companies."

"It will considerably strengthen Alberta's position in meeting and protecting the constitutional responsibility to manage the development of the crude oil resources owned by the people of Alberta."

The bill establishes the Alberta Petroleum Marketing Commission, controlled by the cabinet, which would take over from the industry the exclusive right to buy and sell most oil and set prices for it.

The oil involved would come from the 35,000 Crown leases, in which the province has retained ownership of mineral rights that account for 85 per cent of the province's oil.

Bills introduced earlier this week give the cabinet power to set royalty rates—a form of tax on production—at any level it wishes.

The new legislation also would tear up long-standing contracts that set the maximum royalty levels at 16 2-3 per cent of the total value of production.

Government spokesmen say the royalty bills and the proposed marketing commission are designed partly to provide an alternative to Ottawa's export tax on crude oil which the Alberta government opposes as a violation of its jurisdiction over mineral resources.

The marketing commission would have the right to go after "the opportunity price" for crude oil wherever it might be available.

This, Alberta spokesmen say, is exactly what Ottawa did through its export tax which was imposed because United States prices had soared above Canadian levels.

Energy Minister Donald Mac-Donald has said such an approach by Alberta is possible.

The marketing commission bill also contains a provision which would be enacted if Alberta and Ottawa were able to reach agreement.

This section would empower the commission to sell petroleum at one price for the Canadian market and a higher price for the export market.

export, or opportunity, price and the domestic price would be collected by the commission, Mr. Dickie said. He expects this would be about 30 cents a barrel.

In practice, he said, this would be the difference between crude oil prices at Chicago and the "average international market price" for crude oil imported at Montreal.

The price of Alberta crude is currently fixed at $4 a barrel although the freeze is due to be lifted by the federal government Feb. 1. The Chicago opportunity price is about $6.25. The international price at Montreal ranges from about $5.60 to $5.80.

All sales of Alberta oil to and from the proposed commission would take place within Alberta.

Alberta Dims Lights Despite Energy Bounty

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta is sitting pretty when it comes to energy, but it isn't flaunting its good fortune.

Blessed with the Athabasca oil sands, which contain an estimated 300 billion barrels of recoverable synthetic crude, and 31.7 billion tons of coal reserves, the energy shortages that threaten Quebec and the Atlantic provinces are a remote possibility for the province's 1.6 million residents.

But the Albertans are showing some sympathy for less-fortunate portions of the country. They are turning off Christmas lights early and dimming office buildings.

"We shouldn't flaunt our good fortune in areas that could have energy shortages," Glen Lavold, Edmonton Chamber of Commerce president, said in explaining a decision to keep the city's downtown Christmas lights burning for only four hours a day instead of from dusk to dawn.

A flare on the Alberta legislature grounds, fed by natural gas, still is burning 24 hours a day, but two Edmonton hotels have snuffed out similar flares.

And most of the lights in Edmonton's tallest office structure, the 35-storey Alberta Government Telephones building, are being turned off at night.

Dr. Norbert Berkowitz, director of fuel sciences for the Alberta Research Council, says the recoverable oil in the Athabasca oil sands, 220 miles northeast of Edmonton, could meet Canada's oil needs for 400 years at current rates of consumption.

The coal reserves, which have potential for producing synthetic gas to supplement declining reserves of natural gas, would meet Alberta's existing needs for more than 1,000 years.

Canadian Christmas Unaffected

By CHRISTOPHER CARROLL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadians apparently may expect a normal Christmas this year despite the energy crisis and unseasonably mild temperatures throughout parts of Canada.

The requests for cutbacks in energy consumption do not seem to have affected the Christmas spirit and predictions by weathermen indicate a cooler trend developing for the festive season. There may even be snow in some areas.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that while most stores in Canada have not yet had much snow Canadians are doing their Christmas shopping as usual.

Shoppers in Vancouver are flocking to department stores in larger numbers than last year, store spokesmen said.

Merchants in Toronto, Regina, Calgary and in the Maritimes all echo the same feelings that sales are increasing and business is good.

However in Edmonton, hit by a strike involving the city transit service, one downtown store has laid off workers because of reduced income.

Store spokesmen said the strike might mean an exceptionally busy last-minute rush to shop whether the transit strike is settled or not.

In Toronto, where, Dec. 3, the temperature climbed to 59 degrees—breaking the 1948 record of 53—shoppers have been out in force.

"The weather doesn't seem to be affecting us at all," a department store spokesman said. "Once Christmas starts, I don't believe there is anything that slows it down. Business is good."

Cannot Please All

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Osmond Solarzi said Thursday that after 19 days and four evenings of public hearings into a proposed Ontario Hydro corridor, he is convinced thousands of people will be offended by whatever report he submits to the government.

Protest by Picket

Joining province-wide protest against government restrictions, Service Employees International Union members staged demonstration Thursday night outside Belleville General Hospital. Union rejects denial of strike rights and says budget restrictions on hospitals not only are unfair to labor negotiations but is affecting patient care standards.

Hospital Workers Out in Protest

Members of the Service Employees International Union staged a picket outside Belleville General Hospital Thursday night — part of a province-wide protest against Ontario government restrictions.

FRANK RABEL

The picket was organized from members of the two union locals at BGH, representing roughly 600 people — a majority of BGH's work force, excluding nursing and administration staff.

The SEIU is opposing denial to hospital employees strike rights and imposed budget limitations.

Both measures seriously affect the labor bargaining processes union spokesmen on the BGH picket said.

Restricted budget increases allowed hospitals by the provincial government are also harming patient care. Hospitals are being forced to cut back staff, said John Ernest Jones, president of SEIU Local 662, representing technical and office workers.

Employees in Local 183, bargaining agent for more than 400 dietary, janitor, maintenance and housekeeping personnel, this year had an example of the problem posed by government attitudes, he said.

Some 10 months negotiating ended in an arbitration decision.

Loyalist Governor Resigns

Former Loyalist board of directors' chairman Frank Rabel stepped down Thursday night from his seven-year tenure on the board.

Pleading pressure of business, the one-time chairman and founding governor has resigned from the board.

Present chairman, John Doselan paid tribute to Mr. Rabel, saying that he had brought several perspectives to the board, that of an industrialist, a businessman, a politician and a person interested in labor.

Mr. Rabel is an executive with Bata Engineering.

Firefighting Techniques To Be Subject of Series

The election of officers and a discussion of plans for instituting a new series of firefighting education programs for next year were the main points on the agenda of Wednesday's meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Fire Aid Association.

The mutual aid association, composed of all volunteer and professional fire departments in the area bounded by Trenton, Deseronto, Picton and Madoc, is a co-operative organization of firefighters designed to provide Quinty area residents with a comprehensive and co-ordinated system of fire protection.

Meeting every month, the association's members gather to upgrade their firefighting skills and to discuss problems they share together in fighting fires.

Wednesday's meeting saw approximately 50 firefighters gather at the firehall in Frankford to watch a demonstration put on by the para-rescue team from Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

Officers elected at Wednesday's meeting include: Bob Pierce, of Thurlow, president; Steve Watts, of Sidney, vice-president and Tom Nobles, also of Sidney, second vice-president. Bruce Gelsthorpe, of Corbyville, will fill the position of secretary.

It was revealed at Wednesday's meeting that the 14 member departments of the mutual aid association had fought a total of 99 fires this past November.

The next meeting of the mutual aid group will be held Jan. 2, at the Number 1 fire hall in Ameliasburgh. At that meeting, a representative of the Ontario Firehall's Association will give a talk on Canadian Firefighting Equipment 1974-1974.

Library Board Appointments

MARMORA — Mrs. Peggy Bertrand and Mrs. Verna Hughes were appointed to represent Marmora and Lake townships on the new Marmora and Lake union public library board for a one-year term starting next year.

He was clerk treasurer of Willoughby township before the municipality became part of Niagara Falls regional government. He then joined the former Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs as a municipal organization supervisor.

At Napanee, Mr. McNamee will succeed Lyman Graham who has held the position since 1954 but now wants to retire.

No Limit to Amount Of Used Paper Needed

By HARRY MULHALL

Paper is made of money.

Butcivic spirit, not economics is the basic impulse driving a community project recycling operation.

Citizen co-operation is the key if such a project is to realize its potential as a needed environment and resources saver, says Alderman Jean Smith.

As project pickups entered a second month Thursday, Ald. Smith praised the responsibilities of Bellevillians to date.

But, the starting 32 tons they contributed in November is only the tip of the wastepaper heap that could be harvested throughout Hastings County, she estimates.

Ald. Smith is chairman of the Area Solid Wastes Committee, representing the city, Trenton and county municipalities. A consultants' study, soon to be scrutinized by the committee, estimates recyclable paper potential in the county anywhere between 9,000 and 18,000 tons, she says. In 20 years this could almost triple.

Current realization of resources shortages have heightened awareness of recycling, originally prompted by environmental worries says the city councillor.

It's a basic method of offsetting future production costs for a basic commodity which could "go sky-high" without help.

Marvin Holzman agrees. Mr. Holzman is a key figure in the recycling operation. Owner of Belleville Metal and Waste, he is the purchaser of all scrapped paper being collected, thus making the operation economically feasible. He pays $10 a ton - - $8 to the city garbage contractor which does the pickups, the balance to the city, which mechanically unloads and piles the paper in his warehouse.

Now 25 years buying and selling wastepaper, he says people are more aware than ever of the recycling need. But there's plenty of room for expansion. The paper is wanted — and the business can handle it since it's a cheap commodity and profits are linked to bulk. Currently he estimates he ships maybe seven tons of paper daily to a Napanee - area pulp mill.

Costs indicate the need, he says. Last year going price Mr. Holzman paid for wastepaper was $6-$7 a ton. If current trends continue next year could bring another increase over today's $10.

"There's no reason why all this paper should go to the dump - - only helping to fill up the sites - - if it can be reused," he says.

The current operation follows a voluntary pilot project launched earlier after organization by Bellevillian Gary Rook of People Against A Contaminated Environment (PACE). For volunteers it was time-demanding. Ald. Smith, anxious the idea not be lost, got the new scheme organized.

She's hopeful the present system of pickup and disposal proves out.

But ultimately, any sustained or broadened success comes back to citizen willing assistance and convenience — "is separating, bundling the key," she says.

"The whole thing depends on the people in the community," says Ald. Smith.

Fire Poster Winners Announced

Eleven Grade 5 students in Belleville have received an early Christmas gift from the city's firefighters this past week.

Fire Inspectors Paul Stephenson and Reg Christopher toured the city's schools this week awarding prizes for the 1973 Fire Prevention Poster Contest.

This years winners were: Eric Hasselleit, Harry J. Clarke School, 1st place boys; Alan Makkawi, Parkdale School, 2nd place boys; Michael Scholell, Sir Winston Churchill School, 3rd place boys; Susan Empson, Prince Charles School, 1st place girls; Debbie Shaw, Parkdale School, 2nd place girls and Marie Coyea, St. Joseph's School, 3rd place girls.

Consolation prizes went to Eric Drolet, Parkdale School; Julie Metus, Queen Elizabeth School; Kevin Lucas, Hillcrest School; Adam Weyant, Harry J. Clarke School and Deirdre Boyle, St. Michael's School.

Fire Inspector Paul Stephenson explained that the 11 winners were selected from over 280 entrants who prepared posters on the theme of fire prevention in the home.

The winning posters have been sent to Toronto, where they will be judged along with posters from all over Ontario at the next meeting of the Ontario Fire Chief's Association.

In Belleville, first place winner will win $25, second place winners received $15 and third place winners got $10. A consolation winners received $5.

Posters were judged for artistic merit and quick recognition of their message.

Bottle Thrower Goes to Jail

A Belleville man, who yesterday was convicted of attempting to cause willful damage to a police cruiser on Halloween night, will spend the next two months in jail.

Craig Martin, 21, of 456 Bridge Street East, was sentenced to two months in jail yesterday by Judge J. L. Glendenning, after he was found guilty on a charge of attempting to cause willful damage.

Martin was arrested by police last Halloween, after he threw a beer bottle at the back of a police cruiser that was patrolling Bridge Street, near the Belleville plaza. He pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Police told the court yesterday that they had been conducting a regular patrol of the city's east end around 10.45 p.m. on Halloween, when they spotted a small group of young people walking west along Bridge Street. When they slowed down to watch the group, someone threw a beer bottle at the back windshield of the unmarked cruiser.

On stopping the car they found Martin standing approximately 30 feet behind the group. He had a full bottle of beer, similar to the one thrown at the cruiser, in his jacket pocket.

Martin tried to tell the court that someone else in the group had thrown the beer bottle at the police.

However, the police officer who was driving the cruiser, said he had been watching Martin in the rearview mirror and saw him throw something at the cruiser.

Organizing Helps

For Bellevillians willing to co-operate in the current community paper recycling project, there are some basics to remember.

Observance may even offset frustration — expressed by residents Thursday when they found their carefully-sorted bundles inadvertently being loaded in garbage trucks, says Ald. Jean Smith.

Among tips from the city councilor:

— Pulp mills accept only clean waste.

— Leave paper on sidewalks the night before advertised pickup, which Tuesday in month. The collection truck runs ahead of garbage vehicles. Getting paper out early will avoid "invitation" of many seeing it mistaken later for garbage.

— Don't use plastic garbage bags for bundling. This creates sorting problems at waste warehouse.

Stripper Goes Up

Sheila Hannon, with the help of her husband, Dan Sherrett, hangs Patrick Cocklin's The Stripper from the rafter of the Bridge Street Gallery the couple opened today. The modified batik is one of several pieces displayed in the newest addition to gallery row in Belleville. Etchings, woven work, and paintings of local artists, as well as artists from Toronto and Ottawa will be shown.

Gallery Opens On Bridge St.

GALLERY Take 1 and 2

The arrival of Dan Sherrett and Sheila Hannon in Belleville was a planned accident, the opening of the newest city art gallery today. The Bridge Street Gallery, is not.

Since their arrival here two months ago, the husband and wife team have been thinking of opening a gallery. When a store, formerly the Quinte Help Fund offices, came up for rent, they jumped at the chance.

Originally from Dunville, Ontario, a small community on the shores of Lake Erie Mr. Sherrett explains their presence in Belleville simply. On a Monday morning, a lift he generally got into Hamilton to work just didn't arrive. Not liking Dunville overly much, he decided to leave. Since some friends lived in Belleville, they decided to come here.

Speaking of the gallery, he said, "We're going to try to keep away from showing junk, and try to get around to one or two-man shows eventually." However, neither expects this to occur until after Christmas.

At present, the gallery is displaying batiks, pottery and weaving. The pottery of Kathryn Cody and Plainfield's Peter Coviello, once a painter in England, are now on show.

Several hangings by Marion Casson are on display as well as work by Patrick Cocklin of Ottawa.

"We don't differentiate between craft and art," says Miss Hannon, "That's why we have both in the gallery. Its not because one sells or the other doesn't."

Mr. Sherrett agreed, saying they try not to discriminate. Quality will be the key to the front door of the small gallery.

"Were looking for good quality work," says his wife.

Eventually, both hope to display some of their own work, but when that will be neither knows. Since leaving Sheridan College, Brampton campus, neither have had the opportunity to spend a great deal to time working.

College Break In February

Students at Loyalist College will have a week-long winter break from Feb. 24 to March 3 this year.

The board of governors Thursday night approved the break for full-time post-secondary students. The faculty will remain on campus, as will nursing, mental retardation, DND and retraining students.

Most community colleges are taking their mid-winter break late in February because that week is midway through the term of second semester. Elementary and secondary students take their break later in March.

Students Will Leave School To Learn

Grade 7 and 8 students at Queen Elizabeth School will spend next week using the community as a classroom.

The 250 students are participating in operation understanding. A project designed to let young people learn outside the classroom. It is also an exercise in responsibility, as each pupil has made up his own timetable for the week and is required in many cases to get to his community destination on his own.

The students will spend Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday outside the class room. On Wednesday they will go in a body to Toronto to visit the Science Centre and the Legislature. Tuesdays and Thursdays they will go in small groups to visit industries and other points of interest in Belleville. Some will tour Loyalist, other will go to Albert College, Hastings County Museum, the Ontario Provincial Police, the radio station and the Four Seasons Hotel.

Special guest and activities at the school will occupy Monday and Friday. Boys will have an opportunity to take cooking classes, there will be hair and music workshops and a sports and music day on Friday.

Enrolment Increased

Belleville's community college, Loyalist, met its enrolment predictions this year, one of few colleges in Ontario to do so.

P. G. Harry, director of finance told directors Thursday night that enrolment had increased in 1974, 20.9 per cent over 1973. The college now has 5,918 fulltime post secondary school students.

The college has experienced a growth of 18.6% in full-time post secondary school students. Part-time post secondary students have increased by 17.2 per cent. The number of extension (night school) students had increased by 40.8 per cent.

The 'Have Nots' Pick Up Points

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two of the "have-not" clubs in the World Hockey Association had their innings again Thursday night as New Jersey Knights and Los Angeles Sharks came up with victories over second-place teams in each division.

The Knights, who are wallowing in the basement of the East Division, edged Cleveland Crusaders, runners-up in the East 3-2, while the Sharks upset Houston Aeros of the Western sector 4-3. It was the first victory over Houston in four attempts this season for Los Angeles, which is in fifth place in the West.

In the only other match, Edmonton Oilers stopped Toronto Toros winning streak at five games, with a 4-3 victory.

The Knights have found it difficult to put together three good periods of hockey this season, but against Cleveland Friday night they didn't have to. Two were good enough.

"After being badly outplayed in the first period, we were embarrassed, sa'd Knights coach Harry Howell. "We had to ourselves, why let one mediocre goalie Joe Junkin—do all the work' And we went out and did played the Crusaders in the second and third periods."

The result ended a four-game Cleveland winning streak.

The Crusaders blasted 20 shots at Junkin in the first period but he stopped 18 of them.

"Junkin kept us in the game," said Howell. "He did all the work."

"Defensively we were playing real well, said Norm Ferguson, who got the winning goal for New Jersey, "but were not scoring enough goals."

"We just can't seem to put together three good periods in a row," said Ferguson, who joined the WHA last season after four years with California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League.

Los Angeles 4 Houston 3

Gary Veneruzzo scored a pair of goals and assisted on two others to lead the Sharks to victory. Mark Howe produced two for the Aeros, both times on passes from his father, Gordie. They were Mark's eighth and ninth of the season.

Edmonton 4 Toronto 3

Jim Harrison was a popular fellow around Toronto when he played for the Maple Leafs of the NHL for three seasons, but he was highly unpopular with the Toros Friday night when he popped in the winning goal with less than two minutes remaining.

Harrison, the leading scorer in the WHA with 38 points, beat Gilles Gratton with a 15-foot shot along the ice at 18:08. Earlier, the husky centre scored with a hard 35-footer.

Jim Harrison of Edmonton Oilers got his 12th and 13th goals of the year Thursday night to increase his—World Hockey Association points lead to three over Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros.

Harrison has 38 points, including a league high of 25 assists, and Carleton has 35 goals and 30 assists.

Favell Stymies North Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, perennial rivals among the old members of the National Hockey League lodges, appear to be headed for a showdown over second place in the East Division.

The Canadiens defeated New York Islanders 4-2 Thursday night to close within four points of the leading Boston Bruins who were idle, but when the ice chips settled, Montreal was only one point ahead of Toronto at the Leafs beat Minnesota North Stars 4-1.

However, with neither team able to produce a prolonged winning streak, the standings could change drastically before the two teams get a chance to tangle again. They are not scheduled to meet until Dec. 28, when the Canadiens play at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Goalie Doug Favell kicked away 26 shots and his acrobatic stops frustrated the North Stars, who are next to last in the West Division. Tony Featherstone, who scored Minnesota's only goal, was stopped three times by Favell at point-blank range. The victory put Leafs into a third-place tie with New York Rangers, who bowed to Buffalo Sabres 8-4 in the only other game of the night.

Coach Red Kelly who has introduced a three-goalie starting rotation, said "I put all three of them into the bag, shook it up and no one came to the top. There's no reason why not again. All three of them have been great."

Redmond Out of Action

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League said Thursday night they will be without right winger Mickey Redmond for the next few games because of a shoulder injury.

Redmond, with 14 goals and 10 assists, hurt his shoulder Wednesday night in a game against Chicago Black Hawks.

He has played for three weeks with bandages over the area.

OFFICE MOVED

HOUSTON (AP) — Lee McPhail, new president of the American League, said Thursday that the league will move its office to New York from Boston. The league office has been in Boston since 1959, when Joe Cronin was elected president.

The Leafs gave up an average of 36.8 goals per game last year. This season, it's about 2.25.

"We all want to play more," said Favell, "But we're close friends and we're happy . . . as long as we're winning we're satisfied."

"He was brilliant," said North Star Coach Parker MacDonald. "We should have been up 5-0 after the first period."

Montreal 4 NY Islanders 2

The Canadiens spoiled the Islanders a 1-0 lead on a goal by Denis Potvin at 11:4 of the first period.

Frank Mahovlich put Montreal back with a three-goal outburst in the second period, sparked by Jacques Lemaire. The victory was the fifth straight on the road for Montreal.

The Canadiens now have a superb 18-3-1 record for the season in games on foreign ice.

Buffalo 8 NY Rangers 4

Rookie Rick Dudley, a Toronto native, whose last amateur club was St. Catharines Black Hawks in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A league, was the big gun in the Sabres triumph in a hockey played game in Buffalo.

Dudley, who scored 46 goals last season for Cincinnati Swords of the American Hockey League, connected three times Thursday night and added an assist. The victory was the fourth in a row for the Sabres, who faltered briefly after losing star Gil Perreault with a broken leg several weeks ago. It snapped New York's unbeaten string at 10 games.

Veteran goalie Denis DeJordy has rejoined Baltimore Clipers of the American Hockey League after a brief and disastrous stint with Detroit Red Wings. The Wings shipped DeJordy back to Baltimore Thursday after the 36-year-old netminder was rocked for four goals in his only appearance this season with the NHL team.

DeJordy had been recalled Wednesday to try to stop Detroit's three-game losing streak, but he was bombed by Chicago Black Hawks who scored three goals on him within a 70-second span and he just took one more period.

In tonight's action, Detroit plays at St. Louis Blues, Atlanta Falcons are on the west coast to play Vancouver Canucks and Pittsburgh Penguins visit California Golden Seals.

Ullman Sixth In NHL Race

Veteran Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs scored his 13th goal of the season Thursday night to take over sole possession of sixth place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Ullman, who also has 17 assists, now has 30 points but is still behind leading Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins, with 33 points.

First Goal of Game Doesn't Mean A Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Trois Rivieres Draveurs, Drummondville Rangers and Laval Nationals all got the first goals in their respective Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League games Thursday night and all lost.

Trois-Rivieres took an early 1-0 lead over Cornwall Royals and wound up on the short end of a 12-4 score in Cornwall. Drummondville blew a 3-0 lead and lost 11-5 to Sorel Black Hawks and Laval Nationals dropped a 5-4 decision to Hull Festivals in overtime.

At Cornwall, Bob Chase and John Nazar each scored three times to pace the West Division leading Royals to their 21st win in 27 decisions.

Gary MacGregor, with two, Dan Geoffrion, Doug Chase, Pierre Bressard and Bob Murray got the other Cornwall goals with Alain Theroux, Dave Miglia, Jacques Verreault and Guy Briere scoring for the Draveurs.

Tonight, Hull goes to Sorel, Montreal Juniors travel to Sherbrooke to play the Beavers, Chicoutimi Sagueneens are home against Drummondville and Laval visits Shawinigan Dynamos.

Quebec Remparts, last year's league champions, will play Moscow Selects in an international exhibition game tonight in Quebec.

Rangers Regain 3rd

OTTAWA (CP) — Gloucester Rangers pulled back into a third-place tie in the Central Junior Hockey League Thursday by beating Pembroke Lumber Kings 5-4 before about 500 fans.

The Rangers now are even with Nepean Raiders behind Smiths Falls Bears in the six-team league. Pembroke is one place back.

Hugh Rham and Mike McDaffe scored two each to pace the win as the Rangers beat Pembroke 20-28. Marc Aubry scored the other Gloucester goal.

Randy Burman scored twice, Paul Sawyer and Tim Dailey once each, for the Kings, who trailed 3-1 and 4-3 at the period breaks of a strong, clean and competitive game.

It was the only game of the night scheduled, although tonight Nepean is in Brockville against the Warriors and Gloucester is in Smiths Falls.

WIN FOR TURCOTTE

Black Hawks Tie Petes 3-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dave Gorman's goal with less than seven minutes to play stretched the Cathartines Black Hawks' unbeaten streak to 13 games but failed to move them any closer to the league leaders.

Gorman's goal gave the Hawks a 3-3 draw with first-place Peterborough Petes in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A play Thursday.

In the only other game, Toronto Marlboros defeated Hamilton Red Wings 6-3.

League action resumes tonight with Toronto at Kitchener, London playing host to Kingston, Sault Ste. Marie against the Red Wings in Hamilton and Oshawa visiting Ottawa.

Petes, who leave Dec. 24 for the world junior tournament in the Soviet Union, suffered a setback when forward Mike Pyra broke his ankle in the second period. He is expected to be out of action for three months.

Bruce Boudreau scored three goals for the Marlboros in the same contest which featured only three minor penalties to Toronto.

John Tonelli, Brian Dillon and Kevin Devine got the other Marlboro goals while Mike Corsentino, Greg Hickey and Bob Manno replied for the visitors.

Snipe's Visit Rights Wrong

By Doug Walsh
Sports Editor

Belleville Bobcats have had a visit from the Grinch. And he was a little early this year.

The Grinch didn't steal Christmas, this time. He relieved the Bobcats of two points and a share of first place in the Metro Junior B Hockey League standings.

SNIPE MATTHEWS.

But the old guy has had change of heart, influenced no doubt by Jim (Snipe) Mair who threw his not one to take such things without at least a "hey, what gives?"

Accosting the "Humbug" Thursday, Snipe came right to the point.

"You are giving us a hosing" opened the Bobcat general manager.

And that's a rather mild opener for the GM. In circumstances such as this, he can be more acrid than that. Let's leave it at not.

Perhaps it's the winning ways of his Bobcats or maybe Snipe has the Chris'mas spirit. At any rate, he chose not to get riled.

Patiently explaining that his club had 31 points, the same number compiled by Brampton Blues, Snipe suggested that perhaps some mistake had been made. He was referring to a Wednesday story that had Bobcats with 29 points and sharing second place.

Snipe won his point.

Moe Hunter and company are tied for the top in points and if one considers the club had two games in hand on Bramalea; has won 15 to the Blues' 14; has the edge in the loss column (4-5) and a wide margin in goals for (142-122), then it's Belleville with the upper hand.

Since Toronto Nationals visit Bobcats for a league game at Memorial Arena tonight and it's that special event of the season for the kids.

It's no longer "Pony Night". But there are plenty of prizes up for the taking.

A look at the prize list leads one to believe the big event could be called "Radio and TV Night".

Tops prize is a 12" television set and there are several transistor radios to be given away, along with two bicycles, cameras and games.

Napanee's Al Garrison who suffered an eye injury while performing in excellent fashion for Bobcats, is receiving treatment three times a week in Belleville.

Coach Wally Dalnard (he's solid up front or on the blueline) should rejoin the team in January. The cast is to come off his leg about the middle of next week.

Cats may be adding a highly touted centre to the lineup before long. He's a digger and should fit in well with coach Hunter's go-go gang.

The Gold Cup Tournament is on tap at Belleville Bowl for Bowling Sunday.

Bill Bateman, proprietor of the lanes, says the five-pin event will attract about 60 top notch bowlers with 10 of them coming from Cornwall, Kingston, Trenton and Belleville will also be represented.

First prize money is expected to exceed $100. The top eight finishers will be in for cash awards.

Belleville's Ron Saylor, the winner in 1972, will be on hand to try and make it two in a row.

Look Out! Here I Come

Stinson Construction's Fred Bedard barges his way between Cornerstone's Bruce Racicot (left) and Doug Jodoin (right) in last night's Quinte Hockey League game at the Arena. Fred's team also barged through Cornerstone 8 - 2 to stay within one point of first place Belvedere Hotel in the League standings.

Belvedere Stays in Front

Belvedere Hotel remained in first place in the Quinte Hockey League after last night's game — defeating Reid's Dairy 7-3 to stay on top of Stinson Construction, who also won, 8-2 over Cornerstone.

Belvedere now has 13 points, while Stinson's has 12.

Ron Urch fired three goals to lead Belvedere in their win, while Gerry Jones picked up two. The other markers were scored by Doug Hallam and Doug Stewart. Urch also drew three assists, as did Hallam.

Jason Morris potted two in a losing cause for the Dairymen, with Ron Poister bagging the other.

The winners top six penalties to the losers' three.

Kevin Allen collected five points for Stinson, getting two goals and a trio of assists. Brian Sage added two goals, with singles scored by Davey Jones, Dave Horrocd, Greg Duffy, and Andy Prudden.

Ken Smith and Al Matt scored for the Cornerstone team, in a losing cause. Only four minor penalties were assessed in the game, two to each team.

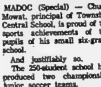
School Produces Two Champions

MADOC (Special) — Chuck Mowat, principal of Township Central School, is proud of the sports achievements of the pupils of his small six-grade school.

And justifiably so.

The 250-student school has produced two championship junior soccer teams.

Girls' and boys' teams took the titles in a recent tournament held to decide the winner of the county's central area and the girls went on to capture top honors for the county.



Mrs. Wanda Reynolds, coach of the girls' team, was very proud of her squad. She commented, "The girls worked harder than I've ever seen them work before. They really did a good job. I would say it was certainly an all out team effort."

Enlisted team cap'ain Tammy Twiddy, "I am so happy and very proud that we won the championship. It was worth all the hard work."

Wining the Centre Hastings championship was equally rewarding for the boys.

"We've got a good coach in Mr. Taylor and a good captain, Wilbert Keith," the youth have done it, said one boy.

Team captain Ernie Haughton said he was happy to win the championship to give Madoc Township School a first.

HEGAN JOINS TIGERS

HOUSTON (AP) — Detroit Tigers named Jim Hegan to their coaching staff for 1974, the American League baseball team announced Tuesday.

It's Nats, Bobcats On the Kids' Night

The Toronto Nationals will be greeted in the Memorial Arena tonight by the sound of many young hockey fans exuberant in their enthusiasm to win such prizes as hockey sticks, bicycles, and even a television set as the Bobcat's stage their annual Kid's Night.

But despite their off-ice opponents, Nats will be even more concerned with their Belleville Bobcat counterparts, who they play for the third time this season in Metro Junior B League play.

The Nationals, last years' league champions, have not yet been able to pick up a point from the Cats in two previous games. The Cats took the Nats, October 14, 6-1, and came back with a 13-4 rout win in Toronto on October 24.

The Bobcats, the most offensive minded team in the league, with 142 goals in 30 games, an average of over five per game, will be looking to pick up two more points in their quest for sole possession of first place. They are currently tied for the leading position in the league with Brandies Blues. Each team has 31 points.

Both scoring goals has been the main asset the Cats have this year. A look at the league's Top Ten shows three Bellevillle players in the top four spots.

Jim Richardson leads the league with 61 points, including 34 goals and 27 assists.

St. Miles Fred Gardner is in second spot with 31 goals and 23 assists for 54 points.

Mark Coates has moved past Norm Jones into third place in the standings, holding a one point lead over his linemate. Coates has put together 31 goals and 23 assists, for 47 points, while Jones had 17 goals and 29 assists for 46.

Game time tonight is 8 p.m.

BCI Logs Two Wins

Only two games were played in the Bay of Quinte High School Basketball League last night, with BCI taking both the junior and midget games from Napanee.

The BCI juniors won 45-38, while the Midgets trounced Napanee 77-42.

In a pair of games played the night before, Quinte took two from Bayside.

Led by Mark Gallupe's 18 points, the Seniors bombed Bayside 98-33. Ron McTaggart contributed 17 points. Art Beamish had 15 for Bayside.

In junior action, Quinte dumped Bayside 61-24. Ron Crooks had 14 points for the winners, while Rick Calkin hooped 13.

25 Boosters Attend Meeting

The Belleville Bobcats' Booster Club held their initial meeting last night at the Wharf Street Debating Club, with about 25 people in attendance.

Elected as president of the Club was Greg McLeod. Judi Sewell was chosen as secretary, while Ray Finkle will be the treasurer. John Faulkner is the publicity director.

The initiation fee was set at $1 for the 1973-74 season. Twenty-five members joined.

The first 100 to join the club will be Charter Members.

The next opportunity to become one of the Charter Members will be Thursday night, December 13 when the club meets again.

Hawley—Sitting on Cloud Nine

Record in the Books, Hawley Aims for 500

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — After sitting on three winners Thursday, Sandy Hawley said he's "sitting on cloud nine."

The 5-foot-3 jockey set a world record of 481 wins in a single season, shattering the 1953 mark of 462 held by Bill Shoemaker.

Fittingly, Hawley, 24, native of Whitby, Ont., was aboard a Canadian - owned - and - bred ridden by Shoemaker at his record setting mounts that earned $1,593,396,187.

Before Hawley's attack on the record at Laurel Monday, it was shot out Nov. 4 at Toronto's Greenwood race track. Saturday was the final program of the Ontario Jockey Club 1973 schedule, he won five.

He received a greeting inevitably reserved for appreciative fans who visit a racetrack, after setting the record with Night Train.

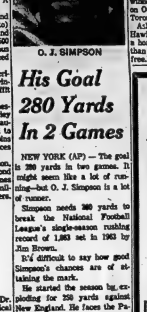
A group of jockeys, led by Cesario Gonzalez Eric Walsh, had helped the bushes near the paddock barn and threw buckets of water on Hawley.

Bold King returned $6.20, $3.80 and $3.20; Night Train Lane paid $4.80, $3.20 and $2.60, while Bite The Bullet returned $3.60, $4.60 and $4.60.

In addition to Is John's second-place finish in the sixth, which paid $3.60 and $3.60, he also was aboard Gala Double, which paid $3.80 and $3.60.

Hawley said: "She may have been a little green and his took off when the ourrider reached for her. The bridle slipped and I couldn't get one foot out in time to jump off and hold her."

Red's Landing slowed down, however, as she approached a gap in the outer railing at the head of the stretch, and Hawley said he "hauled out." One shoulder was bulged slightly, but Hawley came right back to break the record on Night Train Lane.



Hawley got his first in-the-money finish with one of Mann's horses as an apprentice in 1968. In his first ride, Hawley finished fifth with Regal Victory, but came back two days later to guide Rozerin—owned by Mann and Paul Mariel of Toronto—to second place.

Hawley wrestled in the $6-pound class on his high school team and finished second in the all-Ontario competition.

He also was a goalie on a hockey team in his neighborhood, and played first base on a softball team.

At the age of 16, when it became apparent he wouldn't get any bigger, an uncle suggested Hawley racing a try. His first winner was aboard Fly Alone on Oct. 14, 1968, at Woodbine in Toronto.

Asked about his riding style, Hawley said: "I wouldn't call it a horse. I guess I sit back more than most, and let them run free."

O. J. SIMPSON

His Goal 280 Yards In 2 Games

NEW YORK (AP) — The goal is 280 yards in two games. It might seem a little to set for one man — O. J. Simpson is a lot of runner.

Simpson needs 280 yards to break the National Football League's single-season rushing record of 1,863 set in 1963 by Jim Brown.

It's difficult to say how good Simpson's chances are of attaining the mark.

He started the season big, exploding for 250 yards against New England. He faces the Patriots again Sunday—but it's obvious they'll be throwing everything they've got at him to avoid a similar embarrassment.

Then, on the final Sunday, Simpson goes against New York Jets, who held him to 122 yards in their first meeting this year.

Three other running backs are on the verge of cracking the 1,000-yard barrier this weekend, statistics released Thursday show.

Miami's Mercury Morris, No. 2 in the American Conference, has 947 yards. Jim Otis, the National Conference leader Calvin Hill of Dallas has 943 and Runner-up Lawrence McCutcheon of Los Angeles has 934.

San Diego To Fight For Team

HOUSTON (AP) — Jimmy Wynn moved to Los Angeles, Claude Osteen moved to Houston . . . and San Diego moved to Washington, D.C.

The last move created the most controversy at the winter baseball meetings Thursday.

The Wynn-Osteen deal between the Astros and the Dodgers was among the major swap.

Overshadowing the trades however, was the announcement by the National League that the financially-troubled San Diego franchise would be moved to Washington.

Shortly after the announcement, an attorney for the city of San Diego said: "We will file a $12 million anti-trust suit in federal court against the Padres, the National League and Mr. Danzansky."

The Toy Cannon Becomes Dodger

HOUSTON (AP) — Dismissing Jimmy Wynn, Houston Astros' "Toy Cannon" for the last nine years, fired blanks last season, but the Los Angeles Dodgers think he'll regain his shooting eye by next season.

Wynn, strapped with personal and on-field problems in recent years, was traded to the Dodgers Thursday for veteran pitcher Claude Osteen and minor league pitcher Dave Culpepper, highlighting a big trading session at the winter baseball meetings.

"I'm going from a club where I had controversy with both the general manager and the manager to a contending club," said Wynn, who got his nickname because of the home run power he generated from his 5-foot-9 frame. "I call that the beginning of a new life."

Wynn, 31, the third winningest active pitcher in the National League, had a 15-11 record and a 2.99 earned run average last season for the Dodgers. He will replace left-hander Jerry Reuss in the Astros' starting rotation. Reuss was traded recently to Pittsburgh for catcher Milt May.

Wynn hit .226 last season with 20 home runs and 55 runs batted in, and batted a career low .203 in 1971, but in 1972 he had a .279 average and 50 RBI.

In other trading Thursday:

Philadelphia dealt second baseman Denny Doyle to California for relief pitcher Aurelio Montegazdo and minor league outfielder Chris Coletta, completing a trade that sent infielder Billy Grabarkewitz to the Phils late last season.

Texas Rangers purchased first baseman-outfielder Terry Crowley from Baltimore and sold shortstop Jim Mason to New York Yankees.

Detroit and Milwaukee traded pitchers, with the Tigers sending right-hander Mike Strahler to the Brewers for Jefry Ray Newman.

California traded catcher Jeff Torborg to St. Louis for reliever John Andrews.

Minnesota and Chicago Cubs traded catchers, with the Twins sending George Mitterwald to Chicago for Randy Hundley.

Rookie Sets Pace For Surging Nets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Nets are on the march and rookie forward Larry Kenon is leading the parade.

Kenon returned to the scene of his college triumphs Thursday night and scored 21 points to lead New York past Memphis Tams 111-94 in the American Basketball Association. It was the Nets' sixth straight victory and lifted them within two games of first place in the ABA East.

There was no other action in the ABA. There were two games in the National Basketball Association. Chicago Bulls topped Memphis with 26 points.

Kenon, a 6-foot-7 former Memphis State star, scored 17 points over the first two quarters as the Nets raced from a 10-3 deficit to a 55-45 halftime lead. The Nets led by as many as 23 points in the third period before emptying their bench.

The Nets wound up with seven players in double figures. Billy Paultz followed Kenon with 19 points and Brian Taylor added 14. Johnny Neumann topped Memphis with 26 points.

beat Philadelphia 76ers 103-99 and Detroit Pistons edged Seattle SuperSonics 118-106.

The Drug Question Again

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. George Moss, Toronto's medical officer of health, has been directed by Toronto board of health to look in the non-medical use of drugs by Canadian Football League players.

Alderman Joseph Piccinni asked if the board of health could force professional athletes to take post-game urine tests to determine if they were under the influence of benzedrine, a stimulant.

Dr. Moss said the board is not empowered to force athletes to take any kind of tests.

"We have no authority to test CFL players. Internal policing must come from the sports' regulatory board," Moss said.

But Piccinni suggested Dr. Moss should look into the situation to determine what is being done to prevent misuse of drugs and what steps are possible.

"The information would be compiled and given to league officials," said Piccinni. "I would hope that they would tackle the problem themselves."

More Responsibility Heaped on Directors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Those plush armchairs in the corporate board room aren't as comfortable as they used to be.

New laws in British Columbia make the directors increasingly responsible for what their company does and also make it easier for company shareholders to sue the directors or officers when things go wrong.

The professional director, who treats the business as a full-time job, is supplanting directors who sit on the board merely for the name. The man who takes on 20 or 30 directorships may be a fading phenomenon in B.C.

Increased responsibility and personal liability have been placed on directors and officers by the B.C. Companies Act, enacted Oct. 1.

"Clearly its main thrust is aimed at protection of minority shareholders by, in part, creating strictures under which directors and officers will from now on be accountable," says A. G. Dacombe, executive vice-president of Johnson and Higgins Willis Faber Ltd., an international insurance broker.

Under the act, each director and officer of a company is accountable for every action which goes against the well-being of the company. No contractual or other provisions of company articles relieve a director of his accountability.

Joseph Keast, partner in the Vancouver legal firm Lawrence and Shaw, says: "Because of the emphasis on the executive level in our North American corporate system, directors don't, and are not expected to participate in management or supervision of management.

"Many directors merely take an advisory or consulting position from time to time.

But the fact that 'most others do it is a fragile defence when legal action is launched against the directors for some alleged wrongdoing."

The Canada Corporation Act, unchanged since 1934, has been revised and currently is in draft form. The proposed changes also put more onus on directors and officers.

Robert Dickerson, one of the co-authors of the revised act and a partner in a Vancouver legal firm, says a sudden rush of lawsuits against directors and officers is unlikely.

Mr. Dickerson says the odds are still fairly heavily stacked against the shareholder. "If the shareholder wins, he gets nothing personally. His legal costs will be paid but it's the company which gets all the benefit.

"On he other hand, if the shareholder loses, he's stuck with all the costs and these can be quite substantial. In addition, he might find himself open to legal action."

However, Mr. Dickerson says a company director should be aware that their position is more vulnerable than it used to be.

He advises directors to know the constitution of their company and make sure they are operating within the constitution. They also should pay particular attention to all matters in which the director is absolutely liable such as payments of dividends and purchase of company shares.

Try to Cut Hovercraft Expenses

LONDON (CP) — British scientists are hoping to achieve a 10-per-cent cut in hovercraft operating costs by developing new skirt compounds and materials. At the halfway stage of a 15-month research program carried out by Avon Rubber, various blends of materials have been made up into skirt segments. These are fitted to hovercraft in daily service between England and France and along the Portuguese and Greek coasts.

Laboratory tests simulate the types of failure which occur during actual service and operating results are being studied as used segments are returned for analysis. Segments of new coated fabrics are being used by British Rail Seaspeed and Hoverlloyd on their cross-Channel routes, and by Hovermarine craft based at Setubal, Portugal.

One result of the project may be the sale of British technical know-how to the United States, where, according to Avon, hundreds of millions of dollars are likely to be spent in the next few years on development hovercraft for civilian and military use.

"We are aware of wide interest in hovercraft in the United States," said a spokesman, "and we have been invited to study the requirements of the American government's surface-effect ship program."

Every Israeli Feels Pinch Of Most Expensive Conflict

TEL AVIV (AP) — Sammy Pily is wondering how he is going to pay the rent on his furniture store which was closed throughout the Middle East war.

Pily, a reservist in his late 30s, was called up for the conflict and returned to his store in a middle-class shopping district of Tel Aviv to find the streets empty and no customers.

On top of that, he was greeted by price increases of 30 per cent for electricity, 35 per cent for gasoline, 50 per cent for rice and 40 per cent for frozen meat. He also found his own imported furniture had gone up by 20 per cent.

Every Israeli is feeling the pinch as the cost of the nation's most expensive war, already in the multibillion-dollar bracket, continues to climb. Yet businessmen, bankers, government officials and some Western diplomats agree that the economy has held up better than expected.

Industrialist Mark Moseevics, president of the Manufacturers' Association, said production dropped only 15 to 20 per cent because of the "fantastic job" done by old men, women and new immigrants who took over from those who went into the services. Many worked for nothing.

In many industries, shifts were lengthened to 12 hours and administrative personnel went onto assembly lines. Many manufacturers found that individual productivity increased.

Ephraim Dovrat, economic adviser to Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, estimated that lost production will total $500 million by December, a five-per-cent drop in Israel's gross national product.

As a result, Dovrat said in an interview, the country's rise in gross national product for 1973 will be only three to four per cent.

Adin Talbar, foreign trade chief in the ministry of commerce and industry, said industrial exports, excluding diamonds, should reach 96 per cent of the scheduled $800-million target for 1973.

The shortage of trucks has become one of Israel's most pressing problems. So many trucks from private industry were conscripted for the war effort that many manufacturers were unable to move their products.

The government has ordered 2,000 trucks from abroad, which Sapir said will cost $90 million. A big question is whether they will arrive in time for the citrus season, which accounts for Israel's largest net export and begins later this month.

Israel also faces a possible oil crisis as a result of Egypt's blockade at Bab el Mandeb Strait, the country's only outlet to the Indian Ocean.

With tourism off 75 per cent, domestic sales downdrastically and construction and building slowed, how is Israel going to pay for the war?

After the first week of fighting, Sapir estimated the cost at between $2 billion and $2.5 billion. The estimated cost of the six-day war in 1967 was $800 million.

Daniel Recanti, managing director of the Israeli discount bank, predicted the total cost of the 18-day war will be a "lot more" than $4 billion.

Jews abroad have pledged $2 billion over the next 15 months which will go into development, building and absorption of new immigrants. Israelis are also hoping the United States Congress will approve a $2.3-billion grant to help pay the costs of war.

Even before the war, Israelis paid what were called the world's highest taxes. During the war, the government took another seven-per-cent bite in the form of a compulsory war loan.

The government hopes to soak up close to $1 billion from the inflated economy by these new belt-tightening measures and Sapir said: "This is not the end."

Some independent organizations estimated that with the new price tags on food, clothing, appliances and other goods, the cost of living in Israel had doubled in 18 months.

This all adds up to a giant economic pinch, particularly since Israeli salaries are low ands. A 1973 survey reported average monthly salaries of factory workers at $330, secretaries $189, doctors $310, members of the Knesset, or parliament, $400, and company directors $480.

Before the new round of taxes, a company director earning $480 a month paid 37 per cent in taxes plus additional deductions for social security, pension funds, sick funds and national insurance. Now he tax bite is even higher and already exorbitant prices are skyrocketing.

Imported cigarettes went from the equivalent of 80 cents to $1 a pack. Israeli-made television sets—black and white only—selling for about $400 last month are $480. Frozen meat jumped from 75 cents a pound to almost $2.50.

Car prices went up seven per cent. That means a Volkswagen Beetle which costs about $2,000 in the United States and sold for $5,000 here will cost an Israeli $6,400. Current rate $15 a ton to almost $50, but even before the war it was scarce and selling on the black market for about $150.

The combination of high prices and taxes leave most Israelis constantly in debt. When the war began, the government put a moratorium on all debts until the reservist or soldier is released from the army.

But there is no doubt among Israelis that the free-spending days of the past are over—at least for a while.

THAT FOUR LETTER WORD

HOME — means everything to the happy family. To have its fullest meaning it must be your own. There is no security in rented accomodation. Let us show you one of our models now nearing completion on Dundas Boulevard. This home with attached carport has L-shaped living dining room, large kitchen with ample eating area for the average family and 3 bedrooms. Basement divided for future rec room.

A BAD FOUR LETTER WORD

MOVE — can you tell when circumstances on the part of your landlord will force him to utter the ominous word? When it happens it's not much fun. Provide this happening with a home of your own. Why should your children have their schooling disrupted because your landlord can no longer look after your accommodation. For their sake have the courage to own your own. For as little as $1,500.00 down we can offer 3 bedroom townhouse accommodation that is your very own. We have a model suite to show you.

THE BEST FOUR LETTER WORD

GUES — not only is it pleasing to the eye but it is pleasing to the pocket book. Once your payments are set they fluctuate very very little for the life of the mortgage, not so with rent! It continues to climb and what is worse it leaves no equity for your family to look to in the years ahead. There is no way to accumulate money quicker than in owning a home. We have a location in West Belleville the pair of which we built last year in the east end and has recently changed hands at $13,000.00 profit. Who is to say it won't happen again. And to see our many houses in all parts of the city.

Owning A Town Has Drawbacks

LAMONT, Wyo. (AP) — The Thorntons bought this tourist stop town of 35 on the way to Yellowstone several months ago.

Virginia Thornton, now the town's postmistress, fry cook and baker says: "Catastrophes are something that just seem to be part of owning a town."

Virginia said goodbye to a secure life three months ago when her husband Aldon, 54, left a job with the state of Wyoming and bought Lamont for $125,000.

The Thorntons and their two daughters and sons-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Probert and Mr. and Mrs. George Tully, formed 'the Lamont Corp. and now have a grocery store, cafe, two service stations, a bar, cabins and four rental house trailers.

That's all of Lamont, along United States highway 287 on the way to the national park, except for a service station-cafe combination that wasn't part of the deal.

WORKS FROM 5 A.M.

"It's a big responsibility and there's a lot of hard work to do," said Mrs. Thornton, who opens the cafe at 5 a.m. and works until the sun goes down.

"But we knew what we were getting into when we came out here and we'd better stay now because everything we've ever worked for is right here in Lamont.

"It gets pretty wild around here," Mrs. Thornton said. "For instance, there was the bucket brigade. It was the busiest part of a Saturday and the water and sewer lines broke in the cafe. The store water was good so our nine grandchildren carried water from the store to the cafe so we could wash dishes.

"I said at the time most people would have given up right then, but it just made us laugh."

"We've found out we always have to keep smiling."

Despite the hard work and long hours, Mrs. Thornton says she loves what she is doing. "You might say I've got a full time job, but I'm not working any harder than the rest of them," Mrs. Thornton said. "Everybody works around here."

"I didn't debate very long when Lamont came up for sale, even though I had a good job and a lot of friends in Cheyenne," Thornton said. "But we'd been thinking about something like this for a long time and we plan to stay here a lifetime."

But what if it doesn't work? What if it's a financial failure?

"It's going to work," Thornton resolutely. "The thought never crossed my mind that it wouldn't. There's no doubt in my mind that if we all get in there and work as a team—a family corporation—it will go."

Just Are No Rules For Life in Rome

ROME (CP) — To understand Rome, a Canadian embassy official advised casually, you must first understand that there are no rules here.

Business enterprises ranging from government officers to tiny smoke shops—sole outlets not only for tobacco, but matches and stamps—controlled sail—close unexpectedly for lunch in the early afternoon, then open just as unexpectedly late in the day.

Meanwhile, 2,000 restaurants and countless corner bars do a booming trade at dinners work their way through lunches ranging from two to six courses.

Traffic, at the best of time chaotic, takes on near-crisis proportions during rush hours as Romans roar through congested cobblestone streets like Grand Prix racers on the final lap.

Traffic barriers are run down with abandon; middle-of-the-street u-turns are made with reckless disregard for other drivers; pedestrians are avoided by the merest of inches.

Yet most cars are remarkably free of scratches, dents or other signs of collision.

"We do not bruise cars here," a city policeman explained with a grin. "We destroy them."

City statistics show there were 44,196 street accidents last year. Many were injured, 258 killed. A total of 2.5 million traffic offences was committed, roughly one for each residents. Of these, 600,000 resident. Of these, 600,000 271,000 for going through traffic lights.

But if driving and sports, particularly soccer, are undertaken with aggressive energy, simple day-to-day services are not.

The postal system, out of date and understaffed, has slowed to a crawl in the wake of labor differences and strikes earlier this year.

The alleged kidnappers of Paul Getty III, grandson of the American oil millionaire, recently sent what was said to be one of Paul's ears to Rome from Naples, 176 miles away, to prove they had the boy.

The car, sent in an express letter, took 20 days to arrive.

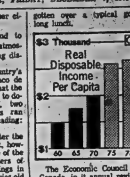
Still, Romans accept the little inconveniences of life with resigned indifference, dismissing even such things as a four-day water service interruption—the city was fixing pipes—as normal nuisances.

Living itself, however, is treated more seriously. Walking, eating and drinking are regarded as important entertainments.

Foreign journalists and international bureaucrats working for such agencies as the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization agree that simply living here is, at the very least, entertaining.

But they complain that the city's inefficiencies reduce the desire to work. It's much easier, they say, to drift into the Latin way of life and forget the pressures of being punctual and getting things done."

"It gets to the point that you can't work because nobody else is working," said one. "So you don't bother either."



Newspapers here tend to reinforce the casual atmosphere through a seeming disregard for accuracy.

A day after the country's industry minister, Ciriaco de Mita, assured citizens that the oil crisis would not lead to domestic fuel rationing, two mass-circulation dailies ran banner headlines reading: "Gas Rationing."

Romans tend to counter the anarchy of the moment, however, with a deep sense of the past. Constant reminders of the timelessness of things in the form of centuries-old monuments and more than 1,000 churches point up the insignificance of life's petlier problems.

Buildings less than 500 years old, for example, are regarded as new.

And the hottest bureaucratic tangles are easily forgotten over a typical good long lunch.

The Economic Council of Canada, in it annual review issued Wednesday, projects continued strong growth no the nation's economy through 1978. Real disposable income, after allowance for inflation and taxes, is projected to rise 4.2 per cent a year per person over the next three years. (CP

Lapps Fight For Their Life

OESTERSUND, Sweden (Reuter) — The Lapps, Europe's last surviving nomads are fighting a rearguard action to protect their ancient way of life against an invasion from the south.

After a seven-year legal battle, a court has agreed that the Lapps—20,000 of whom survive in Sweden—were granted special hunting, fishing, mining and grazing rights in the 17th century.

Fighting against economic and cultural inroads from the south of Sweden, the Lapps are hoping to have these rights updated and guaranteed.

The provincial court here ruled that the ancient land rights had been abrogated by the Crown—but the Lapps refuse to accept this as the final word and say they will take their case to the highest court in Sweden. They hope to win wider support by lobbying members of Parliament.

History has given some hard knocks to the Lapps, a stocky, industrious and picturesque people distinguished by their gaily embroidered red headbands and collars.

Centuries ago they were forced to pay tribute of hides and whalebone to the marauding Vikings.

Today the enemies are different—the spread of roads through the mountains, an invasion of tourists and hunters from the south and the diminishing profitability of their traditional means of livelihood, the reindeer.

The Lapps, whose origins are shrouded in mystery, are struggling to maintain their identity.

Their legal marathon concerns their claim to reindeer grazing, hunting, mining, water and general access rights on the high fells. They reject the definition of those rights as laid down in a 1971 law.

This gives the state the right to close off certain areas to reindeer breeding if necessary for "the general welfare."

The Lapps' claim to the northern territories is based on prescriptive rights. The Swedish geneticist Lars Beckman regards the Lapps as the oldest ethnic group in Scandinavia and the original natives of the area. Besides the 10,000 in Sweden, a further 24,000 Lapps live in Norway, Finland and the Soviet Union.

They were here long before the birth of Christ and some theorists think they survived an ice age by clinging to a narrow coastal strip when a huge icecap covered the Scandinavian Peninsula.

Icelandic sagas of the 12th century describe how the Vikings battled with the Lapps and took silver from them.

In later centuries the Lapps were subjugated by many other masters. In the 18th century they actually paid taxes to two countries at once—Sweden and Denmark, both of which claimed sovereignty over the northern region.

In the 18th century, the Swedish hero Gustav Vasa rejected the Lapps' claims to the northern wilds and encouraged settlement in the area. And during Queen Christina's reign a century later, the queen's men forced the Lapps to mine silver ore for them.

Today, the Swedish administration is keen to dispel charges that the Lapps have become second-class citizens in their own country.

In the long run, time may solve the problem, for despite their intense dedication to their old culture and language—Lappish contains precise and poetic descriptions of woods and water unrivalled in other languages—the simple facts of economic life appear likely to spell the end of the saga of the northern nomads.

Reindeer breeding—now pursued mainly to provide steaks in which Scandinavian restaurants specialize—now provides a living for no more than a quarter of Sweden's Lapps.

The number of reindeer in Sweden is about a quarter of a million. To yield a gross income of $7,500 a year, a family needs about 300 reindeer. A large number of families own fewer than 200.

Many of the men have become farmers, railway workers or miners at Sweden's huge iron ore centre in Kiruna.

It was not until 1904 that the first Lapp society was founded in Sweden.

4-H CLUBS

IN CANADA

We Thank Our Youths For The Contribution In Community Affairs

Competition and Achievement Are Base

Fall fairs and 4-H clubs have a common denominator.

Both began as exercises in improving agricultural methods.

The impact of both on the agricultural community is evident.

Since 1951, both the number of farms in Canada and farm population have declined by about 50 per cent. However, agricultural production has increased by about 50 per cent in the last 20 years. The advance has been achieved by the substitution of technology and capital for farm labor.

These factors, the fruits of success, have changed the focus of 4-H programs. No longer is the emphasis on farming techniques. It has changed to stress personal development, techniques of decision-making and leadership and community responsibility.

But the core of 4-H work is still competition. Necessary when the goal was improvement of farming method, competition is now probably the stumbling block of 4-H projects.

Although a rural youngster is eligible for 4-H membership for 11 or 12 years, studies have shown that most stick with it on two or three years.

The dropout rate is attributed to the strong emphasis on competition on achievement days and for awards at other levels. Members are believed to be leaving to escape the threat of competition, a dirty word among today's teenagers. Taught in school to compete against themselves, not others, the 4-H member is looking for a process of self-evaluation of accomplishments.

"Achievement" is a key word in 4-H activities. Finding an acceptable substitute may prove difficult, but it could be the answer to the challenge facing the program in the 1970s.

Club Leaders Backbone

Club leaders are the backbone of the 4-H movement.

Without these volunteers, the program could not continue.

Most are people skilled in the techniques of the project they will teach. But such skill is not necessary.

The leader can act as an organizer, and call in experts from the community, as needed, to supply the technical knowledge.

Homemaking club leaders have an advantage — they must attend a two-day school held by the county home economist before they can direct a project.

The most important quality of a leader is enthusiasm. He or she must have an affinity for young people and a respect for their abilities.

Among the leader's responsibilities is the teaching of parliamentary procedures — a process scrupulously followed at 4-H meetings.

"Have car — will travel" must be a leader's motto, for he or she is often called upon to cover long distances on country roads to get to meetings and transport members as well.

"Have house — will share," could be another watchword, because many leaders hold the majority of meetings in their own homes. In the case of an agricultural club leader, he may have to give his 4-H members the run of the whole farm in livestock and field crop projects.

Nine Canadian provinces (Quebec didn't report) had a total of 17,091 volunteer leaders in 1972 — an amazing figure in light of the responsibilities involved. Ontario's total was 7,995, the largest number of all the nine provinces reporting.

Prince Edward Boasts Three Regional Clubs

Prince Edward county 4-H members had six agricultural clubs to choose from this year.

Two were dairy calf clubs -- one in Hillier and Ameliasburgh and anothe rin southern Prince Edward county.

Gary Townsend and Jim Alexander were leaders of the Hillier and Ameliasburgh club and Hugh Graham and Barry Sprigings led the Prince Edward South club.

A beef calf club was led by George Black and Lindsay Tugman.

Acounty-wide swine club was led by Ross Pierson. Robert Williams was leader of the field crops club.

The Picton Kiwanis sponsored the potato and tomato club, led by Lyle Vanclief.

Seven 4-H members from the county were chosen to attend the Regional conference, a three-day event held at Trent University. The regional conferences are planned for leadership training and experience in group participation. The delegates must be 15 years old. County delegates this summer were Dean Foster, Glenn Foster, Anne Hagerman, Terry Laundry, Gary Parks, Paul Pierson and Tim Welbanks.

Each year, a 4-H member from each county, who exhibits prospective leadership ability, is chosen to attend the provincial leadership conference in Guelph.

Marilyn Foster represented Prince Edward county at the week-long conference this summer.

Programs Designed for Citizenship

4-H operates two distinct programs. One is the homemaking club — intended for girls and run by the home economics branch of the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food. The other is the agricultural clubs program, operated by the extension branch of the ministry and open to rural boys and girls.

The objective of the agricultural clube is to teach rural teenagers the principles of farming. Each member, in learning about his project, develops the pride of ownership, the joy of accomplishment and explores future career opportunities. He gains experience in decision making as he progresses with his project and finally, he learns the techniques of keeping accurate accounts.

Best known of the agricultural 4-H projects are the calf clubs, many of which have been in operation here for two generations.

Projects are supported financially by an adult group — for instance the Belleville Rotary Calf Club for young people in the southern part of Hastings county.

There are both beef and dairy calf clubs, as well as sheep and swine clubs. Also available are projects in field crops, forage, horticulture, (fruit, vegetable, greenhouse, home garden, home landscaping) engineering, natural resources management, farm management and light horse and pony projects.

The projects cover broad fields to meet the needs of young people in all parts of the province. A project on tobacco is available to those living in the tobacco belt.

The engineering section offers several projects: One is tractor maintenance and safety. Another studies farm and home electrification. Members studying agricultural engineering will plan the construction and budget the funds for a farm building. A snowmobile project and a small engines project are also offered.

The natural resources management section provides projects in both forestry and conservation. Conservation, an advanced project for senior 4-H members, is designed to focus attention on the need for good conservation practices in rural Ontario.

Because many 4-H members will not remain on family farms, an effort is made to teach leadership practices that will be of use in any adult career. Beef or dairy herd management, credit projects and farm account projects are among these.

The live stock clubs end with an achievement day in conjunction wi h the county fall fair. Members show their animals, demonstrate their judging ability and vie for prizes. An achievement day, when projects are judged always ends every club project.

Even younger brothers and sisters can get involved with 4-H work before they are old enough to enrol in a regular program.

Stirling Fair has originated a beginners club for children from 10 to 12 years old. The most popular has been a beginners' calf club. The fair board puts up prizes and gives the members a place to exhibit. The leaders hold two meeting in the summer to instruct the youngsters in the rudiment of livestock showing.

A recent innovation in 4-H work has been the the formation of community clubs. These are multi-project clubs whose members work on different projects. A community club covers a wider region than a project club, all of whose members are working on the program.

Hastings county has five community clubs: south Hastings, comprising Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga; west Hastings, comprising the Stirling area; east Hastings, the Tweed area; Centre Hastings like Marmora and Madoc area and North Hastings, comprising the 12 northern townships of the county.

The community clubs allow members to undertake projects in which not sufficient young people are interested to warrant forming a project club. Some members take more than one project in the community club.

A 4-H member must take at least one project a year. Many take more. But a junior member, 12 and 13 years old, may take only two projects a year. An intermediate, 14 and 15 years old, may take up to four projects a year. A senior member, aged 16 to 20, is allowe to take up to five projects a years.

Each project takes six months to comple'e, begins in the spring and ends in the fall.

In order to officially complete a project, a member must attend 80 per cent of the meetings, participate in at least 75 per cent of all 4-H activities and take part in the achievement day program.

Awards are rewarded on a point basis. A total of 1,000 is possible. Attendance at meetings is worth 300 points, records are judged out of 300 points, the achievement day performance counts for up to 300 points and the attitude and progress of the members is worth a total of 100 points.

Hastings county has five segregated. It is open to boys only and is called the Bachelor various homemaking techniques essential to a young man on his own. The Hastings county Bachelor Survival Club ended i's project this year with a banquet for members' mothers.

4-H organizers recognize that many non-farming families live in rural areas. Club projects are as varied as possible to interest these teenagers, and others from farming families, who didn't intend to remain on the farm.

A youth leadership project for those 16 and over is designed to develop leadership skills by giving the members a chance to assume responsibility in their clubs. They take an active part in planning and organizing county 4-H functions.

Pony Club Reflects New Interest

Among the newest 4-H clubs are the pony clubs — a reflection of the widespread renewal of interest in the saddle horse.

North Hastings has had such a club for about four years and two years ago the South Hastings Light Horse and Pony Club was organized.

Mrs. Marilyn Harry runs it — having stepped in to fill the breach when the organizer had to give it up. Mrs. Harry describes herself as "no expert", but explains that she can call in specialized personnel for technical subjects.

Twelve members completed the project last year and 14 this year. Interest is increasing steadily, says Mrs. Harry.

Three girls from Belleville belong to the club. The rest come from Tweed, Shannonville, RR 5 Trenton and RR 2 Frankford — one example of a 4-H club that has enrolled both rural and urban members.

Most of the members are girls, because, their leader says women are more inclined to be joiners than men.

The club has about 10 meetings a year, some for study and others for work with horses.

Topics covered are care of the horse, training, feeding, grooming, showing, riding, breeds and judging. Among the experts Mrs. Harry has called upon are veterinarian Dr. Jack Lange from Trenton, farrier Casey Uitbegerse and stock food salesman Bernard Hollinger.

Last month the members of the two Hastings county clubs demonstrated the calibre of their training at the Royal Winter Fair.

Three members of the south Hastings club joined three from the north to compete in the Robert Graham Memorial Horse Judging Competition. They judged four classes — two light horses and two heavy.

Christine Barlow of the south Hastings club tied for second place in a field of 79 contestants. Steven Boniteel of the same club placed seventh and Linda McAlpine of north Hastings was 17th.

Because the club has no adult group to sponsor it, it has catered at neighborhood auction sales to raise money for its projects.

The members show their horses at their own achievement day, held this year at Shannonville Fairgrounds. In the showmanship events the handler is judged and in the performance and timed events the horse is judged. Mrs. Nancy Allin of Simcoe Farms has donated a unique prize for the top achiever in the club. She gives a free breeding to one of her stallions to the winner. The Toronto-Dominion Bank in Trenton also donates an award.

Conservation Courses Are Recent Additions

Awareness of the danger threatening the environment has resulted in two relatively new 4-H projects — forestry and conservation.

They are grouped under natural resources management, programs designed to give members an intelligent awareness of the problems of preserving the environment.

Forestry projects are geared to those interested in better management of farm woodlots, reforestation of non-agricultural land and the establishment of shelter belts or snow hedges.

Management of the farm woodlot includes methods of improvement by thinning, cutting and planting of trees to increase the financial returns to the owner.

Also considered is pulp production and maple products.

The conservation project is designed to focus attention on the need for good conservation practices in rural Ontario. Open to senior members, the project considers such factors as rainfall survey and water table determination, construction and maintenance of farm ponds, planting a windbreak, renovation of rough land and strip cropping. Other topics are the establishment of grass waterways, gulley control, three- and five-year cropping systems, stream improvement and maintenance and a study of the habitat of wild life.

His Efforts Won Him Alberta Trip

PICTON — An adherent of the advice "Go west young man," 19-year-old Laurie Tugman of Consecon spent two weeks in Alberta through the 4-H Interprovincial Exchange Program.

Mr. Tugman was one of nine Ontario delegates chosen to visit another province to study its agricultural trends. He was selected during a 4-H leadership week in Guelph last year.

The trip to Alberta began with his arrival in Calgary on July 19 where he spent three days with eight fellow delegates from other provinces. The group toured the Banff area, visited the Calgary Stampede and The Royal Bank, sponsor of the exchange trips.

Mr. Tugman then travelled to a 1,000-acre grain and beef farm near Belaeker where he was a house guest with an Alberta family. He visited several neighboring farms and helped his hosts with farm work. A highlight of his stay was a tour of a nearby Hutterite colony.

The Hutterites farm with modern machinery but do not own cars. Their dress remains old-fashioned despite use of up-to-date agricultural methods.

The Prince Edward County 4-H member remarks that he was impressed by the large scale farm operations in Alberta. Farmers worked spreads of up to 1,000 acres and often had two or more hired men assisting. Machinery is modern and plentiful and seldom is manual labor necessary.

The weather in Alberta seems much drier than in Prince Edward County according to Mr. Tugman.

In the final days of his western visit he lived with a farm family in Olds, 30 miles north of Calgary. His hosts owned 300 head of purebred Hereford cattle.

Mr. Tugman observes that in Olds very few farm buildings could be seen. Cattle winter out-of-doors with only sheds and small barnyard shelters to protect them.

In the area of Alberta toured by Mr. Tugman he agricultural outlook seems highly prosperous. There are few run down farm lands. Although Calgary is industrialized there is no industry in the outlying areas where agriculture is the source of livelihood.

Part of the 4-H member's western trip includes a detailed report of Alberta's agriculture.

A graduae of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute Mr. Tugman has completed one year of university and this fall will continue his studies in chartered accountancy. He has worked as a part time reporter for the Prince Edward County bureau of the Whig Standard and this summer was employed by George Welch and Company Chartered Accountants in Picton.

Miss Cathie Best, RR1, Maynooth was chosen to represent Hastings county next year on the same program. She will visit Quebec.

Projects for Girls

Household Crafts Are Well Covered

4-H Homemaking Clubs for young women are operated by the home economics branch of the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food.

They are separate from the agricultural clubs operated by the extension branch and each club is supervised by the home economist of its county.

Objectives of the homemaking clubs are to assist girls with their personal growth and development help them develop homemaking skills and give them the satisfaction of achievement and pride in rural living.

The age requirements are broader than those of the agricultural clubs — young women from 12 to 26 may belong. Juniors are aged from 12 to 15 and seniors are the over-16-year-olds.

Each club is directed by a leader, usually a local woman who has taken the obligatory two-day annual training course given by the county home economist. There is a training school for each homemaking project operating in the county each year.

Homemaking club members buy their own supplies and record books, but are not charged membership dues. They may be required to occasionally donate to a collection for project expenses. All must attend the achievement day and take part in judging and demonstrations.

The club projects are related to food and nutrition, clothing and textiles, home furnishings, fitness and citizenship, homecrafts and gardening.

Seven projects are available in food and nutrition, all designed to teach meal planning, food purchasing and modern ways to prepare and serve economical meals.

The Dairy Fare project demonstrates how to use milk in its many forms.

Dressing up Vegetables teaches methods of preparing a variety of vegetables, with salad making one of the highlights of the project.

Meat in the Menu gives members a familiarity with meat cuts and methods of cooking.

The Cereal Shelf shows members how to use cereal-based items such as Italian lasagna and Mexican chili rolls. Recipes are given for snacks, supper dishes, desserts and baked goods.

The Third Meal deals with the lighter meal of the day — luncheon and suppers. It also gives advice on how to arrange barbecues, patio parties and picnics.

A World of Food in Canada was introduced in centennial year to bring the foods of Europe and Asia to Canadian kitchens.

Projects in clothing and textiles teach wardrobe planning, sewing and caring for clothes and grooming.

The three projects in this group are Clothes for Leisure, Cottons May be Smart and Sportswear from Knits.

Taking a Look at Yourself is another category with three projects designed to illustrate and aid personal development.

The Jacket Dress project includes a study of textiles and fibres. Each member makes a dress and applies special details. What Shall I Wear is a project to demonstrate the planning of a wardrobe. Each member makes a blouse that co-ordinates with her existing wardrobe and learns how to select clothes that suit her.

In the Working with Wool project, each member is required to plan, select and make a wool skirt or jumper.

Accessories for the Bedroom is a project designed to develop pride in rooms and homes and to encourage order and neatness. Each member makes bedroom accessories such as a cushion, dresser scarf, bedspread or desk accessories.

The Club Girl Entertains was developed to help members gain confidence in the practice of gracious entertaining. Etiquette and good manners are outlined.

Two craft projects introduce the joys of handicrafts as a decorative touch and as a means of artistic expression. The projects are Creative Block Printing and Needlecraft.

Focus on Fitness studies physical and mental fitness and civic responsibility. First aid and a survey of health care facilities are included.

The three-year gardening program has three projects, one undertaken each year. Planning, planting, and caring for a garden is part of the program with emphasis on home beautification, preservation of fruit and vegetables and use of vegetables.

Sterling silver spoons are presented to each member upon the completion of a project. A certificate of achievement is given after two projects are completed. A county honor certificate and pin goes to each girl who has completed six projects. Provincial honors recognize the member who has completed 12 projects. The highest award is advanced honors, given to a girl who has completed 12 projects. The highest ed 18 projects.

4-H Marks 60th Anniversary This Year

This year marks the 60th anniversary of the 4-H movement in Canada. The 4-H Club program is a nation-wide educational movement for young people involved in a wide variety of farming, homemaking, community service and other projects.

It all began in 1913, in Roland, Man., where the first boys' and girls' clubs were established. Each member entering the clubs was given a quantity of chicks, seed potatoes and corn seed free of charge. The program was supervised by the Manitoba Agricultural College and visits were made by representatives of the extension section to participants.

Information on the feeding and raising of chickens and the cultivation of potatoes and corn was distributed by means of a circular. Members' efforts were judged at Roland school fair in September of 1913.

From this beginning, with 106 boys and girls, has grown the Canadian 4-H movement with 77,00 members in 10 provinces.

The four Hs in the name, adopted in 1952, stand for head, heart, hands and health. The 4-H member pledges his head to clearer thinking, his heart to greater loyalty, his hands to larger service and his health to better living. The 4-H motto is "learning to do by doing."

4-H Clubs provide effective training and experience in responsibility, citizenship, recreation, program planning and co-operation. To many Ontario young people, the name 4-H means that in a mechanized, computerized society, they find an opportunity to develop practical skills. With his own hands, each member puts ideas into action through an individual project.

The Ontario ministry of agriculture and food co-ordinates the program in this province. More than 25,000 young people between the ages of 12 and 20 are members of 4-H clubs in Ontario. Organizing and supervising these programs are more than 7,000 volunteer leaders in 3,300 clubs.

The original basis for the 4-H program was the improvement and development of agricultural methods. In 1973 the program has diversified. Most members are from rural areas, but it is now accepted that many of these young people will be entering fields other than agriculture. The major emphasis now is on development of the individual as a responsible member of society. This is achieved through the opportunities 4-H provides in leadership, decision-making and responsibility. In addition, the members learn to work effectively with others through group activities.

Parental involvement is an important factor in 4-H work. The support of the parents is vital to finance project material and provide transportation in rural areas. But the projects foster close family-child relationships as parents assist with agricultural and homemaking projects.

Club members in the Quinte area are part of a world-wide movement found in 76 countries. In Italy the name is 3-P. In Kenya, it is 4-K. In Columbia the name is 4-S. Argentina's youth movement is 4-M. Youth in Haiti call it 4-C. But whatever the label, the idea of learning to do by doing is the same.

146 Projects Completed

A total of 146 members completed agricultural projects in Hastings county this year. Of this number, 103 were boys and 43 were girls.

First-year members totalled 50 and 32 were senior members, 16 years old and over.

Projects completed were 266, a 94 per cent completion rate.

In calf clubs there were 125 members, in field crop clubs 63 and 12 took part in natural resource projects.

Our Heartiest Congratulations On 60 Years of SUCCESSFUL ACHIEVEMENT

Travel Is Reward for Achievement

4-H members are offered rewards for oustanding achievement aside from the awards and trophies they earn.

The reward is travel - - from short; one-day trips to two-week inter-provincial exchanges.

Short field trips are part of all 4-H projects, from a visit to a supermarket's meat-cutting department for those taking the Meat in the Menu project to tours of outstanding farms for those in livestock and field crop clubs. Members of an engineering club might visit General Motors in Oshawa.

Three-day regional conferences are held each year in eight universities across the province. Delegates are invited to discuss the pros and cons of 4-H and suggest improvements. Delegates from this area meet at Trent University in Peterborough.

The provincial conference is held annually at the University of Guelph and delegates are chosen on the basis of their participation, achievement and leadership qualities. Counties having 150 members or fewer may send one delegate; those with more than 150 members may send two. This year's delegates from Hastings county were Cathie Best, RR 1, Maynooth and David Clare, RR

Homemaking club members have their own provincial conference, held in July. Those from this area attending last July were Karen Dunlator, RR 5, Trenton, who was later chosen Hastings county Dairy Princess; Lynne Hoover, Stirling; Margaret Anne Kerby, RR 1, Stirling; Noreen Pidgeon, RR 2 Madoc and Penny Barber, RR 7, Belleville.

A national conference for 4-H members from all 10 provinces is held annually each November in Toronto and Ottawa. During the week delegates discuss Canadian and world affairs, associate with government leaders and tour places of interest.

November Big Month for 4-H

November 10th to 16th has been declared as National 4-H Week in Canada. Canadian 4-H clubs began in a sense in 1913 with the formation of a boys and girls club in Roland, Manitoba. From this group of 14 enthusiastic young people, the movement has grown in number to 78,000 has grown in number to 78,00 strong from the Grand Banks of Newfoundland to as far west as the B.C. Islands. It wasn't until the early thirties that the the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs was formed when representatives of business and agriculture met. The Council incorporated in 1931 became the binding force for 4-H in Canada as well as the focal point of liaison between Canada and 60 or more countries in the world with similar types of programs.

Records available at the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food office in Picton date back to the annual report of 1908. The report indicates that school gardens were being encouraged at this time. The annual report of 1912 indicates that four of the County Townships held rural school fall fairs.

By 1920 Home Garden Clubs had been formed and 25 entries were received for the competition.

These activities seem to be the forerunners of the boys and girls clubs mentioned in the report of 1930. The boys and girls clubs according to the available local records didn't become known as 4-H clubs until the 1950s, although the Canadian Council on 4-H clubs dates to 1931.

Hastings Girls Award Winners

In the 1972-73 year, 466 4-H club members in Hastings county participated in two projects each.

Home economist Kate Ann Wahl said 210 certificates of achievement for completing two projects were issued. Thirty-seven girls completed six projects and earned county honors.

Ten girls won provincial honors for completing 12 projects. They are: Betty Fleming Trenton; Barbara Ketcheson, Trenton; Donna Sullivan, Plainfield; Susan Wellman, Stirling; Cheryl Reid, Corbyville; Anne Sexsmith, Madoc; Janice Clancy, Stirling; JoAnn Kirn, Stirling; Bonnie Baker, Madoc and Ann Roushorn, Madoc.

Mrs. Lois Budd of Tweed won advanced honors for completing 18 projects.

Four girls attended the 4-H Homemaking Club Conference at the University of Guelph. They were: - Noreen Pigden, Madoc; Margaret Anne Kirby, Stirling; Carol Lynne Hoover, Stirling.

Potato Growing Was 4-H Beginning

The earliest clubs in Ontario resembling 4-H clubs were a boys' potato growing contest organized in 1913 and a girls' gardening and canning competition organized in 1915 in Carleton County. In 1918 the minister of agriculture reported that 19 farmers' sons were participating in the Carleton county potato club.

The girls canning and gardening competition had 26 entrants in 1918 All were expected to keep written reports and exhibit at the county fair.

Food and clothing clubs were also mentioned as long ago as 1915.

A mixed livestock club was formed in Waterloo county in 1915 and by 1918 the hamlet of Finch had a boys' and girls' pig club, Peel county had a dairy calf club and Caledon had a sheep club.

The Women's Institutes organized the first homemaking clubs in 1896. Twenty-five were organized the first year as garment making clubs.

First year members made a work bag or apron by hand, a kimono type garment and a pair of bloomers. They darned two pairs of stockings, did an overhand patch and a hemmed patch. All were required to keep an accurate record of the cost of all materials, the hours spent in making each garment and to exhibit their work at the end of the club year.

These clubs continued until 1935, when they were replaced by other clothing clubs in the Homemaking Club program.

Until 1968, all 4-H agricultural clubs were organized as project clubs. Since that time a 4-H club may be organized as a community or multi-project club where members have different 4-H projects within the same club. At present, 4-H agricultural club members may choose project from six major areas -- livestock, field crop, horticulture, engineering, natural resource management, farm management and other projects such as youth leadership, snowmobile or rabbit projects.

In the 4-H Homemaking Club program, all club are project clubs. There are 23 Homemaking Club projects available to members.

In an age when other youth clubs are struggling for survival, the 4-H movement is still on the upswing. Although the farm population has dropped in the last 25 years, 4-H membership is still on the increase.

Supervisors Work Hard

All the 4-H activity on a county-wide basis could not be carried on without the supervision of Ontario ministry of agriculture and food officials.

The Johnnys-on-the-spot are the extension assistants and home economists in county agricultural offices.

The extension assistant works under the supervision of the ag rep to oversee 4-H club projects and assist the leaders. He finds films and other teaching aids for leaders and visits meetings of each club to help with problems.

The home economist oversees the homemaking clubs for girls. She conducts the annual two-day training schools for leaders in every project and visits each club during the year to supervise activities.

Hastings county this year acquired new personnel in these important positions. Miss Kate Ann Wahl is the home economist. Her home is in Willowdale and she is a graduate of the University of Northern Michigan.

John J. Paul of Almonte is the extension assistant. Raised on a dairy farm, he has a long record of 4-H, Junior Farmer and community activity. A graduate of Kemptville, he worked for a time at the college and has been involved in the urban-rural exchange operated by the ministry of agriculture during the summers.

In Prince Edward county the 4-H co-ordinator is Richard Hendry and the home economist is Mrs. Jackie Hart, who works out of the ministry of agriculture office in Napanee.

Hastings county's agriculture office is located in Stirling.

Many Suggestions Greet Energy Plan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction to Prime Minister Trudeau's major policy statement on energy contained little direct criticism but several suggestions for extending government involvement.

Nationalizing one or more of the major oil companies when a national petroleum corporation is set up next year was urged Friday by New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis.

He said such nationalization will be emphasized by the NDP when legislation to establish the corporation is introduced in the new year.

Mr. Lewis was in Edmonton where 15 of the 31 NDP members of Parliament met to hear briefs on energy topics from several groups.

In Ottawa, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was greeted in the Commons that the government should provide a subsidy for heating oil sold in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the question of a subsidy will be discussed at the proposed federal-provincial conference in late January.

Leonard Evans, Manitoba's Industry minister, has invited the federal government to head that meeting in Winnipeg.

Monday night the Commons is expected to vote on a Conservative motion of non-confidence criticizing the government for an inconsistent and vacillating energy policy.

The NDP, which holds the balance of power, already has said it will support the government.

One critic of the prime minister's energy policy Friday was Gordon Ritchie, Conservative member for Dauphin.

He said it was time Ottawa

Land-use Plans Questioned

Durham Man Fears Farmers May Be Tied to Their Land

TORONTO (CP) — Four chairmen of Ontario's regional municipalities expressed concern Friday for farmers who could be "locked into" a subsistence agricultural life by land-use plans preventing urban development of their land.

In a meeting of the chairmen of the 12 regions with provincial officials, the four said a provincial plan setting aside land solely for agriculture must be coupled with an assurance to farmers of a "viable" agricultural industry.

Anne Jones of Hamilton Wentworth, Allan Mascoe of Halton, Walter Beath of Durham and John Campbell of Niagara said the restriction of housing and industrial development to certain areas of the regions is necessary so that needed agricultural land remains available but land use plans should not prohibit farmers from a profitable existence.

The Niagara chairman said the Niagara Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association has approved the region's land zone scheme but it has added the qualification that restrictions would be removed if agricultural businesses remain unprofitable two or three years after the introduction of the restrictions.

Agricultural Minister William Stewart said he agrees with the qualification. "There is no point in zoning land forever and a day if the business remains unviable."

He said, however, the province is working to make the farming industry a profitable one for farmers.

He said the province has petitioned the federal government for the introduction of import surcharges on some agricultural products to protect Ontario farmers and federal Finance Minister John Turner has looked favorably on the idea.

In addition, he said, the province has attempted to lower farmers' taxes and has precluded the capital gains tax on land transferred from one generation to the next.

Meanwhile, Treasurer John White was told at the meeting that amendments to the Ontario Planning Act to give municipalities the right to validate rural lots subdivided under the controversial "checkerboard" system should be used to help individual owners not developers.

Gladys Rolling, mayor of East Gwillimbury Township, 28 miles north of here, made a plea for "the innocent people who bought in good faith."

She said later in an interview municipalities might use the amendments to encourage development just to generate tax assessment at the expense of other rural residents.

Shower With Friend To Help Save Power

The Ontario government is running full-page newspaper advertisements listing 47 things homeowners can do to save electricity, gas, gasoline and furnace oil.

A Toronto newspaper took a tongue-in-cheek look at the 47 points—which include blowing insulation into hollow house walls—and estimated it would cost $800 to follow all of them.

But there are many little ways of conserving energy without expense.

Taking a shower instead of a bath will save at least five gallons of water and here Ian Efford of the Science Council of Canada offers this suggestion: Shower with a friend and save the power needed to heat water for two showers.

Ecologist Efford also suggests not sleeping alone. Do away with the electric blanket—which has a 100-watt rating and costs 200 cents an hour to operate—and try body heat.

Today's Chuckle

"Inflation has changed things. Now one can have as cheaply as two used to.

U.S.-Russian Detente Won't Help Says Swede

REGINA (CP) — A world-famous Swedish economist and social scientist said Friday night not to place too much hope on the United States-Russia detente solving international problems.

"I am not relying on it very much," Gunnar Myrdal told the opening session of a conference considering the impact of democratic socialism on government.

"We've been hearing common propaganda from the super powers about detente. It's very much focused on those two crooks—Nixon and Brezhnev—embracing each other."

Dr. Myrdal, former leader of the Swedish Social Democratic party and author of several books on race relations in the U.S., said he is skeptical about chances for improved relations between the super powers "as long as we have atomic bombs stored in the centre of Europe."

Dr. Myrdal predicted a future with an escalating arms race, uncontrolled population and inflation.

"The future is dark and it is becoming darker because of the energy crisis. We have to fight against it."

The energy crisis will result in stepped-up nationalism. "The first thought of every country will be how it can get through itself."

Dr. Myrdal was speaking at the first conference sponsored by the Douglas-Coldwell Foundation, described as an "instrument of research and education concerned with social planning in Canada."

Formed in 1971, it is named after T. C. Douglas and M. J. Coldwell, longtime leaders in the New Democratic Party and its predecessor, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Whelan Says Canadians Can Get Food Bargain for Hundred Years

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Friday night that if farmers receive decent prices so they can increase production, Canadians will "get the best food bargain in the world for at least another 100 years."

He told a meeting of the Spadina riding Liberal association that a recent statement by Dr. Wil Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, is "the type of nonsense that farmers are upset about."

Mr. Archer was quoted as saying that if present trends continue food costing $100 now would be $1,000 by 1980.

"A lot of my farmer friends think that the real shortage in Canada is in common sense," said the agriculture minister. "And I can't blame them for feeling that way when we get statements like that from so-called responsible leaders."

sledge hammer to kill a fly" because he didn't believe the energy situation was as serious as pictured.

In the Alberta legislature, Premier Peter Lougheed said his government will decide early next year whether to expect extension of the voluntary federal freeze on crude oil prices until spring.

He said Alberta had planned to begin gradual oil price increases after Feb. 1, the original date for ending the price freeze.

In Toronto, D. G. E. Walton, president of Interprovincial Pipe Line Ltd., said extension of the crude oil pipeline to Montreal from Ontario because of shortages of industrial materials not directly related to energy was predicted by J. L. Thibeault, an economics expert with the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick said continuation of the freeze on domestic crude oil prices will have little effect in the Maritime provinces, which get their oil from the Middle East and South America.

Nova Scotia's Premier Gerald Regan said his government rejects implications of Mr. Trudeau's energy policy that Atlantic offshore areas are under federal control. The five eastern provinces are negotiating offshore mineral rights with Ottawa.

—Dr. Jim Russell, a spokesman for the Committee for an Independent Canada, said in Edmonton estimates indicate Canada's known oil reserves will be gone in 14 years and natural gas within 14 years.

"We must isolate the Canadian petroleum market . . . and get out of the export business," he told the special caucus of NDP MPs.

—Also in Edmonton, Dr. J. T. Ryan, a University of Alberta petroleum engineer, said Western Canada may face the prospect of oil rationing by 1980.

—The Alberta Energy Co. will have capital of $500 million, half from the government and the rest from public investment, the Alberta legislature was told.

The company was formed by the province to promote investment by Albertans in the provincial projects as the Athabasca oil sands.

—Ten plants may be in operation at the Athabasca oil sands by 1990, said Harold Page, president of Hydrocarbon Consultants Ltd. in Edmonton.

In the Commons, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said the government has no policy of discriminating against United States motorists buying gasoline in Canada.

Mounties Arrest Javelin Chairman

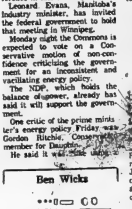
MONTREAL (CP) — John C. Doyle, founder and chairman of Saskatoon Javelin Ltd., was arrested here Friday night and is being taken to St. John's, Nfld., to face charges not yet officially revealed.

Doyle, arrested by a group of RCMP officers carrying a warrant issued in St. John's where Javelin's head offices are located, may appear in court this afternoon in the Newfoundland capital.

Police officials and Javelin officers were extremely tight-lipped about the arrest of the controversial financier, whose interests through Javelin and its affiliates have stretched from copper works in Panama to a beerboard plant on the west coast of Newfoundland.

Doyle was taken under escort from the firm's downtown offices in a plush, Sherbrooke St. apartment building, around 8 p.m. Friday.

The rotund, silver-haired promoter has been a colorful figure for years and a dissident group of Javelin shareholders based in the United States made an unsuccessful attempt at an annual meeting in the late 1960s to curb his control over Javelin affairs.



He was a close business associate and friend of Premier Joseph Smallwood during much of that latter's years as head of the Liberal government in Newfoundland.

The most recent incident in newspapers involving Javelin concerned allegations of insider share-trading on the American Stock Exchange late last month by the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

The commission filed a civil suit against Javelin, Doyle and William Wisener. Javelin president, Ed Lloyd there had been violations of SEC rules governing registration, fraud and reporting.

Trading was halted on the Vancouver and Montreal exchanges following the SEC move, but it was allowed to resume in Vancouver this week after the company filed a statement with the exchange.

The Montreal Stock Exchange announced it will permit trading in Javelin shares to resume Monday.

Prize Unclaimed

Bob Paton of Oakville waits for somebody to take up the offer of his boss. Alf Reimer decided to celebrate his 75th robbery by offering a free tank of gas to the crook. The occasion arose this week when the 75th thief broke a window of the service station and got away with $86.31. So far there have been no takers for the prize. Mr. Reimer says the offer still stands — the thief can claim his gas, but police will get any information available about him.

She said the federal and provincial governments have failed to provide the protective required by consumers needing eyeglasses.

"In addition, we have requested consumer representation on provincial licensing boards governing the industry and will request an investigation into the regulations governing the sale and fitting of contact lenses."

Education Beat

Teachers Lose Only Weapon?

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Thousands of school children across the province may be denied a post Christmas holiday they are looking forward to.

The ministry of education seems determined to keep the schools open despite mass resignations of teachers from many boards in the province. An emergency session of the legislature will be called Jan. 4 if teachers are still out.

Teacher unrest hasn't hit here, although it is creeping close to our borders. The Separate school teachers in Oshawa have handed in resignations, effective Dec. 31, and teachers with the public board in Frontenac County have taken the same action.

Schools will be closed after the Christmas break unless negotiations are settled and the teachers withdrew their mass resignations.

The public is incensed at the thought of empty schools and some people in the areas affected are suggesting that boards start now to hire replacements for the teachers who have resigned.

The idea is feasible now, with the field flooded with unemployed trained teachers. The teacher surplus had alarmed teacher organizations, removing from their hands the only weapon they can brandish before boards -- the mass resignation.

Mass resignation action is, in effect, a strike. Although they don't have the right to strike, teachers can close a school just as effectively as striking workers can close a factory.

Such conduct is called unprofessional by critics of teachers. But since when were teachers real professionals?

The label has been pasted on them by their federations and school boards to make the job more palatable.

Nor are they workers of the type who need labor union protection. The public sees teachers as public servants who are performing a vital service. At the same time the public doesn't want to see teachers left defenceless on the job market.

So why don't teachers' organizations borrow a practice from federal civil servants and opt for compulsory arbitration when negotiations break down? Both boards and teachers would have to submit to the decision of the arbitrator, which is usually more favorable to the employee than to management.

Energy Shortage Can Be A Blessing

By JIM SMELLE
(Staff Reporter)

The energy crisis isn't hurting everybody. For some Belleville people the government's recommendation that everyone save on fuel is a blessing in disguise.

Take the recommendation that has been getting the most publicity lately, that of driving at an economical 50 miles an hour instead of the usual 60 to 70.

Insurance companies stand to benefit from that suggestion. After all if everyone is travelling at a safe 50 miles an hour, accidents are bound to decrease.

Ross McDougall, of Lorne McDougall Insurance, says it will take about a year for any results of a trent to lower speeds to reflect on lower insurance rates.

"But it definitely will be reflected in lower insurance rates if the government legislates a lower speed limit on our highways," he said.

"Our (accident) statistics are compiled well in advance so it would take about a year to have any effect. And there's been nothing brought out. It's not a law, just a suggestion," said Mr. McDougall.

"But the trend is make for fewer accidents if everyone travels at a lower speed," he said. He couldn't say for sure how great a part speeding plays in the frequency of accidents.

"But people are going to go fast no matter what conditions of the roads are like. Whether it's the weather raining or whatever," he added.

Another government recommendation calls for turning down the thermostat to five degrees and making better use of insulation in the attic or other places to save heat.

Mike Pope of Arthur Sills and Son Insulation Materials says his company can't cope with the current demand for insulating material.

"Our material is going out as fast as we can get it. Then

Hospital Budget Restricted

Belleville General Hospital has been told to restrict its 1974 budget increase to 5.1 per cent.

It had sought health ministry permission for a 7.9 increase, a 40-per-cent cutback in capital equipment purchases is necessary to help comply with the permitted increase.

The news was reported to Friday's BGH board of governors meeting.

The permitted increase on budget baseline expenses to be the lowest allowed any hospital in the province, said Dr. R. E. Morgan. But the average seemed to be six per cent.

Total BGH operating budget in 1973 was $9.5 million.

Meantime, the board learned, the ministry had given BGH an $11,000 incentive award for more effective utilization of beds. Among reasons cited for this was bronzecare and self-care operations.

again there is a shortage of supplies at this time. It all boils down to the law of supply and demand.

"We've had a lot of call from people other than contractors. We can't cope with the demand. Insulation is hard to get now," said Mike.

A large local company that could remain nameless by energy crisis is Stephens-Adamson, a division of Borg-Warner.

If the world's resources of gas and oil continue to dwindle away, an alternate source of fuel might then be coal.

Since the Marine division of Stephens-Adamson deals with bulk materials in the company's self-unloading ore containers, an increased demand for ore coal will mean more business.

Said Jim Young, vice-president of the company: "It would help us a lot if something like the Ontario Hydro generating station switched from oil to coal."

"We've already had a benefit in the switch over to coal from oil in the Detroit Edison plant," said Mr. Young.

"Sure we would be helped if companies along the Great Lakes switched their power from oil to coal," he said.

The Belleville section of the company is now actively engaged in designing and estimating for a number of coal fired boilers for the Great Lakes.

Reid's Nursery Centre on Front Street are also doing their part, because of the fuel crisis.

"We've been swamped with reservations to Florida for the past few weeks. We're booked ahead for about three months now," said Mrs. Drew of Reid's.

"We've noticed people coming in here to book air flights who would normally travel by car," she said. "There's also an increase at this time of the year, but people are booking much earlier" said Mrs. Drew.

This past week has been just horrible. Some travellers tell us they don't want to drive down because of the gas shortage in the United States," said Mrs. Drew.

"There's been no cancellations of flights to Europe or to the States. There was one American flight to Chicago that was cancelled because it didn't have a large enough load," she said.

"Any flight that doesn't have a full load usually won't go," said Mrs. Drew. "We have noticed that there aren't as many overseas flights as U.S. ones."

"But travel is no problem either. We've had no cancellations on bus tours.

"We find that if people want to travel they will book and do so."

Mrs. Drew says she hasn't heard of any Canadian travellers getting stranded in the before.

American gas stations selling Canadians only a couple of gallons where before they would sell a full tank," added Mrs. Drew.

Every cloud can have a silver lining. But one must remember that a lot of the ways suggested for conserving fuel are only recommendations from the government.

If the crisis continues it's possible that lower speed limits, gas rationing, a return to odd-even days will become the law of the land and then everyone will have something to gripe about.

Quinte Shelter to Get Deer After Park Food Scarce

CHATHAM — The Ontario Humane Society's Chatham branch shelter area is among destinations for deer being shipped out of a provincial park near here because of food shortage.

Some 30 deer in Rondeau Provincial Park will be tranquillized by darts and sent to other parts of the province next week, says a Canadian Press report.

Initial plans by the Ministry of Natural Resources called for shooting of about 300 deer from the existing herd in the park, 15 miles southeast of here on Lake Erie.

Objections by nature groups caused the ministry to change its plans. Instead it will use the tranquillizer darts to immobilize the deer for shipment.

Since its location west of Belleville on Avonlough Road some years ago the OHS regional shelter has kept various species of smaller animals.

The deer will be shipped to three other locations — University of Guelph, the African Lion Safara, at Rockton, and the Wasaga Beach zoological gardens.

Paper Reflects Its Community

By MARG HAYLOCK

PICTON — Although several daily newspapers have gained wide readership in Prince Edward this home town bi-weekly, The Picton Gazette, remains the perennial favorite as newsstand here.

The role of the home town paper in this community last week was emphasized by celebration of the Picton Edward Progress Report outlining the county's industrial history.

Through its extensive files the Gazette chronicled the operations of several family businesses. Many readers must have enjoyed the "remember when" concept of the early day photographs depicting county scenes dating to 1930.

Readers of the larger dailies seldom enjoy the warmth and humor shared by subscribers to the home town bi-weekly.

This humor inadvertently surfaced in the Gazette's progress edition when accidentally transposed type produced a unique sentence of Prince Edward's industrial range.

By mistake the unmentionables of the garment industry were credited as the manufacturers of a Wellington meat company.

The story read, "In Wellington Quinte Meat Products processes a wide variety of ladies garments — housewives to be exact."

This uplifting information was followed by still another unusual claim.

A little-known industry in Hillier township is A. P. Hayward Limited, a small business that manufactures bicycles and other specialized pre-cast concrete products."

In reality, the firm mentioned manufactures the woven wire undergarments erroneously credited to Quinte Meat Products.

In larger dailies these gremlins in the type might have led to a published correction and apology. In the hometown paper the mixup seemed to generate laughter and understanding for the pressures of press day.

The dailies, in Prince Edward, seem to be regarded as the professionals that churn out facts and figures impersonally. They carry no space for the small social items published by the local press.

The Gazette is the people's paper and at least two of its readers have become columnists. Terry Sprague, a Big Island naturalist, was prompted by his interest in the outdoors to write several letters to the editor. His writing was encouraged by the news editor and the column, Outdoors With Terry has been a regular feature for almost a decade now.

A Cherry Valley farmer, Harry Evans, penned his way to local fame through a series of letters to the paper detailing local issues. Mr. Evans unique style created the column Harry Says and drove home the fact that Gazette readers are, indeed Gazette writers.

The hometown paper is a publication for the people by the people and, in a tactful way, it shuns the professionalism of the daily. There's room in it for a lengthy account of a euchre party or church bazaar and space for wide coverage of everyday events. Each edition carries a social column to record the comings and goings of county residents.

When it comes to "hard news" the bi-weekly delivers better front, council and school board meetings in a style similar to that of the daily. And when the local newspaper is a mirror of commonplace happenings.

As it approaches its 146th year of publication the Picton Gazette plans to adopt offset printing, a modern technique to improve the quality and appearance of the paper. This move indicates the bi-weekly's awareness of progress.

The hometown paper seldom can scoop the dailies with a story of major local importance. Often the stories it carries have been printed by larger papers at least one day earlier.

Competitors can be scooped, however, by the bi-week-ly's concern for the low-key community happenings that are crowded of necessity from the pages of the daily papers.

Quiet Life Near the Bustle

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

GLEN MILLER — Apart from the highway and Trent River, life moves casually in this village.

Founded in the late 1800s, its easy-going life style has changed little over the years, despite the advent of electric stoves, television and the modernization of its sole industry, the paper mill.

The hamlet skirts both sides of the river, nestled in valleys around the mill, which today uses more than 3.5 million gallons of water during a 24-hour period.

In 1894 Peter Miller came to the area with his paper mill idea. With the combination of ample water supplies and a river fast enough to turn the water wheels, the site two miles north of Trenton was ideal. As a name Glen Miller is a combination — the Scottish word Glen, for valley, and the founders surname.

The last waterwheel went out of operation in 1953. The Miller name is carried on by the Miller sisters living in the community's largest home, designed and built by their father shortly before the turn of the century.

Today the mill still is the economic core of the little community as it has been for nearly a century. It employs 170 people. More than half the residents work for the mill, as had their fathers and grandfathers. A company spokesman says more than 25 per cent of the staff belong to the mill's 25-year club and fathers and sons working side by side are common.

Through the participation in civic affairs and readiness to perpetuate the community, the mill itself is a way of life. When arms are odd enough, or so desire, they join their fathers in the plant.

Hugh Campbell, president and general manager of the Glen Miller operation says there is keen competitive spirit among the workers.

"Shirts compete against each other to produce higher quality," he says.

This is not a company-initiated policy but a tradition among the workers.

With community economic dependence on the company also goes responsibility for keeping up with competitors to keep the mill operating. The Glen Miller operation is one of the few independent mills still extant. Most others have been absorbed into corporations.

Mr. Campbell came to the company in 1939. His father began with the firm in 1916 and now a third-generation Campbell is in the sales representative for the mill's paperboard.

The keep-current-and-competitive company style has seen $3.5 million plowed into re-structuring and updating equipment. Another $250,000 is scheduled to be spent this coming year on installing water filtration systems. Payroll totals about $1.5 million annually.

Recreation in the community centres around the church and the hall provided by the company.

The building in its early years saw service as a recreation centre for Canadian Army Forces personnel. It now is used by the local Christ Church, as a banquet facility, and by youth organizations.

If residents need anything else they journey to Trenton or Belleville.

Mr. Campbell says transportation is one of the things that helps keep people in the village. He says it's an attractive place to live and work and most requirements are a short drive away.

The only other attraction to the community is the grocery store that stocks everything from garbage pails to boxes of chocolates.

Not far away are such products of modern times as bustling Highway 401, the growing industrial-urban Belleville-Trenton zone. The big jets of Air Transport Command touch down at a headquarters base within easy distance.

Glen Miller remains a stronghold of the quiet life — close enough to larger centres for all the amenities isolated hamlets call to live placidly in the 1970s.

Prince Edward Farmers Talk About Co-ops

PICTON— The operation of a co-operative buying agency for farmers was outlined at the last meeting of Prince Edward County Federation of Agriculture.

Guest speaker was Robert Donald of Bath, secretary-treasurer of Active Central Trading, a co-operative. The Prince Edward federation has tried to form such a co-operative, but few were interested because such an agency operates on a cash, not credit, basis.

Mr. Donald said his organization is a community project, started by a group of farmers, who by banding together could buy wholesale. They market gas, diesel oil, fuel oil, fertilizer, seed and machinery.

Capital is obtained by asking a deposit of $50 from each member before he joins. This is returnable at severance. Each member pays dues of $2 a month and 3 per cent each month on all money spent. Purchases are billed on the 15th of each month and bills are payable by the 30th.

The president Michael Haist, announced that the county fieldman, Ray Vandervelt, had resigned as of Dec. 1. The president will be a member of the selection team who will choose a replacement.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 7 in the board room of the ministry of agriculture building. A representative from Hanover will discuss labor problems.

Miniature Furniture In Big Demand

HAMILTON (CP) — Two of Santa's helpers can't keep up with demand.

Charles Brennan, 66, a retired barber, and his wife ,a seamstress, build miniature furniture for doll houses and collectors.

Recently they turned out 144 tiny upholstered chairs in less than three days but still couldn't fill all orders.

Their home industry started 16 years ago when Mr. Brennan built a doll's house for his daughter and began making furniture for it.

"We never did get that house completely furnished," said Mr. Brennan. "As fast as we made the pieces visitors wanted to buy them."

Company Community

Trees, quiet homes and the smokestack of the local mill are a symbolic setting at Glen Miller. The paper operation still is a core function of the quiet-living hamlets where the bustle of modern times still hasn't taken over completely.

Games 'Down Under'

As sports editor Doug Walsh has pointed out, Belleville lawn bowler Bruce Miller will be heading for New Zealand soon and the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch.

Along with weightlifter Gary Walt and coach Ken Carr-Brain, Miller is a member of the Canadian team for the Games and he will be presenting a gift to the Mayor of Christchurch on behalf of Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

New Zealanders are a far-flung people and it would be of interest to Christchurch's chief citizen that Belleville has a handful of "Kiwis" among its population. There are five to our knowledge.

Gary Walt will be getting leave of absence from Corby's where, incidentally, we have also had the other day with assistant personnel manager Jim Dunlop of Wellington (Ont.). He told us of some links Picton Jaycees had back in 1968 with their counterparts in the New Zealand community of the same name — a small port on the northeast coast of the south island. The two groups corresponded for a time.

Picton, for Dunlop, as it has often been described as the most English of New Zealand's cities. Indeed its River Avon, churches and Canterbury University reflect much of the atmosphere of an English city. With a population of more than 250,000, it is the home base for the Antarctic research operations at McMurdo Sound.

In summer, it is one of the hottest parts of New Zealand — temperatures of 100 degrees have been recorded — but we are sure this will not put too much of a damper on the enthusiasm of our athletes, not at this point at any rate!

Hydro Facility

Industry these days tends to be associated as much for its capacity for pollution as for its job and productive qualities.

It is the same with public authorities. Take Ontario Hydro for instance; if it is not being blamed for raising its rates it is at the receiving end for dressing the landscape. After all, transformers, pylons et al, though essential, tend to detract from the surrounding landscape.

But there is another side to such development. Recently Belleville Rotarians heard from public relations officer Pat Kelly about the landscaping and park facilities which had been developed at the Pickering nuclear power plant.

Now something of the same is under way at the new Lennox generating plant overlooking Lake Ontario at Bath. Here a 40-acre park complex is being created which, when completed by 1975, will be handed over to the Ministry of Natural Resources. It will then be handed over to some appropriate authority and the Prince Edward Conservation Authority has been mentioned in this connection.

According to Denis Wilkinson, Hydro's P.R. man at Bath, overnight camping facilities will also be provided and there is a possibility as well of private development of a fish hatchery for which Government-funded pumping equipment is already in place.

Across the road on Highway 33, where a grass bank overlooks the rocky outcrop, is the historical plaque describing the escape of the vessel Royal George from pursuing American warships, in the waters separating Prince Edward County from Amherst Island, back in 1812. Arrangements are being made to have the plaque relocated in the new park.

Work on the park began in the fall and the entire complex — plant and park — when completed will combine all the elements of public utility with an exciting new tourist and environmental attraction. The shoreline itself will remain untouched and, with the park including raised lookout points, the new development will surely one which will enhance, rather than detract from, this area of natural beauty.

Health Bulletin

An informative bulletin spiced with sound comment on the value of preventive medicine and physical fitness is the newsletter put out by Belleville's Enos David in his capacity as recreation committee chairman of the Association of Ontario Boards of Health.

During the recent Thunder Bay convention, Mr. David, who for many years was a city alderman, received requests from other board members to be put on the mailing lists, in addition to a number of letters of appreciation.

The AOBH incidentally assumes this title officially January 1, a decision of the Thunder Bay meeting, in place of the current Ontario Health Units Association.

Canada And Chilean Refugees Issue

Senora Allende's Visit Here Carried Strong Leftist Tag

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Senora Hortensia Allende, widow of Chile's late Marxist President Salvador Allende, has been lecturing in Canada, a determined, weary and bereaved woman urging Canada's government and Canadians in general to let the Chilean political refugees come in.

The circumstances of her visit and of a unique community of thousands of political refugees in Chile under a stern military junta, require some explanation and in the process say much about Canada's ability to give sanctuary to Chileans.

Senora Allende came to Canada under the auspices of a host of newly-founded "Canada-Chile Solidarity" groups plus the Quebec far-left outfits like the Communist party, two Trotskyite organizations in eastern Canada, the United Electrical Workers, Canadian Peace Movement and Associate United Ukrainian Canadians.

Her transcontinental visit which included Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Vancouver in a well-planned itinerary was paid for by the French language division of CUSO (Canadian University Service Overseas) and at least six active and identifiable "solidarity" groups.

All this says much about her leftist auspices, not unexpected in a way since her husband's shattered Popular Unity alliance of Marxist, Communist and far-left parties tried to rule Chile for three years after its election to power in October, 1970.

Allende's overthrow and death and the end to Chilean democracy by the kind of brutal military coup previously unknown in modern Chilean history, turned the boundaries of leftwing, socialist and Communist Latin Americans who had found refuge in Allende's Chile into enemies of the new authoritarian and right-wing military government.

Chile under Allende had become a unique refuge, in effect a national sanctuary for the political prisoners of Latin America's growing number of right-wing regimes. From Brazil under harsh military rule, Bolivia, Uruguay, Paraguay and Central America they came — left-wing professors and administrators, professionals, businessmen opposed to governments by generals, students, perhaps 13,000 in all.

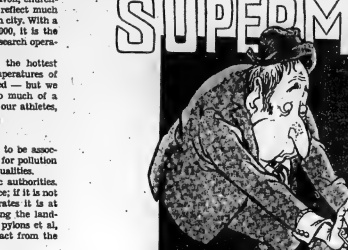
Not everyone of them was a bona fide enemy of Latin American dictatorships of the right. Terrorists, urban guerrillas were exiled Tupumeros, Uruguayan urban guerrillas who cloaked down the public life of Montevideo only three years ago.

At least two "training camps" for exiled urban guerrillas were condoned in Chile by the Allende government. The late president did not support urban terrorism but bowed to its extremist element in his loose "Popular Unity coalition who insisted he supply a Chilean-shelter to bemildered urban guerrillas.

The extreme and violent-left group is called "Miristas" (from the initials MIR for International Revolutionary Movement). It even believed in the overthrow of the Allende government if it refused to replace Chile's freely-elected Congress with an appointed and uni-cameral People's Assembly.

Add to this broad spectrum of the multi-faceted Latin America left, (what Canadian Ambassador Andrew Ross in his crude and ill-informed cable to Ottawa called "rift raft"), the officials and politicians of Allende's fallen government. All of them are now either in jail, in hiding or in the sanctuary of sympathetic foreign embassies in Santiago.

All of these, Chilean and Latin Canadians, plus about about 20,000 political exiles approximately equal to the number of Hungarians exiled in 1956 Czechs in 1968 and Ugandans last winter, all of whom sought quick and ready access to friendly nations including Canada.



Senora Allende's freedom to enter Canada and while here in attack both the Ottawa government and Ambassador Ross still in Chile was paradoxical. Canada had already recognized the new Chilean junta only weeks after the Sept. 11 coup which killed her husband and overthrew his government.

The wife of a dead and defeated Latin American president would not come to a foreign country which had recognized the successor regime and call for support. The answer is probably that the New Democratic Party which remains pro-Allende has harshly criticized Canada's quick recognition of the generals in Santiago and any official indifference to accept a share of the thousands of Chilean refugees. And the NDP holds the balance of power in Ottawa.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp may have moved too fast in recognizing Chile's fellow all-Canadian Ambassador this century. But he did not pre-empt Senora Allende's visit, he merely followed it. Undoubtedly External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp had to agree, given the assurance to him urban guerrillas and professional revolutionaries among the Chileans would be kept out of Canadian entry.

The NDP members of Parliament who honored Senora Allende with a luncheon during her Ottawa visit, have made their own input into the foreign policy of the Trudeau Liberal government.

The Chilean refugee episode is another reminder that minority government in Canada often changes policy because it is at the opposition's mercy.

TORONTO — "TOADS: There might still be people who believe you can get warts from toads.

"This, of course, is an old-wive's-tale.

"Warts on a toad's back are really glands."

How's that for a piece of scintillating, incidental information? Passed on to you indirectly from the News Letter of the ministry of natural resources.

One of the incidental and little known aspects of this centre of government is that it is, or would be, an absolute heaven for any magpie of incidental information.

Thousands and thousands of words, thoughts and observations, from the factual to the fantastical, flow daily from the reports, speeches, studies, pamphlets, news releases and just plain statements of the many segments of government and the many members of the legislature.

Example: "Surprisingly, people get drunk from the fact up."

Ontario Traffic Safety quotes that rare item of information from Dr. A. Eugene Le Blanc of the Addiction Research Foundation.

Intended as advice to try to drink standing on your head? No, it explains that your driving is only as good as your feet, which get loaded first.

The smallest municipality in Ontario? B.t. you don't know this one.

It's population? Zero!

That's from a speech by Treasurer John.White.

When it is used in acupuncture.

At least that's the claim of Fred A. Burr, chiropractor of Sandwich Riverside.

Mr. Burr says that a drug addict was undergoing brain surgery in Hong Kong. Acupuncture was being used as anaesthetic.

City-County Co-operation

Editor
The Intelligencer

Hastings County and the City of Belleville have an admirable record of co-operation in the deawers. It is a partnership that has served both municipalities well.

In spite of some criticism, the Social Services department, functions humanely and efficiently. It was among the first such County Departments formed in the province. The Belleville General Hospital, jointly operated by the city and the county, has progressed from a small co-tage-type hospital to a significant medical center. A revitalized Suburban Roads Committee is accomplishing substantial improvements in city-county transportation. An ad hoc Joint Management Committee is soon to release a report on the results of a study that should be of interest to everyone who is concerned about pollution.

These are only a few of the examples of co-operation that exist to serve the people of this area. The list is long and the achievements many.

In a statement to the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario meeting in Hamilton last month, the Hon. John White listed the type of services that city-county restructuring should provide.

Included in that list were only two items that Belleville and Hastings are not doing; one was capital borrowing and the other was the provision of water and sewer services by the City to the County.

Since the city and the county are already providing jointly sponsored services in many areas it seems that the next logical step in the sequence of events would be the rejuvenation of the proposed special water and sewer district. It certainly warrants consideration by both city and county officials as well as Thurlow and Sidney Townships.

An investigation should be initiated to determine if sometime the availability of additional financial resources. If this gap in service is closed to everyone's satisfaction there is no limit to the orderly economic growth that could ensue. When either partner prospers both will benefit.

Now that the county's official plan is public it is appropriate to consider thoughtful and constructive alternatives together within the framework of our traditional boundaries.

Reeve Worship and the City Aldermen know that the county's doors are always open.

Grade 12 Student's View Of Education

Editor
The Intelligencer,

I am writing this in reply to Mr. Young's letter" The Cost of Education." As a grade 12 student attending one of the local high schools, I have a little more insight into the school system than Mr. Young may have, if he has any.

I resent his negative arguments. Teachers are not stripped of authority. He would realize this if he attended a school for one day. He would also realize many other things as well. He would see that a school offers too many courses to do anything else but offer students free choice of subjects. Yet his choice is done under set rules so each student's prior to study is set so it is spread between the different areas of learning.

Another item he seems concerned about is, as he says, "broad loomed corridors" which he believes "flow over" for students too bored to stay in classes." I would like to know how he obtains this information. I know of no school in this area with broad loom or of any school which allows a student to flop in the halls because he does not feel like going in class.

The only thing I have to say to Mr. Young is, stick to some topic you know about, because by your letter it seems you don't know anything about this one.

SHIRLEY BUCHANAN

MPP and Education of 'Deaf

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Recently you published the CP wire service report of Mr. Michael Cassidy's attack in the legislature upon the Ontario Schools for the Deaf.

Fortunately, most of the readers of Cassidy's attack, and that just because he is an MPP does not mean that a man knows what he is talking about, Mr. Cassidy has certainly proved that to everyone in the province who knows anything about the education of the deaf. On the other hand, I am sure that many of your readers might wonder about the points made by Mr. Cassidy.

We need to make some distinction between the terms deaf and labelled as "deaf". The tragedy of those deaf served by the Schools for the Deaf is not the sentimentally appealing one of the blinding out on the sounds of birds singing, music and the rain pattering on the roof — poor Beethoven. The tragedy is that the person deafened at a later age — the problem of the audiological adjustment to the traumatic loss of an important sense.

The real problem of the deaf child is that the deaf or deaf from a very early age is a language problem.

We have never hearing children will be aware that from the day of birth they are bombarded by language.

From parents, siblings, relatives, neighbours, from observers on the street, the television and radio come words, sentences, phrases, ideas and questions. All of this leads eventually to the child beginning to talk and finally to use language in a meaningful way. For example, the child learns that words tell things, asks questions, gives orders, imagines things and invents and explains them — in other words he is well on the way to mastering language.

The deaf child — even if his parents have special training and know how to communicate with him — gets little of the input through his eyes that the hearing child gets through his ears.

The language ability of the deaf child is severely limited, governs and limits his academic achievement — falls far below that of his hearing counterpart. This has nothing to do with intelligence. It is, in fact, the problem of deafness.

To be critical of the education of the deaf because academic achievement of the deaf student is lower than the normal standard of equal intelligence shows a total ignorance of the problem.

If a way were to be found to provide the deaf child an equal kind of language stimulus to that available to the hearing child and to provide it from birth throughout. We feel the deaf would reach the same level as the hearing.

No group of people would rejoice more to see that day than teachers of the deaf.

Mr. Cassidy also criticized the schools because they do not teach the deaf child speech. The reasoning is that sign language is the mode of communication of over 70 per cent of the adult deaf. To me there is no sense in such arguments.

I communicate with my deaf friends in sign language and am a sign language interpreter for the adult deaf, but under no circumstances would I advocate educating our deaf children in sign language. It is the inadequate tool for teaching in the English language.

No one has ever claimed perfection for any of our schools, but what has been in the city of Belleville for 103 years, is considered to be one of the finest schools in the deaf in North America.

Rationalized Reform Judaism Now Has Leader Who Is Mystic

NEW YORK (AP) — Reform Judaism, once a highly rationalized arm of the faith, today has a new national leader with a poetic, mystical side to him.

Rabbi Alexander M. Schindler, installed in November as president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, says: "We have to recapture a true unity on the basic sense of the holy in life."

"Man' requires this inward life that emanates from a mystical core," the 47-year-old rabbi added in an interview. "The human story cannot be told without the dimension that transcends all logic."

The grey-haired rabbi, who dabbles in poetry, said reform Judaism was "hyper-rational" when it developed 100 years ago.

"But the imbalance is being corrected. Mysticism is a vital aspect of religion. If we concentrate only on the special implications of faith, we fail to draw on its essence, on the waters of its source."

A scholar who for 15 years has directed the national educational activities of reform Judaism, Rabbi Schindler was described by his board of directors as "a leader in the tradition of the prophets."

The son of Yiddish poet Elieser Schindler, the rabbi was brought to the United States from Germany in 1935 as a boy of 13 in the early years of Hitlerism. Rabbi Schindler said his experience with Nazism was "not grave."

"I only experienced discrimination rather than extermination," he said. He is author of a book by that title, "From Discrimination to Extermination, analyzing the Hitler years of 1933 to 1945.

A Second World War combat veteran, he served with the U.S. Army's ski troops in three European campaigns, receiving the Bronze Star and Purple Heart. He still skis for recreational form.

He also plays tennis, smokes cigars, is an opera buff and "by nature, a cock-eyed optimist."

Of the state of the country's religious health, he said: "I see a resurgence rather than a diminution. There's a 'soul weather' about us.

"I think we're entering an age more amenable to the religious spirit. Increasingly, people are coming to the conviction that religion is essential, that the future of mankind cannot be entrusted to scientific rationalism."

Noting the trend toward more ritual in reform Judaism, he said it is another sign of "less rationalism and more mystery." But reform Judaism was "creating its own ritual" rather than simply returning to traditional forms.

Bethlehem Figured In Biblical Tales

REV. DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

Bethlehem, Paris and Rome, London and Washington have meant less to the world during this Advent season people from every corner of the globe will be saying in their hearts, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us."

The first time we meet that little town in the Bible, it is a place of tears and sorrow. A caravan was moving down the road. Two persons in particular, husband and wife, were in it. The wife was dying. Recall the names? Jacob and Rachel. He had courted her fourteen years. But the record says it was "as a few days for the love he had to her."

Alas, just outside that town amid far off hills Rachel died, leaving a new born baby crying for mother's arms. It's an experience as familiar as this very hour.

Turn the pages of the Bible a second time. Bethlehem is now a scene of high romance. The harvest season had arrived. The reapers were busy in the fields. However, Ruth couldn't sing with the others. She was homesick, like many this Christmas. But Boaz caught sight of Ruth. It was love at first sight. They were married and lived happily ever after.

Leaf the pages of the Bible a third time. Enemies had captured Bethlehem. Then, one night, as the camp fires burned low, three dim figures crept towards the town's main gate. Imagine King David's surprise when they returned with water from the sacred well.

David was all set to quench his thirst. Suddenly he paused and said, "Shall I drink the blood of men who went in jeopardy of their lives?" The record specifies that he poured the water on the ground as a gift to God.

Realism is as much a virtue as idealism. There are times when the courage of those in uniform on our streets and frontiers is as holy an offering as worship in churches.

At any rate, Is it not clear why Bethlehem was singled out? Into a town of bereavement the Christ Child came in order to bring tidings of comfort and joy. Into a town of romance the Christ Child came in order that love might be seen at its best.

And into a town of chivalry the Christ Child came in order that people may learn that his service is one of adventure, not a dull routine.

Gregory Now Foe Of Liquor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Dick Gregory, who gave up food 2½ years ago to protest the Vietnam war, still is starving and has given up something else—nightclub performing.

His new crusade is against liquor, which he says is ruining youngsters as fast as dope. He has bowed out of the liquor-serving clubs that once bins his big break 15 years ago and will concentrate on college dates and lecture tours.

"I refuse to do anti-drug ads on radio and TV because I will not be part of something that puts down eaters and drugs but doesn't say anything about alcohol," he said. "I'm saying they're both bad."

The comedian, whose causes have almost outgrowled his comedy in recent years, still lives like a perpetual boycott on the Titanic. He worries about war, poverty, the poisons in food, and the corruption of government.

His wife and six children, who live with him on a 400 acre farm in Plymouth, Mass., eat raw fruits and vegetables—nothing else. In case of disaster they can live off nature, he said.

Gregory, 40, consumes nothing but fruit juices, his diet since April, 1971. His weight has leveled off at just over 100 pounds and he says he feels healthy but usually hungry. He had vowed to begin eating once the Vietnam war ended, and he did break the fast for 30 days—eating only raw fruit and vegetables—but he began again because "the same mentality exists in the Pentagon today that created Vietnam. . . . You can't say you have peace if nations are killing each other."

He hasn't decided when he'll eat again.

Despite His doomsaying attitude, the strongest thing about Dick Gregory today is that he's funny.

His latest two-record album, Dick Gregory Caught in the Act, displays a sharpened wit and a gift for political satire that raises chuckles from the depths of his dismay. The album, the subject of his visit to Los Angeles, offers a thick serving of Watergate humor.

Traditional Goodies to Make for Your Friends

One way to stay out of the stores at Christmas is to get into the kitchen.

Home prepared goodies are traditionally great gifts for the neighbors or Great Aunt Hazel but your dearest friend or mother-in-law might really appreciate a whole basket of specialties. Food is particularly appropriate for people who have everything.

One of the nicest food-giving ideas is to bake a cake or pan of shortbread or batch of blueberry muffins in brand shiney new pans and present the whole thing, tied with red ribbon and decorated with a sprig of holly.

Bundt pans, madeleine molds, cheesecake rings, a cast iron gem pan, fancy jelly moulds and the like are all ideal for this kind of giving.

Breads, jams and jellies and cookies are standard giving fare. For some interesting variations on those themes, read on.

SESAME SQUARES

¼ cup sesame seeds
1 egg
¾ cup brown sugar, packed
¼ cup soft margarine
one third cup chopped maraschino cherries
½ cup all purpose flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon ground mace
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Toast sesame seeds lightly in a large flat pan in a 350 degree oven about 10 minutes (stir often).

Grease an 8-inch square cake pan with shortening or oil. Sprinkle half of seeds on bottom pan. Thoroughly blend the egg, sugar, and margarine. Beat in the cherries, then the sifted dry ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls over the sesame seeds in the pan then spread evenly.

Sprinkle top of batter with remaining seeds. Bake in a moderate oven until top springs back when touched lightly - - about 25 minutes at 350. Cool in pan then cut in fingers or squares. If desired, spread while still warm with thin icing - - 2 tablespoons soft margarine, ¾ cup icing sugar, 1 tablespoon (approximately) maraschino cherry juice, and 2 drops almond extract, thoroughly blended.

Tarragon Jelly

2 tablespoons dried tarragon leaves
2 ½ cups boiling water
¼ cup cider or wine vinegar
1 box pectin crystals
4¼ cups sugar
3 to 4 drops green food coloring

Sterilize jars. Measure tarragon in'o a bowl. Pour boiling water o'l top of it. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Strain through a fine sieve or cheesecloth into a 2½ quart saucepan. Add vinegar and pectin, bring to a rapid boil over high heat and add sugar all at once. Bring to a full rolling boil (bag cannot be stirred down) and boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from heat, stir in coloring. Skim off foam. Pour into sterilized jars. Seal airtight immediately with melted paraffin. Serve with cold meats.

HOLIDAY NUT BREAD

2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
4 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups chopped mixed nuts
¾ cup chopped nuts candied fruit
one third cup raisins
½ cup shortening
¾ cup sugar
3 eggs
½ cup mashed ripe banana
½ cup Florida orange juice

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Stir in chopped nuts, candied fruit and raisins. Cream shortening. Add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Combine mashed banana and orange juice; add to creamed mixture alternately with flour mixture beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Turn into a waxed paper-lined and greased 8x4x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350F. oven 1 hour. Cool 15 to 20 minutes; turn out on rack and cool.

Orange Strawberry Jam

3 ½ cups sugar
1 package (10 ounces) frozen sliced strawberries, thawed
½ bottle liquid fruit pectin
1 can (6 ounces) Florida frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted.

2 tablespoons lime juice

Put sugar and strawberries with syrup into a large saucepan; mix well. Place over high heat and bring to a full rolling boil; add liquid pectin and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; stir in undiluted orange concentrate and lime juice. Skim off foam with a metal spoon. Ladle into sterilized glasses and seal with paraffin. Makes 5 or 6 glasses.

ORANGE JELLY

3¼ cups sugar
1 cup water
½ bottle liquid fruit pectin
1 can (6 ounces) Florida frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
3 tablespoons lime juice

Put sugar and water into a large saucepan; mix well. Place over high heat and bring to a full rolling boil; add liquid pectin and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add undiluted orange concentrate and lime juice; mix well. Skim off foam with a metal spoon. Ladle into sterilized glasses and seal with paraffin. Makes 6 to 8 glasses.

GRAPEFRUIT CRANBERRY RELISH

Raw Relish

2 cups fresh cranberries
1 cup sugar
1 Florida grapefruit, sectioned

Put cranberries through food chopper, or chop in electric blender. Add sugar; mix well. Dice grapefruit sections; stir into cranberry mixture. Chill.

Yield: 3 one third cups.

COOKED RELISH

2 cups fresh cranberries
½ cup water
½ cup sugar
1 Florida grapefruit, sectioned

Combine cranberries, water and sugar in a saucepan. Bring to a boil; cook until berries pop. Remove from heat. Dice grapefruit sections (stir into cranberry mixture. Chill. Makes 2 one third cups.

Note: For gift giving, the raw relish may be turned into grapefruit shells and covered with transparent saran film.

To prepare grapefruit shells with a pkcut edge, trace a line around the center of grapefruit. Insert a small bladed pointed knife in the center of grapefruit at an angle to make one side of a point. Remove knife, insert to make opposite side of point.

Continue around grapefruit following line to make halves equal size. Pull apart. Ream grapefruit for juice; remove membrane.

Instruction For Topiary Tree

Material:

4 dozen artificial oranges 1½" in diameter with stems
6 artificial orange blossom sprays
1 styrofoam ball, 6" in diameter
1 wooden dowel, 12" long and ½" in diameter
Sateen ribbon of desired color
Transparent tape
1 styrofoam ball, 3 ½" in diameter Glue
1 bowl (white pottery or milk glass), about 4" in diameter

Assembly:

Cut orange stems to 1" lengths.

Separate 2 of the orange blossom sprays.

Beginning at the center top of the large styrofoam ball, insert orange into ball.

Insert sprigs of orange blossoms among oranges until entire ball is covered with oranges and blossoms.

Wind dowel wi h ribbon until all wood is covered, using transparent tape to hold in place.

Insert top of dowel into center bottom of large styrofoam ball. Fill in around the bottom with extra leaves removed from oranges or orange blossom sprays.

Insert bottom of dowel into smaller styrofoam ball which has been glued to the bowl. Fill in ball with remaining orange blossom sprays until desired effect is achieved.

Note: If oranges with wire stems are used, they will hold in the styrofoam. If stems are plastic, it may be necessary to glue them first before inserting.

Orange bread, prettily wrapped, raw or cooked relish and jellies are traditional holiday greetings for friends and neighbors. But a whole basket of your baking might be appropriate for a close friend or relative, too. Include a graceful topiary tree - - orange blossoms make a nice change from holly - - for a really special gift.

Bundt Pan with your own home baking makes an ideal Christmas gift - from - the- kitchen. All kinds of fancy baking in specialty pans can be an easy solution to the "what shall I give ... " problem.

Successful Living

Nursing Home Life Less Than Perfect

By DORIS CLARK

In my earlier letter asking about the result of living "without stress" I said I had nothing to worry about, financial security for the future, any form of responsibility — nothing except ill health and immobility.

According to Dr. Selye I am not living without stress but with the "terrible stress" of what is technically called "sensory deprivation" or "retirement disease." And he is perfectly right.

Living in a nursing home is perilous living. You see, no one really cares about the little things which, over the years, have become important when neglected: the dirty windows and curtains, wrong level of lighting, the fluff close to the baseboards — each a pin prick of annoyance and a reminder of the days when you lived in your own home, and saw to yourself do what was necessary to keep your environment clean and well ordered.

The big thing is the loneliness. You can't make a good friend in a nursing home because you can't be sure.

When first you go into a nursing home you are so very ready to be friendly. You are not prepared to be suspected. Yet you are. You walk in the wide corridors and see someone approaching you. As he or she draws near you are ready with a quick smile — but meet a turned head or averted eyes.

Then you suddenly realise what it is. They are not sure whether you are unstable or not. Maybe this situation will change with time.

One dare not confide in the nursing aides. These are so subject to rivalry amongst themselves for favor with their superiors that any personal confidence offered or any question concerning the rules, food or personnel of the nursing home could quickly backfire. The fact that so much of the help is colored (black or oriental), with language difficulties and uncertainty as to our way of life, makes for further disquietude and constraint.

Probably the most potent enemy to contentment in life in a nursing home is the complete lack of privacy.

True, nurses and aides are supposed to knock at your door before entering, and mostly they do so—but the time lapse between the knock and the entrance is so short it is really insignificant. The only semblance of peace is dress or undress is the bathroom.

Two women, both sadly senile, have wished on me and have had to be literally herded out screaming, kicking and pinching the attendants. How I would love a bolt on my door!

These and lack of any imagination regarding food, are the negatives of nursing homes.

There are, I freely admit, many positives: medical supervision, comfort for the body, shelter within and nicely kept grounds without. But — as Hilda Neelby says: "So little for the mind".

Ann Landers

Recipe for Tragedy

Dear Ann Landers: After reading tonight's paper I sat down and composed the Recipe For Tragedy. I hope you will print it, Ann. It's simple to follow and the results are guaranteed.

Take one reckless, inconsiderate, damned fool, a bottle of booze (any brand) and a high-powered car.

Soak the fool in the liquor, place him in the car and let him drive. After you hear the crash, remove him from the wreckage, place in a satin-lined box and garnish with flowers.—Mrs. Spokane

Dear Spokane: Yehr Recipe For Tragedy should be displayed over every bar in the country. Thanks for sending it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sorry I used to laugh at your column. I see now that the problems aren't so funny. I need help fast.

I'm a guy, 18, a senior in a trade school. My girl is 16. She's been hounding me to get married but I told her I am not ready to take on the responsibilities. Besides, there are a lot of things I want to do yet.

My girl was on the pill and assured me that we didn't need to worry. Last night she said something must have gone wrong because she's sure she is pregnant. Her next sentence was, "We've got to get married or my father will kill me."

I know a kid whose girl had an abortion. When I suggested that she tell her parents, I happen to be convinced that my own offspring is a wonder of precocity and intelligence.

However, I am a realist and admit that any kid who calls all the chicken "Sissy" has not yet learned all there is to know in this world.

Why is it, then, whenever a toy commercial flashes on the tube she scoots over as fast as she can and sits, entranced, bouncing up and down and clapping her hands?

I can only deduce it is the siren call of very clever advertising — designed to capture the attention of even the tiniest tot — and not Amy's ability to tell toys from the evening news.

As we get closer to Christmas, those seductive commercials begin turning up more and more frequently. Within two weeks, I'll wager, we'll all be ready to scream if we hear one more jingle about a doll guaranteed to wet your dress or a racing car that will turn every young boy into an agressive demon driver.

I wonder, too, why boys are never shown playing with dolls or girls shown engaged in competitive action games. I suspect it has something to do with making sure the kids all turn into good consumers: women who desperately want new washers and better — ever soap powder and men who must have fast noisy cars to be sure they are men. But that's another column.

Amy Airhart, a little girl I know intimately, was a year old this week.

Unless you're super-parent, you're going to buy some of those toys in the next couple of weeks. To help you spend your money wisely, the Canadian Toy Testing Council, an independent and voluntary organization operating with a federal grant, has tested more than 200 toys for play value, durability and safety.

You can get a complete list of toys recommended by the council, along with two pamphlets filled with "toy Buying and Bittle Gifts for Big Children", by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Canadian Toy Testing Council, Box 6014, Station J, Ottawa, Ontario K2A 1T1.

Meanwhile, here's a partial list of toys the council has tested as two top ratings "good buy" and "recommended". The toys are listed by name, manufacturer and price.

Leaning to Militancy: 'Taste Isn't Important'

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Howard says she thinks of herself as a moderate feminist, but that wasn't always her view.

"I used to be hesitant," the former magazine writer said in an interview. "I'd say, 'They're so militant.' But today I'd certainly cast my weight on the side of the militant rather than the timid feminists. I admire them. The substance of their work is more important than their style. Excessive anger is not the most unforgivable quality."

Miss Howard's change of attitude accompanied a two-year investigation into the lives of women in the United States. She has woven results of her interviews into a book, A Different Woman, which is a portrait of women and what is on their minds.

"There's a strange new climate in America where women are permitted to be angry, distastefully angry. I found time she hasn't written or called, I wrote twice and have received no answer. Now I'm inclined to write her a long letter and tell her exactly how's he feel Should I do it? Sign me— Used Dear Used: Write the letter. You'll feel better. There's no up. You don't need to tell her 'exactly how you feel." Her silence is the message. She knows.

The writer lives in New York. Tall with brownish hair, she wears glasses and seems unpretentious about her work.

"The idea of writing a book seemed vague and amorphous to me. Then the death of my mother and the realization that the women's movement was other than a transient joke came as a coincidence of public and private situations that made me think. I wanted to write a book about women, not as a hack journalist, but with some sort of personal concern.

"Our mothers are the last generation to be sure of themselves, have no doubts about what they are, who they are. We will never be as defined as they were."

Miss Howard did not intend to write so personal a book.

UNDER 21 BUTTED

"I had no notion it would be as revelatory as it is. The editor sort of crowbarred it out of me, always asking what was going on in me that was unusual. Who I was travelling with, who I saw. I was reluctant to agree because it meant talking about real people.

"So I changed the names of friends, created composites and scrambled everybody up, rather like fiction. I don't think I've heard the last of that so far, from the friends.

"Everytime legislators enact a new restrictive law, they create a fresh category of criminals."

So said an eminent U.S. psychiatrist, Dr. Thomas S. Szasz, M.D., in his book entitled "The Manufacture of Madness."

It is a great pity that this kind of logic did not recommend itself to Dr. Richard T. Potter, Minister of Health, before seeking the enactment of Bill 246 — The Denture Therapist Act. It is the firm conviction of denturists that Bill 246 and the manner of its implementation; the fact that it may require many persons to be taken before the courts to be dealt with as common criminals simply because they will not bow to the dictates of an onerous and restrictive law, has all the characteristics of absolute folly! Nevertheless, this is exactly what will happen if the Minister of Health carries out his announced threat to prosecute, after December 7, denturists who continue to supply denture services directly to the public without their activities being controlled by dentists. Denturists found guilty of contravening the Act, will face fines as high as $2,000.00 for each offence or six months in jail, or both.

It is manifestly apparent to us that this Government have decided that the vested interests of an entrenched profession takes precedence over the legitimate needs and wishes of the public - a clear abdication of responsibility!

Although the Government may attempt to deny this charge and will not admit publicly that they capitulated completely to dentistry, an editorial in a recent edition of the Journal of the Ontario Dental Association boasted that:

> "RECENT LEGISLATION, (BILL 246) THROUGH A LOBBY (OF MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE) CONDUCTED BY MEMBERS OF THE ONTARIO DENTAL ASSOCIATION, HAS INSURED THAT DENTURE SERVICES WILL REMAIN UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF DENTISTS." "parenthesis our.

THE PUBLIC HAS NOT BEEN TOLD THE TRUTH

When announcing his intention to prosecute denturists, the Minister alleged that denturists had "spurned his latest offer to give them refresher courses and new examinations in December and January." He further implied that "the Government is left with no option but to proceed immediately against individuals (members of the Denturist Society) who continue to advertise and practice as denturists." And then went on to say that "the future of those who have qualified as denture therapists or registered dental technicians is in jeopardy because of the illegal activities of the denturists. Those law abiding health workers cannot be subjected to further inconvenience because of the intransigent attitude of some individuals." The Minister concluded his remarks by stating that his Ministry and, we are left to presume the Government also, "have gone to great lengths to accommodate denturists."

Denturists dismiss these statements of the Minister as unfair and thoroughly irresponsible!

WHAT ARE THE FACTS?

Dr. R. T. Potter, M.D. was appointed Minister of Health in February, 1972. For nearly twenty months following his appointment, the Denturists Society tried unsuccessfully to arrange an appointment to meet with the Minister. Numerous letters requesting an appointment were simply ignored - some of these the Minister did not even have the courtesy to answer. Direct personal appeals to his fellow-conservative Members of the Provincial Parliament, his colleagues in the Cabinet and Officials in the Health Ministry to intervene in this matter and urge Dr. Potter to meet with denturists, all ended in failure.

During this time, however, the Minister was directly involved in numerous meetings with members of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons and the Ontario Dental Association. Ignoring, as he did appeals to take in account the opinions and recommendations of both the public and denturists alike, rather than those advanced by members of the dental profession and officials in his ministry only, the outcome was predictable and a confrontation between denturists and the Government was inevitable.

Denturists did not seek the confrontation that now seems certain to be in the offing. Indeed, we made every effort to avoid a confrontation. It would be unfair to suggest that no person in Government made an effort to work out a compromise between denturists and Health Minister Potter, but it required the direct intervention of the Premier before Dr. Potter would even consent to meet with denturists.

Representatives of the Denturist Society met with Dr. Potter for the first time on September 20 last. A further meeting was held on October 25, at which time we made a concerted effort to resolve our differences. However, as Dr. Potter's announced intention to prosecute denturists would indicate, our attempts to convince the Minister of the propriety of our stand failed miserably. We know now that the Minister had determined long in advance of our meeting, what his course of action would be and no arguments or recommendations, however fair or reasonable, would be permit to alter his decision. Notwithstanding our desire to avoid embarrassing the Government and to co-operate in every way possible, it is now very clear that the Government generally, and the Health Minister specifically, were never prepared to "accommodate" denturists or their supporters.

We believe that the Minister of Health is now attempting to justify his decision to prosecute denturists by alleging that the denturists are intransigent, inflexible and impossible to deal with.

Nothing could be further from the truth!

DENTURISTS DID NOT REFUSE TO BE EXAMINED AS TO THEIR QUALIFICATIONS

In a recent press release, Dr. Potter alleged that denturists had "spurned" his offer to have them examined as to their qualifications. This simply isn't true! In a letter from the Denturists Society to the Minister of Health, dated November 5, the Society stated that:

> "The members of this Society with the full approval of the Directors will apply to take examinations to determine their qualifications."

We would be less than honest if we failed to disclose that there were two conditions which we felt had to be met before we would agree to denturists having their qualifications assessed. Dr. Potter was fully acquainted with these conditions prior to our meeting on October 25. At no time did he indicate that he was opposed to our recommendations. Indeed, denturists had been assured by officials in the Health Ministry that their proposals would be considered reasonable and would likely be accepted.

The conditions were as follows:

1) That the Denturist Society be permitted to appoint or recommend the appointment of impartial observers who would be present during all phases of the actual examinations in order to insure that these would be conducted fairly and honestly; and,

2) That a Special Review Committee composed equally of dentists and denturists who successfully completed the examinations, along with a representative of the Ministry of Health be established immediately following the examinations. This Committee would be empowered to review any complaints of irregularities and reverse any decisions by the examiners which would be deemed improper or unfair.

The Minister could not possibly misinterpret our desire to co-operate since we stated in this same letter;

> "If these concerns of the Society are met, we can see no reason for our members objecting further to having their qualifications assessed."

THE MINISTER'S CONCERN FOR DENTURE THERAPISTS IS MISPLACED

Health Minister Potter stated that the future of denture therapists is in jeopardy because of the activities of denturists. This stated concern of the Minister is utter nonsense; since more than 80% of those persons who completed the examinations are not practising as denture therapists. Several have informed this Society and officials in the Health Ministry that they have no intention of practicing as denture therapists unless and until the Act is amended to allow them to practice without the supervision of dentists. As for the contention that the future of dental technicians is also in jeopardy, the Minister knows this to be completely untrue. Many of these dental technicians have joined the Denturist Society of Ontario in the hope that they could secure a future for themselves free of the anomalous control of dentists.

CONCLUSION

Denturists want it known that neither the Government nor the Minister of Health have been denied any options in this matter. Only the denturists have been denied all options. Therefore, we are serving notice on the Minister of Health, that we intend to resist, with all legitimate means at our disposal, any attempt on the part of the Minister or agents appointed by him, to deny denturists their right to seek legal status, just as we suspect the public will resist any attempt to deny them their right of freedom of choice. AND A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS TO YOU TOO, DR. POTTER!

Elderly Need Yule Donors

Names are flooding into the office of the Christmas Sharing program, but names of those willing to pack hampers are lacking. High school students donate half the 325 hampers required each year, and individual donors are required to take care of the remaining names on the list.

Mrs. Phillis Hayman, director of the program, says she has large number of elderly single people and elderly couples on her list this year.

"Many are disabled, have high drug bills a pay big rents and need help if they are to have a Christmas dinner," she says. "One has asked for roast beef instead of a turkey I suppose because she hasn't had roast of beef for a year."

Donors are expected to check with the people they are helping to find out if adequate cooking facilities exist for the food they are giving.

"We have cases in which we precook the turkey because the mother is disabled, in the hospital or has only a hot plate" says Mrs. Hayman.

Donors may reach Mrs. Hayman at her office between 2 and 4 p.m. by calling 962-1355.

Here OPP constable Brian Turner receives seasons greetings from a couple at the mall.

Building Terminates

Loyalist College's building program officially wound up Thursday night with the opening of a new wing.

Mayor Bert Brooks officiated before the board of architect Edward Barnett and construction company owner John Dallaire.

For five years Loyalist has been in the process of building permanent housing for its students. During that time it has built three structures, all linked together as parts of one permanent building.

Because of a freeze on educational building at the post-secondary level, Loyalist's building program has ended, despite its willingness to sponsor a Quinte Arts Centre cultural facility for plays and musical events.

The building program left a $300,000 surplus, all of which is now committed to campus improvements, including tree planting, a playground for early childhood education students, and interior and exterior signs.

Vendors Are Breaking Law

Many vendors selling, produce on the Belleville farmers' market are breaking the law.

And at the same time the city has been more than a little lax in enforcing its market-place bylaw.

This was revealed to city council Monday as a market place bylaw amendment which on January 1 will increase vendors' stall rental rates was presented for approval. Under the bylaw amendment stall rates will increase to $30 a year or $2 a day.

At the same time, however, City Solicitor John C. Miller suggested there were a number of items in the old bylaw that possibly should be reviewed.

For instance, one paragraph prohibits the sale of certain items including honey, maple syrup and apple cider — all of which are sold regularly in season on the market.

The same paragraph requires that the market be used only by producers, farmers and growers. Thus it would appear that some vendors would not qualify, being simply retailers of produce purchased from others.

Also prohibited is the sale of foreign or imported fruit.

Another paragraph in the old bylaw stipulates that market stalls are to be seven feet in width at right angles to the sidewalk, thus conflicting with angled parking spaces.

Council approved the bylaw amendment increasing the rental rates and directed the solicitor to confer with the medical health officer regarding the sale of meat and other items with the view of bringing the bylaw up to date.

Yuletide Posties Taken on Staff

Belleville postal personnel are preparing to process the peak of that yearly trade of personal greetcastrines: The Christmas Rush.

The exchange is expected to hit its high little more than a week from now. By Dec. 17-18 the post office expects to be collecting 180,000 letters from the city and district. It will receive about the same amount for distributions.

By that time, some 115 extra workers will be on the job to ease the burden — working three shifts in sorting and despatching letters, packages and parcels.

Most of these will start Monday, said assistant postmaster Jack Smith.

Meantime, more help already has been hired to aid the men who rate only second to Santa Claus in importance in Christmas house calls — the mailmen.

Almost a score of young, temporary workers Friday took the post office oath from Mr. Smith to "faithfully and honestly" discharge their duties as assistant letter carriers.

In all, some 29 will be hired — assigned to a mailman, and carrying an extra bag of Christmas mail.

Earning $2.24 an hour they start their rounds Dec. 13.

Truck Rolls

TRENTON—A Port Credit man miraculously escaped injury Friday night when his truck spun out of control and rolled on the Highway 401 near here.

Charles Cooper, driving a crane truck, told police because of the heavy load he was carrying, the truck began to sway and he lost control.

A spokesman for the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said damages would total about $3,000 from the 8.10 p.m. incident.

The driver was charged with having a blood-alcohol content of greater than .08 per cent.

Jim Babcock may not look like one of Santa's little helpers, the elves, but has been busy for weeks grapping toys and stacking them in Santa's sleigh ready for Christmas. Yesterday, he was making the old reindeer-man's workshop ready for his first visit to the eastend deliverule Plaza today. Santa will be back Friday and Saturday next week and the following weekend.

Santa Visits East Plaza

So many times, letter to Santa end up in the mail letter box at the post office. However, this need not happen if a youngster puts his Christmas wish in the right mailbox.

At the Belleville Plaza, a box sits outside the door of Santa's Workshop. Any tot who drops his letter in before Dec. 15 will get an answer from the jolly bearded gentleman. However, Santa advises that a name and address must be included.

Jim Babcock, who has been helping Santa build his sleighshop in the former Cherney's Furniture World location, says children can also enter a drawing contest. Santa will decide which three drawings of himself he likes best and give a present to each child. The drawings must be given to Santa before Dec. 22.

Santa, who makes his first visit to the workshop today, is sponsored by the eastend plaza's merchants association. He will return to talk to children Friday and Saturday next week and the weekend before Christmas.

For parents, the association is holding a draw for a $200 gift certificate. A photographer will be in attendance should pictures of their children with Santa be wanted.

Police After Impaired Drivers

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

It was a good party. What with Harry and the boys from the office, there and the wife caught up chatting with the fellow wounse's wife in the corner, no one had a chance to tell you that you had had one or maybe three drinks too many.

And hey did that last rum and coke liven up George's old jokes about the reindeer and the bunnies. It might have sent your head spinning a little but — what the heck — you've been in worse conditions before and you've been driving for years now.

So why not take a gamble and drive home? After all, the police can't be everywhere and one lone drunk on the road won't make that much difference.

Will it?

The office of Ontario's deputy chief coroner reports that 178 children were killed by drinking drivers in Ontario last year and statistics seem to indicate that a considerable number of those killed in traffic accidents had high alcohol levels.

The courts are being swamped with impaired driving cases also. In the first eleven months of this year, Belleville police have arrested and charged 157 people with impaired driving. Last year at this time, they had nabbed 178 drunk drivers.

The police are disappointed with the increase in the number of impaired drivers on the road and they are determined to cut their numbers down. The only way they can do that is by strictly enforcing the law. That means they will be out looking for drunks this Christmas.

"We had hoped when they brought in the compulsory breathalizer test that there would be a decrease in the number of impaired drivers on the road," said Police Chief Douglas Crosbie. "But, it's the same here as in other cities, there has been an increase. The requirement to submit to a test has not been a deterrent.

"Under our law the policeman must have "reasonable and probable" grounds for believing a person is impaired before he can demand the test. Whereas, in the United Kingdom, a policeman may, at any time and without any reason, demand a roadside test. The Canada Safety Council is recommending that the roadside test be made available to the police in Canada, but until that comes we are only permitted to stop vehicles to check them for mechanical fitness and to check a driver's licence. During the Christmas season, we will be increasing our stopping of vehicles for these checks. Quite often, as a result of these spot checks, impaired drivers are found."

If you do get caught and find your way into court, remember that the judge won't accept a good party as an excuse. An impaired driving conviction carries a severe penalty.

If convicted you autoqualify loses your driver's licence and, for a first offence, are subject to a $500 fine. A first offence could also carry a jail term of up to three months. Second and third offences automatically carry jail terms ranging from two weeks to one year.

If you drink and decide not to drive during the holidays, you may find that you have to walk.

The city's cab companies report that they are kept busy during Christatmas. The train station and the bus depot place a strain on their ability to pick up fares promptly. There are always a great many people who are coming into Belleville for the holidays and there are more and more people who are coming downtown to do their shopping.

A spokesman for Central Taxi explained that anyone who wants to ride in a cab during Christmas should leave himself at least 20 minutes between the time he calls and the time he wants to be picked up.

"We always try to run full out during Christmas," he said. "But it's our most hectic time of the year and there definitely are waiting periods. We usually run at least 15 to 20 minutes behind schedule."

Central has a unique system for helping the drinking driver home. They provide a cab ride for the driver and a driver for his car. The price for the service is a double fare.

If you have trouble getting a cab and decide to leave your car and walk home, the police are willing to let you park overnight on the street as long as you tell them where your car is parked and give them your licence plate number.

Northern Obtains Contract

MONTREAL — Northern Electric has received a further satellite contract to build the total value of its spacecraft systems agreement to more than $1 million.

The original contract with Hughes Aircraft Company, signed in September, has been expanded to include six kits of hardware for command digital electronic equipment.

The additional equipment will be used on four geostationary communications satellites ordered by Comsat General Corp. The satellites will be operated by Comsat General and will be leased by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. to provide television within the United States.

Additional orders will be hired to meet the contract, Northern is also allowed to sub-contract many of the mechanical parts to Canadian companies. It is estimated that Northern stimulates as many jobs outside the company as now exist in the satellite plant. Employment there now exceeds 100.

Ellis Demands UIC Probe

Blank unemployment claims have been simple and mailed from the Unemployment Insurance Commission Montreal regional pay centre, says Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

The MP's claim is among a new series of charges he has levelled involving the UIC in an attempt to prompt a parliamentary inquiry into the agency. In the past month Mr. Ellis has publicized government documents he says were given him by "disgruntled commission officials."

To support his latest allegations of UIC administrative mismanagement, Mr. Ellis has quoted a 1971 government memo of problems at the Montreal centre.

The report, by the federal Management Review Branch, involves a period from Sept. 25 to Oct. 13 1972 and was kept secret "for political reasons," claims Mr. Ellis.

Among the problems he says the report noted at the Montreal centre:

—Absence of administrative planning until early 1972.

— Officials, "overwhelmed with work" without clear definition of objectives and sufficient information on data processing systems.

— A control system inadequately developed for rapid discovery of omissions and errors.

Mr. Ellis said it was a "known fact" a number of blank payments were signed and mailed even though "the printer had failed to mark the name, the address and the amoun."

The government may confirmed the report is outdated ,bnce necessary corrections have been made, he said. But "senior officials within the department" indicate many problems still exist — "including some not revealed in the report."

The fact the Mon real administrative program existed at all in its first years was due the "tenacious" efforts of UIC personnel, said the MP.

Police Charge Careless Driving

STIRLING (Special) — A Warkworth man was charged with careless driving by provincial police Friday after the car he was driving went out of control and into a ditch on county road 8 northwest of here Friday.

Donald Frucst Campbell, 19, of Warkworth, the lone occupant, was uninjured in the single vehicle collision.

Police estimate damage to the vehicle at $1,200.

Bell Provides Telephone For Handicapped Youth

Contributed By BELL TELEPHONE

Sandy Cunningham was a normal, healthy athletic boy. He played football, hockey, baseball and lacrosse and excelled in all of them.

A little over a year ago Sandy was involved in a serious motor vehicle accident.

Today, at 21 years of age, Sandy is paralyzed from the neck down with the exception of partial use of one arm.

After months in hospital, Sandy was released recently to his parents' home.

But coming home was not without its problems. He had to have a special bed costing about $1,600, a motorized wheelchair and a power reclining back with about $3,500 and if Sandy was to get out of the house at all, a Hoyer lift car top valued at $375.

It took special parents like Alex Cunningham, a Marketing employee of Northern Electric and his wife, Jean, a Registered Nurse who works at the Children's Aid Society, to cope with a situation like this.

But then and her problem arose. How would Sandy have contact with the outside world when his parents, his brother, Robbie 18, and sisters Janet, 11, and Margaret, 9, were not at home during the day?

Mrs. Cunningham contacted Bell Service Representative Diane Goodbout to inquire about special services the Company might have to enable Sandy to use a telephone.

Dianne immediately contacted Leo Logue, a tester on the Belleville Toll Test Board, and former president of Moira Valley Council, Telephone Pioneers.

Leo is well know around Belleville for his community service endeavors and he immediately went to work to help solve Sandys problem.

"I started scrounging material because special telephones can be very expensive," Leo revealed.

First he obtained an old microphone base from CJBQ radio station, then John Green, a retired employee of Delore Sizlitz Ltd., took the typed off his camera so the head set could be fastened securely to the air.

There were several others who guided in the project, such as Harry Curnoch, who provided the top of the base for the main telephone set, which can be lowered or extended. And the Coffee Shop at the Bell's 75 Bridge Street building gave a donation for some of the minor expenses.

Now, all Sandy has to do is raise his ear to the receiver if in bed, or drive his wheelchair under it, and with the arm he has some movement in, press the "O" button on the Touch-Tone set.

Leo placed Sandy's picture on a memo sheet, informing operators that Sandy would be requiring their assistance in placing his calls, and gave it to Chief Operator Rhoda Fleicher.

When receiving calls, all Sandy has to do is flip a switch.

"I called him to see if the phone was working and he said it was installed," said Mrs. Goodbout, "and he answered in three rings. He was thrilled to say the least."

Sandy is studying grade 13 mathematics from a correspondence school and with a special attachment, he can use right arm is able to use a typewriter.

He's looking forward to moving into the Cambridge Home in Belleville when it's completed. When it is ready for occupancy, this home will be the second of its kind in Canada. Cheshire Homes were founded by Lord Cheshire of England and are especially for physically handicapped people.

But there's one thing he won't leave behind when he moves in — his specially adapted telephone assembly.

And besides, Bell's Belleville operators would miss his cheery voice on the line, "Hi, it's Sandy."

Only once did Sandy get an operator who wasn't aware of his situation. When he asked her to dial a number, she informed him that it was in his local calling area and he could dial the number himself.

"I'd like to be able to," Sandy told her. "I really would.'

Partial Recovery for Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings made a partial recovery from a four-game losing streak Friday night by coming from behind to tie St. Louis Blues 5-5 in a National Hockey League game in St. Louis.

They salvaged a point through the courtesy of Pierre Jarry, whose second-period goal on a 2 on 1 break matched one by Gary Sabourin of the Blues in the first period.

Centre Guy Charron was the architect of the goal, however, as he fed Jarry a pass near the goal-mouth after stealing the puck from defenceman Don Awrey.

It was Jarry,a third goal of the season and his second in a Detroit uniform since being traded to the Wings by Toronto Maple Leafs in return for Tim Ecclestone.

In other games Friday Atlanta Flames shut out Vancouver Canucks 2-0 and California Golden Seals upset Pittsburgh Penguins 4-3.

The Red Wings remained in sixth place in the Eastern Division, while the Blues consolidated their hold on fourth place in the West.

In tonight's games, New York Rangers visit Montreal Canadiens, Philadelphia Flyers visit Toronto Maple Leafs, Buffalo Sabres are at Boston Bruins, Detroit meets Minnesota North Stars, Pittsburgh Penguins are at Vancouver Canucks and Atlanta Flames visit Los Angeles Kings.

Sunday,a four-game program includes Toronto at Buffalo, California Golden Seals at New York Rangers, Boston at Philadelphia and Minnesota at Chicago Black Hawks.

Featuring tonight's action will be the return to Toronto of Flyers' goalie Bernie Parent for the first time since the Leafs lost him to Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association in 1972.

Despite his misunderstanding with league officials, Parent believes the two years he spent in Toronto were the most valuable of his career.

He says he learned a lot of lessons from his boyhood idol, Jacques Plante, a comrade-in-goal, who was approaching the end of an illustrious NHL career.

"I tell you," Parent said, "I learned more from that old man than anybody else."

Atlanta 2 Vancouver 0

Dan Bouchards steady goaltending was the key to the Flames' shutout, his third of the season. He blocked 23 shots. Keith McCreary scored against the Canucks on a power play for the only goal the Flames needed to put Atlanta into third place in the West Division, one point back of Chicago Black Hawks, who were idle.

California 4 Pittsburgh 3

Reggie Leach's first goal in 12 games gave the Seals an unset win over the fifth-place Penguins. He converted a pass from Joey John-on to beat Pittsburgh goalie Denis Herron at 4:49 of the final period. Pittsburgh is winless in its last six games.

Juzda Aids Hull and Jets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Jets have encountered some criticism locally for expecting Bobby Hull to be both a good coach and a good player.

Bill Juzda, a former National League player, heard the murmers of discontent and helped the Jets stay unbeaten in two over the Toronto Toros Friday night and 3-1 over league-leading Edmonton Oilers Wednesday.

The win created a jam in second place in the World Hockey Association between idle Houston Aeros, the Jets and Minnesota Fighting Saints who defeated Vancouver Blazers 3-1 at home in the only other game Friday.

Juzda had been watching the spotty performances of the Jets this year and approached Hull with an offer to help him out.

He took notes, went to a Jets' practice and pointed out their mistakes.

"He's had no effect on us even though we won't had much time to really practice with him," said goaltender Ernie Wakely who played the last two periods Friday when Joe Daley was unable to finish.

"It was different having an outsider, who knows the game inside and out, tell us what we were doing wrong in the game.

"He laid it on the line as he saw it and the guys accepted it."

Hull said he gratefully accepted the help of Juzda and he credited that assistance for the performance Wednesday when the "defence played so well."

Juzda, a former defenceman, played eight seasons in the NHL with Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers. His last season was 1955-56.

Close to 5,000 fans watched Friday as the Jets fired five unanswered goals in the second period—two of them short-handed efforts—to surge into a lead they never relinquished.

Danny Johnson scored twice for Winnipeg with singles by the Garth Rizzuto, Chris Bordeleau, Fran Huck, Dunc Rousseau and Milt Black.

Jack Gibson, Tom Simpson, Wayne Carleton and Brian Gibbons replied for Team Canada who had previously never lost in Winnipeg.

In Minnesota, George Morrison broke a 1-1 tie on a power-play with eight minutes left in the game and Mike Walton added the clincher into an empty net to give the Fighting Saints the win.

Bears Maintain First Place Lead

By THE CHADIAN PRESS

Smiths Falls Bears trounced Gloucester 9-4 Friday in Central Junior Hockey League (CJHL) game in Smiths Falls Friday night to maintain their four-point first-place lead.

The loss dropped Gloucester to third place, two points behind Nepean Raiders who defeated Brockville Warriors 5-3 in the other CJHL game. Jim Brock's ville to move into second place.

Des Allen and Brian Johnstone scored three goals each and Terry Fournier, Barry Kellost and Dennet Cochran each scored once to give Smiths Falls its 18th win in 22 games this season. The Bears have lost six games and tied one.

Hughie Hamilton scored three times for the Rangers and Bill Lee scored once.

In Brockville, Nepean Raiders scored the first three goals of the game and ended the first period with a 3-1 lead.

Mike Eaves scored twice for Nepean, and Sid Tanchuk, Mike Keeler and Scott McLean each scored once.

Tonight Brockville plays at Nepean.

Nastase And Okker In Final

BOSTON (AP) — Fleshrend Ilie Nastase of Romania continued his longtime jinx over Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., 6-3, 7-6, and qualified to meet Tom Okker of the Netherlands in the finals of the Grand Prix Masters tennis tournament.

Okker won a dramatic victory over John Newcombe of Australia, who defaulted with an injured pulled muscle in his leg while holding match point at 6-3, 5-7, 5-3.

The Okker-Newcombe match, ending a brilliant late-season surge by the Australian, who won the U.S. Open and led his country to a 5-0 sweep over the United States in the Davis Cup, ended with a suddenness that startled a sellout crowd of 4,400 at the indoor Hynes Auditorium.

Reaching for a smash at deuce point on his service, two points away from the match, Newcombe put the ball away but went to the floor in pain. After a few moments delay, he defaulted.

The best-of-five final match will be played at 1 p.m. today.

Cats and Nats Dish Up Hockey Treat for Capacity Crowd

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

About two thousand Belleville fans clamored to get into the Memorial Arena last night for the Metro Junior B contest between Belleville Bobcats and Toronto Young Nationals. Another 250 local spectators were turned away at the door as the Arena took on the resemblance of a sardine can with some people even sitting on each others laps.

Although it was "Kiddies Night", meaning all children were admitted free of charge, one would have to admit that Belleville's Juniors are the biggest drawing car for spectators of any even in the city; except maybe the Exhibition.

What happened?

The large crowd was far from disappointed. The game compensated for any discomfort.

A total of only nine penalties were assessed during the match-up, the lowest number of any Junior game in Belleville this season. Young Nats goalie, Shawn Simmons, and Belleville netminder, Bruce Clarke, put on superb display of goaltending, stopping 38 and 36 shots, respectively. Despite the low number of penalties, some of the meanest checks of the season were dished out by the Bobcats.

All of these things combined, made up an excellent hockey performance, well appreciated by fans as cheers of "Go Cats Go" were heard consistently throughout the sixty minutes of play.

The end result was even better for the fans than the game itself. Belleville defeated the Toronto team 3-2 and moved into sole possession of first place in the Metro standings.

The first period was definitely a rough going one as six of the game's nine penalties were handed out, four of which went to Toronto. Belleville's high scoring power play was never, however, held to a standstill and the 2-1 lead that the Bobcats had at the end of the first frame was obtained while the teams were both at full strength.

Mark Coates opened the scoring for the Bobcats and Paul King added the second locals' goal in the first 20 minutes of play.

Adrian Sohn fired the first period Toronto goal.

The Cats held a slight margin during the first period but that slim difference changed hands in the second and the Nats appeared to have the upper hand for a while.

Belleville was short-handed twice in the second but, just as the Nats did in the first, devised an excellent penalty killing unit. Neither team could score in the middle period. The final frame was the best as far as action was concerned. The Bobcats threatened to score several times in the early minutes of the last 20 but, were kept off the board by Nats goalie, Simmons.

Locals were led by some behing body checks that left their marks on the visitors.

24 Deals Made For 55 Players

HOUSTON (AP) — Pitching, the dwindling factor in baseball, was also the dominating factor at the winter baseball meetings.

Often called 75 per cent of the game, pitching took more than 50 per cent of the play in a wild, record-setting week of 24 deals between major league teams.

The trend started last Monday on opening day and continued, right through the last day on Friday, when seven deals were, completed—including a six-player blockbuster between St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Red Sox.

The Cardinals received pitcher John Curtis, Lynn McGlothen and Mike Garman in exchange for pitchers Reggie Cleveland and Diego Segui and infielder Terry Hughes.

By the time the last trade was made, a total of 55 players had been dealt in five days—29 of them pitchers.

Them deals also were made Friday as the club owners and general managers went down swinging:

—New York Yankees acquired pitcher Ken Wright and outfielder Lou Piniella from Kansas City Royals for relief pitcher Lindy McDaniel.

—Pittsburgh Pirates sent pitcher Bob Johnson to Cleveland Indians for outfielder Bill Flowers.

—Philadelphia Phillies purchased pitcher Eddie Watt from Baltimore Orioles.

—The Pirates sold infielder Cesar Tovar to Texas Rangers.

—Texas sent infielder-catcher Bill Sudakis to the Yankees for a player to be named later or cash.

—The Montreal Expos sold outfielder Felipa Alou to Milwaukee Brewers.

The explosive trading activity Friday, announced with the brass was literally clearing out of town, finished a short period during which 24 of the majors' 26 teams made deals. Only the New York Mets, San Diego Padres and San Francisco Giants failed to come up with anything at the 1971 affair.

In addition to the sweeping Friday, the two major leagues convened in their final sessions and discussed the energy crisis.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced that he would appoint a national co-ordinator to work with the member clubs in an attempt to conserve energy in this realm.

But while Kuhn was talking about energy, the others were sweeling theirs to make deals. The big one of the day, of course, was the Cardinal-Red Sox deal.

"A left-hander was of prime importance," said St. Louis General Manager Bing Devine, pointing out that Curtis was the key man in the deal for the Cardinals.

He was excited about the other two players, also.

"That is because I've been to is that we added three quality pitchers for the price of one of a veteran reliever," said Devine.

Curtis had a 13-13 record for the Red Sox last year. McGlothen, who missed part of 1972 because of a knee operation, had a 1-3 record for the Cubs but Garman spent most of the season in the minors.

Kitchener Clobbers Toronto Marlboros

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener's Mike McKegney apparently plays his best Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A games when the other team is shorthanded—and he proved it Friday night.

McKegney scored three goals, all while the Toronto Marlboros had a man in the penalty box, to lead the Kitchener Rangers to a 9-3 drubbing of the Marlboros before 4,494 fans in Kitchener.

The teams were tied 1-1 after the first period, but Kitchener took a 5-2 lead into the final twenty minutes.

Doug Roxborough added two goals for the Rangers, who outshot the Marlboros 50-34.

Dan Djakalovic, Paul Evans and Dwight Foster scored single goals for Kitchener, who played the last five minutes of the game shorthanded when the Rangers' Dave Maloney highsticked Greg Neeld and drew blood in the process.

John Anderson, Bruce Boudreau and Neeld scored for Toronto.

Each team drew eight minor penalties.

Elsewhere in the league Friday, Oshawa Generals edged Ottawa 67s 5-4, London Knights beat Kingston Canadians by the same score and Hamilton Red Wings and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds played to a 4-4 tie.

Generals 5, 67s 4

Brian Kinsella and Bill Lochead scored two goals each to give the Generals their first win in four games.

Lee Fogolin scored the other Oshawa goal.

Jamie Masters, Larry Jacobs, Rick Kehoe and Bob McConell scored for Ottawa.

A record of 2,200 in Ottawa watched their team go down to its fourth straight defeat.

Knights 5, Canadians 4

A power-play goal by Ron Zeguss in the final minute of play gave the Knights their victory.

Paul Nicholson scored two goals for Knights, with Vern Stenlund and Dennis Marks adding singles.

Fred Rhinesa, Barry Scully, Larry Murphy and John Fields scored for the Canadians who were outshot 41-36.

Red Wings 4 Greyhounds 4

Hamilton scored three unanswered goals in the third period to earn the tie with Sault Ste. Marie.

Greyhounds took a 4-1 lead into the second period after goals by Jim Dobson, Bruce Boudreau and Neeld scored for Toronto.

Each team drew eight minor penalties.

Doug Quinlan, Ron Sedlbauer, Mike Robin and Willie Wise scored for Hamilton, the latter's tying the score with just over three minutes left in the game.

Swords, Reds in Trouble

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cincinnati Swords and Providence Reds are suddenly in trouble in the American Hockey League.

Nova Scotia Voyageurs knocked Cincinnati out of first place in the South Division, a position the club's been in since the start of the season, with a 4-2 victory Friday night.

And the Reds, still in first place in the North Division, had their lead trimmed to one point—they held a seven-point margin late last month—as they lost 6-4 to Virginia Red Wings.

In other games, New Haven Nighawks beat Springfield Kings 6-4, Baltimore Clippers topped Rochester Americans 4-3 and Hershey Bears nipped Richmond Robins 4-3.

The results left Providence with 33 points, one more than New Haven, and three ahead of Nova Scotia. Boston is fourth with 28 points followed by Rochester with 25 and Springfield with 14.

In the South, Hershey now leads with 30 points, two more than Cincinnati, and six ahead of Baltimore. Jacksonville has 21, Virginia 15 and Richmond 14.

Nova Scotia 4 Cincinnati 2

The Voyageurs won their second straight over the Swords when Peter Sullivan scored a power-play goal in the third period and Ed Gilbert added an insurance marker in an open net with 62 seconds remaining.

It was the Swords' first home loss and their fifth game in a row without a win, four defeats and a tie, while being outscored 23-9. They had a 5-0 record earlier in the season.

John Van Boxmeer and Greg Hubick got the other Nova Scotia goals, while Joey Robertson scored for Cincinnati.

Virginia 6 Providence 4

Meehan Bonnar and Andy Gruen each scored two goals to lead Virginia in a rough game in which had 82 minutes in penalties, 63 to Providence.

Len Fontaine and Brian Lavender shared the other Virginia goals, with Dan Bergeson and Bert Wilson getting two each for Providence.

New Haven 6 Springfield 4

The Nighthawks scored three goals in each of the first and third periods to defeat the Kings, taking their sixth straight loss.

Baltimore 4 Rochester 3

Howie Menard, returning to action after missing two games with an eye injury, scored with 50 seconds remaining to give the Clippers their win.

The Clippers scored two goals in the first period and one in each of the second and third periods to stretch their winning streak to five games. It was the first Rochester loss after seven wins.

Brian Murphy, Marc Dufour and Kent Douglas got the other Baltimore goals, with Art Stratton, John Wensink and Bob Malcolm scoring for Rochester.

Hershey 6 Richmond 3

Dennis Dechar's fourth goal of the season at 12:50 of the third period snapped a 3-3 tie and gave Hershey the win.

Hank Nowak, Don Selling and Jim Hrycuik shared the other Hershey goals. Gary McMillan, Chico Drolet and Serge Lajeunesse replied for Richmond.

Tonight's schedule has Richmond at Baltimore, New Haven at Boston, Providence at Hershey, Rochester at Springfield and Jacksonville at Virginia.

Sunday, it's Providence at Cincinnati, Baltimore at New Haven, Jacksonville at Richmond and Rochester at Halifax to meet Nova Scotia.

Selects Start Slow But Warm to the Task

QUEBEC (CP) — Moscow Selects looked like just another hockey team for the first 10 minutes of their exhibition contest against Quebec Remparts Friday night.

But after their unsteady start, the No. 1 team in the Soviet Union's hockey hierarchy shook off whatever stage fright it had nurtured, then erupted from the shell and went on to trounce the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League club 13-2.

Boris Malrov, top man on the Selects three-man coaching staff, had an explanation for his team's slow start.

Through an interpreter, Malrov explained that his young players—average age 23—had not fully recovered from the time difference between here and Moscow. The team arrived in Montreal on Wednesday night.

"And they were excited because it is their first time out of Russia, and their first game in Canada," he said during a post-game interview.

The Soviet coach said he did not think the Remparts, one of the top junior aggregations in Canada, had the "physical finish" to play "good hockey," and added that this lack of finesse hampered the Remparts' overall technique.

Malrov said his club, which is a stepping stone to the Soviet national team, was "slow at least 30 minutes each day and for one hour on game days."

Asked if left winger Sergei Kapustin, a 20-year-old rumoured date for the national team, could be classed as a star with the Selects on the strength of five goals he scored against the Remparts, the coach replied:

"He is not a star. There are no stars on a Soviet team. Kapustin today and someone else the next day. We could pick out a much better team than the Selects."

Malrov insisted that Soviet national team players such as Valeri Kharlamov are miles ahead of any players currently here with the Selects.

Kharlamov was one of the Soviet heros in last year's Team Canada-USSR confrontation.

The Selects are here on a 14-day, eight-game tour of this country. Their next opposition comes from another CAHL team—the Saguenoens—in Chicoutimi Sunday afternoon.

The Remparts scored first in the lopsided contest, when Richard Nantais beat Soviet netminder Victor Krivolapov at 2:38 of the opening period with the Selects' Vladimir Repnev in the penalty box for cross checking Quebec starting goalie—Maurice Barrette.

Sid Rogney made up for his earlier misreport one minute later with a power-play goal of his own when he beat Charles Constantin in the box.

Serge Beaudoin popped in another power-play goal with a perfect bunt, only to watch Serge Savard even the score as the Quebec player looked on from the penalty bench. That was at 9:42.

Defenceman Sergei Kvotov put the Selects ahead to stay at 17:10 and Kapustin added his first goal of the night just before the period ended.

Left winger Victor Schalimov scored the Selects' fifth goal with 98 seconds elapsed in the second period, with Kapustin adding the next four by the 7:14 mark of the final frame.

Schalimov scored twice each second their second goals in the third period while Valeri Belousof and Anatoli Kartaev finished the scoring.

Browns, Bengals In A Showdown

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati and Cleveland renew their mid National Football League rivalry Sunday and there will be more at stake than usual.

Both the Bengals and the Browns entertain playoff hopes and have just two more games left in the regular season to do something about it. The two are tied with Pittsburgh Steelers for first place in the American Conference Central Division and a loss could just about eliminate the loser.

"We just have to play hard-nosed football and make fewer mistakes," says Cincinnati fullback Charles Bobbie Clark.

Pittsburgh, coming off three straight losses, will entertain Houston Oilers. In other Sunday games, Washington Redskins are at Dallas Cowboys, Chicago Bears visit Detroit, New England Patriots plays at Buffalo Bills, New York Jets travel to Philadelphia, Atlanta Falcons host St. Louis Cardinals, Baltimore Colts welcomes Miami Dolphins, San Francisc 49ers are in New Orleans Saints and Denver Broncos visit San Diego Chargers.

Los Angeles Rams entertain New York Giants Monday night.

Kansas City Chiefs played at Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings were at Green Bay Packers today.

Cleveland has beaten Cincinnati in six out of seven regular season meetings, including a 17-13 triumph earlier this year in Cleveland.

Both clubs are coming off big losses. The Bengals turned in their best performance of the year last week, handing the Minnesota Vikings a 27-6 loss. It was the Vikes' first shutout in 182 games.

The Browns rallied from a 28-6 deficit with two long-range touchdowns in the final six minutes to tie Kansas City 30-30.

Jim Plunkett has expected to start at quarterback for Pittsburgh against the hapless Oilers, 1-11. Bradshaw, out four games with a shoulder injury, returned during Monday night's loss to Miami and threw a pair of touchdown passes.

The Washington-Dallas battle is for first place in the NFC East. The Redskins can clinch the title with a victory. A Dallas victory would extend the suspense another week. Bill Kilmer, who started earlier in the week with stomach problems, will be available to start behind center for Washington.

Chicago expects to have quarterback Bobby Douglass back in action after missing a game. Munson will again call the signals for the Bears.

Interest in the New England-Buffalo game centres around O. J. Simpson, who needs 98 yards to break Jim Brown's all-time rushing record for a single season of 1,863 yards. Simpson needs 208 yards. The Bills, coming off an upset of Atlanta, have hopes of a wild-card playoff berth.

Joe Namath is a probable starter for the Jets despite a knee problem. The Eagles boast the league's top passer, Roman Gabriel, and top receiver, Harold Carmichael.

Atlanta, eliminated last week from the NFC West race, is now looking for a wild-card playoff spot. St. Louis may start rookie Gary Keithley at quarterback in place of the injured Jim Hart.

Miami whipped Baltimore 44-0 the first time around and has held the Colts scoreless for 18 straight quarters. Dolphins' coach Garo Yepremian is the league's top scorer.

Steve Spurrier will be at quarterback for San Francisc. The 49ers trounced New Orleans 49-0 earlier in the season.

A Denver victory over San Diego will assure the Broncos of their first winning season ever. Quarterback Charlie Johnson sustained a bruised thigh last week but is scheduled to start for Denver anyway.

Drug Trade Exposed In Book

PARIS (Reuter) — Andre Labay, wealthy 51-year-old Frenchman, was jailed for 18 years Friday after he and accomplices were found guilty of operating a huge transatlantic drug-smuggling ring.

Meanwhile an explosive book, distributed in the face of threats to author and publisher, charges that the French Mafia still controls drug traffic and other underworld operations under the protective umbrella of influential officials.

Written by journalist Alain Jaubert, the book Premier Il ... As in Drugs, maintains that the Mafia is made up of well-organized Corsican gangs with Cosa Nostra links in the United States and Italy, and that its French operations have grown to an unprecedented scale.

Jaubert maintains that the international crime organization is so powerful it even owns two banks in Switzerland. He says profits from illegal operations reach French ministers, diplomats, bankers, civil servants, police and secret service agents.

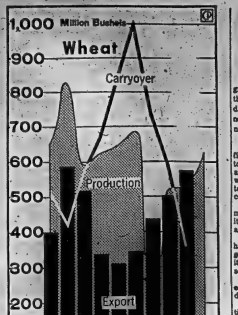
Release Man

OTTAWA — External Affairs Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Friday that Canadian businessman Thomas Serjeant, 38, has been freed from a Tanzania jail after being held there for more than two months.

No Allocation

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has no plans to legislate the allocation of boxcars to move various commodities, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, said today.

Mr. Lang told former prime minister John Diefenbaker that the railways are doing their best to keep all their customers satisfied.



Season Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — Current warm weather will allow the St. Lawrence seaway to stay open four days longer than was originally expected, the seaway authority said Friday.

The section from Montreal to Lake Ontario will close Dec. 20 instead of Dec. 16 while the scheduled closing for the welland canal has been pushed to Jan. 4.

Unrest Spreads

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Problems surrounding activities at Conestoga College in Kitchener, Ont., have spread to the school's Guelph campus with students charging faculty with harassment and intimidation.

Wheat exports continued to grow in 1973, up to 575 million bushels in the fiscal year ending July 31. Production last year was 533 million bushels with the 1973-74 crop virtually complete, production will be even higher this year up to 628.7 million bushels. Carryover, the amount of wheat on hand at the end of the fiscal year, was down to 366 million bushels at July 31, 1973.

Violent Crime Rate Stablilizes

OTTAWA (CP) — The violent crime rate in Canada for the first six months of this year shows some stabilization although the rates for some of the more spectacular forms of violence are up.

Statistics Canada figures for the six-month period show the violent crime rate--from mugging to murder--increased only 0.1 per cent, compared with the same six months last year.

The actual figures were 47,058 violent crimes in the first six months of this year, compared with 46,426 for the same period in 1972. This represented rates of 212.9 per 100,000 population, compared with 212.7.

But the figures are uneven when considered province by province, with Nova Scotia showing an increase of 11.3 per cent in its violent crime rate and Quebec showing a decrease of 2.5 per cent.

Across the country the murder rate was up 11.1 per cent.

In 1972 there were 193 murders, or 8.9 per 100,000, compared with 215, or one per 100,000 this year. Statistics for attempted murder were virtually the same as those for murder.

In Ontario, crimes of violence were up 4.1 per cent, involving 16,587 offences compared with 16,548 last year.

Murder figures were up to 69 from 62 and attempted murder to 62 from 48.

Toronto Police Chief Deplores Wiretap Curb

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Harold Adamson of the Metropolitan Toronto police force says he fears new federal wiretapping legislation will hinder the battle against organized crime.

"I am sure those involved in organized crime in this country are greeting this change in the law with high glee," Chief Adamson said Thursday. "A valuable aid to crime detection has been lost."

Energy Motion Unveiled by PCs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives unveiled their non-confidence motion Friday, designed to topple the minority government Monday night.

It was short and to the point. "This House has lost confidence in the government due to its incoherent, inconsistent and vacillating energy policy, which is bringing economic loss to Canada and hardship to the consuming public."

But the motion was robbed of much of its impact even before it was made public late Friday afternoon.

The New Democratic Party has promised to support the government in the vote, giving it an edge over the Conservatives.

Prime Minister Trudeau's energy policy statement Thursday won the NDP support.

The new policy included a national petroleum corporation, extension of the interprovincial oil pipeline to Montreal and continuation of the voluntary petroleum products price freeze until winter's end.

The Liberals had planned to let the freeze ban. 31.

Debate in the House Friday tended to dwell more on the prime minister's speech than on Mr. Macdonald's emergency energy bill.

The bill would set up a national allocation board to administer rationing of petroleum products at the wholesale level. It also would impose rationing at the retail level, possibly through ration coupons, if the developing energy shortage in the East reaches crisis proportions.

Gordon Ritchie (PC--Dauphin) continued his party's attack, saying the new energy policy is "like using a sledgehammer to kill a fly."

Dr. Ritchie said he does not believe there is enough of a crisis to justify the prime minister's action.

Family Allowance Increase Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons dealt with a package of social legislation Friday in anticipation of Christmas breaks and a new parliamentary session next year.

Rising pressure over a Progressive Conservative non-confidence vote Monday of government handling of the energy situation had all but dissipated following plans by the New Democratic Party to vote with the minority administration.

With that potential crisis behind it, the Commons approved, without usual further debate, four government bills one of which boosts family allowance payments to an average $20 a month a child from a current $12. But while the payments increase in January, they also will be taxable for the first time since family allowances were introduced in 1945.

Also in the package were bills to link Canada Pension Plan (CPP) increases to the cost of living, to increase money available for residential mortgages through a new government corporation and to increase the staff of the national parole board.

The unusual agreement to rush the bills followed all-party agreement on three days of bargaining between the government and Conservative opposition.

Earlier agreement was hailed, particularly tensions over the non-confidence vote. But speculation that the government might fall ended Thursday when Prime Minister Trudeau announced new federal oil policy that largely reflected NDP demands.

With Senate passage of the four bills, expected within a week, the government will have 45 laws to its credit during this parliamentary session which started Jan. 4. But sources say the government also wants passage of two other bills.

One, a bill to give the government wide powers to act in energy emergencies, still faces committee study. The other, proposed legislation to tighten up election campaign spending rules, continues to meet opposition in committee.

Following Friday's plate-cleaning deal, sources indicated that the current session might end Dec. 22.

Following prorogation, a new session is expected in early February.

PM Critical Of Lougheed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau brought the federal government's energy position to the west Friday night, and combined policy explanations with biting criticism of Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed.

After calling Mr. Lougheed inadequate in international oil marketing and accusing him of reacting petulantly to the federal oil export tax, the prime minister reiterated his hope that the federal and Alberta governments "will progress cooperatively toward an energy policy, of benefit to all Canadians."

Laying off Booze Helps Guitarist

TORONTO (CP) — Since he gave up the booze, David Wilfen has found that his fingernails don't break so easily. As a guitarist, that's one small consolation.

But it has also meant that this veteran performer has lived to sing his songs.

After 14 tough years of ups and downs trying to make a living as a folk singer, David has finally come up with the right sound at the right time. Following the release of his album Coast to Coast Fever in October, the Ottawa-based singer recently completed a brief tour of several Eastern Canadian cities winning encouraging reviews and many followers.

This collection of songs, coupled with his magnetic appearances on the coffee house tour, has, it seems, paved the way to establishing David among Canada's finest songwriters and performers.

The success and stability he is beginning to enjoy may seem an age reward after all those years of bar-room blues and hard times. But looking back David vows "I wouldn't have missed a day of it."

Apart from the struggle of making his own music and getting it across to an often uninterested public, the British-born musician was faced for 11 years with an additional hardship of being an alcoholic. His reputation as a musician suffered on many occasions and his ties with family and friends were often strained.

"I would just wake up in the morning feeling really frightened—until I'd had those first few drinks," he recalled. "Sometimes I'd turn up a week late for an engagement. It was horrifying. All I could do was crawl into the nearest bar and get started."

But about a year ago he spent "three weeks of hell on wheels" in a hospital breaking the habit. The treatment worked and David emerged to piece together his life and his music.

"Now I really want to be a star," he said. "I've been around since the beginning when singers like Gordon Lightfoot were just starting out. Now I'm 31 and I'm hot and I hope to hell I make it this time."

Along the many paths he has followed during his career, David has enjoyed momentary tastes of gory. He played in bands like The Children and Three's A Crowd with the talented Bruce Cockburn and also with Dave Brubeck's son Darius in Heavenly Blue.

Another time he served as a co-host on an Ottawa television music show playing alongside several popular artists from the United States.

A big break for him appeared in 1971 when he was lined up to record an album in San Francisco. But after 10 crazy weeks in the studio with musicians and producers he didn't know, David "freaked out" and the record, among many of his other ventures, ended in disaster.

However, some of his songs gained recognition. In 1965 Anne Murray recorded one of his tunes and later Harry Belafonte added a David Wilfen song to his repertoire.

After his rehabilitation, David went back into the recording studios last year, this time in Toronto, to record Coast to Coast Fever with his close friend Bruce Cockburn as producer. At last, David had come up with the right sound and, when the album was released, it was hailed as the finest Canadian folk album of 1973.

Working with him today is "a jewel of a band," David said. Wayne Leslie on bass, Frank Kerr on electric and acoustic guitars and drummer Richard Patterson complement David's deep, emotional songs with sophistication and style.

"They play my music the way I wrote it and the way I want it to sound', he said. "And they play it very well." His appeal, he feels, lies with people who want "to think deeper about important personal things." Not surprisingly his audiences are quiet and attentive as they are the lights go down.

On stage David is the yet, eran professional, amusing the audience with funny oneliners, telling stories of people and places and then performing his songs with sincerity and polish.

Back in the dressing room he is a happy but tired man. "I've come a long way since it all started. If I don't make it this time," he sighed, "I don't think I have another superhuman effort inside me to try again. I'll just go off and live quietly in the hills of California."
